Motive of Keller Shooting Not Admitted.

Barker Cannot Tell Story of His Wrongs.

New York, June 19.—Once more today the prosecution in the case of Thomas G. Barker, on trial at Jersey City for the shooting of the Rev. John Keller, of Arlington, blocked the defense in its efforts to bring out the story of the motive that moved the prisoner, when he attempted the life of his former friend. Barker was called to the witness stand, in opening of court, to complete his testimony, under cross-examination, and in response to questions of his counsel he began to describe his movements on Feb. 3, the morning of the shooting. He said he left home to buy a newspaper. As he neared the corner of Beech stret and Midland avenue, he said he met Mr. Keller on Beach street, about forty feet from the corner. Keller stopped and said "Good morning, Mr. Barker."

"I replied to Keller and said: 'You damned villain, you outraged my wife,' and then——"

"I object, I object, stop, stop," shouted County Prosecutor Erwin. The court ruled not to allow further testimony on this point, and then Barker started to tell what happened after the shooting. He said he jumped on a car and went to the town hall at Kearney, where he surrendered himself.

Barker stated that he went alone to the town hall, which was in contradiction of testimony for the state that he was accompanied by Mr. Buckley, a neighbor.

The witness started to tell what a sleepless night he had spent before the shooting, and about his nervous and excited condition. He was promptly stopped by the prosecutor, and the objection was sustained.

Barker's testimony regarding the passing of words with Keller before the shooting contradicts the statements of the latter yesterday when on the stand.

Barker, continuing his testimony, under examination by his counsel, contrived to make several allusions to the wrong Keller is alleged to have committed. In several instances objections by the prosecuting attorney were sustained. Witness detailed a quarrel he had with Keller because the latter had borrowed $83 from Mrs. Barker in April, 1899, the last of which was paid in March, 1900. Previous to that incident the relations of Keller with witness and his wife were very friendly; they frequently bicycled together, and witness presented Keller with a bicycle. Witness said he did not know until January that his wife had left Mr. Keller's church.

Barker then described what took place at the house where Mr. Keller was lying when the witness was taken there from Kearney. He said that he asked Keller in a low voice if he knew him. Mr. Keller was unable to recognize him. Barker went over again the story of his meeting with Keller on the morning of the shooting. He saw Keller coming up Beech street. "I waited for him," said Barker, "because I wanted to speak to him. He was coming toward me."

AMOUNTED TO NOTHING

Alleged Clothing Frauds In San Francisco Simmer Down to a Few Garments Bought By a Junk Dealer.

Washington, June 19.—The war department today made public two telegrams dated yesterday, relating to the alleged clothing frauds at San Francisco. The first is a message from Gen. Corbin to Gen. Shafter asking for information on the subject, and stating that "it is desirable, from every point of view, that detailed facts of any importance be given the department before being exploited in the newspapers."

Gen. Shafter's reply is as follows: "In reference to your telegram today, I have refrained from making a report regarding clothing seized by Col. Maus, because the quantity was very small and it all appeared to have come from the same man, a junk dealer who did business around the Presidio. The clothing had evidently been sold to this peddler by soldiers and recruits. The junk man and his son who sold it have been arrested by the federal authorities and their case is being considered by the federal grand jury today.

"There is no shortage in any department here. The clothing probably represents the accumulation of articles which have been sold from time to time during the past year or two by the thousands of soldiers who have passed through San Fransisco. I do not regard this matter as of any importance, though it it has been widely exploited by the sensational newspapers. However, the seizure of these articles and the arrests made will have the effect, I think, of discouraging the purchase or sale of soldiers' wearing apparel in this vicinity hereafter.

"Following is an exact list of the articles seized: Blankets, 11 pairs; leggins, 5 pairs; blue flannel shirts, 48; blouses, 1; gauntlet gloves, 2 pairs; black calfskin shoes, 77 pairs; tan and russet shoes, 53 pairs. All these articles are now in the hands of the proper departments."

THE HUNGRY PARASITES

Have Been Glutted With Pennsylvania Franchises and the Legislature Now Places Restrictions on All Others.

Harrisburg, Pa., June 19.—The house passed finally on special orders today, the two bills supplemental to the rapid transit acts signed by the governor recently. These bills were introduced and passed in the senate last week, and they now go to the governor for his action. The one constituting the governor, secretary of state and attorney general a board to pass on applications for rapid transit franchises was attacked by several anti-administration Republicans and Democrats. In the course of a speech Mr. Corey, of Luzerne, a Republican leader of what is known as the "insurgent" element, said: "Two weeks ago the office of the secretary of the commonwealth presented a scene which will go down in history. There were a lot of hungry parasites and a lot of millionaires present in obedience to the orders they had received to raid the treasury. They carried away valuable franchises, and now it is proposed to prevent others from getting similar favors by placing the power to grant them in the hands of a board." McLain (Republican), of Lancaster, said in defense of the measure that many applications were made at the state department for charters that were to be used for purely speculative purposes, and this bill is to prevent such speculation in charters.

The bill passed by a vote of 105 to 65, receiving in its favor only two more than the requisite number of votes.

DEATH OF PINGREE

Michigan's Former Governor Succumbed to His Severe Ailment.

He Passed Away Just Before Midnight In London.

Remains Will Be Brought to His Detroit Home.

London, June 19.—Ex-Governor H. S. Pingree of Michigan died in this city last night at 11:35.

His son was the only one present at the time. The attending physician left Mr. Pingree's bedside at about 11:15, promising to return shortly. H. S. Pingree, Jr., who has been watching at his father's side for four days, and who has not removed his clothes during that time, noticed a sudden change in his father's condition. He had hardly reached the patient's bedside when his father died peacefully, without warning and without speaking one word.

Young Mr. Pingree has wired his mother and his uncle in the United States not to come to London.

The body of the late Mr. Pingree will be embalmed and taken to his home.

The diagnosis made by London specialists of the cancerous affection of the intestines, from which Mr. Pingree suffered, left practically no hope for the patient's recovery. Toward the end of his illness, Mr. Pingree suffered great pain and weakened rapidly. He was unable to retain nourishment. His mind, however, remained fairly clear. During the whole of Tuesday he was practically kept alive by injections of strychnine and drugs administered to lessen his pain.

The North German Lloyd steamer Koenigin Luise, which sails from Bremen, June 22, via Southampton June 23 for New York, will take the body of Governor Pingree to the United States.

New York, June 19.—Mrs. Hazen S. Pingree, widow of ex-Governor Pingree, whose death in London was announced by cable, arrived in this city from Detroit yesterday morning with her daughter, Hazel S. Pingree, and her husband's brother, F. C. Pingree. The party had started from Detroit as soon as they learned of the seriousness of the illness of Governor Pingree in London, but received a cablegram early yesterday that there was no use of continuing their journey, as the governor's condition was so bad they would arrive in London too late. Last night they received a cablegram telling of his death. No plans for the funeral have yet been made. Mrs. Pingree and her daughter will go back to Detroit instead of taking the steamer St. Paul, as intended. The widow and daughter will be escorted back home by F. C. Pingree, who will then immediately return to this city to await the arrival of the remains, which H. S. Pingree, Jr., or "Joe," as he is called, who was with his father in London when he died, will bring to this city.

Detroit, June 19.—All the flags in the city floated at half mast today, out of respect to the memory of ex-Governor Pingree, whose death in London last night was almost the sole topic of conversation on the streets today. Expressions of deep and sincere regret were heard on every hand. The common council met this morning and adopted fitting resolutions and the circuit courts adjourned until tomorrow, in respect to his memory.

SIGNIFICANT

The Emperor Pictures Germany's Future.

Peaceful Conquests For Trade Outlets.

Cuxhaven, June 19.—At the conclusion of the regatta, held yesterday on the lower Elbe, a dinner was given on board the Hamburg-American yacht Victoria-Louise, at which Emperor William made a speech. His majesty told his hearers that he deduced from recent events in China, the guarantee that the peace of Europe was assured for long years to come, because of the mutual esteem and spirit of comradeship created by the united action of the allied contingents. His majesty, in reply to the burgomaster's toast, said:

"I express to all of you, comrades on water, my delight that it has been granted me once more to participate with you in the races of the North German Regatta club. His magnificence, in his brief, pithy speech, has just given us a picture of the progress made by our fatherland in the domain of aquatic sport. My whole task in future will be to assure that the seeds now sown shall spring up in peace and security. Notwithstanding the fact that we as yet have not a navy such as we should have, we have won for ourselves a place in the sunshine, and it will now be my task to take care this place remains in our undisputed possession, so that the sun's rays may shed fruitful influence over our trade and intercourse abroad and industry and agriculture at home, and also on the yachting on our waters. for our future lies on the water. The more Germans go on the water, whether in yacht races or on voyages acrosss the ocean, or in the service of the German naval flag, the better it is for us, for once the German has learned to keep an eye on the far horizon, the pettiness surrounding him in his daily life disappears.

"If a man wants to get this broad and higher view, a Hanseatic tour is surely the most suitable for him. We have drawn our conclusions from what Emperor William the Great and the great man whose monument we have just unveiled left us at their creation. Those conclusions consist in this—that we start at the point at which the old Hansa had to leave off, because it lacked the vivifying and protecting power of the empire. May it therefore now be the task of my house, in profound peace, to promote and protect trade and commerce for long years to come. I behold in the events of which China has been the scene, and of which the present return of the troops marks the close, a guarantee that European peace is assured for years to come, for the services performed by the individual contingents have called forth an appreciation based on mutual esteem and comradeship, which can only contribute to the maintenance of peace. I trust that, profiting by this peace, our Hansa will flourish, and that our new Hansa will mark out a path for winning and retaining new trade outlets. As the supreme head of the empire, I can only rejoice over every Hanseatic man who goes forth with far-seeing gaze, seeking new points where we can knock in nails on which to hang our armor."

Emperor William concluded with a eulogy of the director general of the Hamburg-American line (Herr Albert Ballin), who had "gone out as a bold adventurer to make peaceful conquests whose fruits our grandchildren will reap."

A REGULAR OCTOPUS

Street Railway Syndicate Reaches Out For Everything In Sight---Would Control From Port Huron to Pittsburg.

Cleveland, June 19.—The Leader says: Not satisfied with its recent conquests in the suburban railway field, the Everett-Moore syndicate has gone after another big system of interurban trolley lines. This, when they add it to their thousand miles of tractions, will give them a clean sweep from Port Huron, Mich., to Pittsburg, Pa. Three states will be included in the spider-like trail, and more than 2,000,000 people will be within reach of the line controlled by the system. Negotiations, it is learned, are under way by which the Mahoning electric system will be absorbed by the big syndicate. The Mahoning system is considered one of the most valuable pieces of interurban traction properties in Ohio. It has about forty miles of track passing through Warren, Niles, Girard and Youngstown, the present Pennsylvania terminals at Green Castle, Pa. The company owns franchises and rights-of-way to Pittsburg. With this system in operation and tacked to its other lines the Everett-Moore syndicate would have an interurban system of trolley railroads extending from Port Huron, Mich., through Northern Ohio to Pittsburg.

RECORD AGAIN BROKEN

Steamer Deutschland Beats Her Own Speed Record By Crossing the Atlantic In 5 Days, 11 Hours and 51 Minutes.

Plymouth, June 19.—The Hamburg-American line steamer Deutschland arrived here at 8:15 a. m. today, having beaten her own speed record. She covered 3082 miles in 5 days 11 hours and 51 minutes, at an average speed of 23:38, against 23:36, her best previous record. Her daily runs were 449, 540, 542, 542, 549 and 460 knots, none of which equal previous best day's runs. Her best previous day's run, made in August, 1900, was 552 knots.

Capt. Albers, her commander, informed a reporter of the Associated Press that he had never said his vessel would cover the distance inside of five days. No special effort to attain high speed was made. The weather on the whole was favorable to a fast passage. On the first day out a light southeasti wind was blowing and the sea was smooth. During the second day a strong westerly wind blew. The third day the sea was very rough. For the rest of the passage fresh winds and moderate seas prevailed.

HUSBAND HAS MILLIONS

Son of Senator W. A. Clark Weds Miss Mabel Foster of Butte, the Affair Being an Elaborate One.

Butte, Mont., June 19.—W. A. Clark, Jr., the youngest son of United States Senator W. A. Clark, and Miss Mabel Foster were married this afternoon at the home of the bride's parents, Rev. S. C. Blackiston, of St. John's Episcopal church, officiating. The Foster home was elaborately decorated. The wedding guests were limited to fifty, relatives and friends. Mr. Foster gave his daughter away. There were no bridesmaids or groomsmen.

Senator Clark arrived last night to attend the wedding and it is said that his present to the bride was a check for $100,000.

The groom's present was a necklace of diamonds and pearls said to be valued at $60,000, and Mrs. Chas. W. Clark, sister-in-law of the bride, presented her with a ring set with oblong diamonds and emeralds. To secure perfect gems an expert has been searching the shops of New York for three months past. The bride's gown is said to have cost $5000.

The wedding journey will extend to Europe and will cover a year.

W. A. Clark, Jr., is supposed to be worth $3,000,000 in his own right. When he became of age a large sum was fixed on him, and this he has judiciously invested in mining property and realty. He is a popular young attorney.

Anger at his wife's habits, which were somewhat dissipated, is supposed to have furnished a motive for the crime. Ahearn was 40 years old and his wife, who had been married before, was 38 years old and was formerly employed as a servant in the house of Mr. Wernke.

LOPER FREE.

Philadelphia, June 19.—The jury in the case of Richard F. Loper, charged with conspiring with Cashier John S. Hopkins to defraud the People's bank of large sums of money, brought in a verdict of not guilty today by direction of the court. The bank failed March 24, 1898, and the Guaranteers Indemnity company, of which Loper was general manager, failed at the same time. Cashier Hopkins killed himself, after accusing Loper of being in part the cause of his downfall. Loper borrowed large sums personally and for his company, but he claimed that he gave the bank ample security for the loans, and that Hopkins hypothecated the securities for speculative purposes.

Judge Martin refused to admit certain evidence offered by the district attorney and the latter stated that without the evidence he could not go on with the case. Judge Martin thereupon directed the jury to render a verdict of not guilty.

THEFT IS CHARGED

Harry H. Hoyt Is In the Custody of the Police.

American Wringer Company Accuses Him of Embezzlement.

He Says He Could Not Live on His Salary.

Harry H. Hoyt, a young man of Lakeside, well known throughout Northern Minnesota, was arrested last evening charged with embezzlement.

Although the amount is small, the arrest has caused considerable talk owing to the prominence of Mr. Hoyt. He has been employed by the American Wringer company as collector for the district of Northern Minnesota. This company does an extensive business in the smaller towns and among the farmers selling all kinds of household furniture on small weekly installments. To Mr. Hoyt was entrusted the collections from this business.

The complaint against him was made out by A. A. Page, of 313 East Superior street, local agent for the American Wringer company. It sets forth that on Dec. 20, 1900, Mr. Hoyt appropriated $193.60 belonging to the American Wringer company and converted it to his own use.

The complaint dates from Dec. 20 for the reason that under the law the case can be tried from the date of the first shortage, and other shortages, if there be any, can be proven subsequent to this, when the case comes to trial.

Mr. Hoyt was ill when Detective Troyer called at his house, at the corner of Fortieth avenue east and London road, early last evening. Mr. Hoyt practically admits the shortage, and says that his salary was too small to support his family on. He was getting $17 a week with transportation expenses. His family consists of a wife and one child. Mr. Hoyt is 24 years of age.

He was arraigned in police court shortly after his arrest, and his examination set for tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock. In default of $500 bail he was committed to the county jail pending this preliminary trial.

AFTER HIM.

The members of the board of public works, in reply to an article in last evening's Herald criticizing them for the prompt manner in which they tore down the building that obstructed a street on Minnesota Point, say that the building referred to was on the street for a month before it was taken down by the city, and that it would not have been taken down then had the owners shown any disposition to move it.

President Wilson, of the board of public works, says that he and his colleagues were much more considerate of the feelings of the owners of the Minnesota Point building than they have been of Mr. Lerch, and that every effort is being made to have Mr. Lerch's barn, now obstructing West First street, taken off without further delay.

The council has practically given the Lerch people the right to stay on First street until tomorrow night. The wires of the street railway company at Third avenue west will be cut at mid-night tonight and the second section of the big barn is to be at least 200 feet from the corner of Third avenue by 5 o'clock tomorrow evening.

Mr. Sawyer, the contractor says that he can easily do this and will have a force of men on the barn all night. He expects to have the entire building over on the vacant lots at Fourth avenue west and First street in a day or so.

The contractor further says that if the street car company would have cut its line without waiting for an order from the council, and if the contractors building the new brick block opposite the Board of Trade building, could have been induced to remove his pile of bricks from the street, there would have been no delay in moving the building.

ASKS A DIVORCE.

Marion Dailey Recites Her Many Wrongs.

Marion Dailey, aged 34, has asked the district court for a divorce from Charles Dailey, aged 36, on the ground of cruelty. They were married in Carlton, Mich., March 10, 1888, and they lived together until March 1, 1896, when Mrs. Dailey says her husband left her in Saginaw and came to Duluth. She was forced to support herself until four years later, in March, 1900, when he importuned her by letter to come to Duluth and live with him. She came with the children, but she claims that he did not carry out his promise to support them, and that between June 1, 1900, and March 5, 1901, he was cruel to her, accusing her of infidelity and actually beating her. She asks for divorce and alimony for the care of the children. A motion for suit expenses and for temporary alimony accompanies the complaint. A. N. McGindley is the attorney.

Mr. Patton Denies.

City Engineer Patton, in replying to certain points that were raised in the council on Monday evening relative to the new wage scale of the engineering department, says that he has not reduced the wages of chainmen $15 a month. He claims that the chainmen were drawing salary at $65 a month while acting as inspectors, but now that they are performing the duties of chainmen and not inspectors the wages have been fixed at the customary rate for that service.

Mr. Patton also denies that one of the chainmen changed from inspector's pay to chainmen's pay, was the only member of organized labor in the city. He says that he has several employed in his own department.

SESSION OPENED

Sixth Annual Convocation of Episcopal Missionary District.

Bishop Morrison Dwells On Importance of Holy Communion.

The sixth annual convocation of the Episcopal missionary district of Duluth was opened this morning at St. Paul's church with about thirty-five delegates present. At 9 o'clock there was a holy communion service, conducted by Bishop Morrison, assisted by Dr. A. W. Ryan and Rev. Frederick Smith.

The Rt. Rev. J. D. Morrison, bishop of Duluth, gave his address to the clergy. After greeting the visiting clergy, he said that as they had come to review the work of the past year, and to renew their pledges, and following out the custom, he would mention those who had been called to their Maker after their life work was done. He then gave brief reviews of the lives of Charles Reuben Hale and William Morris Barker, who died Feb. 21, 1901. Taking for his text the passage of scripture where the servants are commanded to "Go out into the high ways and hedges and compel them to come in," he said that although the holy communion is the highest means of communion with God, yet there are many professing Christians who are negligent in that respect.

"A glance at any congregation will assure the onlooker that most of the people who attend church receive their chief good from the sermon, and the comparatively few remain for the more important of the two services. The holy communion is conceded to be a superior prerogative of the sanctified few, and it is generally supposed that they receive some mysterious good from it, yet the general congregation content themselves without it. This is not the view of the church, because it gives the members an opportunity of partaking of the sacrament every day of the year. All through the Old Testament we find the servants of God approaching Him through the sacrifice of blood, until Christ made it manifest that He no longer wished that, and instituted the Lord's supper in its place. The holy communion is the greatest act of divine worship and the chief means of grace, and it should be so regarded by the church. I tell you that it is a serious thing that the people do not take advantage of the way opened up to them for the means of eternal grace. We are in a period of decadence. People do not read their Bibles as much as they ought. Mere critical researches have come to take the place of devotion and faith. The Sabbath day has become secularized to such a degree that it hardly resembles the Sunday of former years. Not only the holiness, but the rest and quietness, has disappeared. Liberality has acquired a sinister interpretation.'

"What the church needs is a firm and unyielding hold on the entire body of scriptural doctrine as given by the church. Strength of individual integrity is essential. I do not see how it is possible to fulfil our catholic vows unless we have these qualities. God chose for his disciples spotless men, planted faith in their souls and made them the trustees of His word. The apostles had the confidence that He was with them always, they communicated their faith to others and the church grew.

"Ministerial influence must be impressed by individual contact. In the church we preach only to the masses, but in the visits we have an opportunity of individual contact that is of ineffimable value. As the children are confirmed, it is not simply enough for them to say that they wish to be baptized, it is necessary for the pastor to be sure that the candidate is prepared. Moses found God after long communion with Him, and we, too, may find grace and power to receive the sacred messages on our knees.

"May it please God to revive His work that the people may exalt in Him."

After the address Bishop Morrison called the convocation to order and the permanent organization was effected. Dr. J. E. Bowers, of Duluth, was elected secretary with Rev. Louis I. Belden as assistant. Committees were appointed as follows:

On privilege: Rev. J. T. Hamilton, Rev. G. Smith, H. Tanner, J. C. Small.

On apportionment: W. S. Bishop, Dr. Bowers, Dr. A. W. Ryan, Rev. N. F. Parshel, H. F. Greene.

Standing committee: Dr. Ryan, Dr. Hamilton, F. W. Paine, Dr. Bowers.

A proposition from J. C. Leonard, of the Church Endowment association, was referred to a committee and it was to report this afternoon at 3 o'clock. The meeting adjourned until 2 o'clock this afternoon. The hearing of reports and other business will occupy the afternoon.

The clergymen present are: Right Rev. J. D. Morrison, D. D., LL.D., Rev. A. W. Ryan, D. D., LL.D., Rev. T. H. M. V. Appleby, D. D., Rev. J. F. Hamilton, D. D., Rev. E. C. Johnson, Rev. Louis I. Nothing has been heard of the John McDonald since she was reported spoken Jan. 16 last in lat. 36 N., long. 134 W., when she was flying a signal, "Ship on fire." She kept her course, however, without stopping, and was soon out of sight.

TOO MUCH MONEY.

Portugal is suffering from a plethora of money just now, says the Cincinnati Enquirer. Not gold, of course, nor silver; but copper. So vast is the supply of this inferior metal that ordinary people are exceedingly charry of changing such few gold coins as they may come into possession of. The copper coinage is big and cumbersome, and it is also depreciated, so that, in order to avoid being burdened with it, it has become the custom, in the larger cities at all events, to use street car tickets as currency. In the provinces postage stamps are made to serve a similar purpose. Meanwhile the government at Lisbon goes on serenely minting the obnoxious coins—which nobody will use—at the rate of some eighty tons a month.

ENGINEER'S DEPARTMENT.

Former City Engineer Replies to Mr. Patton.

To the Editor of The Herald:

I observe that the city engineer, in an interview yesterday, made some statements which reflect on the manner in which his predecessor conducted the affairs of that office, and which are, to say the least of them, misleading.

The previous administration abolished the expensive luxury of a principal assistant engineer at $125 per month, the city engineer assuming his duties himself. The $280 survey party which Mr. Patton talks of, together with a draughtsman at $100 and a bookkeeper at $25, constituted the entire monthly charge for engineering assistance, including inspection of the "first, second and third" class, on all contract work (and the bi-annual inspection of all bridges within the city limits), which the city has had to pay for the last two years. The monthly bill for assistance in the engineering department at the present writing, includes two assistant engineers at $100 to $125 each, one draughtsman at $100, three inspectors at from $65 to $80 each, two rodmen at $50 each and a bookkeeper at $25. I do not know what is meant by the statement that there were practically no improvements during the last two years. All of the preliminary plans on which estimates of cost and preliminary plans were drawn, for all of the improvements which are about to be constructed (and many more), were made during the period mentioned, and every engineer knows that the preliminary work costs as much, generally much more, than the superintendence of construction, and the plans, estimates and contracts for the more important works, such as the aerial ferry bridge, the Michigan street paving, etc., were all made, ready to let.

There was also a very large amount of sidewalks of both wood and stone put down last year. A very large work, necessitating a great deal of field work and a great deal of office work, was also completed—the West Duluth sewer system plans, at an estimated cost of $399,713.

If Mr. Patton, instead of saying, "When I took charge the surveying party was costing the city $280 per month. By not filling the vacancy caused by the resignation of one man, and paying the others the salaries that have always ruled in the department, the party is now costing only $200 per month," had said, "By not filling the vacancy caused by the resignation of one man and paying the others the salaries that have always ruled in the department and having one additional assistant engineer at $125 per month, and three inspectors at from $80 to $65 per month, the party is now costing only $200 per month," his statement would not be so misleading.

I do not think that anyone can bring the charge of extravagance against the manner in which the department of engineering has been run during the last two years. The year before last it cost less than $5000. Last year it cost less than $7000, and the appropriation which I thought ample for all improvements contemplated for this year was $10,000.

I wish to add that whatever may have been "the rule of the department," I do not believe that men who can chain, rod, run a level or a transit and do inspection work competently and faithfully should be paid less than the amount which the council fixed their salaries at on my representations, $65 per month.

I have no desire to dispute with my successor about his management of the engineer's department, and I have no objection to his hiring all the assistance he requires, but why does he not do so on his own responsibility, without making comparisons, which the copybook says are odious? Yours truly,

THOMAS F. McGILVRAY.

Duluth, June 19.

Mrs. Vinnie Ream Hoxie has nearly finished at her studio, in Washington, a life-size figure of Thad Stevens, which she is to present to Lancaster, Pa., where Stevens is buried. The Pennsylvania statesman was a warm friend of the young woman sculptor of thirty-five years ago, and he helped her with all his unequaled influence in the house to get her statue of Farragut a place of honor in the nation's capitol. Therefore the work on the statue of Stevens is a labor of gratitude.

Twenty torpedo-boat destroyers and torpedo-boats will be turned over to the government by contractors within the next few months.

WENT TO SLEEP.

Message Sent 8,000 Miles to Awaken Him.

Out among the beautiful green groves of Northampton lives Dr. C. H. Crosby, who once was the champion telegraph operator of America. He is an M. D., with a large practice, a member of two or three clubs and a prominent secret society man who had quite outlived the days when the "key" was his constant companion, says the Boston Globe.

Once in a while, however, of an evening when cigars are lit and the company is of the right order he can be induced to tell a good story of his old days on the Associated Press and as a cable operator. Few who are intimately acquainted with this handsome, staid family physician, know that he holds the record of the Associated Press in the days before the typewriter came into use—and that is only yesterday.

When the doctor becomes reminiscent he will sometimes pull out the top drawer of his desk and fondle a little black handled object with a bit of pointed agate affixed to the end, and tell you that it is the stylus that wrote more words of telegraph copy in a given time than was ever transcribed before or since on either side of the Atlantic.

It was while he was chief operator in the Boston branch of the Associated Press that this feat was performed. It is claimed by his friends that the doctor at this time received the highest salary ever paid to an operator in the United States. He was several years in the Boston office, and was very intimately known to the newspaper row of ten or fifteen years ago.

Life alongside a telegraph key with a reputation like his to sustain was a very strenuous existence, and "Charlie" Crosby found himself accumulating an affection of the muscles of his right fore arm, which the doctors shook their heads over.

So, having a natural bent toward medicine, and having saved a good sum out of a salary that many a managing editor would not blush at, he took a course at a medical school and settled among the chestnuts and elms of Northampton.

Good stories beyond number of journalistic "beats" and exciting adventures in the days when the great newspapers thought nothing of having a whole copy of the Bible telegraphed and paying full tolls if they could only keep rivals from getting in a word about a great event are a part of the doctor's hours of relaxation.

Perhaps the rarest of the lot, one that has never been printed, although lots of them have found their way about, is about the time when the French cable people telegraphed 8000 miles to have him waked up when he was asleep in the next room, not twenty feet away from the operator who received the message.

The French line from this country to France was second of the transatlantic cables. The line stretched from Duxbury by way of New Foundland to Brest, in France. Dr. Crosby was the responsible night man in the lookout at Duxbury.

It was night in dusky October, as Poe sings, and the future disciple of Galen had taken his usual station at his key. Between the hours of 8 and 1, when the foreign news known in those days as Reuter's cablegrams used to come over the wires, there was very little doing. To sleep at his post was death or equivalent to it, and this he well knew, but the winds of autumn howling around the lonely little house, crooned a melody that reminded him of his mother's lullabies and he fell forward on the table and was soon past two continents in his dreams. This happened, on his own recollection, and he is the only witness, about 8:30.

At 9 o'clock the New York office of the "Franco-American Transatlantic Cable company, limited" called him. They had a private message for transmission.

"Tick!" went the little tormentor under his nose, but the operator heard it not.

After hammering away in vain for several minutes the New York operator gave it up, and thought a minute. There was but one way to get out of it. The receiving end of the line was in the next room to that of the missing operator, and there was a man in charge who could undoubtedly tell what was wrong. But in order to reach him an inquiry would have to be sent the whole length of the company's circuit, a matter of 8,000 miles or so. So calling up North Sydney at Cape Breton he began his task.

From Cape Breton the inquiry was flashed to Heart's Content, on the bleak coast of New Foundland, thence across the Atlantic ocean to Valentia on the southwest coast of Ireland, and so across the English channel to Brest. From end of the route it was doubled back to St. Pierre et Miquelon, and so slanted down to Duxbury. The whole matter only took about fifteen minutes.

At about twenty minutes past 9 the men in charge of the French end of the wire whose table was not more than twenty feet from the sleeping operator in the next room, began to get intelligence. He in a few seconds had recorded this somewhat surprising message, "Go into the next room and wake the man there."

Crosby was aroused at once and the position explained to him, when he picked up his key, and the business of two hemispheres was resumed again.

POCKET MONKEYS.

If you want something novel in the way of a pet, buy a pocket monkey. The little creatures belong to the species known as the marmoset. Their slender bodies are about five inches long and are covered with a soft coat of brown fur. The expressive face—the size of a shilling—is surrounded by a short hood of white or light fur, which has the appearance of an elaborate head dress.

Pocket monkeys cannot bear the cold. They like snug little nests, where they cuddle up, and keep warm, and while they sleep the tail is wound about the neck like a boa.

They come from the interior of Venezuela, where they live in the hollow trunks of immense trees. Small negroes are lowered into the trunks to catch them.

MILES OF HAIR.

Miss Morin Stuart, of the Castle Square Opera company, has been blessed by nature with 200 miles of golden hair. Wavy and abundant, the tresses fall almost to the hem of her gown. The number of hairs to the square inch of the head have been counted, and the hair is five feet in length, so it is estimated that if the silken strands were laid end to end 200 miles would be measured. It is a wonderful head of hair, and it is worthy of note that the fair owner does not believe in curling irons.

ECCENTRIC.

Kelsey Resident Lies On Track to Stop Trains.

The eccentric conduct of a man up in the township of Kelsey, name unknown, is going to make another job for the probate court. Word has been received here that this unknown individual has taken to delaying traffic on the Duluth, Missabe & Northern railroad by running out and reclining upon the tracks whenever a train shows up. This proves annoying to the railroad people, because in order to prevent running him down it is necessary to stop the train and pull him off the track, and as such conduct lays the man open to a charge of being peculiar in his habits, to put it mildly, it was decided to turn the matter over to the probate court. He was to be brought to Duluth today or tomorrow, and he will be given an examination as to his sanity in probate court.

CLOSING EXERCISES.

St. Clement's School Is Formally Closed.

The closing exercises of St. Clement's school took place at St. Clement's hall, at Twenty-first avenue west and Third street, last evening, before a large audience of parents and friends. The program was divided into two parts, opening with a chorus by the school. Miss Emma Schutz played a piano solo very acceptably, and the flag drill by a number of small boys was well done and very pretty, as was "Winkey, Winkey, Wee," by a number of little girls. Several other drills were excellently put on. A play, "The Blue and the Gray," was an attraction. A drama, entitled "Joan of Arc," was very interestingly staged and the parts well taken. Miss Alma Brotherton and Miss Pearl Ettinger were the accopanists.

WIGDAHL-JACOBSON.

The marriage of Miss Maude Edmee Wigdahl to Parker A. Jacobson, of St. Paul, was solemnized at noon today, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Upton, 505 East Second street.

It was an exceedingly charming wedding, attended by many friends. Miss Wigdahl wore a traveling gown and carried a shower bouquet of lilies of the valley. Her sister, Miss Alice Wigdahl, was maid of honor, and the bride was given away by her brother, Capt. A. H. Wigdahl. Mr. Jacobson was unattended. Dr. A. W. Ryan, rector of St. Paul's Episcopal church, performed the ceremony.

Mr. and Mrs. Jacobson left on the Northern Pacific train at 1:55 for St. Paul. Many friends accompanied them to the depot and showered them with rice.

The Herald's "want" columns continue to grow in volume and in usefulness. This is conclusive evidence where to obtain the best results.

A very quiet wedding took place at St. Paul's church yesterday afternoon, at 2:30, when Miss Margaret Hodgson was united in marriage to Lieut. Thomas McMeekin of the Duluth fire department. Dr. Ryan officiated. The bride was accompanied by her sister, Miss Elizabeth Hodgson, while J. Dunbar, a brother fireman, was best man. After the wedding the party repaired to the home of the bride at Lester Park, where a wedding feast was served. Mr. and Mrs. McMeekin left on the Twilight limited for Denver. The young couple have a wide circle of friends in the city.

WIRES HURT.

Telephone Companies Have Trouble and Offer Rewards.

Rewards are offered by both the Zenith and Duluth Telephone companies for evidence that will convict any person of tampering with their wires It is a penitentiary offense and the two companies are making strenuous efforts to discover who it was that endeavored to cripple the service last evening.

For several days past the linemen of the two telephone companies have been out on a strike, asking for an eight-hour day instead of a ten-hour day. The two telephone companies have resisted the demands of the linemen and last evening the Duluth company's cable down on Lake avenue was spiked. Nails were driven into the cable, and the company officers say that no person but a skilled electrician could have done it without being injured.

The Zenith company suffered on its West Duluth lines. Strong currents were run in on the telephone wires, blowing fuses out all along the line. The company put new fuses in early this morning and had all the lines working again about the time general business houses opened this morning.

Kick on Speed.

There has been some complaint in the West End of the Duluth-Superior Traction company for running its cars through the West End business streets at a rapid rate. One man writing to The Herald says that the large double truck cars run from Twenty-first avenue to Eighteenth avenue in half a minute, which is at the rate of thirty miles an hour, he says. He said that it is a common thing for the cars to make from eighteen to twenty-five miles per hour.

Decision In Tax Case Is Awaited With Much Interest.

The decision of the supreme court in the McHarg case has not yet been received, but the court has the case under advisement, and the finding is looked for any time. It is intimated by those who were present at the hearing that it is not at all improbable that the finding of William B. Phelps, the referee who decided the matter in district court, will be upheld, and in that case there will not be much of a forfeited tax sale next Monday.

The effect of scuh a decision will be to make the settlement of taxes under the 1899 forfeited tax sale conclusive so far as owners of the property are concerned. Persons who bought in property at the sale for investment will not have their titles, which are already declared void, improved by the decision, but where property was bought in by the owners for the state tax, or where owners have settled with the purchasers at the forfeited tax sales, no more taxes need be paid, and the property will have to be taken off the list for sale Monday.

For instance, if a piece of property owned by John Smith was on the list for the sale of 1899, with a total tax of $100 due and a state tax of $10, was bid in by Richard Roe at the sale for the amount of the state tax, or $10, his title would not be good, and the property will have to be sold again Monday. But if Smith bought it in, the decision would mean that the owner would have to pay no more taxes for the delinquent years, but that the amount paid at the sale would settle the taxes. If Roe bought in the property and Smith acquired his tax title, the same thing would be true.

This will make a considerable difference in the sale, providing the supreme court decides against the county. Under the new law at least 50 per cent of the taxes must be paid, instead of the state tax, as the law provided on the 1899 sale. The number of pieces of property to be offered on the sale next Monday will be cut down to a very few if the court upholds the decision of the referee.

EULOGIZED.

Lansing, Mich., June 19.—Governor Bliss this afternoon issued an official proclamation eulogizing former Governor Pingree as a soldier, a business man, a mayor and a governor, whose career has been characterized by a rugged honesty that won for him the confidence of the people. The flags on the state capitol and all other state buildings are at half mast until after the burial, and the capitol is to be appropriately draped. All state departments will b eclosed the day of the funeral.

London, June 19.—The remains of Mr. Pingree have been embalmed. They will be moved to a private mortuary tonight, prior to their embarkation on Sunday.

Mr. Pingree, Jr., is the recipient of cable messages of sympathy from all parts of the United States.

The officials of the United States embassy here have extended him every courtesy and assistance.

DISCUSS NEW WAGE SCALE.

Cleveland, June 19.—Officials of the American Tinplate company met with representatives of the American Tinplate Worker's association of the United States here today, to discuss a new wage scale. The meeting is secret.

THE SCHOOL.

Superintendent Park Tells Something of Plans For It.

More interest in the annual state summer school for teachers, that will be held here this summer, beginning July 8 and extending until August 3, has been taken this year than ever before, and County Superintendent Park says that a large attendance is expected. This is the fourth. He has issued a pamphlet which contains varied information on the city and concerning the school.

"The members of the higher grades of the high school are invited to attend," said Mr. Park, "and if they have an idea of teaching, they are strongly urged to be present. Old teachers whose certificates have run out, are also urged to be present, as they will be required to take the uniform examination, which will be held at the close of the summer school. Certificates received in St. Louis county will be good in any part of the state, as they are issued by Hon. J. W. Olsen, state superintendent of public instruction. We also pay careful attention to the teachers, and are therefore able to direct them along the proper lines of improvement should they have weak places, and from our knowledge of them in our summer school we are able to more strongly recommend them than we otherwise could.

"Our instructors are all preparing their work in a manner that we expect to be of the greatest value to the teachers. Our instructors know what to teach and how to teach it so as to bring out the best in everything. For instance, if there are teachers a little back in English grammar, they can take a course of two or possibly three recitations a day. The first will be upon language, the second elementary grammar, and the third advanced grammar. In this manner one whose weak point is grammar can cover the whole subject in seventy-two recitations. Superintendent E. T. Reed, of Cloquet, will have charge of the English, and anyone who is acquainted with his work in that study will endorse me when I say that we could not have found a better man for the subject. In history the work will be so outlined as to cover the entire subject. The first series of recitations will cover the first part of American history up to the revolutionary war. The second period will take the revolutionary war and up to the civil war, and the third period will finish the subject.

"Especial attention will be paid to campaigns and outlines. The slavery question, for instance, will be taken up and carried through the entire history, as one continuous development, and not the usual haphazard way. Spelling and reading will be handled in a scientific manner. In arithmetic Professor Foster will have his work so outlined that if need be the entire subject can be handled. His geometry and algebra will be arranged in the same manner.

"R. E. Denfeld will personally conduct psychology, pedagogy, natural philosophy and civics, and, of course, his work will be well done. Geography and physiology will also be handled from the same standpoint by E. R. Frazier. We expect Mary A. Gardner's primary and kindergarten methods to be one of our strongest features. Object lesons in science for the eight grades will be handled by the county superintendent."

NOT JAMES J.

New York Reporter Mistook Louis for His Father.

New York, June 19.—Louis W. Hill, son of James J. Hill, president of the Great Northern, sailed today with his wife on the steamship St. Paul. A reporter, who interviewed him last evening, mistook him for his father, and announced that the latter would sail on the St. Paul. James J. Hill is now at his fishing lodge on the coast of Labrador, opposite Belle Isle.

HILL IS EVASIVE

Has But Little to Say Concerning the Northern Pacific.

He Sails For Europe on the Steamer St. Paul.

Does Not Expect to Meet Mr. Morgan While Abroad.

"When you were in New York before you said that you and Mr. Morgan were in control of the Northern Pacific. Are you still in control?" asked a reporter last night.

"Just as much so as ever," was the reply.

"Has there been an arrangement between you and the Harriman interests by which each has secured equal rights in the trans-continental trade over the Union Pacific and Northern Pacific?"

"You may call it an arrangement or whatever you like," was the answer. "My interests and those of Mr. Morgan are perfectly secure. Why, if they cre not, do you think I would take this two months' trip to Europe?"

"What is the purpose of your visit?"

"Recreation, a good time. That's all. There is no business in it."

"Do you not expect to see Mr. Morgan while in London?"

"No, he will be on the sea by that time."

"What is the cause of the rise in St. Paul?"

"Can't tell you."

FOR FERRY SERVICE.

Duluth Man May Buy New Boat.

Duluth parties are of the opinion that they can improve the ferry service between the city and Minnesota Point. If they can improve the service they believe their enterprise will be appreciated. On Friday a resident of this city will leave for lower lake ports with the intention of purchasing a vessel to be used in the ferry service between Duluth and Park Point. An excursion boat which will accommodate the 200 passengers is for sale at a port on Lake Erie and a Duluth man will buy the vessel this week if there is no hitch in the present agreements. Should the deal be consummated a new water route service will commence early next week. The boat will leave the St. Paul & Duluth dock for Oatka beach, making a landing at about the center of the point and another at the pavilion. In the event of completion of the impending deal, slips and docks will be constructed near the center of Minnesota Point and at the pavilion.

RIDING ON SIDEWALKS.

Practice Is Growing In Residence Districts.

The practice of riding wheels on sidewalks is flourishing in the East End of the city now in sections where there is no police surveillance and the parents of children are in constant fear of accident. It is difficult to enforce the ordinance in parts of the city where there art no policemen, but the residents think that an extra effort should be made to catch some wheelmen and make an example, enough to indicate that the violation of the ordinance cannot be persisted in with impunity.

The practice of riding on the walks is not confined to the men, either. Last evening a young woman was seen fairly making the sidewalk burn as she scorched along Superior street between Fourteenth and Fifteenth avenues east.

Another complaint against wheelmen is that when riding on Superior street they fly swiftly by street cars that have stopped on corners so swiftly at times that they endanger anyone who may be crossing the street in the rear of the car. As the pedestrian steps out from behind the car he may encounter a wheel and he may or may not come out of it unharmed. At any rate his chances are good for injury.

EVANGELISTIC SERVICES.

Evangelists Leave For the Range Campaign.

Evangelists Johnson and Martin, accompanied by Mr. Robel, of the Bethel, left today for Hibbing. They are erecting a large tent, 40 by 60 feet, with a seating capacity for 600. It is their intention to conduct evangelistic meetings at Hibbing for two weeks. At the conclusion of the meetings at Hibbing Evangelists Johnson and Martin will make a tour of all the principal cities on the range. They expect to be gone until September. Mr. Robel has had numerous requests to send evangelists to different cities and it is his intention to send out, next week, another tent in charge of Evangelist Williamson, who is expected to arrive in Duluth June 22.

Mr. Robel states that never have the conditions been more favorable for a great campaign along religious lines. The work at the Lake avenue Bethel is in a prosperous condition. The attendance is increasing. Conversions are taking place almost every evening. The singing by Mrs. Asher and the faithful work of Miss Armour, recently from Chicago, has had a great deal to do with the increased attendance. Any of the pastors of the surrounding country wishing evangelistic meetings, should correspond with Mr. Robel at once as he has but few dates open.

To Shoot at Bemidji.

John W. Nelson left this morning for Bemidji, where the gun club of that place is holding a shooting tournament of three days, beginning tomorrow. The three days will be well filled with interesting events, and very decent purses are to be hung up for the shooters to get if they can. Besides the entry fees, the Bemidji Gun club has added $250 in prizes.

HARMONY INSURED

Pacification of the Western Railroad Systems Completed.

Will Co-Operate In a Manner Which Will Preserve Peace.

No Consolidations But a Strong "Gentleman's Agreement."

New York, June 19.—The Herald says: Far-reaching plans involving the pacification and harmonization of the great railroad systems in the West and Northwest have practically been completed. On very high authority it may be stated:

First—There will be no further consolidation or passing of legal control of great railroad systems of the West.

Second—There will be no interchange of securities.

Third—There will be no change in the legal status of the St. Paul and Northwestern systems.

Fourth—The great capitalists now in control of the Union Pacific group, the Northern Pacific group, the St. Paul system and Northwestern system, have extended and solidified the community of interest plan, and while not acting as a syndicate or a committee, will co-operate in a manner which will preserve peace. The arrangements will be stronger than any of the old-time "gentleman's agreements;" the great capitalists will be in a measure a general board of arbitration. Much has been heard within the last few days of a consolidation of the Union Pacific and the St. Paul roads, as the Chicago & Northwestern was also interested. It was stated that there was to be a purchase of the control of the St. Paul road in the interests of both the Union Pacific and the Chicago & Northwestern in the pursuit of the community-of-interest scheme. This, it is authoritatively learned, is not contemplated, but, on the other hand, a sufficient interest in the stock of the St. Paul will be acquired by the syndicate of arbitrators, which will fully insure the harmony-of-interest plans now so nearly completed.

The roads which will enter under the control of the central management are the Union Pacific, the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul, the Chicago & Northwestern on the one hand, and the Northern Pacific group, composed of the Northern Pacific, the Great Northern and the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy, on the other. The binding link between these two immense systems is the Northern Pacific. It is expected that when the names of the Northern Pacific's new directors are announced, the full significance of the present far-reaching plans will be fully understood.

CONTINUES TO IMPROVE.

Washington, June 19.—Dr. Rixey was at the White House this morning. He stated that Mrs. McKinley continues to improve.

COULD NOT WOO.

A Goddess That Would Not Be Won.

The Creator, in making so many kinds of people, naturally made some that have immense ambition and desire for work, physical and mental. Authors, writers and brain workers are generally hard working people. Frequently they exhaust vitality so fast that they cannot rebuild it.

Food experts have perfected a special food called Grape-Nuts for brain workers. The makers selected from field grains the proper elements which naturally enter into rebuilding brain and nerve centers.

A famous woman of West Haven, Conn., whom, perhaps, you will recognize because of the location, but who requests that her name be kept from print in this connection, writes: "Perhaps you would like to know of my experience with the restoring power of your wonderful Grape-Nuts Food. I have been a tireless worker. Life was full of possibilities. I had a constitution of iron and why not work. I lived to the fullest limit of my power, following every pursuit with ardor, painting, poetry, writing of books, journalism and lecturing.

"The days were passed in literary work and the nights at concerts, theaters and receptions. I suddenly dropped out, a mental and physical wreck. Ambition died and hope went with it. Religion became odious. The world grew dark. It became a 'Charnel House full of unclean bones, not Godlike and our Father's.'

"I had no desire for food. I could not woo the 'Goddess sleep that knits up the raveled sleep f care.' I contemplated a weak solution, a leap into the unknown, when one day a friend in Yale, who knew my deplorable condition, said: 'Do you know that Grape-Nuts Food has done a great deal for me?' and told the details. I finally followed his suggestion and began using it. That was one year ago. I wish you could see me now. The neighbors say I do the work of ten women. I go to bed with the hens and sleep like a top.

"I hear 'the breeze call of incense breathing morn,' my muscles are like iron, and my back of steel. I am as alert as the sparrow with whom I converse every morning as he seeks his matutinal worm.

"I ascribe all of this change, and justly, to Grape-Nuts Food and wisdom in the economy of force."

There is a good, sound reason for such a change as described above. Grape-Nuts Food is made of the selected elements of wheat and barley that are intended by nature to rebuild the soft gray matter in the brain — nerve cells throughout the body. This food is so prepared that it presents these elements in perfect condition for immediate assimilation. The food is thoroughly cooked at the factory, and should always be served just as it comes from the package with a little cream. Do not attempt to stew it, but serve it with certain puddings and desserts, and with certain pudings and desserts, and even then the cooking is not necessary, except to prepare the other ingredients aside from the Grape-Nuts.

IN MICHIGAN.

Decomposed Body Taken From Portage Lake at Houghton.

Houghton—The body of an unknown man, about 30 years of age, was found floating in Portage lake here Monday afternoon. It was bloated and decomposed, the features being rendered unrecognizable. The man had an overcoat, indicating that he had been in the water since early in the spring. Suicide or foul play is indicated, as a rope tied around one leg suggested that a weight had been attached.

Calumet—The directors of the Calumet and Hecla Mining company have declared a dividend, the one hundred and nineteenth, of $15 per share, payable July 31 to stockholders on record June 22. This makes the total dividends declared and paid to date by this company $75,850,000. The last dividend was $15 and was paid April 22. In 1900 the company paid three dividends of $20 each and one of $10, making $70 for the year. In 1899 the company paid $190 per share, but the average price of lake copper in that year was 17¾ cents now it is 17 cents.

Ishpeming—Patrick Sullivan, for the past thirty years a resident of this city, died on Friday. His son Michael returned Tuesday from Montana, and as his mother greeted her boy at the door she dropped dead.

Escanaba—A few people at Escanaba enjoyed the peculiar and unusual spectacle of the destruction by fire of a locomotive, that is all the parts of it that could burn, on the top of the North Escanaba ore dock, sixty-five feet above the water. The crew was away from the locomotive at the time and the blaze originated in some unaccountable manner in a quantity of waste in the cab. The woodwork of the locomotive was entirely destroyed, but fortunately the flames were extinguished before they took hold of the dock timbers. The locomotive was not damaged, but it will have to receive a new cab before it can be used.

Powers—A tramp, who gave his name as Eric Carlson, was run over by a Chicago & Northwestern ore train, on which he was stealing a ride, at Powers, sustaining probably fatal injuries. Carlson and a companion had been working at Escanaba and succeeded in eluding the train crew, riding safely as far as Powers. Here the unfortunate man fell off the train near the round house and was dragged fully a hundred feet, four sets of trucks passing over the left arm and leg. When picked up he did not appear to be suffering and talked freely. His left arm was torn out at the socket; left leg cut off at the hip; head badly cut and body bruised. Carlson was about 30 years old, a strong, robust fellow, who acknowledged having spent most of his life as a tramp. He gave the address of a sister living in Chicago.

WHIPPED BY WOMAN.

An Indiana Politician Is Roughly Handled.

Anderson, Ind., June 19.—Councilman W. B. Woolley, prominent here as a manufacturer and political leader, was publicly whipped Monday by Mrs. Benjamin Lukens. The woman, accompanied by her stepson, Ben Lukens, Jr., drove to Mr. Wooley's home just as the manufacturer arrived home for dinner. Mrs. Lukens accosted him and then struck him across the face a stinging blow with a rawhide. The assault was maintained with surprising fierceness for several seconds. As Mrs. Lukens applied the whip her son knocked Mr. Woolley down and kicked him in the head several times. Then the mother and son reentered their carriage and left Mr. Woolley bleeding and dazed on the sidewalk. The affair is the result of the sensational suit filed a few days ago and Mr. Woolley's reply thereto.

STRONG MAN.

New Minister to Venezuela Is a Match For Castro.

Washington, June 19.—President Castro, of Venezuela, will have no cause to rejoice over the success of his plot to secure the recall of Minister Loomis from Caracas. It recalls the old fable of King Log and King Stork. Castro managed so that Minister Loomis, who is a mild-mannered sort of a fellow, could not be sent back to Venezuela. President McKinley has accepted this situation, but has rubbed it in on Castro by naming as the new minister to Venezuela one of the most experienced men in the diplomatic corps of the United States, and at the same time one who has already demonstrated in many ways that he is a fighter who will not permit the American flag to be insulted. The new selection is an assurance of the fact that American interests in Venezuela will be looked after, and that the position of this country will be made evident. President Castro ere long will sigh for the good old days under Loomis. He merely stepped out of the frying-pan into the fire, when the president has appointed Herbert W. Bowen, of New York, to become minister to Venezuela. Bowen is at present United States minister at Teheran, Persia. He was minister resident there for a while, and was only recently nominated for the full rank, as provided for by the last diplomatic bill. Bowen was consul general at Barcelona, Spain, and just before the breaking out of the Spanish war his consulate was attacked by a riotous mob. Bowen displayed rare prudence and courage in almost equal proportions. He barricaded his door and called on the police for assistance, but notified the officials that he was fully prepared to defend himself and would not hesitate to do so if they were at all dilatory in posting a proper guard around the consulate.

Bowen was cordially hated by all the Spaniards because, while he never lost his head nor violated the etiquette of his post, he nevertheless made them feel that he had behind him the power of the American government and that any insult to him or to the flag would be the signal for an American warship in Spanish waters. He was strongly backed for the position of minister to Spain after the war, but he was too well known there to be entirely acceptable, and so he was promoted to become minister to Persia.

Bowen is a Yale graduate of 1878, being a classmate of Judge Taft, president of the Philippine commission, and of the late John Addison Porter, secretary to the president. From his boyhood days, Bowen has been an aggressive character, and it is understood the president and Secretary Hay selected him for the express purpose of putting President Castro through a course of sprouts in return for the contemptible way in which he treated Minister Loomis. Minister Bowen is not at all a man to embroil the two countries. He is as prudent as he is fearless, but, at the same time, his wide acquaintance with the Spanish character and language and his own aggressive personality will be certain to teach the Venezuelan president, who, after all, is only a usurper, that he cannot trifle with the United States of America. The whole difficulty in Venezuela, as every one knows, grows out of a dispute between the rival asphalt companies, and it is a difficult matter to determine which one is in the right. Minister Bowen has been out of the country so long he will have no affiliations with either company. Both of the corporations belong to his own state. He will start for Venezuela as soon as possible, and the prediction is freely made at the state department that the fur will fly at Caracas before the next snow flies in Washington.

GET MORE SEEDS.

Now Is the Time to Apply to Congressmen.

Washington, June 19.—Congressmen who have expected great difficulty on account of the small number of seeds allotted to them will probably be glad to know their allowance this year will be practically double that received previously. In addition to doubling the allotment of seeds, each congressman will have fifty trees at his disposal. They will be of different varieties, selected particularly with a view to suiting the climate in which they will be grown. Many of these will be nut trees, such as pecans and other varieties which will grow in this country. Secretary Wilson determined to distribute trees with a hope of implanting a love of trees in the breasts of the people and inciting them to follow the example set by the department as well as to have a permanent showing for the money expended. In addition to the trees distributed, 38,300,384 packets of seeds will be distributed. Each congressman will have at his disposal 14,000 packages of vegetable seeds, 400 of flowers, 110 of tobacco, 40 of cotton, 30 of lawn grass, 25 of sugar beets, 50 of forage crops, 220 bulbs, 150 strawberries, and 40 of grapes. The strawberries will be of new and rare varieties and the grapes are yet to be selected.

IT IS FAR REACHING

The Sidewalk Ordinance Amendment May Affect Much Property.

Permit Necessary For Sale of Fourth of July Material.

The ordinance amendment now pending in the council, prohibiting the building of any more wooden sidewalks on streets and avenues where the grade is less than 8 per cent, is causing much discussion.

No person has yet been found who knows the true inwardness of the outward seeming, but the amendment is taken more seriously than it was when first introduced.

Should the indications be in favor of the adoption of this amendment, wise property owners will hustle down plank walks before the council has time to take action.

Under the proposed amendment only cement sidewalks would be permitted, even out in the wilds of Fond du Lac. Cement walks six feet wide cost $1 a lineal foot. Wooden walks six feet wide cost about 32 cents a lineal foot.

The sidewalk proposition is a serious one in the consideration of municipal affairs. On the walks now ordered the city must pay out $60,000 and take chances on the collection of assessments. While the city has a good cash balance in the bank, the sidewalk building investment has never paid and $60,000 is a great deal to invest on a proposition where loss is certain.

Several city officers have been scratching through their heads for a scheme to induce the property owners to build their own walks. That, it is claimed, would be more satisfactory to all concerned.

There is a bare possibility that the amendment now pending would be pushed through by the council in order to encourage the individual building of sidewalks.

MUST GET PERMITS.

Necessary For Sale of Fire Crackers.

Permits for the sale of fire-crackers, fireworks and other Fourth of July explosives must be obtained from the secretary of the board of fire commissioners. The permits cost nothing, but unless secured, the failure to get a permit may cost considerable.

There is an ordinance regulating the sale and use of fireworks which leaves many important questions optional with the mayor. This year, with the big celebration, every possible precaution will be taken to prevent fires, and explosives over six inches long will be barred. However, there will be an abundance of amusement and noise in the use of smaller "crackers."

Fire Warden Schinlaub is keeping a close watch for persons selling Fourth of July explosives without a permit, and says that he will enforce the ordinance. Wholesalers are now permitted to send, but the retailers cannot sell before next Tuesday.

THE CROP REPORTS.

Rains Make Improvement In Crops.

The crop reports for the week ending Monday last tell of rains and fine condition of crops. The North Dakota report is as follows:

"The past week has been another wet one, heavy rain, averaging between two and three inches having fallen over all parts of the state, saturating the soil to a good depth; reviving and improving grain that was suffering from the effects of the previous dry weather and heavy frosts; and also causing rapid germination and quick growth of all late crops, except corn, some of which has rotted in the ground and will have to be replanted.

"Wheat is doing very well, although somewhat weedy, especially that sown early in old land; oats are not doing as well, having been slightly damaged from various causes; flax is just coming up, and some is yet being sown.

"Cut worms and grasshoppers are reported as doing damage in many sections, the most damage being done by cut worms to corn and oats, while barley has also suffered some."

"The temperatures were moderately high on the 14th and 15th, and during the rest of the week they were seasonable. There were rains nearly every day of the week, the days with rain at the fewest places being the 12th and 16th. The rains came in very heavy showers, and were generally accompanied by lightning and thunder. In Nobles, Murray and Redwood counties there were tornadic conditions on the morning of the 11th, with violent winds covering small areas, and causing considerable loss to town and country buildings, but happily without loss of life. On the same date, in other parts of the southern half of the state, there was hail at scattered points, which was very large in size, but fortunately in small amounts; it broke much glass, but the only crop injury seems to have been in Big Stone county, where many corn fields were seriously injured. With favorable temperatures and abundant moisture, all the small grains are doing splendidly; late sown flax and barley, and those seeded on spring plowed land, are coming up and doing nicely. Corn, which was badly retarded last week by cold weather, and in some places by frost, is recovering rapidly, but it is not yet as thrifty as it should be. Barley, oats and wheat are beginning to head in the southern half of the state. Haying has begun in a small way as far north as Becker county. Grasshoppers are said to be numerous in parts of Clay and Ottertail counties. Strawberries, gooseberries and peas are being marketed."

Impaired Digestion

May not be all that is meant by dyspepsia now, but it will be if neglected.

The uneasiness after eating, fits of nervous headache, sourness of the stomach, and disagreeable belching may not be very bad now, but they will be if the stomach is suffered to grow weaker.

Dyspepsia is such a miserable disease that the tendency to it should be given early attention. This is completely overcome by

HOT SHOT.

Mayor Parker of Superior Gives Two Aldermen a Taste.

The aldermen of the Superior council received a jarring last night that penetrated even the most calloused in the body and, it is said, there are some who have pretty tough skins, too. A short time ago Alderman Barry fathered a request to Mayor Parker for a list of the houses of ill-fame and gambling houses which were doing business in the city. Last evening the mayor submitted his answer and it was straight from the shoulder and knocked some Superior aldermen into a condition that bordered upon speechless. This is what the mayor had to say:

"Gentlemen of the Council:

"On June 4, Alderman J. W. Barry, of the Tenth ward, presented a request that I furnish the number of gambling houses and houses of ill-fame running in this city and the amount of revenue the city gets from them.

"I am satisfied that Alderman Barry did not ask those questions in good faith. He has had a gambling house or a house of ill-fame, or both, running in connection with his saloon almost continuously for several years past, and he has kept in close touch with others in the same lines so that he knows without asking how many there are.

"I will tell you the reason, gentlemen, why Alderman Barry made that request. A house of ill-fame situated near his saloon, and with which he told me he did business, was closed by the chief of police at the request of citizens living in that vicinity. Alderman Barry wanted the house to run because it helped his saloon business. From statements made by people living near by it, it was concluded that it was an altogether unfit place for anything of that sort to be run and the chief of police did perfectly right by closing it. Only about a year ago an inmate of that house of ill-fame was shot and killed in Alderman Barry's saloon, and the man who shot her is now serving a life sentence in state's prison.

"In the afternoon before Alderman Barry made this request, Alderman Ennis went at me rough-shod on the street and after letting go of several irrelevant and uncomplimentary remarks, asked me why Alderman Barry's —— house was shut up. I told him that as near as I could find out it was closed because the people in that vicinity wanted it closed. Alderman Ennis then said: 'I sell liquor to Alderman Barry, and closing that house hurts his business and hurts mine, and I want to tell you right now, Mr. Mayor, that unless Alderman Barry can have that —— house we will close up the town and hell will be popping.' I said 'let 'er pop,' and left him.

Alderman Barry's request came into this council that very night and I presume was intended to be the first pop.

"As to the revenue the city derives from these sources, I will say that that is collected in the municipal court and Alderman Barry can inquire there as well as I can.

"For the reasons above stated, I am satisfied that the request of Alderman Barry was not made in good faith, and because it was not made in good faith I have not complied with it.

"And I wish to add that if Aldermen Barry and Ennis think they can have a house of ill-fame located at any place in this city that they wish, for the benefit of their particular business, and against the wishes of respectable people living in that vicinity, they will find they are mistaken as long as I have anything to say about it. Respectfully submitted. F. S. PARKER,

"Mayor."

Alderman Ennis was quite overcome by the mayor's communication and found it rather difficult to respond effectively. He finally admitted that he had made the statements to the mayor, but said that he had not intended that the mayor should use them. He will reply later.

TO LEAVE THE CITY.

G. A. Klein Disposing of His Stock.

The announcement in last night's Herald that G. A. Klein, one of Duluth's oldest and most favorably known business men, is to leave the city, has been received with regret everywhere. Fourteen years in the jewelry business in one place, is a record of which but few men can boast and during that time Mr. Klein has made a host of friends by his fair dealing and pleasant manners, who regret his departure exceedingly. Although he is very loath to leave Duluth where he has so many friends and business associates, he has received an exceptionally flattering offer in the wholesale line from Chicago and will depart as soon as possible for that city.

The immense stock of jewelry and cut glass was placed on sale at auction this afternoon, and bids fair to be disposed of in a short time. There is no more popular merchant in Duluth than G. A. Klein and everyone who knows him will wish him success in his new field.

Among the goods that were put on sale today is a big line of watches, a magnificent collection of diamonds and other precious stones, a full line of solid silver table ware, carving sets, silver toilet sets of every description and an endless assortment of sterling silver novelties. A magnificent collection of hand-painted plates which are in place anywhere is not the least of the stock. Some of these were sold this afternoon at prices that were never before heard of in Duluth.

Superior Library Building.

Superior library board met yesterday to consider plans for the new library building to be erected, the donation of $50,000 from Andrew Carnegie being available. It was decided that the structure should be two stories high and that red standstone and brick should be used in the construction.

Amusing Complication.

When the officials of the W. C. T. U. and the representatives of a brewery become involved there are storm clouds on the horizon. The gale of last Friday created havoc with telephone connections, and at Superior the revel of the winds was even more pronounced than in Duluth. It is stated on good authority that the home telephone of an official of the W. C. T. U. and the line from an office of a local brewery have been crossed for two days. The result is annoying to both of the patrons of telephone service.

AT CLOQUET.

Council Passes Ordinance to Prevent Obstructing of Streets.

Cloquet, Minn., June 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—The village council held its regular meeting Monday evening, President McKinnon in the chair. A large amount of business was transacted. Perhaps as important as anything else was the passage of an iron-clad ordinance, to prevent obstructing the streets of the village.

Dr. H. B. Allen went to Duluth yesterday to confer with Dr. Bracken, with reference to the payment of expenses incurred by the village during the recent smallpox visitation.

Duncan Cartwright and Marshal Nordquist were visitors in Duluth yesterday.

Guy Rogers returned home Monday.

The friends and members of the M. E. church are cordially invited to a social to be given at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. Cox on Friday evening next.

Ed Colovin has gone to Carlton to assist Register Stolberg for a few weeks. Transfers in realty have been numerous lately, and work has piled up in the office.

The Modern Samaritans held a meeting Monday evening, in the K. P. hall, which was largely attended, and at which a large class of candidates was initiated. The order has been established here only about three weeks, but has a large and influential membership, and the interest increases.

At The Herald's suggestion the council is using the sprinkler for wetting down the dust on the streets.

The Cloquet Independent is going to celebrate its third anniversary this week by printing a special edition.

John Lonzo, the shoemaker, closed up his business and left town suddenly yesterday morning.

THE DAKOTAS.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

Lead—Scoville Bemis, one of five men held for perjury in the case of Russell vs. Caddy, has suddenly left the Black Hills, leaving his bondsmen, Michael McAllen and James Halloran, to pay his bail, amounting to $2500. He also raised a check of $2.75 to 72.75, which had been given him by his bondsmen. He was working for them at their cyanide plant north of this city. At one time he stood well in Deadwood and this city; but he got into trouble two years ago for forging and was heavily fined and imprisoned. As soon as he heard that Peter Carberry had been found guilty of perjury, the action being the same as that for which he was held, he made arrangements to skip. C. A. Whitford, D. K. Summers and George Strohm, others held for the same offense, have been taken to jail to await trials.

Deadwood—Not for fifteen years, according to old residents of the Hills, has there been such a steady rain as for the past two weeks. About five inches of water fell in this city in the five days, and in many places banks have commenced to cave in and damage is threatened several houses built on side hills. The stream of water that passes through the city is the highest for fifteen years. Reports of overflows are coming in from Aladdin, Beulah, Belle Fourche and the towns to the north, and unless the rain ceases soon, great damage will result.

Chamberlain—The rainfall in this part of South Dakota last week was a little over six inches—the greatest precipitation for one week since the early '80s. Since the 2d day of June there has been nearly eight inches. The rains were needed, as May was a dry month. All kinds of crops and the grass are doing well, and farmers are confident of a good harvest.

Vermillion—The commissioners of Clay county have announced their intention of establishing a pesthouse on the island, south of this city, where all persons who do not comply with the orders of the board of health will be taken and compelled to remain.

Aberdeen—Dr. Heffron, rector of St. Paul seminary, is conducting a successful and interesting jubilee mission in Sacred Heart church. The attendance is large.

Judging by the increase of land seekers since June 1, the tide of new settlers has justs et in. The rush for land during March and April was phenomenal, but this month it is much greater and shows a steady increase as the month advances.

Pierre—The state land department distributed $241,214 of the interest and income fund to the schools of the state. This apportionment is just $2 per capita on school children.

Sioux Falls—At the annual meeting of the grand commandery of South Dakota, Huron was selected as the place for holding the next meeting. Morris H. Kelly, of Aberdeen, was elected eminent grand commander.

Madison—Saturday's tornado swept over a strip one mile wide and ten miles long. James Lyon's house was demolished. John Boyd's barn, including machinery and grain, was destroyed; loss, $3000.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Grafton—A public mass meeting has been called for Saturday evening, for the purpose of discussing the advisability of changing the special charter, also the questions of drainage and paving. Grafton is now the only city in the state which is not under the general law, and it is evident if improvements are to be made, and they are imperative, that the city must have larger powers. It is now thought that such a change will be carried by a large majority.

Grand Forks—At the approaching term of the district court in Cavalier county, William Barry will be placed on trial for the murder of Andrew Mellem.

Wahpeton—Hail Monday badly injured crops, flax and gardens. The track was narrow across the east of Richland county, passing to Wilkin county, Minn.

Devils Lake—The twelfth annual encampment of the G. A. R. will be held here on Thursday, Friday and Saturday, June 27, 28 and 29. The meeting will be held on the Chautauqua grounds.

Carrington—C. H. Ross, of Minneapolis, has purchased from T. L. Beiseker, of Fessenden, his interest in the First National bank and the Farm Mortgage, Loan and Trust company, of this place; also his interest in the First National banks of Minnewaukan and Williston, N. D., and in several state banks.

A severe sprain will usually disable the injured person for three or four weeks. Many cases have occurred, however, in which a cure has been effected in less than one week by applying Chamberlain's Pain Balm. For sale at Boyce's drug store.

Finances Are In Good Shape.

The end of the government fiscal year, which occurs June 30, will show an excellent condition of national finances. It is expected a surplus will be shown larger than has been reported for twelve years, with the exception of last year. The surplus this year would be larger than last year but for the extraordinary expenses incident to the China campaign. The volunteers are being brought back from the Philippines now and there will be large drafts for money to pay them off, but it is expected that the surplus will amount to a sum quite in excess of $70,000,000. There has been so much money in the treasury department during the past three months that Secretary Gage decided to utilize some of it in the purchase of outstanding bonds to date. He has taken $14,392,543.22 out of the treasury in buying up 3, 4 and 5 per cent. bonds. A week ago it was found that the stock of gold o nhand was almost $500,000,000. The value contained $498,345,594 of the precious metal, and it is predicted that by the end of the fiscal year, two weeks hence, the $500,000,000 mark will have been reached. On April 24 the gold on hand amounted to $502,173,119, the greatest in the history of the country, but the liberal purchases of bonds by Secretary Gage cut it down somewhat. As there are few bonds being offered now, Treasurer Roberts believes that the fund will pick up again and that it will reach $500,000,000 by June 30. The large stock of gold is distributed as follows: Reserve fund, $150,000,000; gold coins, $250,738,789; gold coin and bullions, $57,607,205. There is an unusually large amount of money in circulation. This now amounts to $2,184,576,890, a gain of more than $100,000,000 over the amount in circulation one year ago. In the past twenty-two years the gain in circulation amounts to the tremendous sum of $1,368,193. The circulation per capita is now the largest in the country's history, amounting to $28.13. One year ago it was $26.71.

Getting Rid of the Negro Vote.

It is admitted that the chief object of calling the constitutional convention now in session at Montgomery, Ala., was to get rid of the negro vote in that state. Such a proposition is, of course, a serious one, and will have to be handled with the utmost care by the delegates. The fifteenth amendment is broad in its application, and it behooves the convention to take careful action or it will be set aside by the supreme court. The formation of new constitutions by several of the Southern states under present conditions marks an important epoch in the history of the South. If the question of negro suffrage is settled on the right basis it will undoubtedly receive the approval of the people and will establish a precedent for other states. Representative Richardson says concerning the matter: "There is not a man in the Alabama convention who believes that the negro can be deprived of a vote simply because he is a negro. The drift of opinion is that conditions and qualifications applicable to both races will be attached to the right of suffrage. The people of both the North and the South are at this time on a sound basis of understanding on the negro suffrage matter. I am satisfied that the convention will provide a fair election law. There will be no semblance or pretense about it by which any negro will be able to manipulate a vote of another. The people of Alabama are in dead earnest about this matter and the delegates to the convention feel the same way. Senator Morgan has submitted a carefully prepared plan of suffrage, but the great objection raised against this is because it places a dangerous power in the hands of registrars who are elaborately provided for. This is fatal to the Morgan scheme as a whole. You must understand that we have no use for the negro in Alabama and we intend to get rid of him as a factor in our elections." It is hardly credible that all are as radical as Representative Richardson. It is the ignorant negro they object to, rather than the negro as a race, and in all probability the problem will be solved through the educational qualification, as it was in Maryland not long ago.

RUSSIA RETALIATES.

It would seem as though the treasury department was losing its head. On March 9 it imposed tariff restrictions on Russian petroleum entering this country, possibly at the request of the Standard Oil trust, at any rate for some reason thus far unknown, and Russia promptly retaliates. M. de Witte, according to a dispatch published yesterday, has issued an order imposing a high tariff on resin, and increasing the rate on bicycles from 20 to 30 per cent, which virtually means that they are excluded. Eighteen millions of dollars' worth of American trade is for the same reason brought to an end. Following so soon on the disastrous countervailing duty on sugar, which caused retaliation at that time, it comes as a severe blow to many exporters. In the sugar case the export of Russian sugar to the United States, over which the dispute arose, amounted to $22,000. The imports of American machinery amount to $18,000,000. To exact duty on the former unjustly, as M. de Witte strongly asserts, this immense trade, the result of years of enterprise and persistent pushing, has been thrown away.

Germany is highly pleased with the existing conditions. She has long looked with jealousy at the success of American steel, American machinery, American locomotives and bicycles, and other imports, but the United States, by the finer finish of her workmanship, could have always held the market. But now all that is changed. From the time M. de Witte first retaliated, American firms have been unable to do any business, and the Germans, seeing their long-wished-for opportunity, have rushed in just at the moment when everything seemed propitious or the United States. Germany is flooding the market with just the things which America supplied.

Since March last, when the minister of finance inormed the country that, owing to America's attitude, he had been compelled to tax American imports, conditions have come to as follows: Germany, France and England now pay 14.55 francs per 100 pounds. This the United States also did until March 1. Since the tax has been advanced, the others pay as before, and United States goods have to pay 23.10 francs. Thus, the United States pays 58 per cent more than Germany, France or England. That means that the United States cannot trade at all, and thus American importers are sitting still, doing no business and watching the Germans snatching away from them what had been theirs, all on account of a huge blunder and misunderstanding. As a result of this unhappy customs war many Moscow business firms and private persons, who had been in the habit of purchasing American agricultural and other machinery, are left without their usual supplies, and many are the calls made at the consulate to know why no more American machinery is being imported. The first thing congress should do on reassembling is to rectify this grievous error.

PRESIDENTIAL CANDIDATES.

It is quite amusing, all this fuss about who shall be the Republican candidate for president in 1904. It would seem to the skeptical that there is a motive under all this fusss and feathers about an event that cannot take place for three full years. Are these Republican political leaders trying to throw sand in the eyes of the public to prevent them from seeing more important things? Is this beating of presidential kettle drums and tom-toms for the purpose of drowning the cry for tariff reform and reciprocity; for an honest administration of insular affairs and the preservation of the constitution? It looks a little that way. The class of candidates that are being brought out indicates that something is wrong. They are nearly all senators. Was there ever a senator elected president? Never. The senate is not a training school for presidential candidates. But the assumption of power by the senate during the last session of the Fifty-sixth congress was so successful that the senators seem to imagine they are the whole government, legislative, judicial and executive.

Ohio comes up smiling with the mighty Hanna and the vindictive Foraker. One because he is the greatest boss that the Republican or any other party has ever had, the other because he had an infamous law named after him. Beside being from Ohio, there are at least ten good reasons why neither of these men can ever get a nomination. Hanna has alienated the leaders of his party by his arrogant methods and has disgusted the people by his shameless championship of the ship subsidy bill and the colonial policy. Foraker cannot carry one-half of his own state. While Hanna and Foraker live, neither will receive the support of the state for the presidential nomination. We next come to Indiana, which is supposed to favor Fairbanks. Here is a nondescript, a political accident, with neither special ability, notoriety nor fame, a man whose only recommendation is that he hails from a doubtful state, and that he is at the head of a machine. Fairbanks is a leader of the spoilsmen and a political sycophant. Illinois is talking Cullom, and Iowa Allison—two eminently respectable senators, who will be each 75 years old in 1904. Whatever they have been, their day of usefulness has passed. They are talked of to absorb the attention of the people and, by giving them a bee, to make them even more conservative than they are now. The name of Spooner is mentioned also. Spooner is a man of average ability, the head of a machine as domineering as that of Matt Quay—a machine that found it necessary to blow in a clear half million to buy a paper to defeat the primary election law in the state of Wisconsin. The only wonder is that the Republican press does not boom Matt Quay and Tom Platt. Quay certainly deserves it, if political success is to be rewarded with national honors.

All of this talk is the merest bosh. Not a single man named has even a small per cent of the ordinary chances that a presidential candidate usually has. In New York two candidates, not senators, loom up and may secure a following, unless they lock horns in their own state. Roosevelt is handicapped by his present office, and Odell is burdened by the recent support of Thomas C. Platt. Should McKinley die and Roosevelt take the chair, he would have an immense leverage through federal patronage, and might reverse the precedents of history. As between Roosevelt and Odell, the chances are in favor of Odell. He is a young man, with no record against him, active, independent and decisive. Also, he is from New York, and if he maintains his past record as governor for another term, he will be able to carry his state against any rival.

But all this talk is idle. Within three years events may change the whole face of the political heavens. Unless a break is put on no one will care to accept a Republican nomination.

On the Democratic side of the fence there is not quite so much tomfoolery, but the Republican papers are much interested in stirring up strife between the Bryan followers and the Hill element. Any one who has a grain of sense knows that Bryan will not be a candidate a third time. There need be no dropping of Bryans or Crokers, but the party will select some leader on whom all factions can unite in a campaign on the issues, tariff reform and the constitution. And unless the Republican party changes its spots, that man, whoever he be, may be the next president of the United States.

GOVERNOR PINGREE.

The announcement of the death of Hazen S. Pingree, former governor of Michigan, will be received with deep regret by many people both within and outside the Wolverine state. Mr. Pingree's death followed a very short illness in London, on his return from a lengthy trip abroad, extending as far as South Africa, but it is evident that he had been in a dangerous condition for a long time and should never have been permitted to start on his journey. He had a cancerous affection of the intestines, and nothing could be done to save him when the serious nature of the malady was discovered.

Governor Pingree was a remarkable man in many ways, and he will long be remembered by the people of Michigan for his services to the state, and particularly zy the people of Detroit for the splendid work he performed in their behalf while filling the position of mayor. It was while mayor of Detroit that Mr. Pingree evolved his scheme for enabling the poor to help themselves by cultivating vacant lands in and around the city, raising vegetables, especially potatoes. This gained him the title of "Potato" Pingree. He worked hard while mayor to secure an improvement of the street car service in Detroit and a reduction of the fare, and he partially succeeded. As governor his efforts were largely devoted to an endeavor to make the railroads and other large corporations bear their just proportion of the taxation, and his efforts were in a large measure successful. He voluntarily retired from the governorship, although he undoubtedly would have secured a renomination and re-election, and proposed to devote his attention exclusively to business, but fate ordained that the end of his earthly career should quickly follow his retirement from politics.

Congressman Richardson, of Tennessee, leader of the Democratic minority in the house, says in an interview that "the agitation over the Monroe doctrine at this time is due to the fact that the administration is seriously embarrassed by the anticipated purpose of foreign governments to acquire coaling stations in the proximity of South and Central American ports." In his view, the Monroe doctrine has been made harder to maintain, morally and logically, by the Philippine acquisition, and he anticipates considerable agitation over the whole question of the status of the Western hemisphere in the near future.

A concern calling itself the "United States board of health" has started in No York city the business of selling certificates of the purity or harmlessness of food products and patent medicines. Obviously suspicion rests on the character of such a corporation but E. J. Crandall, a lawyer, who acts for the concern, says it has passed the proper authorities of the state and been copyrighted by the United States government, and "if the people are deceived" into thinking that the articles which receive its indorsement are warranted by the government, "it would be their own fault." Well, would it?

Connecticut makes a deliberate bid for the trust incorporation business by enacting a law equal to that of New Jersey in its reckless liberality. But the Connecticut expectation of sharing in the trust corporation fees which have filled the New Jersey state treasury to overflowing at the expense of more scrupulous states is likely to be disappointed. Delaware showed itself willing to go to almost any extreme some time ago to get this business, but has met with little success.

Another English writer, Arnold White, takes occasion to warn the United States of the peril that threatens it in the alleged territorial designs of European powers in South America. The affrighted concern of so many English journals and publicists in this matter is really the most serious phase of the situation, says the Springfield Republican Germany, France and Italy are easily taken care of, but this distress in England tries your nerves.

The officers in charge of the West Point military school are evidently in earnest in their intention to prohibit nazing in future. Stringent rules have been adopted, and any hazer will suffer the penalty of dismissal. This is a long-needed reform, and an example that ought to be followed, as far as possible, in all our colleges. Hazing is a relic of barbarism.

There is a town in Missouri that has no officers, and it is said to get along better than towns that have a lot of officers. There is also an Indiana town where the only officer is a sort of watchman. Of course large cities could not be run without officers but all of them have too many officers. Officialism is largely an excrescence on the body politic.

A United States treasury official just back from Hawaii reports that Porto Rican labor is not proving satisfactory on the Hawaiian sugar plantations and that the planters will probably ask congress sooner or later to permit Chinese immigration to the archipelago in order to supply the labor market.

There were over 2000 marriages in Chicago in June, 1900, and the chief clerk of the marriage license bureau of that city predicts that the number this June will reach 2500. This is evidence of great courage in view of the unhappiness disclosed in Chicago's busy divorce courts.

The chances of A. B. Cummins getting the Republican nomination for governor of Iowa are improving, but he is having a hard fight with all the railroad influence and the machine politicians opposing him.

An old-fashioned preacher in Pennsylvania gives it out that he knows that "hell is paved with infants not a span long." The declaration comes as from one who has been there.

The numerous friends of Bishop Cotter of Winona, who underwent a critical operation recently, will be pleased to learn that his physicians now consider him out of danger.

The extra of the Washington state legislature lasted only two days and cost only $7500. Will the Minnesota legislature equal that record next winter?

The Boers seem to be doing quite well, and the chances are that John Bull will find it necessary to increase the assessment of the gold mines.

If the man who has sued Russell Sage for $25,000 should get a verdict, Uncle Russell would be tempted to use a dynamite bomb on himself.

An exchange asks "Is Dowie Insane?" There is no sign of insanity on his part, but those who believe in him must be insane.

MIRTHFUL REMARKS.

Philadelphia Press: "Why is it," she whispered at the close of the ceremony, "that the bridegroom always looks as if he didn't call his soul his own?"

"Probably," replied her brother, "it's because from that moment he really can't."

Chicago Tribune: "You told me before we were married you were worth thousands upon thousands of dollars. And now I find I have got just a pitiful $4,000, all told."

"Well, isn't that thousands upon thousands? Can't you add?"

Pittsburg Chronicle: Mrs. Snaggs—I could never understand why the Russians call their ruler the white czar.

Mr. Snaggs—I suppose that the numerous plots against his life keep him pale all the time.

Baltimore American: "Oh, I visited such a wofully poverty-stricken family this morning," said the sympathetic member of the charity committee.

"Indeed?" asked the chairman of the committee. "Were they very, very poor?"

"Poor? Man, it is pitiable. Why, they are so poor that they keep fifteen dogs."

Detroit Journal: "Doctor, what is the matter with me?"

"You need about three months' rest from business—that is all."

"Three months' rest? That will cost me $5,000. The other doctor said I needed an operation for appendicitis. That would cost only $100. I think I'll let him operate."

Cleveland Plain Dealer: "The jury in the case of the Yonkers man who was arrested for playing golf on Sunday seems to have brought in a Scotch verdict."

"Very appropriate. What was it?"

"Why, they find the prisoner not guilty and then ask that the law he violated be changed."

Chicago Tribune: Old-Fashioned Pastor—You observe no falling off in spirituality in your congregation, I hope?

Popular Young Clergyman—I think our congregation has never been as active in church work as now. The women's ice cream socials are excellently attended and our last rummage sale realized nearly $375 for the organ fund.

NIGHTS OF JUNE.

Life ain't hardly worth th' livin' till th' evenin' comes about,
An' th' four-o'clocks unfoldin' send their perfumed greetin's out,
An' th' sky's splashed red an' fiery where day's orb has jest gone down,
An' th' sharp an' uncouth corners o' th' cool caressin' haze
That hangs like a royal garment 'bout th' swiftly fleetin' days,
An' yer life an' doubts are meller, an' th' griefs yeh thought yeh knew
Goes an' leaves yeh with th' sunset, as th' night rains down with dew.

Goes an' leaves yeh with th' sunset! ain't it well that they's a time
When all griefs an' disappointments seem ter fade away in rhyme?
Jest waltz out in rhythmic measure to a way'ring note an' thin,
While th' things for which yer hopin' on th' echo wavers in,
Till you're dreamin' and a dozin', till you're happy an' 'content,
An' yer thoughts seem fadin' from yeh like yer griefs an' sorrows went
An' th' night comes down about yeh cool an' perfumed, steeped in dew,
While th' breezes coax th' nightbird, an' th' nightbird answers too.

Long as there are nights like this one; long as four-o'clocks are red,
As they open to th' breezes, when th' heat o' day has sped,
Life'll be some worth th' livin'; any game is worth th' play
That has buds 'anl blooms o' June-time tossin' shadows o'er yer way;
Grief'll die, an' hope'll blossom, as life's rough sharp corners die,
An' th' stars came peepin' shyly when th' dark is on th' sky;
Lif'll sometimes burst in music long as mockbirds live ter croon,
An'll have its compensations long as there are nights in June.

DAILY STORY.

Wooing of Princess Valerie

BY CURRAN R. GREENLEY.

(Copyright, 1901, William R. Miller).

Rebellion was rampant in the little kingdom of Arstadt; not among his highness' subjects—they had never dreamed of such a thing; far worse, it reared its head within the very palace walls. In the court itself, in the person of Princess Valerie. Pretty Princess Valerie, the people had called her, and she had reigned right royally over prince and peasant from the days of her babyhood, when tha little daughter of the Vorburghs had seemed to hover so long just on the verge of the other land, and then the mysterious malady left her and the Princess Valerie had shot up into tall, graceful maidenhood with a mind of her own on many matters—among them, and chief among them, that of matrimony. Now, everybody knows that it is the duty of every well-regulated princess to accept the husband that the "powers that be" provide for her, but the Princess Valerie was not well regulated in any particular. There had been a very pretty scene when her brother, Rudolph, the king, had informed her, in fear and trembling, for all his royal prerogative, he it whispered, that he had chosen the duke of Herschenfels as her husband. Valerie stared blankly for a moment, then coolly informed his majesty that she had other plans. "But Valerie"—

"We will not argue the question. I refuse to hear a word on the subject."

Now, if his majesty had been at all wise in the ways of women he would have dropped the subject, but the Imp of the Perverse drew him on to enlarge upon the attractions of the duke and the advantages of the alliance, to all of which Valerie turned a very deaf ear.

The weeks went by. Valerie began to feel safe in the fact that Rudolph had been worsted in that first battle, but a boy king is no matter and the shrewed old prime minister is another, as princess Valerie found, to her cost.

She was out on the terrace with her violin, when a footman bowed low, with his majesty's request that she attend him in the audience chamber without delay. Wondering not a little, she obeyed, and stood in utter astonishment face to face with a much-decorated old veteran, the ambassador from the court of Herschenfels, who proceeded to lay before her, couched in the most formal of court language, the offer from his highness, the duke of Herschenfels. What she said there was no time to consider, but she was certainly under the impression that her reply left little doubt of her refusal. Did I? When that wise old fox Von Stauffenburg had been closeted with the bewildered ambassador the space of an hour that might be doubled, it dawned upon Valerie like a thunderclap when they came to measure her for the trousseau. She said little, but there was a mutinous curve around her mouth that King Rudolph well knew meant mischief. Poor fellow, he was not to blame. But womanlike, the vials of her wrath were all leveled at him. "For," argued Princess Valerie, "what was the use of being a king when you were really nothing but a puppet." Rudolph could have answered her sadly enough, but that would have outraged all the traditions of Arstadt, and Arstadt held its traditions highly.

It had not been deemed advisable that the duke should attempt to visit the princess. Even the old Von Stauffenburg feared to go that far, so he said, but—. There came to the court of Arstadt a young count of Neinheim, from some obscure little kingdom, and it was astonishing how soon he became a favorito with all but the old prime minister. Princess Valerie had not noticed him at first, but one day she was alone on the terrace, and thinking—she was always thinking now—of some plan to escape from the mesh that daily was closing around her, when she saw the count of Neinheim ride slowly by. As she watched him that curve the king so dreaded came around the smiling mouth. She leaned from the railing, and let her white scarf float down beneath his horse's feet. And he looked up, saw the lovely, laughing face bent above him, with that half-coquetish invitation in the deep brown eyes.

"May I?" the gray ones of the count flashed back, and there was no refusal. Ah! how the days went now. Princess Valerie gave no thought to the consequences, and the court seemed strangely blind to the little drama that day by day was unfolding before their eyes.

And then the Princess Valerie made a discovery. She who had laughed at love was miserably love-lorn as any village maid. There was a certain luxury in being miserable. It had reached the stage where the flame smoldered, waiting for a chance incident to fan it into fire, when the king proposed the annual hunting party, and, nothing lothe, the Princess Celerie joined in the sport. She even thawed so far as to smile on the long-suffering Rudolph and half in scorn at herself. Was love rendering her politic? She no longer attempted to disguise the fact from herself, and only three short weeks remained before she would have to submit to the fate that seemed inevitable. Was it? There lay the question.

As they rode along under the green arches of the forest, she was thinking deeply. The hunt had straggled apart and the count of Neinhiem rode close at the side of the Princess Valerie. They were saying little. Valerie stole a glance at his dark face.

"Why does he not say something?" she questioned. "Something must be done." And an instant later Princess Valerie was reeling in the saddle and would have fallen but for the count's arm, as he wheeled his horse. One look, a long look; the count bent low and the long moustache swept Valerie's cheek.

There was little need of words. The same old song that the forest had heard since the lords of Arstadt rode to war in the twilight of old crusader days. I cannot tell you how they managed it. There is always a providence that helps young lovers. The irreverent have termed it the providence of fools, but we who have not quite lost the echoes of Arcady, we know better. Suffice to say that while the twilight shadows gathered in the leafy coverts, as the startled deer fled down the forest reaches before the royal hunt, these two were bent in other ways.

There is an old gray convent that stands just across the line from where the kingdom of Arstadt ends and that of Landburg begins. There is a very reverend, jolly little father that dwells not far away that could tell what befell the Princess Valerie and the count of Neinheim that April evening.

The Princess Valerie rode back through the forest, as the night came down, and the light that shines not on land or sea played over the lovely face, and it was with the mischievous laugh of a spoiled child that knows it has had its way that she passed old Von Stauffenburg as he glowered over his spectacles at the court.

So runs the world away. The count had left the court, and, to all appearances, the Princess Valerie had made up her mind to the inevitable, and was even showing some interest in the preparations for her marriage that were daily increasing. All the time there was that little spark of mischief in her lovely eyes and that curve about her mouth that Rudolph knew so well.

All along the streets the children strewed the wealth of roses, silken banners hung across the highways and the fanfare of trumpets rang from every gateway. It was the Princess Valerie's wedding day, and all Arstadt had on its bravest dress to do her honor. In front of the Cathedral, two lines of pages, all in white, held the silken ropes, and the crimson carpet rolled far out toward the palace gateway. Inside, the flowers sent their sweetest incense up from the fragrant masses piled high on the altars, and draped from every arch in the gray old nave. The purple lights fell softly down over sculptured tombs and high-carved tablets that told of the ancient days. Lie lay with a tender radiance on the white satin pillow placed for Princes Valerie, who plotted so deeply against the good people's joy.

Valerie was very quiet as the white-robed flock of maids clustered around her, and the last touches were given to "My Sacrilicial Robe" as she turned the shining wonder that enwrapped her slender form.

She had positively refused to see the Duke, and they had thought better to yield to her whim, although the bridal festivities within the bride were a very travesty. There was a queer little tug of pity at her heart for the man she was presently to put to such bitter shame. True, she did not know them, but you any man deserved better than that at any woman's hands. But Princess Valerie, like many another, quitted that st small voice and swept down the stairs, and out into the sunshine with that little smile on the red lips. For was she not going to give Arstadt a sensation in the space of the next few moments? She could hear the archbishop's voice, asking if there be any objection, and her own in reply, that she was the wife of Count Fritz of Nelnheim.

Rudolph glanced uneasily at her face as he offered his arm. His majesty was not at all certain of this smiling bride. And then they moved on over the red carpet, across the sunlit square and into the cool gloom of the gray Cathedral. Boom, boom, the drums beat, and the "Traumerei" Would she ever forget how the Wagner horns rang clear and sonorous? They ought to have been for a real bride. She felt half ashamed. They were nearing the altar now. Someone was standing there, gorgeous in his orders and uniform—someone who seemed strangely familiar. The Princess Valerie caught her breath and looked again. She was not dreaming, for he stepped forward to receive her from the king, and she found herself face to face with the Count Nelnheim. Valerie sank to her knees. Over her head the archbishop's voice droned out the solemn words, but it all sounded faint and far away. She was conscious of nothing but a great peace that seemed to float around and fold her in, stilling the fever heat that had swept through all these weeks. And Rudolph had won out after all. The Princess Valerie was coming to herself as the interminable cereming came to an end. She had been fairly cheated into her happiness. That sly old Von Stauffenburg—she looked up to meet Rudolph's eyes, and the laugh in them was certainly very exasperating, but Princess Valerie was a wise woman in her way, therefore she accepted her defeat very gracefully. "I thank you, my liege and brother, but for you, count," and she held up a warning finger to the old prime minster. Baron Von Stauffenburg laughed until his keen eyes were lost in the many wrinkles. "Ah, my princess, a checkmate to your knight, but I have no fear that your highness will not forgive the victor." And Valerie laughed.

Sara and Maud.

When Sara plays bold Romeo to Maudie's Juliet,
We'll see the other mummers hump to keep the pace they set;
As old Jack Falstaff, Edna May will trip across the scene,
And staid Dick Mansfield must tog out as dear, petite Arline!
Nat Goodwin as La Tosca would go thirsting for revenge;
As Tess could Irving, hunted, flee for shelter to Stone Henge.
The fad will beat the book-play craze, 'twill be the greatest yet,
When Sara's playing Romeo to Maudie's Juliet.

Will see Modjeska's Uncle Tom, a thing worth while to see;
And Ada Rehan, when again she chooses to appear,
Will wear a white and flowing beard and rave and storm as Lear.
May Irwin would be great as Wang, and H. Clay Barnabee
As Desdemona couldn't fail to be' way up in G.
There'll be things doing on the stage next season, you can bet,
When Sara's playing Romeo to Maudie's Juliet.

King Corn's Domain.

Chicago Chronicle: The writer on the subject of the corn crop who says that the limit of corn production in the United States has been reached has never seen the extent of prairie fields in the corn belt. Not half of the lands in the West fitted to the corn crop, perhaps not a third, is yet under cultivation. Better methods of culture, especially through irrigation, will make the present cornfields twice as productive. There is no use in trying to "bull" the corn market by telling the story that the limit of corn production has been reached. It has hardly been touched.

Triumph Over Difficulties.

Detroit Free Press: Court-martialed for cowardice, cleared of the charge, then promoted for gallantry at the time he was said to have been a coward, is the record in the case of Capt. N. H. It is an unusual result, but hall and the marine corps are vindicated, while the wives of certain American ocials in Pekin are shown to have become vixens because Hall refused to permit his men to accord them salutes of "honors" shown officers. Hall was right, and the official approval given the women's trumped-up charges against him by high authorities at Pekin is thus properly condemned.

DIVIDEND DECLARED

Duluth & Iron Range Paid One Hundred Per Cent.

Last Report of Railroad Commission Shows This.

Three Million Dollars the Amount---Ore Carrying Roads.

It is not generally known that the Duluth & Iron Range road last year declared the first dividend in its history, and that it was one of 100 per cent, and amounted to $3,000,000.

The sixteenth annual report of the state railroad and warehouse commission, for the year ending Nov. 30, 1900, contains some interesting information regarding the two principal iron ore roads in this county, the Duluth & Iron Range road and the Duluth, Missabe & Northern. For instance, the combined mileage of the two roads, including all spurs, is only 351.15, and the earnings, after deducting operating expenses, were $4,424,769.58 for the year, or $12,600 per mile of road.

So it is small wonder that the Duluth & Iron Range last year was able to declare dividends amounting to $3,000,000, or 100 per cent on the stock that is outstanding. This was just before the road sold out to the United States Steel corporation, and it is a little significant that the first dividend in the history of the road should have been declared at that juncture. The dividend was not announced at the time it was made, and very few people knew that it had been declared until it was reported to the state. Indeed, this will be the first intelligence that most people have had of the dividend.

The Duluth & Iron Range authorized stock is $30,000,000, but only $3,000,000 was issued. There were two dividends, one of 40 and one of 60 per cent, but the report does not show when they were made.

The mileage of the Duluth & Iron Range, according to the report, is 198.19 miles, and the funded debt is $12,234,000, and the liabilities per mile, including the capital stock, are 50. The cost of the road to June 30, 1900, is $14,937.72, or $75,677.37 per mile.

The gross earnings from operation were $1,188,363.15, and the operating expenses were $2,284,128.38. The miscellaneous income, less expenses, amounted to $30,118.75, so the total net income was $2,314,247.11. Of the gross earnings $168,911.11 was from passenger business, and $1,286,311.73 was from freight.

The number of employes, including general officers, was 2735, and these employes worked 121,987 days at a yearly compensation of $881,481.29, making a daily average compensation per man of $2.09.

Of the freight traffic, iron ore constituted 88.23 per cent and logs 12.34 per cent, leaving 1.43 per cent for general and miscellaneous freight. The road had accidents that killed 14 and injured 15, of which 6 killed and 9 injured were employes.

The Duluth, Missabe & Northern has mileage of 152.30 miles. Its stock is $5,000,000 authorized and $2,512,500 issued, and there were no dividends. The funded debt is $8,100,000 or $59,028 per mile. The cost of the road to June 30, 1900, was $11,295,709.25, or $74,625.33 per mile.

The earnings from operation were $3,640,212.81, and the operating expenses were $1,615,892.88, leaving a balance of $2,024,509.96, to which must be added $85,952.51 in miscellaneous income, making a total of $2,110,462.47 as the net income. The passenger earnings were $72,441.23 and the freight earnings were $3,561,313.85. The taxes amounted to $74,572.89.

An interesting fact is that the expenses were 44.39 per cent of the earnings.

The number of employes, including general officers, was 1568, the number of days worked was 395,251, the yearly compensation was $954,469.48, and the average daily compensation was $2.14 per man. Of the freight traffic the ore business made 92.475 of the whole and logs 4.878 of the whole, leaving 2.647 per cent for general freight business.

The Missabe road has had less accidents than the Iron Range, killing only one person, not an employe, and injuring twenty-nine, of which twenty-seven were employes.

The two roads employ 4333 persons in St. Louis and Lake counties, of which 2735 work for the Iron Range and 1598 for the Missabe. The pay rolls for a year amount to $1,535,941.77, of which the Missabe pays $854,460.48 and the Iron Range $681,481.29. The average daily compensation of this army of men is $2.11 per day, the Iron Range paying $2.09 and the Missabe $2.14.

IS BEHIND.

Less Building In Duluth Than In Many Places.

A Duluth man, who has been in the East for some weeks visiting a number of cities there, when asked if he did not find Duluth going ahead pretty rapidly, said:

"I do not find as much improvement as there ought to be in the matter of building. In this respect Duluth is behind most of the cities in which I have been in the East. I am aware, too, that it is the opinion that here is a great deal doing in that line now. It is true that there is much being done in comparison with what there was a year or two ago, but it is not large as compared with what other cities are doing, nor is it large when the demand is considered. There is a great scarcity of dwellings in Duluth, and it is well known to the people here that there is to be a substantial and a sudden increase in population in the very near future but there is very little building of residences.

"There is no doubt, too, that something must be done or Duluth will suffer from this condition. It means that rents will continue to advance and reach the point where it means that people will have to live to the limit of their incomes. That cannot but be an unhealthy condition and detrimental to the city. The property owner is entitled to a fair remuneration for his investment, but the amount he realizes must not be excessive. The man who builds houses to rent must not expect to reap profits like the man who gets on the right side of the stock market. However, if he builds good houses and rents them at moderate prices, he will have the same kind of a steady income as does the man who invests in bonds or other securities at a moderate rate of interest.

"This is an important matter to Duluth people and deserves the attention of those who have the welfare of the city at heart. The announcement comes from the East even now that the Oliver Mining company's force is coming to Duluth this week, and includes many people. Where are they going to find homes, and if they have all kinds of trouble doing so, and have to pay excessive rents as compared with those they have been paying where they are now, will they not receive an impression of Duluth that will be hard to efface?"

A GREAT OPENING.

Forward & Co. Entertain Large Number of People.

The house warming of R. R. Forward & Co., held yesterday afternoon and evening, was probably the most successful affair of its kind that was ever given in the city. Last night the store was filled with patrons and friends of the popular firm, while dense crowds packed the pavements on the outside, watching the weaving and spinning wheel. It was a complete ovation, and all who were so fortunate as to attend were much pleased with the reception accorded them. At one time the police were in demand to hold the crowds on the outside, so great was the crush. On the second floor Flaaten's orchestra discoursed sweet music to an appreciative audience, while all of the visitors were given a ticket entitling them to a chance on the $35 steel range that is to be given away. Flowers and bread knives, with the firm's name inscribed on them, were for the ladies, while useful memorandum books were presented to the men. The immense floor space of the enterprising young firm was taxed to the utmost, and a bright future is in store for them.

LOOK FOR A WINNER

Republicans Are Already Figuring Closely on Governor.

Fear That Van Sant Cannot Win In Off Year.

Lind's Strength In Hennepin Directs Attention to Evans.

Minneapolis, June 19.—The Journal says: While the next Republican state convention is still a year in the future the leaders of the party are discussing with great seriousness the question whether it will be wise to renominate Van Sant for governor, in accordance with party tradition, or whether it will not be beter to take up some stronger man upon whom the party could count with greater certainty to defeat the allied forces.

In Minneapolis there is a very strong feeling that the latter is the course to follow, and while that sentiment is founded to a great extent upon the feeling that Van Sant has not treated Hennepin county as he should, it is also shared to a great extent by Republican leaders in all sections of the state.

It is commonly remarked that the Republican who would defeat John Lind in the coming campaign must be able to secure a majority of the vote of Hennepin county. It is the opinion of the party workers that Van Sant would not be able to prevail against Lind in this locality, especially since the latter has taken up his residence here. In a presidential year Van Sant carried the state by about 2200 plurality, while the presidential ticket came out with a plurality of 75,000 more. This is pointed to as a reason why a new candidate is necessary, and it is used to combat the contention that a second term should be granted as a matter of courtesy, and because other governors have received a renomination, although it is not forgotten that McGill was a one-term governor, and that, therefore, the two-term precedent was not an unbroken one.

As would be naturally expected, the feeling in this locality is very strongly in favor of the nomination of a local man, and among those adhering to that belief there is no diversion of opinion as to who the man should be. Briefly defined, the local politicians are ready to line up at a moment's notice, and while the governor, through certain personal friendships and through connections which can be traced to Private Secretary Jamison, will have a respectable following, there is hardly any room for doubt that the Republicans of the county by a large majority would prefer R. G. Evans as their candidate.

The Evans sentiment is spreading at a rapid rate and has been nourished assiduously by some of the local leaders, while it has not suffered to any degree through the antagonism which continues to exist against Governor Van Sant. While the originin of the idea of the Evans candidacy is doubtless due to the popularity of the man and his evident vote-getting ability and fitness for the place, it is growing rapidly by reason of circumstances which largely favor it, and it would hardly be too much to say that Evans' name will be presented to the next convention unless he himself refuses to permit it.

IDYL AT STOCKYARDS.

Jerseys Forgotten For Charms of Pretty Woman.

Chicago, June 19.—Henry J. Dowling, a dairy farmer of Yellow Springs, Ohio, came to Chicago last Thursday to buy a herd of Jersey milch cows. He didn't know anybody here. No romantic notions mingled with his business plans. Monday he left for the Buffalo exposition with a young wife clinging to his arm and in his heart the triumph of a love suit that began the day he arrived and culminated in a hasty but happy marriage at St. Joe Sunday afternoon. It happened like this:

Mr. Dowling, who is a black-haired, handsome young man of 38, arrived at the stockyards last Thursday morning, looking for choice milkers for his farm. He struck a bad day for Jerseys, so he decided upon a tour of the packing houses to pass the time.

At Libby, McNeil & Libby's plant he was introduced to a pretty, blonde girl—Miss Gertrude Miller—forewoman of the canning department. She was very gracious, in an unaffected, business-like way, and took great pains to show the Ohio dairy farmer round her department. Miss Miller had 1000 girls in her charge, and yet she was gracious, serene and—smiled at her guest. He forgot about his farm, his Jersey cows and everything else. She was so pretty, so suave, so sensible and so demure. Mr. Dowling went back to the Transit house and smoked seven cigars.

The next (Friday) morning he rose with the hope that the Jersey cows wouldn't show up for a month. He wandered over to the Libby-McNeil plant and stole up into the visitors' gallery, where he could watch the big canning department and feast his eyes upon the forewoman.

From 9 until noon he sat there watching her direct the vast business of the department, with the same calm, sweet poise that he had noticed the day before. At noon he made bold to accost her.

He told her again his name, his business, his hopes. He showed her his letters of credit to Chicago banks. She blushed and wondered. An orphan with four years in the packing-house behind her and a lifetime of cheerful industry before her, she did not quite understand this earnest young man from the country. He asked her if she would honor him with her company to the theater. He was so frank, so polite and so earnest that she said "Yes." So he called at her boarding house, 4911 Lowe avenue, at 7 that evening, and they went to "Lovers' Lane."

It was a fortuitous choice—this rural idyl of wooing and wedding. She liked it, and between the acts, when the spell of the mimic romance was on her, he grew eloquent. He told her the old, old story—the sweetest and the oldest—about his dairy farm in the green hills, the wide-eyed cattle and the vine-grown home.

They went across the lake Sunday—a rare June day—to St. Joe, Mich. He must have been very eloquent, for they were married there and came back to Chicago on the evening boat like lovers of five years' ardent wooing. Monday morning Miss Miller told the superintendent at Libby, McNeil & Libby's that she had "another engagement."

Mr. Dowling meanwhile was busy selecting Jersey beauties to be shipped to his home. By noon the canning department he lost its pretty forewoman. She was at home packing her trunk. At 3 o'clock in the afternoon the bride and groom boarded a Michigan Central train for Buffalo. He was smiling and triumphant, she blushing, nervous and happy.

Mr. Dowling is 33 years old, a childless widower, educated, prosperous and handsome. His bride is 22, as blonde as he is brune, comely, cheerful and industrious.

"We hate to lose her," said Superintendent Young of the packing plant, "but I believe that young farmer is all right. No matter how good he is, though, he has won a capital prize, and I believe he knows it."

EXCITED.

Sauk Rapids Fears Foley Will Move County Seat.

Sauk Rapids, Minn., June 19.—There is great excitement here over the county seat contest with Foley, and it is not impossible that blood will be shed.

One hundred men, with forty teams, started last night from Foley for Sauk Rapids for the purpose of removing the county records to Foley, and there are intimations that the attempt to take the records to Foley will be resisted by force if necessary.

The county commissioners met yesterday as a canvassing board and decided that Foley had won by 497 votes in the election to decide whether the county seat of eBnton county should remain at Sauk Rapids or be located at Foley.

Announcement was immediately made that a contest would be begun under the general election law on the ground of fraud and the intimidation of voters.

When the action of the county commissioners became known at Foley 100 men volunteered to drive to Sauk Rapids with forty teams and procure the records. This action was soon noised about on the streets of Sauk Rapids and threats were made that the men would meet with a warm reception and return home without the coveted records.

It is stated that the county officials will refuse to move to Foley or permit their records to leave Sauk Rapids on the ground that no place has been provided for their proper keeping. It was expected that an injunction would be asked for, preventing the removal of the records, but thus far no move of this kind has been made.

The dispute ended in a physical encounter, in which Mr. Reeves claims he had recourse to nature's weapons, but Becker testified that he was biffed with a bludgeon.

TIN PLATE EXPORTS

American Makers Are Now Entering the Foreign Markets.

Exports as Yet Small Compared With Domestic Demand.

Eight to Ten Times Greater Than Two Years Ago.

From The Herald Washington Bureau.

Washington, June 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—American manufacturers of tin plate are making rapid gains in their attempt to enter the foreign markets of the world. To be sure their exports are yet small as compared with the domestic demand which they are meeting, but they are again reducing the imports, which temporarily increased in 1900 under the excessive demand and extremely high price of materials, and are at the same time increasing their exports in a manner which proves interesting to those who have watched the development of this comparatively new industry in the United States. The figures of the treasury department show that the export of tin plates from the United States, which in the ten months ending with April, 1899 amounted to only 183,955 pounds, and in the ten months ending with April, 1900, to 275,990 pounds, were, in the ten months ending with April, 1901, 1,306,160 pounds. The imports of tin plates the figures for the ten months show a material decrease as compared with the quantity imported during the same period of the preceding fiscal year, being 98,699,722 pounds, as compared with 123,598,773 pounds for the ten months' period of last year.

Our total exportations of tin plate in the fiscal year 1901 seem likely to be from eight to ten times those of 1899, while the importations of tin plates into the United States promise to be little more than one-tenth those of 1891, the year of the largest importation of tin plates into the United States, and but about one-fifth of the average annual importation during the five years prior to the establishment of the tin plate industry in the United States.

The record of tin plate prices during the past two years shows a remarkable fluctuation, largely due to the unusually high price of the material in 1900. Quotations for tin plates furnished to the treasury bureau of statistics show the price per box of 100 pounds of tin plates of Bessemer steel in New York in April, 1901, as $4.20, the uniform price since Jan. 1, 1901; in January, 1900, the price was $5.50, while in January, 1898, it was $3.80. Meantime the price of Straits tin used in the manufacture of tin plate has increased from 15.82 cents per pound in January, 1898, to 31.62 cents in July, 1900, and thence downward to 26.2 cents on April 19, 1901, and again advancing to 28.15 cents on June 1, 1901; while steel billets increased in price from $15 per ton in January, 1898, to $35 per ton in January, 1900, since which date the price fluctuated considerably, finally becoming practically stationary at $28 per ton in March, 1901.

Year.	Long Tons.
1894	74,260
1895	113,606

1897	256,568
1898	326,915
1899	360,875
1900	302,655

The following table shows the imports of tin plates into the United States in each calendar year from 1890 to 1900:

Year.	Tons.
1890	329,495	$23,670,158
1891	327,882	25,900,305
1892	268,472	17,102,487
1893	253,155	15,553,437
1894	215,966	12,953,167
1895	219,545	11,482,280
1896	119,171	6,140,161
1897	83,851	4,266,828
1898	66,775	3,311,658
1899	58,915	3,738,567
1900	60,318	4,617,813

The following table shows the exports of tin plates from the United States in the ten months ending with April, 1899, 1900 and 1901, respectively:

Year.	Pounds.
1899	183,955

HAS TROUBLE.

Constitution Towed Back to Her Moorings.

Newport, R. I., June 19.—The yacht Constitution went out to sea today for a trial sail. When off the lightship, however, she came about and for some time her sails flapped in the light breeze. In a short time the press boat rounded up under her stern, took a line and started back towards the harbor. So far as could be seen from shore there was no trouble with the rigging of the yacht, but there was a suggestion of trouble with the steering gear in the action of the yacht, off the lightship.

MAY BE TROUBLE

At Sympathetic Boer Meeting Scheduled For London.

New York, June 19.—The meeting at the Queen's hall, London, tonight, which is to be addressed by the Cape Colony delegates, Messrs. Merriman and Sauer, promises to be a lively one, says the Tribune's London correspondent. The Daily Mail has been conducting an active campaign against the proposed demonstration of sympathy with the Boers, and on the stock exchange circulars have been prominently posted, calling on patriots to attend in thousands and to support their fighting brethren in South Africa. An organized attempt will probably be made to break up the meeting.

TO CORNELL.

Rockefeller Gives Quarter Million If Like Amount Is Raised.

Ithaca, N. Y., June 19.—At a meeting of the board of trustees of Cornell university today, President Schurman presenter a letter from John D. Rockefeller, donating $250,000 to the university on condition that an equal amount be contributed by others. The $500,000 when secured will be used in providing additional accommodations for instruction and research.

SPANISH

May Be Used In Philippine Courts Under Certain Conditions.

Manila, June 19.—The United States Philippine commission has modified the provision of the law providing for the use of the Spanish language in the courts for five years, by permitting proceedings to be conducted in English and native dialects, the same to be translated into Spanish, unless the litigants stipulate otherwise. In the latter case, the records are to be written in both languages.

NEARLY ALL

Of the Money Stolen From Mineral Point Bank Recovered.

Milwaukee, June 19.—A Journal special from Mineral Point, Wis., says all but $35 of the money stolen from the First National bank, a month ago, has been recovered. The police today found $4,200 in currency under a large stone a few miles east of the city. It is said the money was found through information furnished by the prisoner, Stewart Jelleff, who is held on suspicion of being connected with the robbery.

WAS DRIVEN INSANE.

Crazed By Fear of a Surgical Operation.

Indianapolis, June 19.—Eva Jacobs has been declared insane by a lunacy commission. Recently she consulted a physician and was told that she would have to undergo a serious surgical operation. This preyed on her mind until it gave way under the strain. Miss Jacobs was noticed to be acting strangely immediately after her visit to the physician a month ago, and her mental malady grew rapidly until finally she became a raving maniac. She will be removed to the Central Insane hospital immediately.

REFUSED TO STOP.

Preacher Is Unmoved By His Daughter's Pain.

Kalamazoo, Mich., June 19.—While her father, the Rev. H. H. Delperink Langeries, pastor of the Second Christian Reformed church, was in the midst of his sermon Sunday afternoon, Miss Bessie Langeries ran into the church screaming at the top of her voice with blood spurting from her wrist. The girl was in a fainting condition, and her mother and sisters arose and carried her into the house. The Rev. Langeries continued his sermon without a moment's pause. He is of the extreme type of Hollanders, and his congregation are like himself, so that the sermon was continued for over an hour after the girl had been removed.

The church where he preaches is built in the rear of a lot on which stands the parsonage, and although the distance was so short and the pastor did not know whether his daughter was in a dying condition or not, he did not see fit to dismiss the services.

The young woman had injured herself by thrusting her arm through a window, and it took a physician an hour to close up the wound. He had finished his work before the father came into the house.

It is thought that the father's attitude may be explained by a recent occurrence. Another daughter, Henrietta, eloped with her sister's husband, and her father at that time was so embittered that he called down anathemas on her head, and because some of his children have given him much trouble. The excuse he gives for not hastening to his daughter's bedside on Sunday is that "it would be desecration of the Sabbath."

He is the same pastor who recently sent a written protest to the common council against allowing a procession on Sunday on the occasion of the dedication of the New Borgess Hospital.

Miss Langeries is so weak from loss of blood that she has been in bed the greater part of the day. Except for the act of a neighbor, who knew how to make a tuniquet, the girl would probably have bled to death. When the father returned after his sermon he knelt by the side of his daughter and prayed.

The father's conduct is defended by the girl. "He could not have done anything if he had been in the house," she said. "Everything was done that could be."

ONE OF INTERNAL FINANCE.

London, June 19.—Vickers, Sons & Maxim informed the Associated Press the increase of the firm capital by £1,000,000 in ordinary shares has absolutely nothing to do with the American amalgamation. The measure is purely one of internal finance, and was considered necessary for the English company.

KERSEY REPORTED DEAD.

New York, June 19.—The World says: A report reached the White Star line pier last night that H. Maitland Kersey, formerly agent of the line, had died in South Africa, where he went as a commissioned officer in a British regiment. It was impossible to verify the rumor, and Mr. Kersey's friends were not inclined to credit it.

DR. JESSUP IS DEAD.

DRUNKARDS

Made By the Army Canteen, Declares Edwin F. Walker.

Chicago, June 19.—Evils of the army canteen from the standpoint of the private soldier are embraced in a report on present conditions, made by Edwin F. Walker, who has recently spent much time among the men at Ft. Sheridan and in the saloons at Highwood. Mr. Walker made a thorough investigation, and declares that the canteen makes drunkards of men who were not addicted to liquor drinking before joining the army.

"Liquor men can be counted upon," says Mr. Walker, "to spread exaggerated and false reports about the working of the law, and to plot for its overthrow. The opinion is in the air that the way to get back the canteen is to show bad records at present.

"Now," said a private at Ft. Sheridan, "some of the boys get on a drunk once a month and somebody sees to it that everybody hears about it. But with the canteen, the boys who wanted to drank all the time, but as it was inside the post, people did not know so much about it. The canteen made plenty of drunkards."

RESIGNED HIS OFFICE.

Could Not Be a Christian and an Alderman.

McKeesport, Pa., June 19.—Harry L. Abbott, member of the McKeesport common council from the Eleventh ward, has resigned his seat in that body because he does not believe a man can be a Christian and be a member of council at the same time. To serve his constituents, he says, a man must stifle his conscience.

Abbott is a printer, employed on the McKeesport Daily News. He has been in the city council since April, 1900. Before that he served several terms in the city school board. He was always elected by the unanimous vote of his ward. Regarding his resignation he says:

"My resignation is purely a matter of conscience. It is my determination to live a life void of offense to God and man. To do so it becomes necessary to obey the Divine injunction: Come ye out from among them and be ye separate.' I have found that in order to be of use to my constituents to secure need improvements for my district, I must stifle my conscience, enter into cliques and schemes and become a low politician. I cannot do that and have resigned.

"Politics is the most corrupt thing I have ever been mixed up with. I am out of it forever. I have separated myself, and my conscience is satisfied. Needed improvements for my district, I know that no Christian can sit in the McKeesport councils and save his soul."

MASONS BARRED.

From Membership In Swedish Lutheran Church.

Jamestown, N. Y., June 19.—The most interesting question yet taken up by the Augustana synod of the Swedish Lutheran church was reached yesterday. It was in reference to the relation of the church to war secret societies.

The report of the committee on revision of the constitution, recommending that the clause in the constitution of the church providing that no member of the Masonic order or other secret or atheistic society should be entitled to membership in the church of the synod be expunged was defeated this afternoon after a warm discussion. The result of the ballot was that the proposed amendment was defeated by a vote of 81 to 71, thus leaving the objectionable clause in the church creed and excluding from membership of any church within the denomination of the members of any secret society.

Skin Diseases

ECZEMA, TETTER, PSORIASIS, SALT RHEUM, ACNE and a great many other diseases of like character are classed as skin diseases, when they could just as properly be called blood diseases, for they undoubtedly originate in the blood, like Cancer, Catarrh, Scrofula, Rheumatism, Contagious Blood Poison, etc.; the only real difference being in the intensity and nature of the poison. The more serious diseases, Cancer, Catarrh, etc., are caused by some specific poison or virus, which is either inherited or in other ways gets into the blood and attacks certain vital organs or appears in the form of terrible sores and ulcers, while the milder and less dangerous skin diseases are caused by blood humors or an over acid condition of that fluid. These acid poisons, as they ooze out through the pores of the skin, cause great irritation, with intense itching and burning. The eruption may be of a pustular kind, with excessive discharge of thick, gummy fluid, or the skin may be hot, dry and feverish, swollen and fissured. Skin diseases, whether they appear as sores, blotches or pimples, become more deeply rooted and intractable the longer neglected, the skin in time having a thick, hard, rough and unsightly appearance. You can hide the blemishes for a time with cosmetics; and washes, lotions, soaps and powders may relieve temporarily the itching and burning, but eventually the pores of the skin become so clogged up by this treatment that the poisonous matter thrown off by the blood cannot pass out of the system, and settles on the lungs, heart or some other vital organ and endangers life.

I can cheerfully and most sincerely endorse your specific as a cure for Eczema, the most irritating and annoying disease, I think, that flesh is heir to. I was troubled with it for twenty-five years, and tried many remedies with no good effect. After using your medicine a short time I think I am entirely relieved. You can give this statement any publicity you may desire, as it is voluntarily made, more for those afflicted than notoriety for myself.

Very respectfully,
WM. CAMPBELL,
313 West Central. Wichita, Kans.

To purify and build up the polluted blood is the right treatment for skin diseases, and for this purpose no other medicine is so deservedly popular as S. S. S. It is a perfect antidote for all blood humors, and when taken into the circulation, gently but thoroughly eliminates all impurities and puts the blood in a healthy, normal state. The skin can't remain in an irritated, diseased condition when nourished with rich, new blood. S. S. S. is the only guaranteed purely vegetable remedy, and the safest and best skin beautifier. Write our physicians if you have any blood or skin disease, and they will cheerfully advise you without charge.

One Hundredth Anniversary of Birth of Supreme Council.

Statue of Gen. Albert Pike Is to Be Unveiled.

Machinists' Strike Felt By Shipyards With Government Contracts.

From The Herald Washington Bureau.

Washington, June 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—Arrangements are being made by Representative Jas. D. Richardson, of Tennessee, grand commander of the supreme council of the Southern jurisdiction of the Ancient Order of Scottish Rite Masons, for the celebration, in this city in October next, of the one hundredth anniversary of the organization of the council. The anniversary fell in May of this year, but it was decided to postpone the celebration until the biennial meeting of the supreme council in October.

The exercises will include the unveiling of a statue of Gen. Albert Pike, who was for so many years the grand commander of the order, and the delivery of an historical address by Mr. Richardson. The council now consists of 24 thirty-third degree Masons and several of the nine vacancies will be filled at the October meeting. The bi-cennial banquet will be given in the Scottish Rite Temple. It is expected that many of the honorary thirty-third degree Masons will be present, as well as all of the 24 active members of the council. Senator Teller is an active member, representing Colorado, and Senator Hansbrough is an honorary thirty-third degree Mason.

This is the oldest supreme council in the world, and is known as the "Mother Council of the World." Invitations have been sent to all the grand commanders of all the other supreme councils with which this council is in correspondence, some thirty-five in all, and it is expected several of the foreign grand commanders will be present. The order possesses a commodious and handsome temple here, erected by Gen. Pike, in which is the council chamber, the banquet hall, a $150,000 library, the executive rooms and a number of handsome living chambers. Several grand commanders, including Gen. Pike, died here. The grand commander receives a salary of $5000 and apartments for life.

Practically every shipyard having government contracts for the construction of warships is feeling the strike of machinists, and at several of the leading concerns all work has ceased in the mechanical departments on both private and public contracts.

No penalties can be imposed for failure to complete vessels within contract time, owing to a provision in all agreements relieving firms from such imposition when strikes interfere with the work. The effect, however, will be to cause some question as to the advisability of making further appropriations for an increase of the navy until the large program now in course of construction has been completed or well toward completion.

The debilitating effect of the strikes upon the work on the vessels now under construction for the navy is summed up in the latest statement from the naval bureau of construction, showing the degree of completion upon the various craft on the first of June, as compared with their standing on the first of May.

The battleships the Illinois and the Missouri, at Newport News, advanced 2 per cent and 3 per cent; the Ohio, at the Union Iron works, 11 per cent, and the Maine, at Cramps', 2 per cent.

Work was not begun on either the five battleships, the six armored, or the three protected cruisers recently contracted for. The Cleveland, at the Bath works, which was 55 per cent, completed May 1, remained at a standstill throughout the month. The advance on the other protected cruisers varied from 2 to 5 per cent. Only slight progress was made on the four monitors, the progress ranging from 1 to 3 per cent. On twelve torpedo boat destroyers and nine torpedo boats no advance is shown for the month of May, and the advance in regard to the remainder of these craft was not over 2 per cent in any case.

Work upon the new submarine boats, however, progressed at a fast pace in some cases, the Porpoise, Shark, Moccasin and Adder, building at the Nixon works, showing increases of 19, 18, 12 and 10 per cent respectively. Work on the Fike building, at the Union Iron works, remained at a standstill, and the Grampus, also building at that yard, advanced 1 per cent during the month.

The navy department will make a departure in ventilating warships by the introduction on ships of the Denver class of a system doing away with the shafts running along the bottom of the ships. The new plan divides the ship into compartments, each being ventilated from above by means of electrical devices. In this way the long tubes in the hull of the ship are removed, the compartments are made entirely independent of each other and a considerable saving of space is effected.

In answer to inquiries from persons in this country, Consul Ridgely, at Malaga, submits the following report on the prospects of the almond and raisin crops in his district for 1901:

Until after the early spring windstorms, it was impossible to give definite information; but now that these storms are over, it may be said that the almond crop promises to be at least up to, if not slightly above, the average. But for frosts during early April, in the provinces of Malaga and Granada, there would have been an unusually large yield.

The famous Jordan almonds of commerce are grown exclusively in the province of Malaga, and from 125,000 to 130,000 boxes is a fair average crop. "Valencia" almonds are also a Malago product, and an average yield would be about 175,000 boxes, which, in addition to the Jordan almonds, would indicate a total crop this year of about 300,000 boxes.

Of last year's Jordans, only a very small proporotion remains unsold, but the ware houses of Malaga still contain a considerable left-over stock of Valencias. There is just now some demand for Jordans, at market prices of from $7 to $7.25 of 28 pounds, cost and freight included. Valencias are not much in demand, but the market price is from $5.60 to $5.75 per box of 25 pounds, cost and freight included.

During the year ended Dec. 31, 1900, there were exported from Malaga to the United States 56,425 boxes of Jordans and Valencias, at prices generally higher than ever known before. Some of Malaga's leading merchants bought when the market was highest, and have since been compelled to sell at largely reduced prices; others are largely stocked with Valencias, which cost about 25 per cent more than the market price of today. The result has been that at least one leading firm has abandoned the almond business altogether, and others are ready to follow.

Malaga raisins are famous all over the world. At present the production, which had grown smaller some years ago because of the ravages of the phylloxera, is on the increase. A good average crop would mean about 1,200,000 boxes. Last year, owing to floods and storms, the crop was short many thousand boxes, and in all the commercial history of Malaga there was never known such fluctuations in prices. Merchants, as a rule, had a bad year and lost large sums of money. This year there is every promise of an abundant crop of fine quality, with opening prices probably about as follows: Malaga clusters, from $1.25 to $3.25 per box of 22 pounds net, cost and freight included; loose, from 75 cents to $1.75, and seedless, from 70 to 75 cents per box. Of last year's crop from 40,000 to 50,000 boxes remain unsold. These are mostly loose raisins, quoted at present at 75 cents a box. If these are not sold they will be utilized in making wine.

Mr. Ridgely invites attention to the fact that the above prices include cost and freight to any part of Europe or to the United States.

TRUST BY CORN KING

Phillips In Wall Street Organizing Farmers' Crop Trust.

Claims to Have the Agriculturists Solidly Behind Him.

He Says September Corn Will Sell at Fifty Cents.

New York, June 19.—George H. Phillips, Chicago's "Corn King," is in this city organizing a trust more collosal than the steel trust—the corn trust.

Such is the belief of Wall street. Many things bear out the belief.

He says September corn will sell at 50 cents a bushel.

He is spending his time in close conference with the greatest grain operators on the Produce exchange.

Back of Phillips, he says, is a small army of speculators with vast capital, and back of them are the farmers, first holders of corn, who will not sell a bushel until they get the word from Phillips.

These are the elements of his trust.

Phillips is hailed as a greater man than Morgan and Carnegie by the farmers, into whose pockets he has put millions of dollars in the last few months.

He put the price of corn up to 65 cents—higher than it has been for nine years. Most of the time since 1892 corn has been sold by farmers at from 50 cents and often as low as 20 cents.

How great have been the benefits to the farmers from the opinion of Phillips will be seen from the following figures.

The total number of bushels of corn raised in the United States in 1900 was 2,105,102,536.

Phillips raised the price to 65 cents. He promises to maintain it at an average of 50 cents.

The crop this year will be larger than that of last year.

This increase in price means, therefore, more than $300,000,000 put in the hands of the farmers.

Oats, too, is to be boomed. Phillips set the price of September oats at 32 cents. It is now selling at 26. The average price for the last year's crop was 22.

A crop of a billion bushels is expected this year. This means $100,000,000 more for producers.

Thus $400,000,000 will be turned into the hands of the growers of corn and oats if the corn trust be successful.

Farmers are enthusiastic, and believe Phillips can accomplish the feat. Thousands of they are said to be in direct communication with him, and are keeping him posted on the exact condition of crops in all parts of the country.

He says he ignores the government crop reports, intimating that they are manipulated.

Most surprising of all is the fact that this is the first time in the history of the United States that the farmers have submitted to the leadership of one man in selling their crops.

For a time they let Joe Leiter tell them when to sell wheat, but his failure lost him their confidence.

The relation of Phillips with the farmers explains how he—with a few million dollars he was able to defeat the richest men on the board of trade who poured millions into the trade in a vain attempt to break his corner.

REKINDLED

Love, and Then Marriage Followed at Atlantic City.

Atlantic City, N. J., June 19.—The culmination of a seaside romance was the result of a meeting here, and it was as unexpected to the principals as to any one else. Last July Miss Stella Krebs, a handsome brunette, living in Philadelphia, met Clarence D. Hibler, of Pittsburg, an electrical engineer, and their pronounced liking for each other led to a correspondence which kept up after the season closed, and they repaired to their respective homes.

Since last year Mr. Hibler has been employed by the Widener-Elkins syndicate to superintend the various plants controlled by them through the West and East. For some time past he has made his headquarters in Cincinnati. Mr. Hibler came to Atlantic City with his sister Addie, of Philadelphia, and Charles Peterson, formerly of Peterson's Magazine, and while strolling the board walk met Miss Krebs.

The old attachment was renewed at once, and after supper Mr. Hibler proposed and was accepted. Rev. Frank J. Mundy, a Presbyterian clergyman, was sought, and in a few minutes performed the ceremony that made them husband and wife. After the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Hibler went to the New England hotel, where they registered for a week's stay. The bride is a well-known society favorite in the Quaker City. Neither her parents or friends knew of her marriage until informed of it by telegram. The groom is well known in electrical circles throughout the country.

FOR ITALY.

United States Imposes Countervailing Duty on Beet Sugar.

Washington, June 19.—The secretary of the treasury has issued to customs officers the following circular imposing a countervailing duty on beet sugar imported from or the product of Italy:

In view of the information thus far received of the operations of the laws of Italy, now in force, concerning the excise on sugar, it appears highly probable that sugars produced in that country receive direct export bounties as follows:

Sugar below No. 20 Dutch standard, 5.60 francs per 100 kilograms. Sugar No. 20, Dutch standard and above 6.13 francs per 100 kilograms. Pending further investigation of the matter the liquidation of all sugars imported from or produced in Italy shall be suspended and the duties shall be estimated in amounts sufficient to cover additional duties equal to the above specided bounties.

It is stated at the treasury department that until recently Italy has produced only sufficient sugar for home consumption, but that litterly there has been a surplus and that this excess is now bounty fed as stated. Up to this time there have been practically no sugar exports to the United States.

Official information has reached this government that under a recent classification powers with one wheel imported into Italy are to be regarded as instruments for art and trade, instead of agricultural machines, and that the change involves a higher rate of duty. This government is likely to make protest against this action.

ARBITRATION

Is Urged Upon Pressmen as Method of Settling Troubles.

Washington, June 19.—Frederick Driscoll, commissioner of the American Newspaper Publishers' association, made an address before the International Printing Pressmen's convention yesterday.

He urged the adoption of arbitration for settlement of all differences, the practice of conciliation in making new scales, and the right of the publishers' report to be heard on all proposed changes in the laws affecting their interests, saying that all these measures of relief had been granted by the International Typographical union.

Chairman Bowman responded on behalf of the association, expressing the hope that action would be taken on the lines of arbitration suggested by Mr. Driscoll.

The address was referred to the committee on laws.

A number of amendments to the constitution were suggested and referred to a committee.

It was decided that the pressmen shall not hereafter join any state National Guard organization, on the ground that they do not believe in utilizing that power in strikes, and that they have no sympathy with state interference in labor troubles.

Wheat Market Easier But Fluctuates In Narrow Range.

Cables Lower and the Crop Prospects Continue Good.

Fears That Rains In Kansas May Hinder Harvesting.

Duluth Board of Trade, June 19.—The wheat market started easier and lower this morning owing to the cables being disappointing, and the crop prospects continuing to be excellent, but it rallied on fears that the heavy rains in Kansas may interfere with harvesting operations. Wheat at Liverpool declined 3/6@1d. The crop reports are all of the rosiest sort and the only complaint heard is of too much rain in Kansas, and that is not serious, for Kansas seems to have trouble all the time. It was only a day or two ago that Kansas was calling for rain. Winter wheat harvesting is under way and is quite general in Kansas and Missouri. The cash demand continues fair, but not especially brisk. New York reported 22 loads worked for export today. Clearances of wheat and flour equalled 407,000 bushels. Primary receipts of wheat were 431,000 bushels, last year 576,000. Shipments 282,000, last year 352,000.

Trading in futures was dull on the Duluth board. July wheat opened ⅜c off at 69c, sold at 69⅝c at 9:35, reacted to 69c at 10, recovered to 69⅜c at 10:30, declined to 69c at 10:50, rallied to 69¼c at 11:50, and sold at 69 at 1:10, and closed at 69¼c, a decline of ⅛c. Chicago declined ⅜c and Minneapolis ⅛c to ⅜c.

Flax continues to be strong and cash held its own at $1.80, while September advanced 2½c and October 2c. Oats advanced ½c.

Following are the closing prices:

Wheat—No. 1 hard, cash, 72; to arrive, 72¼; July, 72¾; Sept., 69⅛. No. 1 northern, cash, 69; to arrive, 69½; July, 69⅛. No. 2 northern, 64; No. 3 spring, 60; oats, 27½@29½; Rye, 47½; flax, cash, $1.80; Sept.$1.83½; Sept. Nov., $1.84½; Oct., $1.39.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Wheat Had Easier Tone and Corn Steady.

Chicago, June 19.—Disappointing cables and good crop prospects combined to create an easier tone at the opening of the wheat market today. Sept. opened ⅜c down at 65⅝ to ½. There was plenty on sale during the earlier part of the session, the greater portion of which was for the heavy rains in Kansas may interfere with harvesting, Sept. rallied slowly to 66¾c. Minneapolis and Duluth reported 262 cars against 297 last week and 351 a year ago. Local receipts were 49 cars.

On damage by rains in the Southwest and helped by a good cash demand, September advanced to 69@69¼c. Profit-taking resulted in a reaction to 67⅝c. The close was steady, a shade lower at 68¾c.

Corn ruled steady. Sept. opened unchanged at 44⅜ to ½. Offerings were light with a good scattering demand and the market rallied to 44⅝@44¾c. Local receipts were 15 cars, two of contract grade. Light receipts and talk of possible manipulation caused some firmness in oats. Sept. opened unchanged to shade higher at 26½ to ⅝c, and held steady. Receipts were 126 cars.

Provisions were dull and easier on lower prices for hogs. Sept. pork opened unchanged to 5c down at $15.22½; Sept. lard, 2½ to 5 lower at $8.75@8.77½; Sept. ribs a shade off at $8.17½ to $8.20 and declined to $8.15.

MARKET GOSSIP.

Received over private wire of B. E. Baker, grain and stock broker, 307 Board of Trade, Duluth, Minn.:

Chicago, June 19.—The wheat market was rather nervous and prices irregular. Shorts were the principal buyers. There are no complaints of any interference with harvesting by reason of wet weather and conditions generally are very favorable. There was a moderate cash demand in this market. We see nothing yet to change the opinion we have had for some time past that there is nothing to establish or maintain a bull market, and think wheat should be sold on the hard spots.

Corn—Nothing in the general conditions. Crop prospects favorable and demand poor. The strength in this market is local and purely speculative. Corn for June is selling to a basis under July. We think the holdings are scattered and unless demand improves or crop conditions change the market will develop weakness before last time.

The oat market was quiet and steady. Selling pressure from shorts curtailed by talk of manipulation on account of large local concentrated holdings. In our judgment a successful manipulation of oats through July would be a very difficult proposition and we do not advise buying them.

Provisions were a shade easier. There was evidently profit-taking, but no great selling pressure. General tone is quiet and steady. Receipts of hogs 65,000, against 90,000 last year. Cash demand continues good.

FEVERISH IN STOCKS

Opening Deals Showed Losses But There Was a Recovery.

Increased Interest In Stocks Not Classed as Active.

New York, June 19.—The tone of speculation of the opening was unsettled. In the railroad list generally the pressure to sell out weighed the demand. St. Paul dipped 2 points and suddenly rallied 1½ and other railroad stocks showed fractional declines. Opening sales of Amalgamated Copper were of 7600 shares at 125¾ to 128, compared with 127 last night. A number of other specialties showed fractional gains.

Fluctuations were narrower than usual for the early trading, only a few stocks moving a point either way in the second hour transactions. Improvements were quite general, but enough stock was offered on the rise to prevent any decided gains. St. Paul recovered to 129 and fluctuated a point below that, and Amalgamated Copper sold as much below the best. Anaconda mining on the other hand, gained a point. Tennessee Coal, St. Louis & San Francisco and Baltimore & Ohio advanced a point, while Chesapeake & Ohio and Colorado Fuel lost 1 and 2 points respectively. Minneapolis & St. Louis preferred advanced 1 to 4¾. American Tobacco, after a period of neglect, was bought heavily and gained 2 points. In some other quarters, prices rose grad-ually. Rock Island, St. Paul, Brooklyn Transit, Union Pacific, American Car, Missouri Pacific, Sugar and Atchison selling a point or more above the lowest, with St. Paul fluctuating for 2¾. Meanwhile, Amalgamated Copper declined steadily and Colorado Fuel increased its loss to 4½. Bonds were dull and irregular.

Professional bears covered their short contracts through the final hour, causing rallies of from 1 to 2 points in some of the principal active stocks. American Tobacco got to the highest at 140, Minneapolis & St. Louis rose 5¾ in all. American Linseed 3 and St. Louis & San Francisco lost 3¾ over last night. The market was feverish in the final dealings, but the closing was generally firm at the recovery.

STOCK GOSSIP.

Waldorf gossip to Edwards, Wood & Co.—The way the market recovers from depressions increases prevailing confidence in a bullish outlook and while moderate reactions are expected in the judgment of the brightest traders they should be availed of to buy good stocks. Commission houses report a fair demand for securities from the speculative public and a steady absorption of the dividend-paying shares by investors, many of whom have begun to discount the impending heavy July disbursements for interests and dividends. The speculative sentiment runs strongly in favor of stocks like Illinois Central Louisville & Nashville, New York Central, the Atchisons, Southern Pacific, Southern Railway, Texas Pacific, Reading and Erie and among the industrial stocks United States Steel corporation. Good crops assure these companies of another year's heavy earnings and this outlook is the principal argument advanced in their favor. As to the United States Steel stock there seems to be good ground for the statement that passing of control of important Pennsylvania steel plants recently instead of being inimical to the big combine will prove a bull card on its securities. There has been heavy buying of People's Gas both for speculation and investment. Brady and his followers predict a much higher price for the stock.

New York to Baker—During the last hour yesterday the tendency of prices became decidedly downward. St. Paul and Union Pacific, were notably weak and the selling of the latter was of a decidedly competent nature. That some deal between these two companies is in process of formation is generally believed, but many holders of Union Pacific common are skeptical as to the advantages which would accrue to them should the company issue further 4 per cent controvertible bonds as was done when the control of Southern Pacific was bought. Some engagements for gold shipments on Thursday were made, but owing to the developments of weakness in the rates for sterling exchange, it is believed that they were subsequently cancelled. Money became active during the afternoon, some loans being made as high as 4½. The general opinion is that Saturday's bank statement will show a further depletion in the surplus reserves.

New York—The Federal Steel company has declared a regular quarterly dividend of 1¾ per cent on its preferred stock, payable June 20. Books close June 10, reopen June 21.

THE COTTON MARKET.

New York, June 19.—Cotton opened firm, unchanged to 2 points higher and during the next half hour manifested bullish tendencies on room buying and light demand from spinning interests and absence of special selling pressure. July rose to $8.26, August to $7.74 and October to $7.51. Then came reports from Fort Worth and other points that rain was falling. Liverpool cables, however, and several leading bears became aggressive. July broke to $8.16, August to $7.67, October to $7.30 and January to $7.33. After the forenoon the market was nervous and irregular, subject to frequent rallies and declines.

MIDWAY HORSE MARKET.

Minnesota Transfer, St. Paul—Barrett & Zimmerman report a small number of buyers in attendance and little interest was centered in the trade. The only kind that had a fair disposal were choice drafters and good drivers. Prices showed symptoms of unsteadiness with a drop in nearly all grades. The fall in prices will only be a temporary feature of the market, however, as the scarcity of horses will effect an immediate rise again. Experienced stockmen predict that good horses will find a market at higher prices this year than has heretofore been paid. Values:

Drafters, extra	$140@175
Drafters, choice	125@140
Farm mares, extra	110@125

FASHIONS FOR THE LITTLE ONES

Most Amazing Variety In the Cut, Color and Decoration of the Garments In the Children's Departments.

The little American girl early learns the price and penalty she pays for being the best dressed little human of her sex and age in this whole, round world. On Saturdays and on afternoons the children's furnishing shops are crowded with young folks and their mammas trying to purchase the vacation trousseaux before the summer exodus begins. Some of the little girls slip right into the situation and at the mature ages of 8, 10 and 12 have made up their minds exactly what they please to wear, and maternal dissuasions and commands never for one moment alter their opinions or selections. However, whether the child or the mother chooses, and it is the rule for the mother to meekly give way before her daughter's likes and dislikes, the result is refreshingly and charmingly effective.

A turn through some of the children's departments of the big shops is almost sure to leave the pleasant impression that no ugly juvenile garments are made up. Allied to the extreme prettiness of the little one's clothes there is displayed the most amazing variety in the cut, color and decoration of the garments. Fine bright checks, in the light silk and gingham suits, have assumed a strong position in the wardrobe of every little miss, and there are veilings and poplinettes and mohair gowns made up in every color that the elders admire and patronize. One commendable phase of the children's clothes this season is the absence of any little modes adopted from the grown ups' code of smart costuming. With the exception of the undersleeve the children have borrowed nothing this year, and happily small girls, of ten or thereabouts, will wear fewer shirt waists and odd skirts than formerly. A complete gown of cotton, linen or wool is the proper thing to wear, either to church or in the playground, and as little lace as possible is used on the frock of the very fashionable little woman.

Embroidery is the most approved trimming for every day and very best frocks and, when it is the case of a tea party suit, the needlework is of the most exquisite quality, often done by hand as well as the tucking of the fine lawn yoke collar and sleeves. Lovely little dresses for juvenile occasions are made of the most glittering silk warp poplin with sleeves, yoke and frill of white or tea colored embroidered Swiss, and the sash is the sort of thing a little girl may be justly vain about.

Panne satin, liberty satin and Louisine silk sashes, plain or elaborately figured with field flowers and deeply fringed on the ends, are the two most approved types of girdle for the ample and ill-defined waist line of an 8 or 10-year-old belle, and a snood of ribbon of the same type as the sash, should adorn the flowing coiffure of the fair little merrymaker. A ribbon on which is strung a crystal heart or a gilt corn is the one neck ornament a child should wear, and no matter how fanciefully the waist of the gown is made it properly buttons in the back.

In the matter of children's shoes a change has come about, and this spring little girls are seen wearing ties that lace and have a little more heel than the mere spring usually allowed. Some of the Oxford ties are made in soft vici kid, with ornaments of patent leather, but on a whole this change is to be deplored and the best foot covering is now and always will be a high-buttoned shoe with a flat sole; at least for children whose ankles need support and whose shoe laces are rarely in order. A pretty old-fashioned strap slipper has been reintroduced this spring for dancing and full dress occasions.

Lastly, among the small novelties for girls, the decorated combs must be mentioned. Band combs, as a rule, are not ornamental, and are always uncomfortable, but just now they are turning out short toothed round combs that hold a child's hair in a pretty low, pompadour about her face and lend as effective a touch of color to her dark or blond locks as would the gayest hair ribbon. This is because the ridge of the comb is set with bright red coral, turquoise or cut amber beads. Some little girls, it is true, elect to wear combs with filagree gold or silver bands, in which pearls and rhinestones are set, but these little ones have yet to live and learn a great deal concerning taste.

The prettiest idea ever carried out in children's millinery is that of making hats distinctively devoted to a single flower in one or variegated colors. Just now a little girl wears a daisy hat, a poppy hat, a lilac, primrose or wild rose hat. A daisy hat will be of pure white lawn shirred on a wire frame, or of delicate white chip, and its decoration inside and out will consist of one of three kinds of daisies. The brown and yellow-hearted blossoms, with the daisies having pink tipped petals, form a thick wreath about the crown, and inside the brim a handful of flowers is arranged to lie against the wearer's hair. No other flower is used nor is any ribbon employed, nevertheless the result is artistically most satisfactory. A lilac hat shows, as a rule, pink, white and mauve lilac blossoms on a pink, white or mauve frame.

The American small boy is his mother's pet, not alone because he is a handsome creature that shows off fine raiment to the greatest advantage, but also because he is eagerly willing to let this adoring mamma select his wardrobe for him. His only objection to new clothes seems to be that they necessitate a trying on. So cleverly, however, is much of the boy's tailoring now done that only a measurement secures an excellent fit and the maternal judgment does the rest. In this respect the American mother's taste is usually exceptionally good, though a trifle inclined toward too close imitation of the fashions followed by men. Little boys that are well equipped for the country will wear pink golfing coats and flat automobile caps that are miniature reproductions of those made for big brothers.

Bobtailed evening coats, with flat leather traveling cases to carry them in, are counted among the belongings of every well-equipped youngster over 10. As a matter of fact, modern little boys are men in all but size nowadays, after they have got into their teens, and only the clothes of the little fellow who writes his age in one figure are any longer quaint and childlike. Checked linens are made in pretty suits for the small fry, and the wide white collar that turns back over the shoulders is tastefully decorated with hows of small, round pearl buttons. Blouse waists with full trousers have passed a little out of vogue apparently for play-day suits, since most of the new ones noted have the upper garment shaped like a jerkin and belted in easily at the waist line or a little below this point.

The automobile shirt waist is the latest thing in fashiondom, and though the garment may on occasions run to all sorts of glorification in the way of lace yokes, diaphanous textiles and ribbon accessories, it is in the main an astonishingly simple creation.

It is said that in gay Paris, where the automobile received its baptism, so to speak, and the dressy shirt waist first blossomed into being, the fair ones are turning with delightful zeal to the English severities they at first despised.

Certain heavy linens, of coarse, irregular weaves, the very same, indeed, that supply the butcher aprons and French porters' smocks, are cut in severe shirt waist models. A stock and belt of white pique supply the only ornamentation for a blue, red or brown linen shirt. The narrow, folded or crushed bias tie is made of the colored linen, and sometimes a dashing effect is created through the addition of a scarf of the shirt waist texture to the trim sailor hat. In this case the coarse stuff is made to fold flatly and trimly about the crown and brim, but if the waist is fashioned of some airy textile, Syiss, mull or French muslin, the hat scarf may tie veil-wise over the brim and float its ends merrily in the breeze.

With a patent leather belt the metal work will present a stylishly black surface, but some of soft dressed and others of undressed kid, in delicate colors, bedazzle you with silver and gold slides and buckles, the belt itself narrowing from back to front till the buckle tongue seems a mere nothing. Other leather belts will be in straight band less than an inch in width. These seem uncommonly chic, making the waist appear of an enchanting littleness. Of course the skirt band with this sort is a serious problem, for if it is a breadth too wide it will be forever showing above and nothing can prevent a melancholy sagging below the girdle, but by her belt is the girl of the season known.

For boating and mountain use—for "damp service," as the furnishers put it—the shops are showing shirt waist materials in soft woola, among the nun's veilings and figured and striped challies, some plain and checked summer flannels standing out with particular seductiveness. They are flannel in name only, being of a silk like fineness. In truth, it is said that these delicate wools are cooler than many of the cotton textures. In the looser weaves a comfortable ventilation is supplied, and the addition of a wash front or "dickey" and cuff bands to be buttoned on will give the newly scrubbed freshness, so dear to the trim girl's heart.

A boating shirt of this summer flannel in large checks of red and blue, shows a tucked and pleated "dickey" of white porter's linen, stiffened like a masculine shirt bosom, and worn en plastron, which is to say on the outside of the garment.

A pretty one that, weather permitting, seems gay enough for any morning occasion, is of white bunting, the coarse flag sort, with round red braid outlining yoke and collar. This fastens at the back, a becoming artifice for youthful figures, and one just now much in evidence. But let the large lady eschew the black fastening unless she wishes to emphasize her avoirdupoise, for these back arrangement, which permit an unbroken expanse at the front, have a way of making such a one look hopelessly fat.

Stitched bands of plain challie sometimes combine effectively with the figured material, as is here shown in the second group picture. So rampant is the appetite for novelty that a white lawn waist may own a front pleat, tie, cuffs and belt of color. One exquisite little French shirt waist of apple blossom pink mull had three details in sky blue, some rarely beautiful hemstitching adding further glory in outlining hems.

The favorite shirt waist, however, is pure white, and the lawns and Swisses that flood the market all run to lace and needle work treatments, enchanting to behold. The prices charged are not such as to bring happiness to the heart of woman, but any girl who has been brought up properly can easily imitate the expensive luxury at home. The newest shirt waists seem to be made more skimpily than ever, and most of them run to yokeless backs and a slight, a very slight pouching of the front. Many turn over collars, in daintiest lace trimmed white, are seen on them, and for heavy materials there are some buckled stocks in black velvet that look very natty.

SHOWING NEW WHITE QUILL EFFECT.

The Latest Hat Fad Is a Double Brimmer With Turn-Up Sides.

Lebanon, Ill., June 19.—A remarkable record, illustrating what may be accomplished by pluck and perseverance, is that of W. Duff Piercy, valedictorian at McKendree college this year. After five years' study he is graduated in the classical course, having paid all the expenses of his own education and that of his wife also, who is a member of the class of 1902, by acting as newspaper correspondent for metropolitan papers and teaching school.

Piercy is a type of the American who is determined to succeed, no matter what the difficulties may be. When he married he was a struggling young district school teacher. He determined to improve his education and fit himself for higher work. After much serious consideration, McKendree was selected as the place where he and his wife should endeavor to obtain a higher education. Piercy wrote letters to several Chicago, St. Louis and New York newspapers, laid before them his plans, promised to give faithful services if employed, and filed application for the position of correspondent. During the years he and his wife have studied at McKendree his newspaper work has netted him a tidy sum. In vacations he has taught country schools. Now his education is completed. He is a graduate with honors, and he has been selected to superintend the Greenville (Ill.) schools for the next year over eighty-three competitors.

Mr. Piercy won the McCullagh reportorial prize ($50) in 1897, the Bryan gold medal essay contest in 1898, the Perry cash oratorical first prize in 1899, and was ruled out of the Brown oratorical contest this year. He won the inter-society oratorical contest at Ewing college in 1892. He was admitted to the bar in 1895, standing at the head of a class of 28. He has been college chorister through the course at McKendree, and has done tutor work at the college while getting his education. He occupied the chair of history and literature at the Mt. Vernon high school for one year.

BURIED FACE DOWN.

When Exhumed the Body Was Face Upward.

Buffalo, N. Y., June 19.—At the North street cemetery, which is being cleared for an armory site, the body of a man was exhumed, which Health Inspectors Daniel S. Reilly and George Fellows discovered has completely reversed its position since being buried. The dead man's name is John Longhorst, and he died in Buffalo July 20, 1862.

A few days ago a man, who did not give his name, approached Inspector Reilly and informed him that when the body of John Longhorst was reached he would be found lying on his face and stomach instead of upon his back. He said that Longhorst had requested to be buried in that unusual manner.

The inspector believed the information was given him in good faith, and for the purpose of preventing the sensation that would naturally arise in such a case upon discovery, informed John Farwell, the oldest undertaker in Buffalo, who is supervising the removal of the bodies from the cemetery.

Farwell remembered Longhorst.

"He was a cab driver," he said, "and had a barn adjoining my own undertaking rooms in Niagara street. He lived at Eagle and Pearl streets. Longhorst's request was that he be buried with his face downward, and he was buried in that way."

When the gravediggers reached the burial plot of Longhorst, Mr. Farwell was interested in the result of the exhumation. He was greatly surprised to find that the bones indicated a complete reversal of position. Longhorst's body was lying with the face upturned.

"He wasn't that way when he was buried, for I buried him myself, with the face downward," said Mr. Farwell. "Account for it? No, I cannot."

There are still about 2000 bodies remaining in the cemetery, and Contractor R. J. Conover says it will be July before the ground is cleared up.

Table and Kitchen.

Practical Suggestions About What to Eat and How to Prepare Food.

This matter will be found to be entirely different from and superior to the usual run of food articles, in that every item is a nugget of culinary wisdom and eminently practical.

FIRST VOLUME.

Conducted by Lida Ames Willis, Marquette Building, Chicago, to whom all inquiries should be addressed.

All rights reserved by Banning Co., Chicago.

INFLUENCE OF GOOD CHEER

When studying the many-sided phases of human nature we do not make due allowance for effect, in relation of food and individuals, in developing them mentally and morally as well as physically. Dr. Johnson says "some people have a way of not minding, or pretending not to mind, what we eat. For my part, I mind very studiously; for I look upon it that he who does not mind this will hardly mind anything else."

There can be no question that the food and the manner of serving it very directly affects man's actions, ability, disposition, courage and direction of his mental activity. The kinds of food man eats and the time and manner of eating it determine greatly the amount of happiness and productiveness of good in this world.

MENTAL SUNSHINE.

What may be termed the sunshine of the soul cannot be expected to emanate from an individual whose nutritive organs are not capable of normally and regularly performing their functions. Some writer has said that an iconoclast is a person suffering from gastritis; and there is undoubtedly a close relation between the indiscriminate rantings against humanity and an insufficient supply of gastric juices; therefore we should place a higher estimate than we do on the value of a thorough knowledge of the culinary art and acknowledge it as a most important factor in all that makes "life worth living," and place the power to make or mar nature's plans in the hands of the competent only.

One does not have to seek far for the problem of Carlyle, the writer who must have been at perpetual disagreement with life, and who has handed down through his "Literature of Dyspepsia" his sencere convivtions as he saw them in the almost eternal gloom that clouded an otherwise unobscured intellect. At rare intervals when his haunting demon, that "domined dyspepsia," as he termed it, released him from his power, we catch a gleam of the rare sunshine that the world cannot have too much of.

To an excess of ill-chosen and improperly prepared fare in student days is traced the bitterness of his railings at humanity; the trials and mental and spiritual agonies of Herr Teufelsdrockh.

POOR AND INSUFFICIENT SUSTENANCE.

We cannot cheat nature. Though the stomach will for a long time submit to indignities heaped upon it in the way of strange and unsuitable sustenance, it never fails, sooner or later, to bring the sinner to account. It is said that "we grow like what we eat. Bad food depresses. Good food exalts us like an inspiration."

It may be interesting as a study of cause and effect to follow the course of the impoverishing and meager dietary of a student who lives on 11 cents per day, or, on the other hand, the one who indulges "in foods utterly unsuited, and unfitted by bad cooking, for their needs." But we long to warn the deluded victim of the inevitable result and show him the face of the gastric Nemesis, sure to avenge this sacrifice of natural laws. It may be fortunate for humanity that among these misbuilded beings who seem to imagine that intellect grows and is fostered by the fires of its own desires and ambitions, we have now born with the intelect of Carlyle; otherwise we would have fewer repetitions of "Sartor Resartus" and Herr Teufelsdrockh.

THE INFLUENCE OF FOOD AS AN INSPIRER.

While admitting the influence a good dinner invariably has upon wit and oratory, we do not advocate gross feeding, nor do we consider a dinner that is merely pretentious good cheer, no matter what the viands may be, if the dinner is not well cooked and is badly served.

But look back to the days of the earlier style of American cookery, the homely good eating when the brain and hanll of the mistress was competent to train athers in the art of the preparation of plain and simple foods, or she could do so with her own hands.

To the excellence of those meats cooked before the open fire, retaining all their juices and gaining in most appetizing flavor; to the bread that was never sour; the soups and broth that gave nourishment to the body as well as pleasure to the taste, may be attributed much of the greatness, wit, charm and eloquence that distinguished a long list of notable, and masterly men, who have made America famous and unrivaled in every field where there has been a demand for the highest order of intelligence. The great men who have been abstemious to an extreme in regard to their own diet have shown in the splendid banquets they have given their appreciation of the art of entertaining.

It is not an indication of grossness for a man to be sensible of the charms of a good dinner, though he need not make it his religion further than to have a due and conscientious regard for his digestion and physical well-being. A man who has dined well on simple, nourishing and well-cooked foods is at peace with all the world and sees all men as brothers, deserving the right hand of fellowship in spite of all his shortcomings. The mental sunshine and content radiates outwardly and brightens everything that comes within his view. Thus our nature, to be influenced by material as well as spiritual things, and in the matter of feeding our bodies as well as our minds we exalt to noble work and deeds or degrade and stupefy by the meat we feed upon.

INQUIRIES ANSWERED.

(No attention paid to inquiries not giving name and address of writer, plainly written).

Mrs. M. D. S. writes: I have a quantity of maple sugar on hand; can I make a syrup from that to be served with griddle cakes and waffles?

You can, by scraping or grating the sugar down and adding about a gill of boiling water to each pound of sugar; stand it on the back of the range or over hot water, where it will melt gradually; then strain and bottle for use. It is best to make a little at a time.

STRAWBERRY SAUCE.

Mrs. S. E. K. requests a recipe for strawberry sauce.

Beat two ounces of butter to a cream, then beat in gradually a cup of powdered sugar. Continue to beat until very white and foamy. Just before serving, crush five or six fine, ripe strawberries, dust with sugar and add them to the sauce, beating them in well.

DELMONICO CREAM ROLL.

Same writer wishes a recipe for potatoes cooked in this way:

Pare and chop raw potatoes very fine; add just enough cream sauce to bind them together. Put them into a buttered, shallow baking dish and place in a moderately hot oven in a pan of hot water. Cook until the potatoes are done; then roll them over like an omelet; let them stand a few minutes longer, but do not let them brown. Turn out on a heated dish and garnish with parsley and bacon.

PUT UNDER BONDS.

Pastor Abused a Member of His Church.

Nicholasville, Ky., June 19.—Rev. R. D. Biven, pastor of the Methodist Church North, has been arrested charged with breach of the peace. Behind this charge are rumors that the reverend gentleman was guilty of other offenses. This rumor has been the talk of the church people and of citizens for the past month.

The trouble was brought into the police court, when the reverend gentleman confessed to a charge of breach of the peace made against him by a member of his church. He was fined $5 and costs and put under a peace bond, and thus the testimony was kept from becoming a part of the court record. According to James Jacobs' statement of the case, however, the trouble began a month ago.

On that day a committee from the church called on Mr. Biven to talk over rumors with him, when he denied the charges, abusing one of the members in no uncertain language. It was then decided to ask for his resignation.

The trial resulted from an argument over the rumors between Mr. Jacobs and the preacher in the latter's room. Biven, who weighs 200 pounds, it is said, kicked Mr. Jacobs down the steps. The case will again come into court on the trial of Mr. Jacobs, who in turn was arrested on an affidavit made by Rev. Biven, at which time, it is said, testimony bearing on the charges will be introduced by the defendant, both sides having summoned many witnesses.

SIGNALS OF DANGER.

DO YOU START AT EVERY SOUND?
ARE YOUR MENSES IRREGULAR?
DO TRIFLES ANNOY YOU?

These symptoms of female disorders are signals of danger! Female trouble comes on gradually and quietly but they give sure warning of their approach. There is no mistaking the dark rings under the eye, the weak nerves, the drowsiness by day and the wakefulness at night. Yet there are thousands of women who have these nervous spells. They start at every little jarring noise and they become irritated at the slightest cause. They suffer terrible periodical pains. But they often have but a vague idea of what causes them. They would be shocked to know they really are suffering from dangerous maladies, about the most dangerous a woman can have. But Mrs. Combe was cured by Wine of Cardui and so grateful is she that she wrote this testimonial of

WINE OF CARDUI

Picayune, Miss., September 1, 1900.

I have suffered with irregular and painful menstruation and was so weak I could not do my housework for eight years on account of my weakness. I tried everything, but to no benefit. My husband heard of Wine of Cardui and Thedford's Black-Draught. He used Thedford's Black-Draught and it did him so much good that he induced me to take Wine of Cardui for my troubles. I did so and it did me so much good that now I know it is the medicine for weakly women. I am using it now.

Mrs. E. C. COMBE.

Mrs. Combe is only one woman in hundreds of thousands cured as she was. Letters like hers are coming to us every day from all over the country. Will you not give Wine of Cardui a trial?

RUSSIA'S ACTION

In Raising Tariff Is Merely An Economic Move.

It Is Due to No Antagonism to the United States.

Count Cassini Does Not Think the Situation Grave.

Washington, June 19.—Count Cassini, the Russian ambassador, in discussing today the latest phases of the tariff which have arisen between Russia and the United States, said the issues do not seem to him to be very grave, and he is hopeful they will be satisfactorily adjusted. He said the action of Russia is an economic move, pure and simple, and is quite certain it is due to no antagonism against the United States.

Count Cassini said no political significance could attach to a matter of a purely commercial nature. He said he knew nothing of any European movement against American products.

GOLD BAR THEFT.

Man Under Arrest Is Only a Tool.

New York, June 19.—Since the arrival here a few days ago of Arthur Carl, chief of police of Bremen, Germany, on the steamship Lahn, some inside information concerning the mysterious gold bar robbery of last April aboard the Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse has come out. Only one arrest has been made in connection with the crime, but the prisoner, Theodore Magers, the bedroom steward, is believed to have been only a tool of shrewd men who planned to get a large quantity of gold by the plundering of the treasure vault aboard the liner. Magers, who got the reward for finding the stolen gold, is locked up in Germany.

The North German Lloyd officials, when the robbery was reported, offered a reward of $2,000 for the missing gold bars, and three days after the vessel reached Bremen Magers claimed that while cleaning the woodwork in one of the second cabin passageways he found bullion hidden on a protruding cornice back of some steam pipes. The reward was paid to Magers.

Magers did not return in the Kaiser der Grosse before it started back for New York, but a week or so afterward he put in an appearance at the Bremen pier in a deplorable condition. He told so many conflicting stories that he was arrested. The French detectives in the meantime had information about two strange men believed to be Americans who had for a couple of days chartered a small sail boat and in the craft loitered about the entrance to Cherbourg harbor.

They were suspected to be in the conspiracy to steal the gold aboard the Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse and asked about the route of that vessel when it arrived from America to land is Cherbourg passengers, saying that they wanted to intercept the vessel and get a message from friends on board who were bound for Germany.

These men vanished before the alarm about the robbery on the steamship was raised, but they have since been traced back to the United States via Southampton.

Berlin detectives are on the Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse as saloon and second cabin passengers and are expected back on that vessel tomorrow.

Hearing on Rice Wills Has Been Postponed.

New York, June 19.—Questions in dispute between the proponents of the two wills of Wm. Marsh Rice, came up before Surrogate Fitzgerald again today on the application of counsel for Albert T. Patrick and the heirs under the will of 1900 for delay and the application of W. B. Hornblower and Bowers and Sands for the heirs under the will of 1896—the so-called Texas will—for a speedy disposition of the issue. After argument the surrogate set the trial for the questions at issue for the first Monday in November.

NEARING END

Barker's Case Will Soon Go to the Jury.

Keller Denies Assault on Mrs. Barker.

New York, June 20.—All the parties to the Keller-Barker case were in court in Jersey City promptly today. Previous to the resumption of the trial of Thomas G. Barker for the shooting of the Rev. John Keller, there was a whispered conference between Judge Blair and the lawyers in the case, the subject of which was understood to be the publication in several papers of this city and New Jersey of what purported to be a sworn statement by Mrs. Barker of the circumstances of the alleged assault upon her by Mr. Keller, April 19, 1899, and which constituted, as alleged, the justification for the attempt on Keller's life in February of this year.

County Prosecutor Erwin opened the proceedings by addressing the court, and stating that the published story of Mrs. Barker had been brought to his attention, and he hoped the court would take such action as it deemed wise in the matter. The county prosecutor said, to make public such a statement at such a time was a violation of the line of conduct that had been laid down by the courts in such cases as the one pending.

Mr. Van Winkle, counsel for Barker, replied that so far as any contempt was concerned the press might be disciplined as the court pleased. Mrs. Barker, he said, had many friends. She was not on trial, and her friends had the right to publish anything they saw fit. Personally, he and his partner, Mr. Wall, and Mr. Barker had nothing to do with the publication. The court had power to do with the matter in its charge to the jury as it saw fit.

Judge Blair said he would talk to the jury when the proper time came. He continued: "There can be no doubt of the motive of the publication at this time. The court will make a rigid investigation of this reprehensible act at the proper time, and it will be thorough."

Miss Louise Germond, with whom Mrs. Barker has been living ever since the shooting, was the first witness called today. Miss Germond said she had seen Barker every day while he lived in her house for two weeks before the shooting. He appeared much worried and could not read.

Frank H. Bennett and Robert Warner, superintendent of the Cable company, testified that they knew Barker as a quiet and peaceable man.

Lawyer Van Winkle here said the defense closed its case. No attempt was made to present Mrs. Barker's story of the alleged assault in the form of hypothetical question to an insanity expert as had been reported would be done.

The Rev. Mr. Keller was called to the stand in rebuttal. He said that on the morning of the shooting as he passed along the east side of Beach street, Arlington, he did not see Barker or say to him "Good morning."

This was objected to by the defense, but the court overruled the objection. Mr. Keller then denied that he had seen Barker before he was shot or that Barker had said: "You damned villain. You outraged my wife."

"Did you ever outrage Mrs. Barker or attempt to do so?" asked Prosecutor Erwin.

The defense objected to this question, and Judge Blair sustained the objection.

"Did you ever borrow $83 from Mrs. Barker?" witness was then asked.

"I did not," he replied. Witness was then asked concerning each item of alleged borrowed money, and in each case he answered that he had not borrowed the sum mentioned. He said that he never owed Mrs. Barker any money at any time.

Mr. Keller said he had paid money to Mrs. Barker, but it was because of threatening letters sent him by Barker, and not because he owed anything. The minister then denied that Mrs. Barker left the church because of an assault on her. He said he knew the reason, but on objection by the the defense he was not allowed to tell what it was. Mr. Keller then left the stand, the defendant's attorney having no questions to ask on cross-examination.

Mrs. Sands, with whom Keller boards, testified that among many Mrs. Barker's reputation for truth and veracity was bad. She also said, in reply to a question by Barker's attorney, that Keller did not pay his board. Keller's reputation for truth and honor, witness said, was good. Three other women and a man testified that Mrs. Barker's reputation for veracity was bad.

William R. Fisher, an expert in mental diseases, testified that on Feb. 16 he saw Barker in jail. Barker, on advice of counsel, refused to submit to an examination as to his sanity. The witness said that, reviewing all the circumstances, it was his opinion that Barker was sane at the time of the shooting, Feb. 3, and able to distinguish between right and wrong. Witness had observed Barker closely since trial began and believed him to be sane.

Dr. John D. McGill, superintendent of the police board of Jersey City, who accompanied Dr. Fisher when he went to the jail to see Barker, corroborated the evidence of the preceding witness and said he believed Barker to be sane.

FOLLOWED EXPLOSION

A Bad Fire Occurred In St. Louis Which Caused Damage to Several Firms Amounting to $200,000.

St. Louis, June 20.—Fire, which originated in the establishment of J. B. Sickles' Saddlery company, at Twenty-first street and Washington avenue today, consumed property and stock valued at nearly $200,000. The loss is partially covered by insurance.

J. B. Sickles' Saddlery company, T. F. Reynolds' Carriage company, the Lambert Pharmacy company and several other concerns of minor importance are the losers.

Fire was discovered a few minutes after 2 a. m., when an explosion occurred in the front portion of the building occupied by the Sickles company. A moment later the plate windows in the front of the store fell into the street. A rush of flames followed, and in an instant the whole building was ablaze.

A general alarm was turned in, but the interior of the building was soon burned out. The loss to the Sickles company is estimated at $80,000 on stock, consisting of harness, saddles and whips. The building was a 4-story brick, owned by Shehan Bros., contractors. It was erected only a short time ago at a cost of $100,000. Except the front and one side wall, nothing was left standing.

In the rear of the building is one occupied by the Lambert Pharmacy company. Several times it was afire, but was saved, with a loss of $3000, fully insured. The Reynolds Carriage company's building, across the alley from the Sickles building, was destroyed, with a loss estimated at $15,000. Several firemen were injured, none seriously.

HAD NO SUCH INTENTION

Report That United States Was to Compel Denmark to Fortify West Indies Nothing But a Dream.

Washington, June 20.—A complete denial is obtained at the state department of the story emanating from a special correspondent in Copenhagen to the effect that the United States addressed a note to the Danish government recently relative to St. Thomas and St. Croix, demanding that the Danish government fortify the islands if it refuses to sell them to the United States. The state department has had no communication whatever with the Danish government on the subject of the Danish West Indies for the post three months, and it never has contemplated making any such demand as that reported. The negotiations respecting the acquisition of the islands by the United States have progressed languidly but in perfect good humor through Mr. Swenson, and there is no reason to qualify the original expectation of the state department that they will be concluded in season to permit of the submission to congress of an annexation treaty some time next session.

GUERRILLAS ARE ACTIVE

Washington, June 20.—Dr. Martinez-Silva, the minister from Colombia, has received dispatches from the capital of Colombia which he regards as setting at rest the reports that the Colombian revolutionists are again in strong force around Panama. The minister's dispatches state that the uprising has been entirely stamped out with the exception of a few small and scattered bands operating in the neighborhood of Panama. The bands are said to have no strength in Panama City, but their guerrilla tactics in the neighborhood account for the alleged trouble experienced by Americans and other parties. In the view of the Colombian government the revolution is actually at an end, and the bands around Panama are treated as a part of the guerrilla movement like that going on in the Philippines.

As confirming this view of the government, the official dispatches state that the Bank of Bogota has offered to advance the government all the funds it requires if the issue of paper money is discontinued. At the same time leading banks in the interior have made like offers to the states. It is said here that considerable of the trouble arises from the organizing of filibustering parties in Jamaica and other West Indian points.

TRADING IN IRON

Purchases By Important Consumers Has Given Market Better Tone.

Better Feeling Is Reported From Foundry Iron Centers.

Strike of Machinists Will Sooner or Later Have Effect.

Cleveland, June 20.—The Iron Trade Review, discussing market conditions this week, says: Purchases of pig iron, chiefly Bessemer, in the Pitsburg district by two important consumers have given a better tone to the market, and there are indications that we are on the verge of a buying movement. Upwards of 100,000 tons of Bessemer and gray forge iron were taken in the week's purchases, deliveries for the majority of the tonnage extending only through the next two months. A better feeling with considerable inquiry is reported from foundry iron centers, though so far as business has been closed, sellers have nothing to boast of in the way of prices. Southern foundry irons are from $1 to $1.25 below the level of market sales, and Northern foundry iron in Central Western districts has been offered at from 75 cents to $1 below the top prices of the early months of the year.

There is no doubt as to the record-breaking consumption of pig iron. Apart from the stocks, from which an apparent consumption at a yearly rate of 16,700,000 tons is figured, the urgency with which producers are being pressed for the delivery of iron indicates that consumers have unusually small amounts in stock. From the foundries inquiries for from three to six months' supply are beginning to come in, and the prospects are that active buying can be reported before the end of the month. Whether the contracts, when they are made, will be for a half year, or only for the summer months, will depend on developments of the near future.

The machinists' strike has not made a considerable inroad into consumption as yet, and reports indicate that the number of men at work is being increased week by week. However, at important centers the deadlock is still unchanged, and the continued idleness of important plants will have its effect upon the call for iron and steel in time. The molders in the Central West are not satisfied with the refusal of the foundrymen to advance the minimum wage, and what may come out of this situation cannot be predicted.

Between them, the Machinists' and Molders' unions hold the key to the course of the market in the next few weeks. If there is no molders' strike, and if the machine shop situation continues to mend, the elements exist for an active market for the balance of the year. The air has been full of rumors of large deals, and the onlooker has had his choice of an all-absorbing control by the United States Steel corporation, and on the other hand the keenest competition from the reinforcement of existing independent companies and the multiplication of new ones. The absorption rumors lack truth and the building up of the new competition takes more time than the paper plans allow.

SHOT AT.

Attempt to Kill A. R. Shepard, "King" of Chihuahua.

New York, June 20.—A special to the Times from El Paso Texas says: Word has been received from Chihuahua that an attempt has been made to assassinate A. R. Shepard, who did so much to build up the city of Washington during the administration of President Grant. Shepard, after leaving the District of Columbia many years ago, went to a small settlement in the republic of Mexico, where he has since been engaged in the mining business.

On Saturday, while Mr. Shepard was away quite a distance from his mine at Batopilas, he was shot at by a Mexican in ambush, the bullet grazing his head. Shepard beat a hasty retreat, in the direction of the settlement, the would-be assassin following and keeping up a running fire. Luckily none of the bullets went true to the mark and the intended victim finally reached the door of his house.

Shepard has great influence among the Mexicans and is almost a king in the little town. As soon as the news of the assault became known, the settlement became greatly excited. The neighborhood was searched for miles around and the following morning his assailant was captured.

KILLED IT.

Guffey Reform Bill Was Changed By Republican Committee.

Harrisburg, Pa., June 20.—The senate today defeated the ballot reform bill known as the Guffey bill. Although the measure bears the name of the Democratic national committeeman from this state, and was introduced by Senator Cochran, the Democratic leader, the Democrats voted solidly against the bill. They took this action because of changes made in committee by the Republican majority, which they claim destroyed the reform features of the proposed law.

GET DEGREES IN LONDON.

London, June 20.—At the convocation held at Oxford university today the honorary degree of doctor of laws was conferred on Dr. C. A. Briggs and Dr. Francis Brown, of the Union Theological seminary of New York.

FANATICS

Had Conspired to Kill Several Whites.

New Orleans, June 20.—Quiet prevailed today at Shreveport, where two negroes arrested in connection with the murder of John Gray Foster, the planter—"Prophet" Smith and F. D. McLand—were lynched during the night.

Telegrams from Shreveport today state that evidence was discovered so clearly establishing the identity of Smith and McLand as enemies of the white race and dangerous elements among the negroes, that their destruction came to be regarded as essential to the preservation of order in the parish. As it became the general belief that Prince Edwards, the negro accused of killing Foster, will never be captured, the mob determined to act without further delay.

Smith confessed just before he was lynched that he loaded the gun with which Foster was killed.

Many letters of incendiary tenor written by Smith and his fellows were found. Indications of conspiracies against Chief Lake of the Shreveport police, Foster and others ran through the missives, and in connection with the minutes of a meeting of the "Church of the Living God," of which Smith was the head, precipitated the lynching.

"Prophet" Smith founded the organization previously mentioned at Houston. Later he went to Shreveport, and immediately set about organizing there. Chief of Police Lake declared him to be a dangerous person and ordered him to leave, but he went no further than the Foster plantation.

After the shooting of Foster, a search of Smith's rooms revealed a so-called ark of the covenant. It was a rudely-constructed box, bearing, within and without, mystic symbols. When the officials laid hold of the box the negroes were panic-stricken.

Further search revealed the minutes of a meeting of the society. The members were denominated as princes and Smith as the king. Following is a copy of minutes of a meeting held on the Foster place:

"The royal archive of the kingdom of God met in supreme council. Sang "Dark Was the Night." Opened by reading the thirty-second chapter of Isaiah. After F. K. Smith, the king, announced the meeting, he stated that he was advised of God to call the princes together in council to decide what should be done with the chief of police and his force for interfering with the king of the church of God in Shreveport.

"Prince Webb was in favor of demanding six months' affliction upon the chief. Prince Hicks said he was in favor of the same. Also Prince McLand. Also Prince Johnson. Also Prince Edwards. All concurred in demanding six months' affliction on Chief Lake of Shreveport.

"Next case was the 'rockers' of the king. The case was decided:

"All that rock the building must be punished with death within four days.

"A complaint was taken against J. G. Foster that he should be tormented until he gave consent that all saints leave the place."

HARD TO CONVICT HIM

Prosecuting Attorneys Will Find It Difficult to Have Earl Russell Found Guilty of Bigamy If Indicted.

New York, June 20.—A dispatch to the Tribune from London says: The lawyers who have looked up the Cardigan case assert that the prosecution authorities will not find it easy to convict Earl Russell of bigamy if he be indicted by the grand jury, and tried by the house of lords. The case against Lord Cardigan was conducted by Sir John Campbell in February, 1841, and a hundred or more peers uncovered their heads and pronounced a verdict "not guilty on my honor." Lord Cardigan was indicted for shooting in a duel with Harvey Garnett Phipps Tuckett. The evidence produced before the lords showed that the person shot at bore the name of Harvey Tuckett, but there was none to prove that Harvey Tucket was Harvey Garnett Phipps Tuckett. This discrepancy was held to be a variance entitling the second duelist to acquittal under the statute. The prosecuting authorities, warned by the failure of Sir John Campbell, now has the delicate business of arranging the indictment of Earl Russell under terms which will permit them to provide precise evidence respecting his divorce and marriage in Nevada, without the risk of variance when peers are judges and jury. The Nevada records show how delicate the establishment of identity will be.

CHAFFEE ON CAMPAIGN

Commander of the Troops at China Makes an Extended Report of Conditions and Events at Pekin.

Washington, June 20.—The report of Maj. Gen. Chaffee on the campaign in China is being prepared for publication at the war department. Among other matters it contains special reports on the Russian, Japanese, French and British troops; also reports on equipment, supplies, etc, of foreign troops, and reports on different expeditions. These reports were made by United States officers, and from a military point of view are of considerable interest, but nearly all the main facts have heretofore been published. Some of Gen. Chaffee's comments are interesting. At one point he says:

'For about three weeks following the arrival of the relief column at Pekin, the condition in and about the city and along the line of communication was bad. Looting of the city, uncontrolled foraging in the surrounding country, and seizure by soldiers of everything a Chinaman might have, such as vegetables, eggs, chickens, sheep, cattle, etc., whether being brought to the city or found on the farms; indiscriminate and general unprovoked shooting of Chinese in city, country and along the line of march and the river—all this did not tend, as was natural, to gain for the troops the confidence of the masses, with whom it is certain, we have no quarrel, but were in need of their labor. It is safe to say that where one real Boxer has been killed since the capture of Pekin, fifty harmless coolies or laborers on farms, including not a few women and children, have been slain. No doubt the Boxer element is largely mixed with the mass of population and by slaying a lot one or more Boxers might be taken in."

Gen. Chaffee speaks of the restraint he placed upon American troops. The Japanese commander also made it known that general war on all classes was not intended. Gen. Chaffee says he opposed entering the forbidden city unless looting was prohibited. This was agreed to and he thinks but little looting has been done there, though articles have been offered for sale said to have been taken from the forbidden city.

AMERICANS AT HENLEY

Pennsylvania Crew Well Settled In Quarters---They Took First Spin on River, Creating Favorable Impression.

Henley, Eng., June 20.—The oarsmen from the University of Pennsylvania were up early this morning. They are all delighted with their quarters at the Five Horse Shoes Inn, a rustic hostelry situated in a picturesque spot.

Ellis Ward, the coach of the Pennsylvanians, walked the crew to the railroad station, where the boats were taken off the trucks and carried to the boat house. A small crowd of the inhabitants and British oarsmen watched the visitors.

The river appears a little narrow to the Americans, but they are delighted with Henley.

Great interest attached to the first appearance of the Americans on the water this morning. They took a spin to the starting point, with the stream, and back to their quarters. Rowing thirty to thirty-two strokes to the minute, they covered the regular regagata course in seven and a half minutes. The crew created a favorable impression. The men were evidently a little bit out of practice after their ten days' rest, but they gripped the water well and paddled evenly over the full course. Returning against the wind and stream they hit up a stroke to thirty-eight, moving well but sitting unsteadily. This was particularly noticeable on the port side. Gardner took his men past the wining post to the boat house, doing a mile in about four minutes thirty-five seconds. Their short boat creates much curiosity.

M. S. BURROWS

AT WEST DULUTH

The sprinkler has not as yet appeared in this part of the city, and the citizens believe that they are abandoned to the swirling of the dust. H. R. Patterson, who presented the lowest bid for performing the work, and who did not get the contract because of being a city officer, this morning mailed his resignation from the board to Mayor Hugo.

WORK ON THE PARK.

Work on the beautification of Fairmount park will be rushed this week, as several men will be at work. The underbrush will first be cleared away and driftwood removed from Kingsbury creek, a beautiful little stream, which has a fall of 100 feet while traversing the park limits of forty acres. The commissioners will push the work as thoroughly as possible with the limited funds at their command.

AN EXPENSIVE SHAVE.

They do such things on the Bowery. A new arrival from a foreign land is visiting with West Duluth friends and expects to find a permanent home in this land of the free. He is unfamiliar with the English language, and when he walked into a Bowery barber shop yesterday he just rubbed his face and looked meaningly at the waiting barber. After geting into the chair, he answered with a nod of his head all questions propounded to him by the man at work on him. When the barber finally released the man from his chair he was told that his bill amounted to $2.40, and the gentleman paid it without protest—but his thoughts were undoutedly travelling at a high rate of speed. The barber did a complete job, even to frescoing his eyebrows. He has purchased a razor now for himself, and will henceforth avoid barber shops as one would the black plague.

WEST DULUTH BRIEFS.

West Duluth lodge, A. O. U. W., presented Louie Newton with a costly watch charm at the meeting last night. Mr. Newton and family leave today for Sauk Rapids, where they will reside in future.

The banquet to be given by the West Duluth Degree of Honor to the West End lodge tomorrow night promises to be an elaborate affair.

Henry Clark was arrested last evening on a charge of assault and battery. It is alleged that he laid violent hands upon young Albert Foushea. The boy says he was knocked down and choked. Mr. Clark denies some of the charges and says that he chastized the youth for calling him vile names. After a preliminary hearing before Judge Stone, Clark was told to appear for trial next Wednesday.

The young ladies of Pocahontas lodge are preparing to put on a drama at Great Eastern hall next week. Miss Adelaide Thurston, the New York star, will give some readings. Miss Sarah Willmer, of West Superior, will instruct the young people anxious for histrionic honors.

Miss Lillian Cassley gave a party for a few friends last evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Bentsen, 209 Fifty-third avenue. A few hours were spent in social pleasures. Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. M. Madison, Misses Anna Brayden, Josephine Bentson, Myrtle Oleson, Hilda Peterson, Agnes Jensen, Jennie Jensen, Messrs. M. J. Solberg, P. A. Lund, Joseph Cowley, R. J. Burkedal, T. F. Olson, Henry Bentsen.

Goodman Larson, son of Mr. and Mrs. L. Goodmanson, of Sixty-first avenue, has enlisted in the United States navy as a trumpeter. He is 18 years of age and leaves for Brooklyn Saturday morning.

A number of citizens were anxious that the new park should be named after the father of his country, but the commissioners have already had the name officially declared Fairmount.

A 3-year-old son of John Ulvang was injured by an enraged cow last night on Grand avenue, near Sixty-fourth avenue. The animal struck the boy with its horn near his eye, making quite a gash. The child is not seriously hurt and the optic will not be permanently injured.

Thomas Hunt, of 5914 Oak street, is slowly recovering from an attack of inflammatory rheumatism.

A daughter has recently come to the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Coulter.

Harold S. Amos, of Chicago, is a guest for a few days of the Misses Bailey at 714 Fifty-fifth avenue west.

Mrs. Jennie Miller leaves tonight on the Omaha for Alabama, where she will join her husband.

Dr. Robert Forbes, presiding elder, left this morning for a two weeks' trip over his circuit.

A party of Duluth ladies had an experience that was anything but pleasant last night. They were visiting in West Duluth and expected to take the last car for the East End. As it did not arrive on time they concluded to walk along the line towards home, and they kept right on as pedestrians until they reached Ninth avenue east. The Lerch stable in the street—the great unmoved—was the cause of the street cars not running.

The Knights of Pythias orchestra gives a dance in the fire hall at West Duluth tonight. A large number from Duluth will attend.

A REVIVAL.

Bishop Williams Calls For Renewed Religious Consecration.

At the missionary meeting last night at St. Paul's Episcopal church, the time of the three speakers of the occasion was devoted to talks on mission work and a revival of interest in the Episcopal church and its work. At this convocation the church authorities are planning for an aggressive campaign throughout the entire diocese of Duluth in the interval before the next convocation, when it is expected the reports will show happy results.

Bishop G. Mott Williams, of Marquette, was the first speaker. His address was a scholarly one, impregnated with poetry of language and weighty truths. The bishop urged the people of the church to be proselytes. There is too much talk about church revenues and too little consecration, in the bishop's opinion. Consecration is more important to this diocese than are questions of money. The tendency of modern times in all churches is toward a low order of consecration. All churches tolerate a great many things which they cannot recommend. He closed with an appeal for personal work in the mission field of the church.

Rev. F. Smith, of White Earth, an Indian, told how he became a follower of the Prince of Peace. His father was a great chief and warrior of the Ojibwa tribe, who fell in battle with the Sioux while his son was gaining knowledge of the art of peace at a mission school. His mother was the chief medicine woman of the Ojibwas. When a young boy Rev. Smith was placed under the care of the missionaries on the reservation north of Brainerd and from there he went to an Eastern school to take advanced studies. After leaving school he went from the house of the paleface to the tepee of the aborigine. The story of his struggles on the reservation to remain a true follower of the Savior was most interesting and Rev. Smith told it with a great deal of feeling. He was greatly pleased with the progress which the Episcopal church is making among his people on the reservation. He is one of the church's most valued workers and speaks the language of the redmen even more fluently that he does English even after his long association with the white people.

Rev. Roderick Mooney, of Brainerd, made an appeal for new life in the church and among all its representatives. He thinks the church should model in certain lines after the secret societies that organize without soliciting aid from outside parties and pay their bills promptly. The churches of this day are not independent enough. There should be more personal sacrifice among the individuals who would be willing to lay their all upon the altar of the Lord as did the youth with the loaves and fish.

At the conclusion of Rev. Mooney's address, the session of the evening was closed with prayer.

A reception is to be given at Bishop Morrison's residence this evening for the delegates to the convocation, the Woman's auxiliary, families entertaining visitors, the vestry of St. Paul's church and the adult members of the choir.

BIDS OPENED.

Missabe Road to Build Warehouse at Proctorknott.

There is joy in Proctorknott. For several months the people of that thriving village have been trembling on the brink of nervous prostration owing to careening rumors that the long-talked-of shops would not be built.

Indications now point toward the building of well equipped car shops employing many men. It is certain that the shops will not be removed to some range town, as was reported some time ago, and there is joy at Proctorknott.

Yesterday the Duluth, Missabe & Northern road received bids for the building of a big warehouse 200 feet long and 60 feet wide. The estimated cost of this building is $25,000. The contract has not been awarded as yet.

The Duluth, Missabe & Northern is now building a hotel at Proctorknott and seven frame dwelling houses to be occupied by employes at a nominal rent. Private interests are building several houses and altogether the village has quite a building boom on. If the shops are built on the scale rumored the population of 784 may be more than doubled within a year.

STILL IT MOVES NOT

Lerch Barn Not Taken Across Street Railway Tracks.

Way Was Opened But Contractors Failed to Move.

City Will Take Hand In the Matter Now.

The city may tear down the Lerch livery barn in order to get the unsightly obstruction off First street.

For nearly a week the contractor allowed the barn to stand, partly on the street and partly on the lot, waiting for the council to order the street car company to take down its Third avenue west wires.

The wires were taken down last night but the barn was not moved more than a few feet all night, and is still over forty feet from the street car tracks.

Mr. Sawyer, the contractor, met Herbert Warren, general manager of the Duluth-Superior Traction company, at an early hour this morning, and when Mr. Warren urged him to move the barn, he accused Mr. Warren of being a Herald reporter, and at that several members of the "crew" offered to thrash him. Reports of their condition at that time would indicate that a sick soubrette, in the featherweight division, could easily have stopped them in one round.

When pressed for a reason why the barn was not moved, a member of the "crew" said that it was because they could not get a team of horses.

This is generally regarded as somewhat singular in view of the fact that they were moving, or rather making a bluff at moving, a livery barn, with horses standing in the barn at the time, and there were three other livery barns within a block.

Under the ruling of the city attorney, it is clearly within the province of the department of public works to remove the obstruction from the street.

Mr. Mitchell held that once a permit was given to obstruct a street the department of public works was powerless to take down the obstruction until the permit had expired, and unless the contractor did not show a disposition to move the obstruction.

The permit for the Lerch barn has already expired, and from last night's performance it is very evident that due diligence has not been used in the moving. Members of the board of public works were getting legal advice this morning and the building may be torn down.

At considerable cost to themselves and great inconvenience to the patrons of late cars, the Duluth-Superior Traction company cut its wires at Third avenue west and First street last night in order to give the contractor a chance to move the barn. Manager Warren estimates that the cutting of the wires damaged the line to the extent of from $150 to $200, while the late cars to Lakeside, West Superior and West Duluth were cut off and many persons were compelled to stay down town all night or hire hacks. Others were caught in the suburbs, where hacks were not obtainable and had to walk into town.

The barn has been cut in two sections. The first section blocks First street at Fourth avenue west, the second section was permitted to stand all day yesterday on the front part of the lot about fifty feet from the corner of Third avenue west. No effort was made yesterday to get it up to the street car tracks and the effort made to move it last night was a mere farce.

In case the building had been moved over the tracks, it would have blocked First street at Third avenue, thus shutting out the entire block. In case of a fire between Third and Fourth avenues, it would have been practically impossible for the fire department to have reached it.

Mayor Hugo went over this phase of the situation this morning and said that it was time the city took the matter in hand.

From present indications if the barn is not moved by the city, it may remain in the present position for a week, or until the council again orders the street car company to remove its wires.

COL. TOWNE.

E. P. Towne Has Received Appointment to Governor's Staff.

"It is "Colonel" E. P. Towne, now, if you please.

The prominent young attorney, who has up to this time been content with a plain "Mister" before the above name, is now entitled to the title of "Colonel" before it, thanks to a formidable document that arrived in his mail a week ago, and notified him that he had been appointed an aide on the staff of Governor Van Sant, with the rank of colonel.

This gives Duluth two representatives on the governor's staff, Col. E. P. Towne and Maj. M. M. Gasser, both of whom are entitled to wear gorgeous uniforms, at their own expense, and ride horseback in reviews of the state troops. The honor was wholly unexpected to Mr. Towne, and it is a merited and properly-bestowed compliment.

LOCATES AT SUPERIOR.

Another Effect of High Meat Prices.

The local meat trust is injuring Duluth far more than many people suspect. One of the newly-appointed weighmen of the state weighmaster's department came in from Mille Lacs county expecting to locate in this city, as he was assigned to Elevator D.

He got to figuring out the cost of living and found that, owing to the differences in the price of meat here and over in West Superior, he could afford to pay street car fare to Superior and back again, and save money by living across the bay. The local meat trust is a good thing—for West Superior.

SIXTH AVENUE THEATER.

DID NOT LIE ON TRACK.

Charles Crozier Denies the Missabe Accusation.

Charles Crozier, the man who was accused of interrupting traffic on the Missabe road by reclining on the tracks in the town of Kelsey when trains were approaching, was brought down by the train men today and taken to the county jail. The suspicion on which he was arrested was that he was insane, but conversations with him this morning seemed to disprove that charge. He presented the appearance of having a level head in general, though his memory is rather poor, and his ideas on the subject of reclining on railroad tracks are eminently sane. He denies having done so, and he says that anybody would be very foolish to lie down on a railroad track over which trains were traveling, when all the rest of the landscape was at hand to be used for reclining purposes.

It had not been decided up to this afternoon what would be done with him, but it was expected that he would be left at the poor farm for a few days in order to see how his mind pans out.

Examination Postponed.

The examination of Harry H. Hoyt, the young man charged with embezzling $190 from the American Wringer company, has been postponed till the morning of June 26. Mr. Hoyt is ill.

Martin Tabola, a young boy, was in police court this morning charged with stealing another boy's hat. The hearing was set for tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock.

Fowler, of Detroit, a quarter interest in some mining lands in 58-15 for $20,000, indicating a total valuation of $80,000 for the property, which is located near the track of the Mesaba division of the Duluth & Iron Range railroad, east of the Mesaba range. The property is the nw¼ of the nw¼ of section 2, and the n½ of the nw¼, the se¼ of the nw¼ and the sw¼ of the ne¼ of section 3, 58-15. The deed was filed for record this morning in the office of the register of deeds.

PATRICK OUT

Leaves the Stone-Ordean-Wells Company.

Heads New Wholesale Dry Goods Company.

A change of much importance was expected in the wholesale business of Duluth yesterday, and it means that Duluth is to have a great dry goods house, an aggressive company that will have at its head a man thoroughly conversant with the wholesale trade, and who knows the trade of the Northwest and what it needs.

F. A. Patrick has resigned his position as manager of the Stone-Ordean-Wells company, and after June 30, the date upon which the resignation takes effect, will have no further connection with that company. He is not to retire from the wholesale trade of Duluth, however. He has organized a new company, to be known as F. A. Patrick & Co., and that corporation has taken the Patrick-Granger company, the wholesale dry goods house.

At the head of the new company, and owning a controlling interest, is F. A. Patrick, who will be president and general manager. George C. Stone will be treasurer. The directors of the company will be O. D. Kinney, A. M. Marshall, E. T. Baxton, of Superior, and Messrs. Patrick and Stone. The capital which the new company will start out with is $200,000 paid up and $500,000 authorized. As the Patrick-Granger company has been doing business with a capital of $75,000, it is easy to see that the new company will have enormously increased facilities for doing business.

This new move means the complete separation of the business of the Stone-Ordean-Wells company and the present Patrick-Granger company, which, during the existence of the latter company, has been practically under the same ownership. Mr. Patrick will devote his entire energy to the building up of a great dry goods house, and believes that the field is here for it, and that the success of the wholesale grocery houses in Duluth and the Marshall-Wells company can be duplicated by the new company which he has organized.

The strength of the company is apparent from the names of the men in the directorate. A. M. Marshall is the head of the Marshall-Wells Hardware company, the man whose aggressiveness and sagacity have built up that enormous house. O. D. Kinney is known to all the people of Duluth as a shrewd and remarkably successful business man. E. T. Buxton is president of the Bank of Commerce of Superior and treasurer of the Red Cliff Lumber company and has other large lumbering interests. He is one of the solid men financially of Superior. George C. Stone has been a resident of Duluth for a couple of years and has been with the Patrick-Granger company. He is a son of the late F. C. Stone, of Saginaw, Mich., who was one of the strong men of the old Wells-Stone-Mercantile company.

F. A. Patrick, who has formed this new company, and is to be its head, has been the manager of the Stone-Ordean-Wells company for ten years, although it was originally under another name. Everyone in Duluth and in the Northwest, too, knows the proportions to which the business of that house has grown in that time and besides his financial strength Mr. Patrick brings to the new company the successful experience of ten years in the very field in which his new company is to operate. He has been the president of the Patrick-Granger company since its organization also and the success of that company has been largely due to his successful policy and management.

The Patrick-Granger company has been doing business for about two years. It entered the dry goods field after one house had made a failure of the same business, but it has prospered and has made a fine beginning. It is now doing business in Northern Minnesota and Wisconsin and North Dakota. The new company will largely extend this business and by reason of its larger capitalization will be able to work more aggressively. It will occupy the present quarters of the Patrick-Granger company.

Mr. Patrick was elected president of the Minnesota Wholesale Grocers' association at its last meeting, but as he is now about to retire from the wholesale grocery business he has forwarded his resignation to the association.

Police Requested to Arrest Negro Murderers From Bibon, Wis.

The sheriff's office this morning received a request from Iron River to arrest two negroes on the Northern Pacific freight train, charged with murder at Bibon.

The matter was turned over to the police department, and Capt. F. E. Resche went down to meet the train, but found no negroes among the passengers. It is supposed that if they started this way on the freight, they slipped off the train down the line somewhere and made their escape. No particulars of the murder have been received here by telegraph or otherwise. The first and only intimation of it was the following telegram, addressed to the sheriff:

"Iron River, Wis., June 20.—Sheriff, Duluth: Arrest two colored men charged murder at Bibon on N. P. freight.

"JOE ANDRE,
"Deputy Sheriff."

Later—An Associated Press dispatch was received late this afternoon saying that Stephen Merrigan, a well-known hotel man at Bibon, was murdered there last night. Two negroes who have fled are suspected of the crime. The motive for the killing is not known.

Loses a Leg.

Patrick Hennisey, employed at the Duluth, Missabe & Northern yards at Proctorknott, was run over by a heavy hill engine this morning and one leg was cut off below the knee.

Mr. Hennisey is about 60 years of age, and notwithstanding the severe shock, will probably live.

He was walking across the tracks carrying some boards, which cut off his view. He went directly in front of the engine and might have been killed outright. He was brought to St. Mary's hospital shortly after the accident.

BIG FORCE

A bevy of feminine loveliness—blond, brunette, and piquant will arrive on a special train from Pittsburg Saturday or Sunday morning to make Duluth their future home.

The time of arrival is not definite, but in order to meet the tremendous masculine interest, every effort will be made to give publicity to the actual time the train is due here.

The Oliver Iron Mining company is moving its entire office force from Pittsburg to Duluth. There are about fifty clerks and many of them are women. The company is even bringing its stenographers and office boys.

The special will make a fast run to Chicago, reaching that city early tomorrow morning. A force of clerks—some pretty and others masculine, will join the Pittsburg party from Milwaukee, and all will come to Duluth over the Omaha. They expect to arrive here in time to get to work Monday morning.

W. M. Jeffrey, auditor of the Oliver Mining company, is in the city making arrangements for the party's arrival. The Oliver company will occupy the third and fourth floors of the American Exchange building. The matter of accommodations for the fifty or more clerks and their families is considerable of a problem.

However, the Oliver company is bringing its employes here in style and will see that they are well located. The company even went so far as to secure a Pittsburg matron to chaperon the numerous pretty women clerks.

The Cause of Many Sudden Deaths.

There is a disease prevailing in this country most dangerous because so deceptive. Many sudden deaths are caused by it—heart disease, pneumonia, heart failure or apoplexy are often the result of kidney disease. If kidney trouble is allowed to advance the kidney-poisoned blood will attack the vital organs or the kidneys themselves break down and waste away cell by cell.

Bladder troubles most always result from a derangement of the kidneys and a cure is obtained quickest by a proper treatment of the kidneys. If you are feeling badly you can make no mistake by taking Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder remedy.

It corrects inability to hold urine and scalding pain in passing it, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often during the day, and to get up many times during the night. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases.

Swamp-Root is pleasant to take and sold by all druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar sized bottles. You may have a sample bottle of this wonderful new discovery and a book that tells all about it, both sent free by mail. Address Dr. Kilmer & Co. Binghamton, N. Y. When writing mention reading this generous offer in this paper.

EXCURSION.

The second large excursion of the year will arrive in Duluth over the Northern Pacific tomorrow afternoon. It is estimated that there will be 1500 people on the three sections needed to accommodate those making the journey. A very low rate has been offered for those wishing to come to Duluth at the best season of the year for outdoor enjoyment. The excursion starts with Whipeton, N. D., as the most westerly point at which tickets are sold. Good crops are assured in the entire grain belt and the lull in work on the farms from now until time to start the reaper, is being accepted as a good time for visiting by the farmers. A trip across the entire Northern portion of Minnesota to the greatest inland port of the world is an opportunity not to be lost by the people who have all too little of leisure when assisting nature to provide for the harvest.

The first to handle the wheat, these agriculturalists are not very familiar with its final disposition. While here they can see the coal unloaded which some of them will burn next winter, the iron ore which may be used in the making of their new stove, or the lumber sawed from which their contemplated new buildings might be constructed.

With the weather as it has been for the past few days the visitors from Dakota and Western Minnesota will have the trip of their lifetime. The excursionists will remain in the city until Sunday afternoon.

COVENANT MEETING

More Than Two Hundred From Outside the City.

The Opening Session Is Held at Mission Church.

Secretary Nyall Gives a Fine Address---The Visitors.

A number of celebrated men are in Duluth attending the annual meeting of the Swedish Evangelical Mission Covenant of America. Three special cars were run yesterday and a great many of the delegates came on them. More than 200 visitors are in the city and are quartered at the homes of the members of the Swedish churches here. The delegates are from all over the country, many states of the Union being represented as well as many of the foreign missionaries. The Covenant is the highest lawmaking body in the country, all of the rules and laws being made by it. Rev. C. A. Bjork is the president of the Covenant, Rev. D. Nyvall secretary and C. A. Youngquist is the treasurer.

Very important matters are to be decided by the coming convention. An offer has been received from the Alaska Missionary society to build a school to be supported by this Covenant.

Meetings will be held for the benefit of visitors each morning and afternoon at the Norwegian M. E. church, corner Twenty-first avenue west and First street.

Dinner and supper will be served at the Mission church.

Last evening, at the Mission church, the covenant was formally opened by an address of welcome by the Rev. Albert Johanson. He told the visitors the status of Duluth and dwelt on the beauties of the city. This is Rev. Johanson's third consecutive privilege of welcoming the convention. Last year he had the same privilege at Jamestown, N. Y. He said of Duluth that they were in a city of great dimensions, such as no other city in the United States possessed. Way down East, Duluth, he said, has the following dimensions: Twenty-three miles long, one mile wide and one mile high.

After Rev. Johanson's remarks the choir sang a selection, which was followed by the address of President Bjork, Rev. N. Frykman also gave a short talk.

The various committees were then announced and delegates sworn in.

The meeting this morning at the Mission church was opened with Bible reading and prayer by Rev. C. A. Bjork, the president of the covenant, after which he made an address of welcome to the visiting delegates, about 200 in number. He was followed by Secretary D. Nyvall, who is probably the finest speaker of the Swedish language in this country. In an interesting and elaborate talk on the work the covenant has accomplished in this country during the past year. He paid particular attention to the missionary work of the covenant which is carried on in China, Alaska, Canada, Montana and Texas. A part of the educational work at North Park college and the hospital, and benevolent work at the institution known as the Home of Mercy. Both these institutions are located at Chicago and are in a very flourishing condition, during the past year over $45,000 has passed through their hands, devoted to the missionary and educational work.

At 12 o'clock the covenant adjourned for dinner which wes served in the basement of the church, until 3 o'clock, when they resumed their session, which will continue every day until Saturday afternoon.

This evening services will be conducted in the Mission church by Rev. N. Peterson and Rev. J. G. Sjrquist. A male choir will also be in attendance. Tomorrow morning and afternoon there will be services in the Norwegian M. E. church. On Sunday a special program has been prepared, and a splendid musical program will be given; also, speeches by Rev. C. J. Nyval, Rev. Dr. E. Aug. Skorgeberg, Professor D. Nyvall. The Sunday evening services will begin promptly at 7, and many delegates are expected to arrive today from Omaha, Neb., and the East.

The delegates present are:

NOT A SMART TRICK.

August Gognon Gets Into Serious Trouble.

August Gognon has been brought down from Two Harbors and lodged in the county jail to await trial before the United States court in October. August went to the postoffice and was handed a postal card that was addressed to a man by the same name. The card invited the person to whom it was addressed, to call at the express office and receive a package, and August acted upon the information and got the package. It proved to be of considerable value and the man for whom it was intended turned up and went after August. The United States took a hand in it, and Gognon will have to answer to the serious charge of getting mail that belonged to someone else.

Put a Blanket

on a race horse when sweating, after severe exercise, and in an hour you will find the blanket wet and the horse shivering.

Next time put a layer of straw on the horse with a blanket on top and note the difference. The horse will be dry, warm, and comfortable, the straw likewise dry; only the blanket wet as usual.

Dr. Deimel's Linen-Mesh Underwear on a man acts on the same principle as the layer of straw on a horse; it lets the perspiration go through and keeps the body in a dry, comfortable glow.

Progress of the Guamites.

The people of Guam seem to be a decidedly progressive lot and are making the best of their opportunities for improvement and progress. Their development along various lines is certainly rapid. A movement has lately been started among the leading citizens of the island to raise funds for the construction of a civil hospital, something they have never had of any description, and, until the arrival of the United States authorities those who were unlucky enough to fall ill usually succumbed without treatment. When Capt. O'Leary took possession he generously extended to the natives free medical care and the same policy has been followed ever since. As a result the government has looked after the health of all the inhabitants of the island for almost three years. Some months ago Surgeon General Van Reypen wrote to the medical officer in charge at Guam and directed him to impress on the minds of the leading citizens of Guam the fact that they were not paupers and urge them to make arrangements for taking care of their sick and ailing fellow creatures. The Guamites were spurred to activity and a movement was started to raise funds which promises to result soon in the erection of a fine civil hospital. Gen. Van Reypen has consented to the three medical officers of the navy who are now at Guam to give their professional services at the hospital until the natives are able to furnish their own hospital staff. The advent of the United States there has accomplished some good.

By the Porto Rican Door.

How to keep undesirable immigrants out of this country if they try to come in through Porto Rico, is a question that has troubled the treasury department since the decision of the insular cases by the supreme court. Congress has not guarded this gate as carefully as it might. It made a sweeping provision that the statutory laws of the United States not locally inapplicable shall be operative in Porto Rico, and that includes our general system of immigration laws; but no increase was made in the appropriation for the immigration service, directly applicable to Porto Rico, and the coast of that island is considerably exposed if adventurous immigrants, like the Chinese, are bound to get in there. The supreme court decision has thrown down all barriers between Porto Rico and the United States except such as congress in its full power have raised by specific enactment; and, as congress has adopted no legislation restricting the immigration of persons from Porto Rico to the United States, it will be necessary only for the undesirable class of immigrants to get safely into the island in order to come to this country at pleasure. To guard against this, an addition has been made to the personnel of the immigration service in Porto Rico, in order to keep out the proscribed classes there and also to watch carefuQlly the departures from Porto Rican ports to the United States and notify our authorities here when suspicious characters may be looked for. It is not believed that either Cuba or Porto Rico will be sought as a half-way house by paupers and diseased persons from Southern Europe, particularly as so many South American places of refuge are open to them at very little increased cost; for the expense of a trip to the West Indies and a residence there long enough to warrant a successful farther trip to the United States will be practically prohibitive as to these classes. But there are certain criminals and ex-convicts who are able to pay for a roundabout journey if the circumlocution aids in covering their tracks; and the Chinese will go anywhere, endure any hardship and pay almost any price for the privilege of reaching this land of gold.

TEACHERS' VACATIONS.

The duty of the school teacher during the summer vacation is discussed by the Brooklyn Eagle, which arrives at the somewhat startling conclusion that the teacher must give that time to absolute rest for the good of the public; that the public pays the school teacher for one year's time, nine months of which is to be used in the instruction of the youth and the other three months employed to recuperate from the effect of the strain on mind and body.

This is all very good, if the Eagle was only right in its premises. If only the teachers were paid for the full twelve months, but they are not. They are paid, with a few exceptions, a meager salary for nine or ten months of the year. The other months they must shift for themselves. So meager is the salary paid to men in that most honorable profession, that the best are driven out because they can not support a family on the salaries paid. Nine out of every ten school boards figure on how much this amount will be a month when they fix the yearly salary of their superintendents and their principals. In the grades there is no pretense to employ them by the year. They are hired at so much per month.

What should be done is to pay the school teacher 25 per cent more and pay it every month of the year. Then the school authorities would be entitled to the time of the teacher from one year's end to the other. Under such conditions a rest could, with some show of propriety, be insisted upon as a preparatory measure for the coming year's work. The poorest economy in which a community can indulge is the cheap school teacher. The next poorest economy is the practice of making the school system a sort of charitable institution in which young deserving girls and old people are sustained by the public. The modern public school demands the best, and the best should be paid for on business principles.

CHINESE POPULATION.

The numerical status of the Chinese in the United States has provoked much discussion in the past decade. Agitators bent on the extremest forms of Chinese exclusion have repeatedly alleged that through evasions of the law as many Chinamen were now coming into this country as ever. They have said that all along the border, both Canadian and Mexican, the smuggling of Chinamen was general, oftentimes by connivance with the immigration inspection.

The census will settle this question; and while the total number of Chinese in the country is not yet available, enough is known to set at rest all alarming reports on this subject. California had in 1890 nearly 73,000 Chinese; it has only about 60 per cent as many now. This is somewhat sensational. It clearly indicates that not only has the supply of new material been pretty effectively cut off, but that those who were here ten years ago have now scattered over the country at large. Connecticut, for example, has more than twice as many Chinamen as in 1890. Colorado, another Western state, has less than half as many.

The total number of Chinese in 1890 —107,000—it is believed, will not be exceeded this time, but that their diffusion will be most marked. The Japanese, as was to have been expected, have increased rapidly, as much as tenfold in California alone, while in the state of Washington they have begun to form a considerable element of the population. The proportion of foreign-bred people seems to have lowered in the West and increased in the East. Definite details are not yet available, but they will before long be coming.

SHAMEFUL TRICKERY.

In dealing with the Indians it is alleged that officials of the government, and even congress itself, are not very particular as to the honesty of the methods adopted to accomplish the ends desired. That the Indians have numerous grievances is well known, and it is also a well known fact that but few of them are ever righted. A strong plea has been set before the supreme court of the District of Columbia on the latest outrage alleged to have been perpetrated on the red wards—the opening of the Kiowa, Comanche and Apache lands—and the decision of the court is awaited with interest. The Kiowas, Comanches and Apaches were induced, nine years ago, to make a treaty by whose terms their lands in the present territory of Oklahoma were to be disposed of in accordance with the wishes of the government at that time. A strong savor of fraud has always hung about that agreement, the Indians having been improperly persuaded, or a false translation of the treaty having been given them by a tricky interpreter, for some of the signatures having been unlawfully attached to the instrument. Session after session congress had this treaty before it for ratification, but friends of the Indians succeeded in staving off action. The late congress took it up, and its promoters finding it necessary to effect a combination with the promoters of some other scheme having a greater momentum, the bill ratifying the Kiowa treaty was tied to the tail of a bill to ratify a treaty with the Fort Hall Indians in Idaho, because the passage of the Fort Hall bill was regarded as essential to Senator Shoup's re-election, and everybody realized that the senator would push it through if that were possible. In this way the Kiowa bill passed both houses.

Even admitting the original treaty to have been wittingly and properly made by the Indians, its sixth article bound the government to pay over to the Indians, by a per capita distribution, $200,000 within 120 days after ratification, $200,000 more within one year after first payment, and $100,000 more in the same manner one year after that; the balance to be retained in the treasury to the credit of the Indians and draw 5 per cent interest. But in the form in which this article passed congress, $500,000 is to be distributed per capita "at such times and in such manner as the secretary of the interior shall deem to be for the best interests of said Indians." The defenders of this change say that the secretary would presumptively judge better than the Indians what was good for them, but this hardly justifies a fraud upon them by injecting into their treaty something, to which they had never agreed.

But this was not all. Having entered into a treaty with the Indians to place $1,500,000 to their credit in the treasury at 5 per cent, congress tacked a clause to the bottom of the bill, where by its position it would modify whatever went before, authorizing the Choctaw and Chicksaw Indians to sue for an equitable interest which they claimed to have discovered in the Kiowa lands, with a proviso that if the courts should decide that the equitable claim had any value, then the $1,500,000 would be subject to some other disposal by congress. So the end of the whole matter might have been that the Kiowas, having been tricked into a treaty, were afterwards victimized by a legislative forgery, and then robbed of three-fourths of even what the forged article itself conveyed to them.

The merchants of Springfield, Mass., have decided that the best and most profitable means of business publicity is the newspaper. HAZEN S. PINGREE.

Chicago Tribune: During his seven years as mayor of Detroit and his four years as governor of Michigan, Mr. Pingree, whose death in London is announced in another column, became one of the most conspicuous, original, and dynamic figures in contemporary public life.

His principal achievements were those which he realized as mayor. Under his administration Detroit passed from the age of toll roads, dilapidated pavements, insufficient sewers, oppressive telephone rates and inexcusable car service to become one of the best paved, cleaned, sewered and lighted cities in the country, to possess its own lighting plant—the chief example of the sort among American cities—to have a telephone service peculiarly extensive and low priced, to enjoy the highest per capita street railway mileage and the lowest fares of any sizable American town, to be dotted with small, well kept parks in its central areas, and to win justly the reputation of being a beautiful city.

As governor, Mr. Pingree undertook to secure reforms in the taxation of railway property; and, although a hostile legislature thwarted these efforts at first, important raforms on this subject were enacted during his second term, the main purport of which was to require the taxation of railway property on the same basis as other property is taxed. He also secured the law authorizing Detroit to acquire and operate its street railways. The supreme court declared the law unconstitutional, and, when he urged the city council to adopt an indirect method of accomplishing the cherished project, public sentiment balked at the idea of paying six or seven million dollars for the outstanding franchises of the companies. But although the plan had finally to be abandoned, its agitation served at least to familiarize public thought generally with the idea of municipalizing rapid transit.

Perhaps the most important reason for Mr. Pingree's administrative success was his choice of capable aids. Although a man of strong individuality himself, he was too wise to rely upon incapacity and too large minded to fear eclipse by subordinates. His administration therefore always manifested independence, vigor, and ability in its different departments.

Another peculiar element of strength was his reliance upon publicity. Not only was he always accessible to newspaper men, but on one occasion when, in the course of his conflict with corporations, the local papers refused him space, he simply set up a well inscribed bulletin board of his own in front of the city hall. His messages, too, and other statements of public interest were always circulated widely. People were aware thus of what he was driving at. His election as mayor four times in succession with ever increasing majorities and finally by a vote of four to one in his favor, was testimony not only to his program but also to his success in giving it currency.

Personally, he was not only simple in his habits and easily approachable, but he was peculiarly hospitable toward new ideas and valiant in their advocacy when he had appealed to him. Years in advance of the Johnsons, he was—and alone among public men—insisting upon the practicability of three cent fares. Later he advocated the abatement of water rates with equal confidence. In maintaining his positions, too, he was a determined, tenacious, and resourceful fighter. For him to espouse one side of a controversial question was notice of an irrepressible conflict unless his opponents should choose to yield. His tenacity, however, was that of an aggressive rather than an obstinate nature, and his main motives were a zest in achievement and a genuine sympathy for social betterment. He was distinctively a "progressive." Indeed, his leanings toward silver and his insistence that trusts should be destroyed are attributable not to demagoguery but rather to generous motives which had not been based in sound thought.

It is easy to forget the faults of a man of such positive and creative character as Mr. Pingree exhibited—to forget his domineering proclivities, his intolerance of opposition, his too ready resort to abuse, his sometimes ill-considered opinions. Viewed as a whole, his public career stands out above these incidents as that of a man of that resolute attitude toward corporate aggression, that constructive capacity in municipal administration, and those democratic sympathies of which the great social centers of today stand in conspicuous need.

AT THE INN OF DREAMS.

Gray comrade of my later years,
Pour me a flagon sharp and sweet
Here are no signs, no hopes, no fears—
Unmourned the night and morning meet.
Though Youth a woman's lips would kiss,
Sure, never yet was ale like this!

Gray comrade of my later years,
Sing them no sad, funeral hymn;
'Tis time to drown a woman's tears
Where the bright beads the goblet brim!
I know that Laura's love was dear,
But Love's a fleeting phantom here.

Gray comrade! When the spring had breath—
Its red blooms blown to heaven above,
I never dreamed thy name was death,
Love's life!
It was so syllabled with Love!
Love's lips were tender to my kiss,
But—was there ever ale like this?

Dead is the meaning of the dove—
The lark's flight in the dawn and dew;
Spring, with remembrances of Love—
The sweet, the bitter, false and true!
Did Laura love me? * * * Love must fall:
But comfort's in a cup of ale.

The world hath left me, comrade, lone—
I saw it's joys like dreams depart;
There is no hand to hold my own
Save thine, slow freezing soul and heart!
Love daily tells its tedious tale;
But can it match this sparkling ale?
Fill high—fill full * * * All life must pass;
And Love, however pure and sweet,
Must sigh, alas! Must sigh alas!
With Life's dead violets at his feet,
And Death at last is sweet to kiss—
Was ever yet such ale as this?
—FRANK L. STANTON, in the Atlanta Constitution.

AMERICAN WOMEN

Make Quite a Stir In St. Petersburg.

St. Petersburg, June 20.—Two American-born women are attracting much attention by the fact that they drive about in the only hansom cab in this city.

One is the Princess Cantacuzene, who was Miss Julia Grant, and the other is the Princess Serge Beloselsky, who is the daughter of Gen. Charles A. Wittier, of New York.

Princess Beloselsky was married in 1894 to a scion of one of Russia's oldest families. Her husband is an aide de camp and master of the horse to the Grand Duke Vladimir, and commands the army in and about St. Petersburg.

The Beloselskys have a magnificent palace on an island in the river, which has belonged to the family for centuries.

The princess drives a trappy bay to her hansom, and the equipage is severely correct.

VAST DIVIDENDS.

July 1 to See Greatest Payments Ever Made.

New York, June 20.—A conservative estimate of the combined interest and dividend payments in New York, due on July 1, is from $120,000,000 to $125,000,000. This is the largest on record for any previous July, and, doubtless, will exceed any Jan. 1 exhibit, when the payments are the heaviest of the year. New dividends and increased dividends caused, of course, by the phenomenal growth of the country's agricultural, industrial and manufacturing, have been declared since the first of the year, and these go to swell the enormous total.

DAILY STORY.

A WIDOW'S CLAIM.

BY HARRY ELWOOD.

(Copyright, 1901, William R. Miller).

No one could remember that Harry Vane had ever taken any particular interest in any particular thing. He had plenty of money, and he was a clubman, a yachtman, a traveler, a bachelor and a general favorite. But he traveled, played billiards and fell in love and out again in a mechanical sort of way. He was never enthusiastic, and he was never cast down. He was a marked example of "the even tenor," and again and again his friends and wondered if anything could possibly occur to arouse him to action. A day came when something did occur, and to everybody's amazement it was not a cataclysm. It was a simple thing, and yet it had wonderful results.

One day, on a train between New York city and Buffalo, Harry Vane found himself vis-a-vis with a refined looking, middle-aged woman. He would have entered into conversation had she been a woman of 70 or a girl of 12. And neither an old woman nor a young girl would have felt shy of him. He was too languid and indifferent to be suspected, even of impertinence. It came out after awhile that the lady was a widow—the wife of an American civil engineer who had been employed by a certain South American government in certain surveys, and had been foully murdered while thus engaged. The widow had filed her claim for compensation, but it had been "hung up" for years. Meanwhile, she had been forced to poverty. There were many particulars not to be given here, and to his own amazement the languid man not only found himself interested but indignant. He had known, in a general way, that there were widows in the world, and that some of them had a hard battle of it, but never before had he heard the story of a widow who had been buffeted about between lawyers, congressmen, the secretary of state, delay and indifference, until it was a story to touch the human heart. There came a new look into his face and a new light into his eyes as he listened, and when she had concluded her tale he startled her and himself by exclaiming:

"Now, by Jim, but I'll take up your case, and see that justice is done! For twenty years I have wanted a mission, and I have got one at last."

The secretary of state wasn't in when the dapper little man sent in his card one morning ten days later. The first and second and third assistant secretaries happened to be out as well, but the first high chief of the foreign claims department had somehow managed to get in by 11 o'clock, and after fifteen minutes of the usual dignified delay Harry Vane was permitted to set eyes upon him. He had no sooner stated his object in calling than the high chief pompously replied:

"You should have addressed the secretary of state by letter, and the letter would have been filed and answered in due time. I can tell you nothing about the claim, sir."

"Oh, you can't?" replied the caller. "Then I'll tell you something about it, sir. It was a claim fixed six or seven years ago, and has been lying in a pigeon-hole ever since, and tomorrow Senator Blank will inquire of the secretary in open senate why in Texas he hasn't pushed for payment. At the same time the senator will demand to know whether this department is run for your benefit or that of the public!"

The high chief took a long look at the dapper little man before him, and made up his mind that he weighed a ton on the political scales. It was, therefore, with a great deal less pomposity, and a great deal more humility, that he replied:

"Let me tell you that the government of San Sobra is practically bankrupt, and a demand on the part of the United States will not bring the cash. At least, there will be haggling and higgling and delay, and it may be years before the claim is finally settled."

"We'll see about that," said Vane as he rose to go. "There's a minister or consul here from that country, I suppose, and I'll look him up."

The dapper little man had another call to make. He hunted up the consul of San Sobra, and he went right to business by saying:

"Look here, now, but did you ever hear of the Dollinger claim? It's a claim for $50,000 against your government for the murder of an American civil engineer. It's been pigeon-holed for years, but now it's going to be presented for payment."

"I have heard of the claim," replied the consul. "When the United States is ready to move in the matter it will notify me officially."

"But I notify you privately that things are going to move!" hotly continued Vane. "The matter will be called up in congress next week."

"No? You are not the president. You are not the secretary of state. You are not a senator. Perhaps you will enlighten me?"

"By gad, sir; but I will! My name is Vane—Harry Vane. I represent the eighty million people of the United States. When the people of this country demand a thing even the president has got to knuckle. If that claim isn't acted upon within sixty days I'll guarantee that the people of this country will be howling for war against San Sobra."

"But how can you get $50,000 out of a bankrupt government?" was asked.

"By gad, sir, but I'll tell you," replied the dapper little man as he patted his leg. "Let your presidential ring disgorge it. Last year I was along the coast of San Sobra on a yachting trip, and I heard nothing from the people but mutterings and curses and threats of rebellion. They are not only taxed to death, but the political ring, of which your president is the shining light, is stealing everybody blind. There isn't an honest man connected with the present administration."

"Well?"

"Well, sir, and damme, sir, all I've got to do is to set three or four agitators to work, buy up the columns of two or three newspapers, and it won't take thirty days to start a revolution and upset your apple cart! I may not be able to pull $50,000 out of it, but I'll guarantee that the ring doesn't get away with a dollar apiece. You seem to understand the English language fairly well. Let me ask if you tumble?"

"Tumble? I—I think I do."

"Then I will not take up any more of your valuable time. You will hear something further about that claim in a day or two. Good day, sir."

He did. There was an official communication placed in his hands by a messenger from the state department. There was no dust on the cable, but there was a cloud of it flying about the president's palace in the capital city.

"The Dorlinger claim? Why, certainly. It was a just claim—a righteous claim—a claim which would have been promptly paid years ago if the United States had hinted that there was any hurry about it. The money was ready, and instead of drawing out more yards of red-tape over it the cold cash would be forwarded to the consul by next steamer, and the matter wound up at once."

"Un-pre-ce-dent-ed!" exclaimed the secretary of state and his assistants as they were officially notified.

"How in the devil did he do it?" gasped the senator from New York and his followers as they heard the news.

"Mr. Vane," began the widow, after she had signed the papers and extinguished her claim, "I—I want to say—I—I want to—"

"Put don't," he interrupted, as he lifted his hat and gave her his hand. "I assure you I have enjoyed it immensely. Happy to have been of service. Good-bye!"

MAYOR IS ARRESTED

Alderman Barry Gets After Superior's Chief Executive.

Claims Mayor Criminally Slandered Him In His Communication.

Mayor Goes After a Newspaper and Things Are Hot.

Superior is swathed in a delirium of scandal. Festoons of jetted woe are looped about the city hall, and city officers are out with hammers and big bolts of violent looking trouble making singular mention of each other.

Last evening Mayor Parker was arrested on a complaint sworn out by Alderman J. W. Barry of the Tenth ward. The alderman claims that he has ground for criminal libel against the mayor because of sundry little things the mayor mentioned in a dazzling report to the council Tuesday evening.

The alderman from the Tenth ward is a saloonkeeper over in the Allouez bay district. The mayor had occasion to close some sort of an institution over in that locality, claiming that it was not conducted on the lines of a well managed seminary. Alderman Barry introduced a resolution in the council, calling on the mayor to report the number of gambling houses and other houses of fast living there was in Superior. He was backed by Alderman Ennis, a wholesale liquor dealer.

Mayor Parker says that while the aldermen made this inquiry with the air of persons really desiring information, they knew a great deal more about such places than he did. He also claimed that the two aldermen endeavored to start an investigation just because he closed up the place in the Allouez bay district, and thereby deprived the Tenth ward alderman of some of his liquor patronage.

The alderman now swears out a complaint charging the mayor with criminal slander, and last evening Sheriff Somers placed the mayor under arrest. He was released on his own recognizance last night, and today put up bail in the sum of $500 for appearance on July 3.

The mayor is also after the Evening Telegram of Superior. He says:

"The Telegram speaks of my 'filthy message,' and can scarcely find words with which to express its disgust, yet it prints it in full on the next page, evidently deeming it sufficiently filthy to be given a prominent place on its immaculate pages.

"It states that 'the mayor and certain councilmen expend a good portion of their time, when the council is in session in settling some of their personal disputes, which disputes would be a disgrace to a well-regulated bar-room.' I challenge anyone to show that the mayor and a large majority of the aldermen do not give their whole attention at council meetings to the honest transaction of public business. If anyone doubts it, he is not only at liberty but is invited to attend every council meeting and see for himself.

"The Telegram states further: 'The common people and the Evening Telegram have been watching the course of matters in the council during recent weeks.' Possibly they have, but I can say for a certainty that the 'common people' have watched the Evening Telegram, not only for 'recent weeks,' but for recent years, and it will still bear watching. If the question was asked, 'what paper has been the most unconscionable grafter on the city and county for the past ten years?' what answer would you get? If you are in doubt ask the first ten men, women or children that you meet. If the verdict is not unanimous it will be because you have met someone who has not been in town twenty-four hours.

"Where would Superior be at if its business interests were intrusted to the tender mercies of the Evening Telegram? Examine its connection with public affairs for the past ten years and you will not have to guess the answer, you will know. Just think of the Telegram talking about the 'higher ideals of municipal duty.' Were its ideals ever anything but bills, and are they not high enough already?

"The Evening Telegram has no graft on this city now, and that is what is the matter with it. It was not able to make 'satisfactory arrangements' with me when I ran for mayor last year, so I had the benefit of its opposition. I have had the same benefit ever since, for the same reason, and I believe this city is many dollars ahead in consequence."

New York, June 20.—Charles W. Morse, the ice king, sailed for Europe with his bride on the Oceanic, barely getting aboard the ship after a mad carriage ride down to the pier, just as the great liner was leaving her berth.

All was ready for sailing, and the air of mystery about the bridal suite, which was filled with flowers, and for which no name appeared on the passenger list, had all guessing on ship, and on the pier men stood ready to hoist the gang plank.

Suddenly there was a clatter of horses galloping at the entrance of the pier. Breathing wildly, as if at the end of a long race, the team came down the pier on a run, drawing a carriage. The equipage stopped at the gang plank.

Mr. Morse leaped out. Then came Mrs. Morse and a young woman companion. The women were laughing heartily. Each seized a large bouquet of roses from the carriage and dashed up the gang plank, which began to rise as they mounted it.

All the arts of secrecy were employed to make his marriage to Mrs. Clementine Dodge spectacular. Mrs. Dodge, formerly Miss Cowles, of Illinois, was divorced only recently.

Rev. George T. Purvis performed the ceremony. Besides Mayor Van Wyck, only a few intimate friends were present, or even knew the wedding was to take place. Mr. Morse is a millionaire. He has a daughter and three sons, children of his first wife, who died several years ago.

EIGHT POUNDS!

Eight pounds of love and laughter, of smiles and sunshine or—? Many a mother can fill up the blank out of her experience of puny, wailing children, whose coming brought no gladness to the home. Women who have used Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription as a pre-natal preparation know that it makes all the difference between happy, healthy motherhood, and a motherhood of murmuring and misery. And they know also, that happy, healthy mothers have happy, healthy children. "Favorite Prescription" strengthens the whole body for the strain of motherhood. It practically does away with the pains of childbirth, gives the mother abundant vitality and enables her to nurse and nourish a healthy child.

"I am mother of six children," writes Mrs. C. A. Briggs, of Millwood, Douglas Co., Oregon, "and always took three or four bottles of 'Favorite Prescription' before confinement and never suffered any to speak of; had no after pains; my babies were large—they all weighed more than eight pounds, and I am not a large woman; weigh about 115 pounds. I have had some stomach trouble, but a few doses of 'Golden Medical Discovery' would set me all right. I am hardly ever without your medicines. They are all the medicine one needs, if taken in time, to keep one in perfect health.

"I feel that I owe my little boy's life to Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, as he had convulsions, and everything he ate would bring them on. I commenced to give him the 'Golden Medical Discovery' in ten drop doses three times a day. Now he is just as healthy a child as can be found and he grows like a weed."

HIS PLANS.

Pingree Went Abroad For the Good of the People.

Detroit, Mich., June 20.—In an interview in New York yesterday afternoon with a staff correspondent of the Detroit Journal, Col. Eli B. Sutton of this city, who was the traveling companion of ex-Governor Pingree during his trip through South Africa and Europe, said:

"Hazen S. Pingree went to South Africa largely for the purpose of putting into practical effect three gigantic schemes for the benefit of the people of Michigan.

"First, the reclamation of the immense pine wastes in Michigan by planting trees. He went to the Bavarian Black Forest to expand this idea and overworked so much that he hastened his death.

"Second, the rotation of crops in Michigan. In pursuit of this scheme he went to Egypt, where such a system is enforced by the government.

"Third, the transportation of every patriot Boer and his family who desired to come to the United States. He quizzed British officials on this subject, gained their approval of it, and had an appointment to consult with Mr. Kruger about it, which was only prevented by the governor's illness.

"It was his idea to interest some Michigan capitalists in the plan and provide lands for the Boers among the railroad systems. He thought that these capitalists could secure very low transportation rates from the seaboards to the farms, and he proposed to let the British government, in some roundabout way, provide the ships for the Boers' transportation from Africa to this country.

"A number of English officers now in South Africa, and some eminent public men in England, took this plan seriously and thought well of it, provided it could be carried out without the British government's aid in the matter becoming known.

"While studying the Black forest in the interest of his re-forestration idea, Governor Pingree even secured the names of a number of keepers who were willing to emigrate to Michigan and assume care of the forests he proposed to plant."

Progress of the Guamites.

The people of Guam seem to be a decidedly progressive lot and are making the best of their opportunities for improvement and progress. Their development along various lines is certainly rapid. A movement has lately been started among the leading citizens of the island to raise funds for the construction of a civil hospital, something they have never had of any description, and, until the arrival of the United States authorities those who were unlucky enough to fall ill usually succumbed without treatment. When Capt. O'Leary took possession he generously extended to the natives free medical care and the same policy has been followed ever since. As a result the government has looked after the health of all the inhabitants of the island for almost three years. Some months ago Surgeon General Van Reypen wrote to the medical officer in charge at Guam and directed him to impress on the minds of the leading citizens of Guam the fact that they were not paupers and urge them to make arrangements for taking care of their sick and ailing fellow creatures. The Guamites were spurred to activity and a movement was started to raise funds which promises to result soon in the erection of a fine civil hospital. Gen. Van Reypen has consented to the three medical officers of the navy who are now at Guam to give their professional services at the hospital until the natives are able to furnish their own hospital staff. The advent of the United States there has accomplished some good.

By the Porto Rican Door.

How to keep undesirable immigrants out of this country if they try to come in through Porto Rico, is a question that has troubled the treasury department since the decision of the insular cases by the supreme court. Congress has not guarded this gate as carefully as it might. It made a sweeping provision that the statutory laws of the United States not locally inapplicable shall be operative in Porto Rico, and that includes our general system of immigration laws; but no increase was made in the appropriation for the immigration service, directly applicable to Porto Rico, and the coast of that island is considerably exposed if adventurous immigrants, like the Chinese, are bound to get in there. The supreme court decision has thrown down all barriers between Porto Rico and the United States except such as congress in its full power have raised by specific enactment; and, as congress has adopted no legislation restricting the immigration of persons from Porto Rico to the United States, it will be necessary only for the undesirable class of immigrants to get safely into the island in order to come to this country at pleasure. To guard against this, an addition has been made to the personnel of the immigration service in Porto Rico, in order to keep out the proscribed classes there and also to watch carefuQlly the departures from Porto Rican ports to the United States and notify our authorities here when suspicious characters may be looked for. It is not believed that either Cuba or Porto Rico will be sought as a half-way house by paupers and diseased persons from Southern Europe, particularly as so many South American places of refuge are open to them at very little increased cost; for the expense of a trip to the West Indies and a residence there long enough to warrant a successful farther trip to the United States will be practically prohibitive as to these classes. But there are certain criminals and ex-convicts who are able to pay for a roundabout journey if the circumlocution aids in covering their tracks; and the Chinese will go anywhere, endure any hardship and pay almost any price for the privilege of reaching this land of gold.

TEACHERS' VACATIONS.

The duty of the school teacher during the summer vacation is discussed by the Brooklyn Eagle, which arrives at the somewhat startling conclusion that the teacher must give that time to absolute rest for the good of the public; that the public pays the school teacher for one year's time, nine months of which is to be used in the instruction of the youth and the other three months employed to recuperate from the effect of the strain on mind and body.

This is all very good, if the Eagle was only right in its premises. If only the teachers were paid for the full twelve months, but they are not. They are paid, with a few exceptions, a meager salary for nine or ten months of the year. The other months they must shift for themselves. So meager is the salary paid to men in that most honorable profession, that the best are driven out because they can not support a family on the salaries paid. Nine out of every ten school boards figure on how much this amount will be a month when they fix the yearly salary of their superintendents and their principals. In the grades there is no pretense to employ them by the year. They are hired at so much per month.

What should be done is to pay the school teacher 25 per cent more and pay it every month of the year. Then the school authorities would be entitled to the time of the teacher from one year's end to the other. Under such conditions a rest could, with some show of propriety, be insisted upon as a preparatory measure for the coming year's work. The poorest economy in which a community can indulge is the cheap school teacher. The next poorest economy is the practice of making the school system a sort of charitable institution in which young deserving girls and old people are sustained by the public. The modern public school demands the best, and the best should be paid for on business principles.

CHINESE POPULATION.

The numerical status of the Chinese in the United States has provoked much discussion in the past decade. Agitators bent on the extremest forms of Chinese exclusion have repeatedly alleged that through evasions of the law as many Chinamen were now coming into this country as ever. They have said that all along the border, both Canadian and Mexican, the smuggling of Chinamen was general, oftentimes by connivance with the immigration inspection.

The census will settle this question; and while the total number of Chinese in the country is not yet available, enough is known to set at rest all alarming reports on this subject. California had in 1899 nearly 73,000 Chinese; it has only about 60 per cent as many now. This is somewhat sensational. It clearly indicates that not only has the supply of new material been pretty effectively cut off, but that those who were here ten years ago have now scattered over the country at large. Connecticut, for example, has more than twice as many Chinamen as in 1890. Colorado, another Western state, has less than half as many.

The total number of Chinese in 1890—107,000—it is believed, will not be exceeded this time, but that their diffusion will be most marked. The Japanese, as was to have been expected, have increased rapidly, as much as tenfold in California alone, while in the state of Washington they have begun to form a considerable element of the population. The proportion of foreign-bred people seems to have lowered in the West and increased in the East. Definite details are not yet available, but they will before long be coming.

SHAMEFUL TRICKERY.

In dealing with the Indians it is alleged that officials of the government, and even congress itself, are not very particular as to the honesty of the methods adopted to accomplish the ends desired. That the Indians have numerous grievances is well known, and it is also a well known fact that but few of them are ever righted. A strong plea has been set before the supreme court of the District of Columbia on the latest outrage alleged to have been perpetrated on the red wards—the opening of the Kiowa, Comanche and Apache lands—and the decision of the court is awaited with interest. The Kiowas, Comanches and Apaches were induced, nine years ago, to make a treaty by whose terms their lands in the present territory of Oklahoma were to be disposed of in accordance with the wishes of the government at that time. A strong savor of fraud has always hung about that agreement, the Indians having been improperly persuaded, or a false translation of the treaty having been given them by a tricky interpreter, for some of the signatures having been unlawfully attached to the instrument. Session after session congress had this treaty before it for ratification, but friends of the Indians succeeded in staving off action. The late congress took it up, and its promoters finding it necessary to effect a combination with the promoters of some other scheme having a greater momentum, the bill ratifying the Kiowa treaty was tied to the tail of a bill to ratify a treaty with the Fort Hall Indians in Idaho, because the passage of the Fort Hall bill was regarded as essential to Senator Shoup's re-election, and everybody realized that the senator would push it through if that were possible. In this way the Kiowa bill passed both houses.

Even admitting the original treaty to have been wittingly and properly made by the Indians, its sixth article bound the government to pay over to the Indians, by a per capita distribution, $200,000 within 120 days after ratification, $200,000 more within one year after first payment, and $100,000 more in the same manner one year after that; the balance to be retained in the treasury to the credit of the Indians and draw 5 per cent interest. But in the form in which this article passed congress, $500,000 is to be distributed per capita "at such times and in such manner as the secretary of the interior shall deem to be for the best interests of said Indians." The defenders of this change say that the secretary would presumptively judge better than the Indians what was good for them, but this hardly justifies a fraud upon them by injecting into their treaty something to which they had never agreed.

But this was not all. Having entered into a treaty with the Indians to place $1,500,000 to their credit in the treasury at 5 per cent, congress tacked a clause to the bottom of the bill, where by its position it would modify whatever went before, authorizing the Choctaw and Chickasaw Indians to sue for an equitable interest which they claimed to have discovered in the Kiowa lands, with a proviso that if the courts should decide that the equitable claim had any value, then the $1,500,000 would be subject to some other disposal by congress. So the end of the whole matter might have been that the Kiowas, having been tricked into a treaty, were afterwards victimized by a legislative forgery, and then robbed of three-fourths of even what the forged article itself conveyed to them.

HAZEN S. PINGREE.

Chicago Tribune: During his seven years as mayor of Detroit and his four years as governor of Michigan, Mr. Pingree, whose death in London is announced in another column, became one of the most conspicuous, original, and dynamic figures in contemporary public life.

His principal achievements were those which he realized as mayor. Under his administration Detroit passed from the age of toll roads, dilapidated pavements, insufficient sewers, oppressive telephone rates and inexcusable car service to become one of the best paved, cleaned, sewered and lighted cities in the country, to possess its own lighting plant—the chief example of the sort among American cities—to have a telephone service peculiarly extensive and low priced, to enjoy the highest per capita street railway mileage and the lowest fares of any sizable American town, to be dotted with small, well kept parks in its central areas, and to win justly the reputation of being a beautiful city.

As governor, Mr. Pingree undertook to secure reforms in the taxation of railway property; and, although a hostile legislature thwarted these efforts at first, important reforms on this subject were enacted during his second term, the main purport of which was to require the taxation of railway property on the same basis as other property is taxed. He also secured the law authorizing Detroit to acquire and operate its street railways. The supreme court declared the law unconstitutional, and, when he urged the city council to adopt an indirect method of accomplishing the cherished project, public sentiment balked at the idea of paying six or seven million dollars for the outstanding franchises of the companies. But although the plan had finally to be abandoned, its agitation served at least to familiarize public thought generally with the idea of municipalizing rapid transit.

Perhaps the most important reason for Mr. Pingree's administrative success was his choice of capable aids. Although a man of strong individuality himself, he was too wise to rely upon incapacity and too large minded to fear eclipse by subordinates. His administration therefore always manifested independence, vigor, and ability in its different departments.

Another peculiar element of strength was his reliance upon publicity. Not only was he always accessible to newspaper men, but on one occasion when, in the course of his conflict with corporations, the local papers refused him space, he simply set up a well inscribed bulletin board of his own in front of the city hall. His messages, too, and other statements of public interest were always circulated widely. People were aware thus of what he was driving at. His election as mayor four times in succession with ever increasing majorities and finally by a vote of four to one in his favor, was testimony not only to his program but also to his success in giving it currency.

Personally, he was not only simple in his habits and easily approachable, but he was peculiarly hospitable toward new ideas and valiant in their advocacy when they appealed to him. Years in advance of the Johnsons, he was—and alone among public men—insisting upon the practicability of three cent fares. Later he advocated abatement of water rates with equal confidence. In maintaining his positions, too, he was determined, tenacious, and resourceful fighter. For him to espouse one side of a controversial question was notice of an irrepressible conflict unless his opponents should choose to yield. His tenacity, however, was that of an aggressive rather than an obstinate nature, and his main motives were a zest in achievement and a genuine sympathy for social betterment. He was distinctively a "progressive." In the last analysis, it was, therefore, his leanings toward silver and his deed, his leanings should be destroyed insistence that trusts should be curbed are attributable not to demagoguery but rather to generous motives which had not been based in sound thought.

It is easy to forget the faults of a man of such positive and creative character as Mr. Pingree exhibited—to forget his domineering proclivities, his intolerance of opposition, his too ready resort to abuse, his sometimes ill-considered opinions. Viewed as a whole, his public career stands out above these incidents as that of a man of that resolute attitude toward corporate aggression, that constructive capacity in municipal administration, and those democratic sympathies of which the great social centers of today stand in conspicuous need.

AT THE INN OF DREAMS.

Gray comrade of my later years,
Pour me a flagon sharp and sweet
Here are no sighs, no hopes, no fears—
Unmourned the night and morning meet.
Though Youth a woman's lips would kiss,
Sure, never yet was ale like this!

Gray comrade of my later years,
Sing thou no sad, funeral hymn;
'Tis time to drown a woman's tears
Where the bright beads the goblet brim!
I know that Laura's love was dear,
But Love's a fleeting phantom here.

Gray comrade! When the spring had breath—
Its red blooms blown to heaven above,
I never dreamed thy name was death,
It was so syllabled with Love!
Love's lips were tender to my kiss,
But—was there ever ale like this?

Dead is the meaning of the dove—
The lark's flight in the dawn and dew;
Spring, with remembrances of Love—
The sweet, the bitter, false and true!
Did Laura love me? * * * Love must fall;
But comfort's in a cup of ale.

The world hath left me, comrade, lone—
I saw it's joys like dreams depart;
There is no hand to hold my own
Save thine, slow freezing soul and heart!
Love daily tells its tedious tale;
But can it match this sparkling ale?
Pill high—fill full * * * All life must pass;
And Love, however pure and sweet,
Must sigh alas! Must sigh alas!
With Life's dead violets at his feet,
And Death at last is sweet to kiss—
Was ever yet such ale as this?

AMERICAN WOMEN

Make Quite a Stir In St. Petersburg.

St. Petersburg, June 20.—Two American-born women are attracting much attention by the fact that they drive about in the only hansom cab in this city.

One is the Princess Cantacuzene, who was Miss Julia Grant, and the other is the Princess Serge Beloselsky, who is the daughter of Gen. Charles A. Wittier, of New York.

Princess Beloselsky was married in 1894 to a scion of one of Russia's oldest families. Her husband is an aide de camp and master of the horse to the Grand Duke Vladimir, and commands the army in and about St. Petersburg.

The Beloselskys have a magnificent palace on an island in the river, which has belonged to the family for centuries.

The princess drives a trappy bay to her hansom, and the equipage is severely correct.

VAST DIVIDENDS.

July 1 to See Greatest Payments Ever Made.

New York, June 20.—A conservative estimate of the combined interest and dividend payments in New York, due on July 1, is from $120,000,000 to $125,000,000. This is the largest on record for any previous July, and, doubtless, will exceed any Jan. 1 exhibit, when the payments are the heaviest of the year. New dividends and increased dividends caused, of course, by the phenomenal growth of the country's agricultural, industrial and manufacturing, have been declared since the first of the year, and these go to swell the enormous total.

DAILY STORY.

A WIDOW'S CLAIM.

BY HARRY ELWOOD.

(Copyright, 1901, William R. Miller).

No one could remember that Harry Vane had ever taken any particular interest in any particular thing. He had plenty of money, and he was a clubman, a yachtman, a traveler, a bachelor and a general favorite. But he traveled, played billiards and fell in love and out again in a mechanical sort of way. He was never enthusiastic, and he was never cast down. He was a marked example of "the even tenor," and again and again his friends and wondered if anything could possibly occur to arouse him to action. A day came when something did occur, and to everybody's amazement it was not a cataclysm. It was a simple thing, and yet it had wonderful results.

One day, on a train between New York city and Buffalo, Harry Vane found himself vis-a-vis with a refined looking, middle-aged woman. He would have entered into conversation had she been a woman of 70 or a girl of 12. And neither an old woman nor a young girl would have felt shy of him. He was too languid and indifferent to be suspected, even of impertinence. It came out after awhile that the lady was a widow—the wife of an American civil engineer who had been employed by a certain South American government in certain surveys, and had been foully murdered while thus engaged. The widow had filed her claim for compensation, but it had been "hung up" for years. Meanwhile, she had been forced to fight poverty. There were many particulars not to be given here, and to his own amazement the languid man not only found himself interested but indignant. He had known, in a general way, that there were widows in the world, and that some of them had a hard battle of it, but never before had he heard the story of a widow who had been buffeted about between lawyers, congressmen, the secretary of state, delay and indifference, until it was a story to touch the human heart. There came a new look into his face and a new light into his eyes as he listened, and when she had concluded her tale she startled her and himself by exclaiming:

"Now, by Jim, but I'll take up your case, and see that justice is done! For twenty years I have wanted a mission, and I have got one at last."

The secretary of state wasn't in when the dapper little man sent in his card one morning ten days later. The first and second and third assistant secretaries happened to be out as well, but the first high chief of the foreign claims department had somehow managed to get in by 11 o'clock, and after fifteen minutes of the usual dignified delay Harry Vane was permitted to set eyes upon him. He had no sooner stated his object in calling than the high chief pompously replied:

"You should have added to the secretary of state by letter, and the letter would have been filed and answered in due time. I can tell you nothing about the claim, sir."

"Oh, you can't?" replied the caller. "Then I'll tell you something about it, sir. It was a claim fixed six or seven years ago, and has been lying in a pigeon-hole ever since, and tomorrow Senator Blank will inquire of the secretary in open senate why in Texas he hasn't pushed for payment. At the same time the same senator will demand to know whether this department is run for your benefit or that of the public."

The high chief took a long look at the dapper little man before him, and made up his mind that he weighed a ton on the political scales. It was, therefore, with a great deal more composity, and a great deal more humility, that he replied:

"Let me tell you that the government of San Sobra is practically bankrupt, and a demand on the part of the United States will not bring the cash. At least there will be haggling and higgling and delay, and it may be years before the claim is finally settled."

"We'll see about that," said Vane as he rose to go. "There's a minister or consul here from that country, I suppose, and I'll look him up.

The dapper little man had another call to make. He hunted up the consul of San Sobra, and he went right to business by saying:

"Look here, now, but did you ever hear of the Dollinger claim? It's a claim for $50,000 against your government for the murder of an American civil engineer. It's been pigeon-holed for years, but now it's going to be presented for payment."

"I have heard of the claim," replied the consul. "When the United States is ready to move in the matter it will notify me officially."

"But I notify you privately that things are going to move!" hotly continued Vane. "The matter will be called up in congress next week."

"No? You are not the president. You are not the secretary of state. You are not a senator. Perhaps you will enlighten me?"

"By gad, sir; but I will! My name is Vane—Harry Vane. I represent the eighty million people of the United States. When the people of this country demand a thing even the president has got to knuckle. If that claim isn't acted upon within sixty days I'll guarantee that the people of this country will be howling for war against San Sobra."

"But how can you get $50,000 out of a bankrupt government?" was asked.

"By gad, sir, but I'll tell you," replied the dapper little man as he patted his leg. "Let your presidential ring disgorge it. Last year I was along the coast of San Sobra on a yachting trip, and I heard nothing from the people but mutterings and curses and threats of rebellion. They are not only taxed to death, but the people's money, of which your president is the shining light, is stealing everybody blind. There isn't an honest man connected with the present administration."

"Well?"

"Well, sir, and damme, sir, all I've got to do is to set three or four agitators to work, buy up the columns of two or three newspapers, and it won't take thirty days to start a revolution and upset your apple cart! I may not be able to pull $50,000 out of it, but I'll guarantee that the ring doesn't get away with a dollar apiece. You seem to understand the English language fairly well. Let me ask if you tumble?"

"Tumble? I—I think I do."

"Then I will not take up any more of your valuable time. You will hear something further about that claim in a day or two. Good day, sir."

He did. There was an official communication placed in his hands by a messenger from the state department. There was no dust on the cable, but there was a cloud of it flying about the president's palace in the capital city.

"The Dorlinger claim? Why, certainly. It was a just claim—a righteous claim—a claim which would have been promptly paid years ago if the United States had hinted that there was any hurry about it. The money was ready, and instead of drawing out more yards of red-tape over it the cold cash would be forwarded to the consul by next steamer, and the matter wound up at once."

"I'm-pre-ce-dent-ed!" exclaimed the secretary of state and his assistants as they were officially notified.

"How in the devil did he do it?" gasped the senator from New York and his followers as they heard the news.

"Mr. Vane," began the widow, after she had signed the papers and extinguished her claim, "I—I want to say—I—I want to—"

"But don't," he interrupted, as he lifted his hat and gave her his hand. "I assure you I have enjoyed it immensely. Happy to have been of service. Good-bye!"

MAYOR IS ARRESTED

Alderman Barry Gets After Superior's Chief Executive.

Claims Mayor Criminally Slandered Him In His Communication.

Mayor Goes After a Newspaper and Things Are Hot.

Superior is swathed in a delirium of scandal. Festoons of jetted woe are looped about the city hall, and city officers are out with hammers and big bolts of violent looking trouble making singular mention of each other.

Last evening Mayor Parker was arrested on a complaint sworn out by Alderman J. W. Barry of the Tenth ward. The alderman claims that he has ground for criminal libel against the mayor because of sundry little things the mayor mentioned in a dazzling report to the council Tuesday evening.

The alderman from the Tenth ward is a saloonkeeper over in the Allouez bay district. The mayor had occasion to close some sort of an institution over in that locality, claiming that it was not conducted on the lines of a well managed seminary. Alderman Barry introduced a resolution in the council, calling on the mayor to report the number of gambling houses and other houses of fast living there was in Superior. He was backed by Alderman Banks, a wholesale liquor dealer.

Mayor Parker says that while the aldermen made this inquiry with the air of persons really desiring information, they knew a great deal more about such places than he did. He also claimed that the two aldermen endeavored to start an investigation just because he closed up the place in the Allouez bay district, and thereby deprived the Tenth ward alderman of some of his liquor patronage.

The alderman now swears out a complaint charging the mayor with criminal slander, and last evening Sheriff Somers placed the mayor under arrest. He was released on his own recognizance last night, and today put up bail in the sum of $500 for appearance on July 3.

The mayor is also after the Evening Telegram of Superior. He says:

"The Telegram speaks of my 'filthy message,' and can scarcely find words with which to express its disgust, yet it prints it in full on the next page, evidently deeming it sufficiently filthy to be given a prominent place on its immaculate pages.

"It states that 'the mayor and certain councilmen expend a good portion of their time, when the council is in session in settling some of their personal disputes, which disputes would be a disgrace to a well-regulated bar-room.' I challenge anyone to show that the mayor and a large majority of the aldermen do not give their whole attention at council meetings to the honest transaction of public business. If anyone doubts it, he is not only at liberty but is invited to attend every council meeting and see for himself.

"The Telegram states further: 'The common people and the Evening Telegram have been watching the course of matters in the council during recent weeks.' Possibly they have, but I can say for a certainty that the 'common people' have watched the Evening Telegram, not only for 'recent weeks,' but for recent years, and it will still bear watching. If the question was asked, 'what paper has been the most unconscionable grafter on the city and county for the past ten years?' what answer would you get? If you are in doubt ask the first ten men, women or children that you meet. If the verdict is not unanimous it will be because you have met someone who has not been in town twenty-four hours.

"Where would Superior be at if its business interests were intrusted to the tender mercies of the Evening Telegram? Examine its connection with public affairs for the past ten years and you will not have to guess the answer, you will know. Just think of the Telegram talking about the 'higher ideals of municipal duty!' Were its ideals ever anything but bills, and are they not high enough already?

"The Evening Telegram has no graft on this city now, and that is what is the matter with it. It was not able to make 'satisfactory arrangements' with me when I ran for mayor last year, so I had the benefit of its opposition. I have had the same benefit ever since, for the same reason, and I believe this city is many dollars ahead in consequence."

New York, June 20.—Charles W. Morse, the ice king, sailed for Europe with his bride on the Oceanic, barely getting aboard the ship after a mad carriage ride down to the pier, just as the great liner was leaving her berth.

All was ready for sailing, and the air of mystery about the bridal suite, which was filled with flowers, and for which no name appeared on the passenger list, had all guessing on ship, and on the pier men stood ready to hoist the gang plank.

Suddenly there was a clatter of horses galloping at the entrance of the pier. Breathing wildly, as if at the end of a long race, the team came down the pier on a run, drawing a carriage. The equipage stopped at the gang plank.

Mr. Morse leaped out. Then came Mrs. Morse and a young woman companion. The women were laughing heartily. Each seized a large bouquet of roses from the carriage and dashed up the gang plank, which began to rise as they mounted it.

All the arts of secrecy were employed to make his marriage to Mrs. Clementine Dodge spectacular. Mrs. Dodge, formerly Miss Cowles, of Illinois, was divorced only recently.

Rev. George T. Purvis performed the ceremony. Besides Mayor Van Wyck, only a few intimate friends were present, or even knew the wedding was to take place. Mr. Morse is a millionaire. He has a daughter and three sons, children of his first wife, who died several years ago.

Eight pounds of love and laughter, of smiles and sunshine or—? Many a mother can fill up the blank out of her experience of puny, wailing children, whose coming brought no gladness to the home. Women who have used Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription as a pre-natal preparation know that it makes all the difference between happy, healthy motherhood, and a motherhood of murmuring and misery. And they know also, that happy, healthy mothers have happy, healthy children. "Favorite Prescription" strengthens the whole body for the strain of motherhood. It practically does away with the pains of childbirth, gives the mother abundant vitality and enables her to nurse and nourish a healthy child.

"I am mother of six children," writes Mrs. C. A. Briggs, of Millwood, Douglas Co., Oregon, "and always took three or four bottles of 'Favorite Prescription' before confinement and never suffered any to speak of; had no after pains; my babies were large—they all weighed more than eight pounds, and I am not a large woman; weigh about 115 pounds. I have had some stomach trouble, but a few doses of Golden Medical Discovery 'would set me all right. I am hardly ever without your medicines. They are all the medicine one needs, if taken in time, to keep one in perfect health.

"I feel that I owe my little boy's life to Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, as he had convulsions, and everything he ate would bring them on. I commenced to give him the 'Golden Medical Discovery' in ten drop doses three times a day. Now he is just as healthy a child as can be found and he grows like a weed."

HIS PLANS.

Pingree Went Abroad For the Good of the People.

Detroit, Mich., June 20.—In an interview in New York yesterday afternoon with a staff correspondent of the Detroit Journal, Col. Eli B. Sutton of this city, who was the traveling companion of ex-Governor Pingree during his trip through South Africa and Europe, said:

"Hazen S. Pingree went to South Africa largely for the purpose of putting into practical effect three gigantic schemes for the benefit of the people of Michigan.

"First, the reclamation of the immense pine wastes in Michigan by planting trees. He went to the Bavarian Black Forest to expand this idea and overworked so much that he hastened his death.

"Second, the rotation of crops in Michigan. In pursuit of this scheme he went to Egypt, where such a system is enforced by the government.

"Third, the transportation of every patriot Boer and his family who desired to come to the United States. He quizzed British officials on this subject, gained their approval of it, and had an appointment to consult with Mr. Kruger about it, which was only prevented by the governor's illness.

"It was his idea to interest some Michigan capitalists in the plan and provide lands for the Boers among the railroad systems. He thought that these capitalists could secure very low transportation rates from the seaboards to the farms, and he proposed to let the British government, in some roundabout way, provide the ships for the Boers' transportation from Africa to this country.

"A number of English officers now in South Africa, and some eminent public men in England, took this plan seriously and thought well of it, provided it could be carried out without the British government's aid in the matter becoming known.

"While studying the Black forest in the interest of his re-forestration idea, Governor Pingree even secured the names of a number of keepers who were willing to emigrate to Michigan and assume care of the forests he proposed to plant."

INTENTIONAL DUPLICATE EXPOSURE

A WEAK DEFENSE

Butchers Do Not Like Exposure of Their Methods.

Claim, of Course, They Are Making No Money.

Silly Bluff Made to Back Up Their Case.

It was hardly to be supposed that the local butchers' trust would sit supinely under the charge that it is engaged in a hold-up of a defenseless people. The article in The Herald Tuesday evening under the head "How the Butchers Raid the People" has aroused them, and John Cox, of Cox Bros., has made the following reply:

"The writer of the article, in which it is explained how the butchers raid the people, is not familiar with his subject, and does the butchers a great injustice. It is not true that we are charging exorbitant prices for meats, or making more than a fair profit on our sales. In cutting up a carcass of beef, even the most ignorant must be aware that it cannot all be sold for porterhouse or at porterhouse prices. The high-priced cuts form but a small percentage of the whole. Then should be considered the amount that has to be sold below cost, with the shrinkage on tallow, soup bones, etc. The dealer must get a good price out of the best cuts in order to make a fair average price on the whole, or he is sure to lose money.

"The prices quoted from the dealer at Proctorknott prove nothing. The quality of the beef is not given. Moreover, the dealer in question is having a little price war with a competitor, and is liable to make any kind of a figure to accomplish whatever he may have in view.

"It is true the retail dealers of Duluth have formed an association, but it object is not to maintain high prices. No uniform list of prices has been adopted, though the matter has been discussed.

"We will agree to furnish the writer of the story of the raid with porterhouse steaks, or any other kind of meat which may be sold in our market. For an entire year, if he can demonstrate by figures that any firm doing business on Superior street can, selling at the highest prevailing prices, make a net profit of 1 cent a pound on an entire carcass of beef, the kicker to pay a forfeit of $200 if he fails to do so."

The writer of the article referred to, who is also the writer of this one, is not in the meat business, except as a humble consumer within his means, but at the present prices imposed by the butchers' trust he expects that it will be only a short time before he will have contributed to the butchers the amount named in surplus profits, without putting it up on a lump in case his lack of technical knowledge of the business prevented his showing how much net profit there may be in a carcass. It is knowledge enough that the prices charged in Duluth are higher than they are anywhere else, and this does away with the need for any technical knowledge of the meat business.

The Herald is not in a position to take up the charming proposal of Mr. Cox of a year's free meat for the writer of the "raid" article, and in lieu of accepting it a bit of interesting information will be offered.

A large grocery house is now figuring on entering the field here, and is making a deal for a site in the growing business district on First street. By fall the new house will be established, and it will handle meat. It will not be forced to depend upon the packing houses for its supply in case they should stand in with the butchers' trust, but in that event it will handle meat direct from the producer, buying its cattle on the hoof and doing its own killing. It will be a large institution, with ample means and it will give the local butchers' trust a demonstration of how money can be made on meat at much lower prices than those demanded by the trust.

In being forced to decline the amiable proposition of Mr. Cox, The Herald is happy in being able to present this alternative, so that the matter will be satisfactorily demonstrated. It will then be shown that there is profit in much lower prices than those required of the people by the trust, and in order to save a little business the combine will be forced to accept a scale of prices not arranged within the close confines of the butchers' organization.

Almost the entire train of argument in Mr. Cox's reply is off the track, so to speak. He has not explained why it is that butchers near Duluth, and buying and selling under the same conditions, do not charge as high prices. He absolutely refused to refer to the scale of prices quoted by the Superior meat men, though it appeared that they were from 2 to 3 cents lower than those charged in Duluth, and that the Superior meat men have a similar combine to keep up prices.

In relation to the Proctorknott prices, Mr. Cox says that "the dealer in question is having a little price war with a competitor." Being interpreted, that means that there is competition in Proctorknott, and the low prices are the result. There is no competition in Duluth, and exorbitant, unjust and ridiculous prices are the result. The butchers have discovered in Duluth that competition is too good a thing for the consumer, as with every dealer watching every other dealer there is no possibility of any one of them charging unfair prices. So they got together and legislated competition in the meat business out of existence. Then they were able to place any price they wished on meat, and instead of being reasonable about it, they have sought to arrange prices so all of them could retire and build brick business blocks and flats in a short time, while the people pay the bill.

The facts presented in the former article remain unassailed by Mr. Cox's reply. The local butchers have a trust, they charge unfair prices for meat, they charge a third more than is charged where there is competition and considerably more than is charged in other places where combination is effective but less full of greed and audacity. It is an injury to the city that such a condition could exist, and if there is any possible manner of doing away with it, no step in that direction should be neglected.

ARE WEDDED.

Marriage of Miss Mary Sweeney and James D. Keough.

This morning at 9 o'clock, at the cathedral, the marriage of Miss Mary Pauline Sweeney, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Morgan Sweeney, and James D. Keough took place. It was a very handsome wedding, performed with the solemn rites of the Roman Catholic church, and the accompaniment of a nuptial mass. The church was filled with friends and relatives of the bride and groom.

Miss Theresa Lynn was at the organ, and as the wedding party entered and passed down the aisle, played the wedding march. The ushers were Stephen McCarthy, Ray Newell, James Wright, and J Donovan. Following them was the maid of honor, Miss Lou Fields, of Fargo, N. D. She was gowned in organdie over blue silk and carried roses. The bride was with her father, and wore a handsome gown of crepe du chien with real lace ornaments and carried bridal roses. At the altar the groom and his best man, Dr. Ernest Boland, of St. Paul, awaited the party.

The nuptial mass was said by Rev. Father O'Mahany, and the marriage ceremony was performed by Very Rev. Father Corbett. Miss Anna Carroll sang during the service.

Following the service at the church there was a wedding breakfast at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Sweeney, 127 West Fourth street, at which there were about forty guests. The house was prettily decorated with smilax, roses and ferns. The bride and groom received many congratulations and good wishes, both from friends at home and from abroad. There were a number of out-of-town friends here for the ceremony.

This evening, from 6 to 8 o'clock, there will be a reception at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Sweeney, at which a large number of the friends will meet the bride and groom.

Mr. and Mrs. Keough will leave on the steamer India at 9 o'clock for a trip down the lakes to Buffalo, New York and Boston, and will return about August 1 and make their home in Duluth.

The bride has been a resident of Duluth all her life, her parents being among the oldest residents of the city, and she has a wide circle of friends. Mr. Keough is one of the younger members of the board of trade, and has a fine business record.

MISSIONARIES SCORED.

Rochester, N. Y., June 20.—Bishop Potter, of New York, devoted a portion of his address before the Iota chapter of the Phi Betta Kappa College society Tuesday evening to a criticism of some misguided missionaries and of our consular service. Bishop Potter said:

"Who has not heard the Chinese spoken of as stolid in their ignorance? We defile the graves of the Chinese in our burying grounds, as I read in a paper but recently, and in the same breath boast of our superior accomplishments. I admire the noble lives of missionaries in foreign lands, but I am at a loss to account for the disregard of customs of those foreign countries by our missionaries. Also, is it too much to ask that some further measures of knowledge be required of those who are the official agents of our country in foreign lands? The consular service is mostly made up of men who are selected by the senators to pay debts to political heelers by forcing the hand of the executive. It constitutes a vast system of political swag, and is degrading to this high legislative body."

The Sun Becoming Extinct.

An eminent scientist has startled the world with the declaration that the heat of the sun is being exhausted. He assures us, however, that it will be many centuries before it takes place. In the meantime we should try and make the best of life and enjoy it while we have the opportunity. This, however, is impossible unless you have good health, and especially a strong stomach. Use Hostetter's Stomach Bitters to keep the stomach in order and you will be happy. It cures dyspepsia, constipation, biliousness, aids digestion and keeps the bowels regular. It has been the standard medicine of the American people over fifty years. Insist on having the genuine with our private revenue stamp over the neck of the bottle.

NAVAL RECRUITS

Lieut. Blamer Tells Something of Names For Promotions.

Experienced Engineers, Mechanics, Etc. Are In Demand.

Surgeon Crandall on Iowa In the Santiago Fight.

The naval recruiting station, which has been open here for a few days, has been very successful in securing men for Uncle Sam's navy. Up to the present time about twenty-five men have been obtained and by the time the office closes Saturday evening the total will be swelled to more than that.

Lieut. D. W. Blamer, who is in charge of the station at the federal building, was asked today something as to the services and the chances for promotion which these men enlisting in the navy have. He said:

"The chances were never better. During the last few years the ships of the navy have been rapidly increasing without a corresponding increase in the personnel until the last congress granted an increase of 6500 men. Those men are now being recruited from among the best class of men in all parts of the country, making the navy more truly representative of the nation than formerly when all the men were recruited from the coast cities. The modern battleship is such an intricate mass of machinery that by far the greatest percentage of the crew must be composed of skilled men of the highest intelligence, all of whom are petty officers with responsible positions.

"Take a battleship of the Wisconsin class, recently commissioned. Her crew is composed of over 500 men, 250 of whom are in the engineering department, with a commissioned officer at the head and his principal assistants being warrant machinists, who are promoted by competitive examination from the enlisted men in the navy. The remainder of the department is composed of chief machinists, machinists, firemen, oilers, water tenders and coal passers all of whom are petty officers excepting firemen and coal passers. Owing to the rapidly increasing application of electricity to the auxiliary machinery a large number of expert electricians are required, all of whom are petty officers.

"In the seaman branch specially trained men are required to man the turret and secondary batteries. This branch consists of the warrant officers of the line, boatswains, gunners and sailmakers, who are promoted from the enlisted men, and of the petty officers, boatswains' mates, coxswains', gunners' mates, besides the seamen, ordinary seamen, landsmen and apprentices.

"Regarding pay, an apprentice or landsman for training, enlisting at $9 or $16 per month, is eligible to promotion after good service to the positions of boatswain and gunner, getting from $1200 to $1800 per year, with a position for life and retirement after long service. A machinist enlisting at $40 per month is eligible to promotion to warrant machinist at $1200 to $1800 per year.

"One of the most attractive features of making the navy a life career is the certainty of being provided for in sickness and old age.

"Besides the main divisions of the crew into the seamen and engineering branches, the crew of the Wisconsin has a large number of men in the medical, pay and accounting departments, as well as all kinds of men in the artificer branches, such as carpenters, blacksmiths, painters, etc., and the flagships carry a band of twenty or more pieces.

"None but American born or naturalized citizens are taken. The term of enlistment is four years."

Dr. Crandall, the surgeon of the recruiting party now here, was on the battleship Iowa when the delegation of prominent Iowans, including several state and ex-state officers went to Newport to present its officers with a silver set, the gift of the state the ship was named for. Ensign Walter McCarthy, who was appointed to Annapolis from Des Moines, was also on the Iowa at that time, and is a warm personal friend of Dr. Crandall's. Dr. Crandall is an interesting man. Besides having been all over the world, from whence he has gathered all sorts of peculiar odds and ends in the way of curios, he has the honor of being a member of the "Lambs' Club," the celebrated theatrical organization of New York city. He carries a trunkload of relics, not the least interesting of which are piles and piles of autograph pictures of actors and actresses which would fire the blood of the most diminutive gallery god. Such celebrities as May Irwin, Robert Hilliard, Jeff De Angelis, John Drew, etc., may be seen at the genial doctor's room at the Spalding. The doctor is also an artist of no mean ability on the zither.

Dr. Crandall was a surgeon on board the Iowa during the Spanish-American war, and participated in five bombardments and one fleet engagement, the latter being the destruction of Admiral Cervera's ships when the attempt was made to escape from Santiago harbor.

"Among the seventy wounded Spanish prisoners we cared for on the Iowa," said Dr. Crandall today, "were Admiral Cervera and Capt. Eulate of the Viscaya. The junior surgeon of the Viscaya, although wounded, assisted me in my work among the wounded and refused to receive attention until all the others had been cared for.

"There is a little incident of that battle which I have never seen in print. After the Viscaya lowered her flag and surrendered, we ceased firing. In the meantime the people who had been below working the Viscaya's guns came on deck, as the ship was burning furiously. Suddenly a Spanish flag was raised, and supposing they had decided to renew the engagement, we opened fire again with disastrous results. The flag was finally lowered again, but not until several hundred lives had been sacrificed. It was afterwards discovered that the flag raised was a little silk affair given Capt. Eulate by the ladies of Madrid, and he had promised them he would go down with the flag flying rather than surrender his ship. It was a costly bit of sentiment after all.

The officers and men who had been made prisoners were handsomely treated on the Iowa, and were delighted to think they got off so easily. Before Capt. Eulate went below to have his wounds dressed he took one last look at his ship, which was in flames, and said: 'Adois, my beautiful Viscaya.' He had barely uttered the words when the ship blew up. He had previously tendered his sword to Capt. "Bob" Evans, who refused it, saying, 'It is yours, you keep it.' The next day the wounded were transferred to the hospital ship and Admiral Cervera and the officers received elegant quarters on the St. Louis."

One of Dr. Crandall's most prized photographs is one of Admiral Cervera, who has written a short greeting in Spanish and his name across its bottom.

Wholesale Arrests Promised July 1---Owners Talk of Fight.

The police department is compiling a dog directory. Officers have carefully secured the names of every dog owner in the city, and the number, age, color and disposition of dogs owned by these persons. It is a new plan of campaign for the enforcing of the dog license ordinance, and was designed by Chief Crandall for the specific purpose of making trouble to all dog owners who neglect to take out license by July 1.

This new measure is rather stringent, and it is expected to have the same effect on delinquent owners of dogs that a tin can has on the dog when connected from behind.

For a time the owners of dogs complied with the requests of the department and took out licenses very rapidly, but there has been a great falling off in the past few days. Many owners have defied the department point blank, saying that they would not take out licenses. They are now given till July 1, and after that arrests may be made on the wholesale order. Chief Crandall says that he has a list of twenty dog owners who will be arrested on that day unless they take out licenses.

Many persons seek to escape the paying of a dog license by promising to dispose of the dog. Under the ruling of the city attorney's office, any person having a dog on May 1 last is subject to pay a license even if the dog was disposed of the following day.

What is more this ruling has been sustained in the municipal court, so that those persons who have disposed of dogs after receiving the police warning are not likely to stand much chance.

To date 1050 licenses have been taken out netting the city a revenue of $1162. The Police Relief association receives half of all the dog license money above $500.

The dog directory shows that there are something like 2000 dogs in the city, so that only about half the licenses have been collected, though the time for collections is sixty days overdue.

In speaking of the dog directory yesterday, Chief Crandall said: "We will collect the dog license if we have to arrest every dog owner whose name is not checked off on our books. It is just as essential that the people should pay this license as it is for their personal property tax. The collection has been entrusted to the police department, and while we are handicapped for want of officers, yet we have the matter pretty thoroughly in hand and will give owners of dogs who are delinquent in paying this tax just about another week in which to come in and settle."

SOUTH DAKOTA CROPS.

Wheat Showing Up Well Since Rain.

The report of the crop condition in South Dakota for the week ending Monday is as follows:

The temperature during the week averaged a little below the normal with mostly cool nights.

There was much cloudy and showery weather, and the rainfall during the week was copious to heavy generally.

The conditions, on the whole, caused thrifty progress and development in oats, barley, spring and winter rye, early flax, grass, and especially wheat, and were favorable for germination of flax and millet sown since the dry weather of two weks ago; but not generally favorable for corn.

Wheat is generally in thrifty condition, mostly good height, jointing, and promising very well, and while there is considerable in some northern localities, and scattered localities elsewhere, that is weedy, reports indicate that the frost of the 7th checked the weeds, and subsequent thriftiness of the wheat diminished the weediness to some extent.

The greater portion of the frost-damaged corn, and nearly all the potatoes and flax, are recovering well, though slowly, but the frost, and cut-worms have necessitated replanting of many fields of corn to flax, millet or other fodder crop. Corn is generally backward, needs warmth and sunshine, and rains have retarded cultivation.

Winter rye is generally filling well and there is some early barley in head.

The condition of grass is very much improved, pasturage is generally good, and the prospect for hay is good and improving. Much improved condition of pasturage on the range west of the Missouri river is reported.

Where not affected by the frost of the 7th, potatoes, flax and millet have made good progress. Flax and millet seeding is still in progress, under very favorable conditions for prompt germination.

D. A. R. Chapter Meeting.

A paper was read on "The Life of Mrs. Thomas Jefferson," also one on the "Life of Dolly Madison." After a pleasant social time, the hostess served refreshments, and the chapter adjourned to meet at Lester Park on the last Wednesday in July for its annual picnic.

The Wheat Market Very Weak and Declines Sharply.

The Opening Was Fairly Strong on Good Cables.

Offset By Good Crop Prospects Throughout the Northwest.

Duluth Board of Trade, June 20.—There was a fair amount of strength shown at the opening of the wheat market this morning, owing to the cable news showing an advance of ½d at Liverpool, and the initial trading was at a slight gain over yesterday's closing prices. The effect of the bullish cables, however, was offset by the good crop prospects throughout the Northwest, and prices declined from the opening figures. New York reported 60 loads of wheat worked for export. Clearances of wheat and flour were 580,901 bus. Primary receipts were 465,502 bus, last year 619,666. The cash demand for wheat is said to be weakening. Receipts of wheat at Duluth are large now, but it is largely wheat that is coming in from Minneapolis.

Receipts at Duluth and Minneapolis, 329 cars, against 329 last week and 314 last year. Chicago receipts, 66 cars, none of contract grade.

Trading in futures was active on the Duluth board. July wheat opened ⅛c off at 69c, sold down to 67¾c at 10:30, reacted to 68c at 10:39, fell back to 67¾c at 11:40, rallied to 68-⅛c at 12:16, sold down again to 67⅞c, at 12:30 and closed at 68¼c, a decline of 1c. Chicago declined ½c and Minneapolis 1c.

Cash sales were 15,000 bus, at July price. Trading in coarse grains was very quiet and there was little change in prices, oats advancing ½c and all other coarse grains closing unchanged.

Following are the closing prices:

Wheat—No. 1 hard—Cash, 71c; to arrive and July, 71¼c; September, 65⅝c. No. 1 northern—Cash, 68c; to arrive and July, 68¼c; September, 67⅝c. No. 2 northern, 63c. No. 3 spring, 59c. Oats, 28-27¾c. Rye, 48¾c. Flax—Cash, $1.80; September, $1.33½; September Northwestern, $1.34½c; October, $1.30.

Car inspection—Wheat, 98; corn, 3; oats, 16; flax, 3. Receipts—Wheat, 160,316; corn, 9211; oats, 30,881; rye, 6101; flax, 311. Shipments—Wheat, 227,733; corn, 32,300; oats, 5824.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Crop Prospects Depressed Both Wheat and Corn.

Chicago, June 20.—Foreign news favored holders of wheat at the opening. The good crop prospects throughout the Northwest overbalanced the effect of the higher Liverpool cables, however, and September, which opened a shade higher at 68¾c, declined slowly to 68⅜c. Minneapolis and Duluth reported 329 cars against 329 the same time last week and 314 a year ago. Local receipts were 66 cars, none of contract grade.

September touched 68¾c and closed ⅝c lower at 68⅜c.

Reports of fine crop prospects depressed corn. The commission houses had large offerings of July, but buyers were scarce. September opened a shade lower at 44⅜c, touched 44½c and rallied on covering to 44⅝@44¾c. Receipts 166 cars, 5 of contract grade.

After touching 44½c September rallied on cash demand to 44¾c and closed steady and unchanged at 45⅜@¾c.

Oats were easier on rains in the West. September opened a shade lower at 26½@26⅝c, and held steady. Receipts were 148 cars.

Provisions were dull and featureless. September pork opened 2½@5c higher at $15.00@15.02½, and eased off to $14.95; September lard was a shade higher at $8.77½; September ribs also opened a shade higher at $8.17½.

MARKET GOSSIP.

Received over private wire of B. E. Baker, grain and stock broker, 307 Board of Trade, Duluth, Minn.:

Chicago, June 20.—Wheat—The weather throughout the Southwest where harvesting is in progress, continues slightly showery, but without any complains from that quarter so far. This fact, however, has the effect of lessening the selling pressure on the market for the time being. Trade is small and the buying scattered and poor. The tendency of prices seems to be slowly downward. The seaboard reports fair business for export but presumably larger for future shipment. On the whole the weather continues favorable for all purposes.

The corn market was steady and the volume of trading small. Light receipts at primary markets continue to be the principal bull factor. Aside from this we see very little that is bullish in the situation, but the fact remains that selling pressure is at the moment light and the tone of market fairly strong. Shipping demand is only moderate.

The oats market was quiet and steady. There is not much selling pressure either from long oats or from short sellers. The matter being deterred by talk of July manipulation. The country is bullish on oats on inferior crop prospects. Our advices would indicate that the crop outlook is much better on the whole than it was three weeks ago and we do not believe much in July manipulation.

The provision market was steady and about unchanged. Receipts of hogs and cash demand are about the same as last year and packers, as a rule, are not favorable to advancing. Accumulation of product is, however, slow and outside speculative feeling seems rather strong. Market shows no weakness at the advance. Receipts of hogs at primary points 73,000, against same last year.

GOOD CROPS

New York, June 19.—Premier Roebling of Manitoba, a Montreal dispatch to the Times says, has just had a long conference with T. G. Shaughnessy, president of the Canadian Pacific railroad, and at its conclusion he announced that he had arranged for the building by the company of about eight miles of branch lines in Manitoba for a cash bonus of $75,000 to be paid by the province. The branches are to be built to give farmers a chance to market their grain.

"Never in the history of Manitoba has there been such an abundant promise of good crops," said Premier Roebling. "We have this year 2,000,000 acres of wheat. We expect to get between 40,000,000 and 60,000,000 bushels of wheat."

TRANSIT BILLS.

Governor Stone Signs Supplemental Measure.

Harrisburg, Pa., June 20.—Governor Stone this morning signed the two supplemental rapid transit bills which passed the house yesterday. One of them constitutes the governor, secretary of state and attorney general, a board to pass on future applications for rapid transit charters, the first removes ambiguity from the original bill by providing that under one charter either an elevated or an underground road, or both, or one partly elevated and partly underground may be constructed.

PRESIDENT OF WABASH.

New York, June 20.—At a meeting today of the directors of the Wabash Railroad company, President Ashley was elected chairman of the board, and Vice President Ramsey was advanced to the presidency.

THE BURLINGTON.

Boston, June 20.—The directors of the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy Railroad company, held their regular monthly meeting here today, but aside from considering questions of private concern, nothing was done, according to reports made at the close of the session. It is learned that the Great Northern-Northern Pacific mortgage, covering the Chicago Burlington & Quincy stock probably will be formally executed within a few days.

AT TIEN TSIN.

Chinese Troops Have Been Allowed to Occupy Small Places.

Tien Tsin, June 20.—Chinese troops, with the permission of the allied forces, are occupying several small places in the neighborhood of Yang Tsun, recently vacated by foreign troops.

Gen. Lorne Campbell says the delinquents in the recent difficulties between soldiers of the allies will be severely punished. Similar troubles are not likely to occur again.

Gen. Voyron, the French commander, has heartily co-operated with the British commander and is determined, so far as the French are concerned, that order shall be maintained.

MOST ENCOURAGING.

Washington, June 20.—Mrs. McKinley's condition continues to improve and Dr. Rixey speaks most encouragingly of her case. Preparations are being made at the White House for the departure of the president and Mrs. McKinley to Canton, the first week in July. Dr. Rixey, Secretary Cortelyou and one of the White House stenographers will accompany the president.

PRESSURE IN STOCKS

Caused Some Declines After Opening With Good Advances.

Iowa Central Stocks Were Unusually Heavy and Strong.

Market Became Semi-Stagnant and the Close Was Dull.

New York, June 20.—London made some wide advances over night in price of Americans. The opening quotations here were higher than last night generally, but not up to the London parity. Union Pacific advanced ⅜ compared with a gain of 1¾ in London and St. Paul rose 1⅝ compared with an advance of 2¼ in London. There were gains of about a point here in Atchison, St. Louis and Francisco, Minneapolis & St. Louis and Colorado Fuel, and Sugar rose 1½. A few stocks showed small fractional losses.

International stocks were the leaders in the decline which set in directly after the opening. The failure of the market to reflect any of the London strength discouraged long buying and professional bears offered leading stocks. St. Paul, St. Louis & San Francisco common, and Atchison lost their advance and Amalgamated Copper, Missouri Pacific and St. Louis & San Francisco second preferred sold 1¾ to 2 under yesterday's close. Liquidation was renewed in Colorado Fuel and it lost 7 points each, Tennessee Coal over 2. Prominent stocks generally were under pressure, but there were scattered points of strength in the inactive quarter. Minneapolis & St. Louis improved ½, General Electric 2½ and Northwestern, Chicago Great Western, C. & St. Louis, Consolidated Gas, Distilling preferred, Malting preferred, Smelting preferred and Iowa Central 1 to 3.

Iowa Central stocks were unusually active and strong in sympathy with Minneapolis & St. Louis. The common stock rose 4 points easily to 42, and the preferred 3¼ to 69¾. As the general selling became less, the traders bid up special stocks. St. Paul, Atchison, Union Pacific and Southern Pacific got up to about their opening figures. Vanderbilt stocks were bought in anticipation of dividend announcement tomorrow. Tennessee Coal advanced 4¼ and Chicago & Eastern Illinois reacted 4⅝ and rallied 3⅜. General Electric extended its gain to 8 points. Bonds were firm.

The market fell into a condition of semi-stagnation. Gains in the Iowa Central stocks reached 4 for common and 4½ for preferred, and Colorado Fuel scored a full recovery of 7 points. Minneapolis, St. Paul & Sault Ste. Marie rose 1¼ and the preferred 1¾. General Electric rose 15 points in all. The weakness of Amalgamated Copper, which got 4 points below the highest, affected the general market. Northwestern dropped 3, Lackawanna and Rock Island 2, and Virginia-Carolina Chemical 2¾. Amalgamated Copper rallied 2 points on the declaration of a dividend, but the closing generally was dull and heavy.

STOCK GOSSIP.

Waldorf gossipito Edwards, Wood & Co.—While the course of the market is disappointing to over-sanguine holders, the best houses in the street are still confident that the outcome of the current manipulation which they declare to be for the purpose of accumulating stocks will be activity and a renewed advance that will carry prices in many cases higher than ever before. It is the testimony of leading brokers that pending arrangements for the heavy July interest and dividend disbursements, and in view of the uncertainty as to the demand for gold the interests which can control the market when so disposed are keeping fluctuations narrow just now, and are even encouraging the professional element to work for lower prices. Hence room traders taking advantage of this indifference are aggressively bearish and the short interest is increasing. On the other hand, steady absorption for investment, particularly in the case of dividend stocks, is constantly lessening the floating supply of these securities so that when the bears turn to cover a substantial rally is regarded as inevitable. Much of the prevailing selling is in anticipation of the bank statement. The latter is pretty certain to be bad. Many railway statements already being counted on as a potent factor in the coming bull speculation. It is stated that the earnings of the Atchisons for both May and June have exceeded the most confident expectations of the officials, while Southern Pacific's May exhibit may break all records. There is good ground for the statement that the recent buying of these securities have based on their steady increasing revenues.

New York to Baker—An evening paper says: "Considerable interest is being manifested as to the number of stockholders of United States Steel. There are thought to be about 20,000 shareholders. It is estimated that over six thousand new stockholders, that is, names which were not on the books of the constituent companies, have been enrolled since

New York to Edwards, Wood & Co.—It is the settled conviction of the street that the United States Steel company at the meeting of directors on July 2, will declare a regular quarterly dividend of 1 per cent on the common stock. No direct official confirmation of this can be obtained at this time as all of the officers are very reticent in regard to the matter. It is a fact, however, that the by-laws of the company have been so drawn as to permit the directors to begin payment of such dividends at the same time as the dividend on the preferred. This is regarded as significant.

New York—Many are of the opinion that big men are selling stocks whenever the market permits to market a line of stock. The short duration of the strong spots suggests this view correct at the moment. Rather limited market for any quantity certain selling would cause quick declines. The rapid decline in C. F. I. has no pyramiding and taking more of it, have had to return sellers on the disappointing showing of United States Steel not taking it over. There has been no inside support on the decline.

THE COTTON MARKET.

New York, June 20.—Cotton opened quiet and firm with prices up 2 to 5 points on covering and some foreign buying, prompted by a firmer ruling of the Liverpool market than expected and surprisingly good trade accounts from Manchester and Fall River. The market hardened rapidly, July advanced to 8.24, August to 7.75, October to 7.41, and January to 7.42. There were reactionary movements later but the undertone of the market held firm.

Klepstein & Co. vs. James Roberts, state comptroller, that a foreign corporation is taxable on its capital stock under the corporation tax law of this state, if it shall transact business in this state, although the business is in the nature of interstate traffic. TRAFFIC DIRECTOR

An Absolutely New Plan In the Management of Railroads.

Traffic to Be Divorced From Other Interests of Roads.

One Man to Have Full Charge For Several Corporations.

San Francisco, June 20.—J. C. Stubbs, vice president of the Southern Pacific, whose appointment as traffic manager of the vast system of railroads controlled by the Harriman interests was announced from Chicago, has arrived in this city. In speaking of the innovation to be introduced in railroad methods by the creation of the position to which he has just been appointed, Mr. Stubbs explained the matter by saying that Mr. Harriman had been considering for sometime the feasibility and practicability of divorcing the traffic of the lines he is interested in from the other affairs of the road. He has talked over the scheme with other gentlemen who helped to frame the policy and direct the fortunes of the Union Pacific and Southern Pacific, and has evolved a plan which, in Harriman's opinion, ought to accomplish the heretofore impossible task of harmonizing the interests of the several Harriman roads. As Mr. Stubbs puts it, is is a plan to bring about a unification of interests with a reduction of friction and the elimination of unnecessary competition, without consolidating the properties under one management. Under this plan one man is to have entire charge of the traffic of the several corporations and in order effectually to divorce the traffic of the other affairs of the road this official will report directly to the board. The position of power and responsibility, comparable to none in the history of railroading, was offered to Mr. Stubbs and he accepted. The plan is an absolutely new one in railroading. Mr. Stubbs does not even know what title will be bestowed upon him.

"I suppose," he said, "that it will be 'traffic director,' or 'director of traffic.' That is a matter of detail that has not been considered as yet.

"In a word," Mr. Stubbs went on to explain, "I am to be placed in entire charge of the traffic of the Southern Pacific, the Union Pacific, the Oregon Railway and Navigation Co., and the Oregon Short Line, and I will report to the board of directors of the several companies. That means that I am to report direct to Mr. Harriman. The organization is simply this: Each company has its board of directors and each board of directors has an executive committee, presided over by a chairman. When the board of directors is in session it is supreme, and when the board is not in session and the executive committee is holding a meeting, the executive committee is supreme. When the executive committee is not in session, the chairman of the committee runs things. E. H. Harriman is chairman of the executive committee of the four roads.

The other Harriman roads, such as the Illinois Central and the Chicago & Alton are not embraced in this arrangement. My responsibilities will be confined to the lines west of the river. This is the territory within which all traffic troubles have existed. There have been pools and gentlemen's agreements and they have all failed to solve the problem. Now Mr. Harriman purposes to try this experiment of handling the traffic of the lines over which he presides.

"I am relied upon to show Mr. Harriman and his assistants that a systematic readjustment of the traffic methods of the several roads in harmonious lines and an economic administration of the affairs of the traffic departments will be attended by greater profit. Mr. Harriman has such an idea and I am to demonstrate it to him in practice. It is all new and experimental. The pathway is unblazed. Whether the result will justify the experiment remains to be seen. I have no idea whether or not the arrangement will be permanent. Because of the novelty of my new position and because will live henceforth in Chicago instead of San Francisco, I am not as happy over the change as I might be."

Mr. Stubbs said that the new arrangement respecting himself was a complete surprise to the presidents of the Southern Pacific and Union Pacific as it was to railroad men in the country, who were not prepared to see such a revolution in the methods of conservative railroad corporations. Mr. Stubbs was asked if his promotion would be attended by any other changes in the general office of the Southern Pacific or in traffic departments of the other roads with which he will henceforth be identified. He said he saw no reason for any changes and believed that all the present officials would hold their positions.

Mr. Stubbs said that when he left Chicago a plan was being perfected to place the traffic of the Northern Pacific, the Great Northern and the Burlington in the hands of Darius Miller, at present second

I. O. O. F. OF STATE

Annual Session of the Grand Lodge at St. Paul.

Many Representatives and Members Are In Attendance.

The Rebekah Assembly Also Met at Same Time.

St. Paul, June 20.—Over 500 representatives and members of Minnesota Odd Fellows lodges are in attendance at the session of the grand lodge, which convened at the state capitol, St. Paul, yesterday.

The session opened in the representatives' hall with the conferring of the grand lodge degree upon 250 new members.

Business in connection with the Odd Fellows' home at Northfield was taken up. The most important question was whether the number of trustees of the home should be reduced from twelve to nine.

Should the grand lodge decide to retain the twelve trustees, it will be necessary to elect five at this session. The terms of four expire and one vacancy has been caused by the death of M. W. Clay, of Hutchinson, during the year.

The members of the grand lodge will go to Northfield on a special train Friday to visit the home.

Only one officer is to be elected, and that is the grand master. At the last election there were six candidates for this office. None of the candidates at the last election received the required one-third. S. A. Farnsworth, of St. Paul, led with 576; C. A. Fosnes, of Montevideo, was next with 377, and William McGregor, of Minneapolis, was third, with 292. The contest in the grand lodge is between the three.

Another proposition over which there will be some debate is to reduce the fees for the first, second and third degrees from $5 to $2 each. Grand Master Van Praag, in his annual report, recommends that this be done.

Grand Master Van Praag reports that four new lodges were instituted during the year, at Breckenridge, Minnesota, Hendricks and Minnes Lake. There was one consolidation, Duluth and Silver lodges, at Duluth, joining under the name of the former.

Reports from the deputies show an increase of 1260 in the membership of the order during the past year, and, allowing for suspensions, there has been a net gain of 1000.

The report of Grand Secretary Bolton shows the total membership of the 252 lodges of the state to have been at the close of the year 17,020, of which 441 withdrew by card, 862 were suspended, 154 died, 8 were expelled and in the correction of reports 18 additional were dropped leaving the actual membership 15,927.

The financial statement shows receipts for the year to the amount of $182,367.86, and expenditures to the amount of $118,778.29. Of the expenditures $29,506.86 was for relief. The total assets of the order in this state aggregate in value $843,112.01, of which the largest item is real estate and invested funds to the amount of $601,140.42.

The grand secretary recommends that the length of the grand lodge sessions be increased from two days to three, as the present session of two days is said to be too short to allow proper consideration of all measures to come before it.

Distribution—Ed A. Stevens, D. W. Stevens, I. C. Stevens, James Stevenson, E. W. Stearns.

Judiciary—C. A. Fosnes, Charles A. Lambert, H. W. Phillips, B. F. McGregor, J. L. Lobben.

General legislation—W. G. Nye, George G. S. Campbell, Charles Griswold, Joseph Bergfeld, W. W. Churchhill.

State of the order—August Hohenstein, W. C. Bacon, William Cross, J. D. Murray, W. L. Hoover.

Finance—J. Newsalt, W. C. Leber, Samuel Rapson, Thomas J. St. Germain.

Mileage and per diem—D. H. Stimson, M. T. Dunn, R. E. Barragan, B. W. Disney.

St. Paul, June 20.—The Rebekah assembly, I. O. O. F., of Minnesota, opened its annual convention yesterday at Central hall with 173 delegates present, each representing a Minnesota lodge. Mrs. Maria Anderson, of Rochester, the state president, occupied the chair, and the other officers present were:

Vice president, Mrs. May E. Johnson, Appleton; warden, Mrs. Annie M. Easton, Warren; secretary, Mrs. Eunice Melville, Minneapolis; treasurer, Mrs. Bertha Leber, Minneapolis.

Mrs. Anderson made the following official appointments:

Marshal, Mary Christianson, Winnebago City; conductor, Minnie Randall, St. Paul; assistant conductor, Olive Tait, St. Paul; chaplain, Sadie Greer, Lanesboro; outside guardian, Jessie Gunther, Minneapolis; assistant secretary, Eloise Hayford, St. Paul.

The president gave a detailed report of the year's work. She suggested that were the members of the subordinate lodges to study more closely the constitution and code in the lodge room, they could thereby considerably lighten the labors of the president by making her correspondence lighter. She had found the district meetings very helpful in increasing the enthusiasm of subordinate lodges.

Secretary Eunice Melville reported an increase in membership of 66 persons and 3 lodges. The present membership is 9095 individuals and 182 lodges. Of the 9095 members 5687 are women and 3408 men.

The secretary recommended that the observance of Sept. 2 as a special donation day for the Odd Fellows' home at Northfield be made an annual custom in Rebekah lodges. Sept. 2, 1901, is the fiftieth anniversary of the birth of the organization, and the secretary recommended that the golden jubilee be marked by especially large offerings.

The president appointed the following committees:

Legislation—Martha Collins, Albertina Blair, Flory Tenny, Hattie Davis, Mary Corton.

Distribution—Nellie Cross, Cora Pettle, Stella Davis, Ida Schmidt, Etta M. Nye.

State of the order—Martha Gates, Mary Wilde, Lulu Halverson, Lydia C. Burnett, Irene Marsh, Alice Kelsey.

Finance — Irene Bacon, Margaret Schuetz, Emma Cleem, Josie Crabtree, Alice Kelsey.

Last evening at the house of representatives, in the capitol, a degree staff picked from the Minneapolis lodges exemplified the work of the order, Treasurer Bertha Leber conducting.

LYNCHED.

"Prophet" Smith and a Companion Strung Up By a Mob.

Shreveport, La., June 20.—Frank, better known as "Prophet" Smith and F. D. McLand, held at Benton for complicity in the murder of John Gray Foster, were taken out by a mob last night and strung up to a tree. They were left dangling side by side. The lynching occurred on the Arkansas road about a mile and a half from jail. Both negroes made statements before death denying that they had anything to do with the killing. Smith, who was head of the "Church of God" movement in that section was blamed as being responsible for the sentiment against the whites which led to the death of Foster, died praying. McLand was silent as he was strung up.

As Smith was being led from the jail prior to the execution he was heard to say: "Lord, you promised to be with me now."

There was about 20 armed men in the mob and they overpowered the sheriff and jailer, taking the keys away from them. The lynchers claimed that the execution of these negroes was necessary to the preservation of the lives of the white men in this locality.

GOT RECORDS.

Foleyites, Five Hundred Strong, Removed Them From Sauk Rapids.

Sauk Rapids, Minn., June 20.—Five hundred Foleyites were present yesterday morning at daybreak assisting in removing the records and furnishings of the offices in the court house to Foley. Many teams were used in conveying the same to that place. The court house presents a very forlorn appearance as if a cyclone had struck it. A protest is being filed by the village of Sauk Rapids against the removal of the county seat, and the fight promises to be more brisk than ever. In the meantime the county officers will do the county business at various places at Foley. W. F. Ewert, a lawyer who located in Sauk Rapids two years ago, and who has been working in the interest of Foley, is obliged to have the protection of the sheriff and is in danger of mob violence. He was obliged to take lodging in St. Cloud and be rotten-egged by a gang. No blood has been spilled, but things are at a white heat. The officers accompanied their records to Foley. The excitement is intense.

NOT A CANDIDATE.

Allison Does Not Want to Be President.

Des Moines, June 19.—Governor Leslie M. Shaw received this afternoon a letter from Senator Allison replying to the governor's telegram of Saturday last, suggesting the senator's name for the presidential nomination by the Republicans in 1904.

Governor Shaw states that the letter is purely personal, but admitted that under no circumstances will he be a candidate for the nomination. Senator Allison assured the governor that he is in favor of the latter being a candidate.

MURDERER DESPAIRS

Lew Weeks, Who Killed His Paramour at Flint, Mich.

He Would Have Welcomed Lynching at One Time.

Knows That He Is Surely Facing Life Imprisonment.

Flint, Mich., June 20.—One of the most miserable of men is William Louis Weeks, confined in jail here charged with the murder of Mrs. Jennie Parrish, whom he killed a few days ago while in a jealous rage. The murderer is just 42 years old, six feet tall, with spare features, and hair just turning to gray. His mustache is thin and drooping and his eyes are a faded blue. He has been twice married and has three children by his first wife. His second wife, who knows that he killed Mrs. Parrish because he loved her, has not abandoned him, but visits him daily in the jail and does what she can to comfort him.

"Lew" Weeks, as he was known about the town and in the factory where he was employed, is confined in a narrow cell in the little jail. He has but recently been brought there from the Lapeer jail, where he was first confined, through fear of Sheriff Rust that the angry citizens of Flint would lynch him. The cell and the corridor on which it fronts are the most uninviting places, imaginable, gloomy, low, rusty; the floors constructed of boiler iron, joined together by huge straps and rivets that protrude upwards and make walking difficult.

The murderer seems to harmonize completely with his environments. He is gloomy, rusty, and apparently as hard in flesh as the iron cot bed on which he spends most of the time. The crime which he committed and the punishment which is to follow has left their impress on his features, and very often he buries his head in the pillow on his cot and groans in the agony of his soul. He came to the cell door this morning to accept a cigar offered by a caller, and then he retired to the cot and buried his head in the bed clothes. He came again to the cell door and talked. He said:

"No, I wasn't afraid of being lynched; why should I be afraid? What have I got to live for? Wouldn't it have been better for me if I had been lynched? Perhaps, however, it is better for my children that I wasn't. Don't you think so? Please don't ask me about the crime; I didn't realize what I was doing at the time. I don't seem to realize it now. I wish I would wake up in my old home and find that it was all a dream. But I won't, will I?

"Yes, my wife comes to see me and she tries to do what she can to make me feel better, but I'll never feel any better than I do now. Sometimes when working in the factory I used to think that the world was pretty hard on me, as wages were small and I had a good many mouths to feed, but I didn't know then what hardship was. Now I do. If a man commits a great crime the law of the land places him in hell, where I am now. The law of God isn't so cruel; at least I don't think so."

The murderer became more gloomy, if possible, than he had been before. His pale, blue eyes had in them a far-away expression, and he seemed to be thinking of the time when he was free, when he could play cards in the saloon and drink with the boys at the big, wet bar. And then his thoughts came suddenly up to the moment of his crime when he fired the bullets into the heart of a woman, and he shuddered and then went back to his cot and lay face downward on the pillow. His face was wet with tears when he arose and as white as Carrara marble.

At times my back was so lame and sore that I could scarcely straighten. The kidney secretions were irregular, unnatural in appearance and I was also troubled a great deal with dull, persistent headaches. I was induced to go to W. A. GROSS FRAUD.

Judge Administers Scathing Rebuke to Defunct Mining Company.

Minneapolis, June 20.—Judge Pond, of the Hennepin county court, filed his order appointing Albert H. Hall receiver for the insolvent American Mining and Investment company, and in the memoranda which accompanies this order he says:

"The information charges this company with repeated acts ultra vires the corporation, with gross misuse and abuse of its franchises, with the rankest and most glaring misrepresentation, deceit and fraud, and in effect with a course of business conduct so steeped in iniquity and sin as to stagger human belief.

"In the face of these charges, the corporation does no more than to formally file with the clerk its general denial and hasten to avoid investigation by admitting facts sufficient to warrant the court in granting the relief prayed for. That such an apparently rotten and corrupt concern as this could exist for a time and thrive in any community is a sad comment upon the intelligence of its patrons, and no less so on the morals of a people permitting it.

"While there was no investigation made at the hearing, I am satisfied from the admissions made and from the matters set forth in the information (which cannot be controverted) that the charges of criminal conduct on the part of the officials of this company are substantially correct. It is difficult to find language in which to properly characterize the acts of these officials, but it is not too much to say that highway robbery and burglary become commonplace as compared with the enormity of such studied fraud and devilry as appear to have been practiced.

"If the managers, Charles R. Tuttle and Thos. Hancock, are guilty of these offenses as they appear to be, they should be apprehended and securely nailed to the prison cross for a term which would teach them and other like evil-doers, that justice is still alive and cannot thus be trifled with. With this end in view, the court earnestly calls the attention of the present grand jury of the county to the alleged criminal conduct of these two men, with the hope that these matters may be thoroughly investigated by them, and, if the facts warrant, that they be held to answer for their misdeeds before the bar of this court."

The attorney general attempted to bring about an agreement that permitted Mr. Hall to be receiver for the National Mining and Promoting company, as well as for the American, but Jesse Van Valkenberg, attorney representing the company, would not agree, though it was shown that the two concerns were practically the same.

The attorney general will now try to force a receivership for the National.

Mr. Van Valkenberg objected to Hall as receiver because he represents alleged victims.

ASKS PRESIDENT

To Withhold Proclamation Opening Indian Lands.

Washington, June 20.—Former Congressman Springer, who is counsel for the Kiowa, Comanche and Apache Indians, in their suit to enjoin the secretary of the interior from opening up to settlement the reservation in Oklahoma, yesterday filed with the president a memorial praying that he exercise his discretion under the law and withhold the issuance of his proclamation for six months after the final allotments to the Indians are made and thus give congress an opportunity to repeal the present law. The memorial says that Lone Wolf, one of the chiefs of the Kiowas, is a Baptist minister, and that others of the Indians are Christians, and prays that the president will not send these men back to tell the members of their tribe that a Christian country would defraud them of their lands.

Mr. Springer says if the lower court refuses an injunction the case will be carried to the supreme court of the United States.

IN MICHIGAN.

Houghton—In a horse racing carnival at Houghton Tuesday afternoon one of the favorites of the track Jerry T, valued at several thousand dollars, dropped dead on the home stretch in the last heat of the free-for-all from over-heat and the bursting of a blood vessel.

Iron Mountain—William Fox, who has been under treatment for smallpox at Iron Mountain since the first of this month, has been pronounced well. This does not mean that he will leave the detention hospital immediately, as he will be held until all danger of infection is over. People of Iron Mountain are now pretty well over their scare and it is not believed that there will be any more cases of the dread disease there.

Durawa, alias Hartwell, whom Sheriff Zillmer, of Milwaukee, last week located in the Iron Mountain jail, where he is serving a ninety days' sentence for the larceny of a pair of shoes, has refused to return to the Wisconsin city. The sheriff has gone back to Milwaukee, but he will be in Iron Mountain when Durawa's term expires to arrest him for the burglary of a cement plant in the Third ward, Milwaukee. Durawa has a long record of arrests and he is generally regarded as being a pretty bad man.

Powers—Eric Carlson, who was run over by a Northwestern train at Powers while stealing a ride, receiving terrible injuries, died in a Menominee hospital. Carlson had a wonderful vitality, but his injuries were all too severe to permit of his recovery. He had a sister in Chicago. Carlson was 32 years old and had been living a tramp's life. Previous to stealing the ride which resulted in the fatal injuries he had been working at Escanaba for a number of weeks.

Menominee—Antonio Gamboria, who was one of the men injured in the accident at the Pewable mine, Iron Mountain, a few months ago went to Menominee to have an operation performed. One eye was blown out in the accident by the discharge of a blast that had missed fire, and the sight of the second eye was injured. It was thought that an operation might restore the sight of the second eye. Gamboria was placed on the operating table and chloroform administered as an anaesthetic. Before he was under the influence of the drug enough to permit of the operation being commenced he succumbed. The death certificate is signed by Dr. Walter P. Hicks. Gamboria was 33 years old and leaves a widow and family.

THE DAKOTAS.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Fargo—The Fargo city council has been in the habit of refunding taxes on appeals by property owners. When protests are made before taxes are paid, abatement is direct, but afterwards the county treasurer has to refund the coin. City Attorney Miller has filed an opinion on the matter and declares the council exceeds its authority in abating or refunding taxes; that such action disturbs the uniformity of assessment and exceeds the limitations of the city charter.

Superintendent Brastad of the Children's home reports a particularly sad case from Grand Forks. They are two illegitimate babies for whom application had been made to the home. An investigation showed that the mothers were 16 and 18-year-old girls, whose mothers had died. They were left at home with a drunken father and drifted into bad company.

Mayville—Mayville is making extensive preparations for a rousing celebration of the Fourth. There will be the usual program of speaking, music and sports. A ball game will be one of the attractions.

Jamestown—George Case, a farmer residing south of Jamestown, became involved in a dispute with a neighbor named Morgan, who claimed that Case was trespassing. Case struck Morgan with a monkey wrench on the head and on one of his arms, and has been bound over to district court.

Minot—Petitions are in circulation for the organization of a new county, to be called Montraille, out of the territory which is now part of Ward. The movement will probably be successful and will make a lively county seat contest between Portal, Bowbells and Kenmare, three thriving towns on the Soo road.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

Faulkton—Faulkton will no longer be a dry town, the city council having voted to grant license in the sum of $1000. The town has been without saloons for thirteen years, but the council finally decided to license the saloons that the city might get some revenue from the traffic. Circuit court convened here yesterday. The term will be short. There is not a criminal case on the docket, an argument, in the minds of many, against the licensing of drinking places.

Bath—Wheat heads commenced showing up in early sown fields on Sunday. Early barley is also heading out. Grain is doing well with the exception of some weedy fields. The crop will mature in good shape with comparatively little more moisture.

Spearfish—The strawberry crop has commenced to ripen in Spearfish valley. Professor F. L. Cook, principal of the State Normal, will have a larger harvest than ever before, the estimate being 8000 quarts, all of which will be sold in Northern Hill towns. There will also be a big yield of other kinds of berries.

The bids for the new Mathews block have been opened and the lowest was Mullen & Munn of Deadwood, for $29,158. The building will cost about $35,000.

Clear Lake—Prospects for a crop in Deuel county were never better than at the present time. Corn is somewhat backward, but all small grain is looking fine.

Lake Preston—Fred G. Newell, who has been living several years on a hacienda in Old Mexico, has arrived to take the position of station agent. He formerly resided at Aberdeen.

Pierre—Several big schemes have been presented here sinc this stat has attracted the attention of incorporators, but the largest thing in that line came in the Queen Milling company, with a capital of a billion dollars.

ABOUT MEAT.

Denver Butchers Also Want to Establish a Monopoly.

Denver, June 21.—The Denver Retail Grocers and Butchers' association have adopted a resolution which, it hopes, will prevent further encroachment on the retail meat business of the city dealers by the largest Eastern packing houses. These houses, the local men claim, are working the meat so that in a short time the jobbers will be forced entirely out of business and the field left entirely to the big packers who will then be able to deal directly. The resolutions adopted pledge the members of the association to refrain from buying meat from all jobbers who refuse to sign an agreement to sell only to those whom the association shall designate.

POSTMASTER CROOKED.

Washington, June, 21—Chief Post-office Inspector Cochran today received a cablegram announcing that Thomas C. Vera, assistant postmaster at Mayagues, Porto Rico was arrested yesterday for making use of cancelled postage stamps. No details are given. Mayagues is the third largest post-office in Porto Rico.

PARTY SPLIT

Liberals In Trouble Over Boer Sentiments.

Rumors of Expulsions and Resignations.

London, June 21.—The principal topic discussed by the afternoon papers here today is the split in the Liberal party. The air is thick with rumors of expulsions and resignations. The imperialists declare Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman, the Liberal leader in the house of commons, must consider his position untenable. The pro-Boers advocate the ostracism of Herbert H. Asquith, the former Liberal home secretary, who made a speech at a Liberal dinner yesterday evening, declaring that Boer independence is impossible. Campbell-Bannerman attempts to pour oil on the troubled waters with a letter explaining that he has never thought of blaming the soldiers, but condemned those who are responsible for instituting the concentration of camps, as every hardship inflicted upon the women and children can only prove an impediment to the settlement of the long struggle. The marquis of Ripon writes:

"I am filled with shame at the descriptions of the so-called rogue camps. The fair fame of the country, and the reputation for manliness of our people, are at stake. No condemnation of the system is too strong."

THE VANDERBILT ROADS

Directors of Several Met, Declared Dividends and Re-Elected William Newman President of the Lake Shore.

New York, June 21.—The directorates of several of the Vanderbilt roads met at the Grand Central depot today. The most important action taken at any of the meetings was the re-election of William Newman as president of the Lake Shore & Michigan Southern Railroad company, and the election of W. C. Brown, former general manager of the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy, as additional vice president and general manager of both the Lake Shore & Michigan Southern and the Lake Erie & Western railroads.

It had been anticipated, that in view of Mr. Newman's elevation to the presidency of the New York Central a successor to him on the Lake Shore would be chosen, and several names were suggested in connection with the succession. The action finally taken is regarded as an indication that the policy of the Vanderbilts in the future will be to have but one president for their entire railroad system, with a vice president in charge of each of the several properties composing it.

Mr. Brown was at the Grand Central station today conferring with his new associates. He is to have headquarters at Cleveland.

E. D. Worcester was re-elected vice president of the Lake Shore road. The directors of the latter also declared the usual semi-annual dividend of 3½ per cent, and made it payable July 29. The treasurer's statement for the first half of 1901 showed gross earnings of $13,485,505, an increase of 5.95 per cent and net earnings of $4,462,028, a decrease of 4.7 per cent.

The Lake Erie & Western directors declared a dividend of 2 per cent on preferred stock payable July 15. The gross earnings for the first half of the year were $2,153,732, and net earnings $511,520.

The election of Mr. Brown as a director, vice president and general manager, fills the place in the board made vacant by the death of John W. Doane.

The directorate of the Michigan Central declared a dividend of 2 per cent on capital stock and the board of the Canada Southern a dividend of 1 per cent on capital stock. The joint statement of the two roads showed gross earnings for the six months of 1901 of $3,700,000.

LLOYDS MUST SETTLE

Held For Five Hundred Thousand Pounds In Gold Which the Boers Captured at Beginning of the War.

London, June 21.—Considerable interest has been aroused by the success of the Dreifontein case in the appeal court, in which Lloyds is held for the £500,000 which the Transvaal government commandered from a taxation.

Lloyds published a report Oct. 3, 1899, to the effect that gold valued at £500,000 in transit had been commandered or seized by the Transvaal authorities. This was before the South African war had broken out, for the Boers did not enter Natal until Oct. 11, 1899, though the Orange Free State, Oct. 6 of the same year, had seized 800 tons of coal in transit, belonging to the government of Cape Colony. The report of the seizure of the £500,000 in gold was reiterated Oct. 4, 1899, and it was further said that the amount was commandered while on the way from Johannesburg to Cape Town, before the week's shipment of gold, insured at Lloyds, from the Rand. The gold was subsequently taken to Pretoria.

WHITNEY'S HORSES WIN

Kilmarnock II, Bred In the United States, Won the Alexandra Plate at Ascot---A Handsome Purse.

London, June 21.—William C. Whitney's Kilmarnock II (bred in the United States) ridden by L. Reiff, won the Alexandra plate at Ascot today. The conditions of the race were as follows:

Alexandra plate of 1500 sovereigns aded to a sweepstakes of twentyfive sovereigns each, the second horse to receive 400 sovereigns and the third 100 sovereigns out of the stakes. Distance about three miles. The result in detail was as follows:

William C. Whitney's brown colt, Kilmarner II, 4-year-old, Sir Dixon—Misused (L. Reiff), first. Lord Harwood's chestnut colt, Free Companion, 4-year-old, Sir Hugo—Damsel (J. Reiff), second; J. W. Larnach's bay gelding, Strong Bow, 4-year-old, Morion—Le Fleche, third. Ten horses ran.

William C. Whitney's Mount Vernon, filly (L. Reiff), won the Windsor castle stakes.

Merry Gal (L. Reiff) won the Hardwick stakes of 2000 sovereigns, added to a sweepstakes of ten sovereigns each. Rougemont was second and Pierre Lorillard's Tantalus (Maher) third.

The triennial stakes were won by Sir R. Waldie Griffith's Veles (J. H. Martin). An objection was made to Veles on the ground of "boring," but it was overruled.

CORNERS

Will Be Prevented In New York Produce Exchange.

New York, June 21.—The Journal of Commerce says: The special committee which has charge of preparing rules of the New York produce exchange with a view of preventing corners or, at any rate of making the manipulation of a corner a much more difficult matter than it is at present, have decided to call a public meeting of the grain trade before finally submitting their report. This meeting has been announced for June 25. Its purpose is to allow the trade to submit suggestions in order that all interests may be carefully considered before the new regulations are finally drafted.

COOKE APPOINTED.

New York, June 21.—Formal announcement is made by the Erie railroad officials that D. W. Cooks is appointed general passenger agent, vice D. I. Roberts, resigned.

WENT FOR DOCTOR

After Shooting a Man In a Quarrel.

St. Paul, June 21.—A Helena, Mont., special to the Dispatch says: A fatal shooting occurred at Jagger's ranch, near Horse Prairie, last night. Sam Moore and William McKenzie quarreled over a horse and McKenzie threatened to shoot Moore, but the latter commenced shooting as McKenzie made for a rifle. Two shots hit McKenzie. Moore then rode four miles to secure medical aid for the man he had shot, but McKenzie died shortly afterward. Moore is an old resident, while McKenzie was a recent arrival from Wyoming. Moore rode to Bannack and surrendered.

A FRESH LOAN.

Berlin, June 21.—According to the Neueste Nachrichten, the Russian and French governments are negotiating a fresh loan of 125,000,000 roubles.

POLITICAL INFLUENCE

All Powerful In the Recent Labor Troubles at Chicago.

Both Parties Were Disposed to Make Political Capital.

Exhaustive Report of the Industrial Commission on Matter.

Washington, June 21.—The industrial commission has issued the eighth volume of its reports of testimony. This volume comprises 612 pages and deals exclusively with the labor disputes in Chicago in 1900. The commission makes no recommendation, but prints a summary of the testimony, in the course of which it says:

"It was claimed also by several of the witnesses not only that policemen themselves were unprejudiced against the strikers, but that the higher city authorities leaned the same way. They asserted that the police had their instructions not to interfere except in case of absolute necessity, and several specific instances were cited to show that this was the case. It was claimed that this attitude of the authorities, which showed itself also in the actions of the police justices and other inferior courts, was due to political influence, especially to the desire of the party in power to cater to the large vote of the laboring classes at the coming election. These witnesses held that strikes in Chicago have often been specially numerous just before elections, and that both parties have been disposed to make political capital out of labor difficulties."

BIG METEOR.

Heavenly Visitor Strikes With Tremendous Shock.

Denver, June 21.—A special to the News from Tuscon, Ariz., says: The largest meteor ever seen in this part of the country fell between the Pueblos of Los Molinas and Altar, in Sonora, Mexico, on June 11 at 10 o'clock in the morning. The meteor was seen by parties in Tuscon as it shot towards the southwest. Although the sun was high, the meteor illuminated the sky and seemed to have burst at the horizon. El Progresso, a Spanish paper, received in Tuscon contains an article describing the shock at Altar and the terror of the people when the meteor fell to the earth about forty miles from Altar, but the shock there was terrific and the people thought it was an earthquake. An exploring party will go from Altar to try to find the place where the meteor fell.

PRINCIPALS

In a Lynching in California Have Been Indicted.

Alturas, Cal., June 21.—The grand jury of Moder county, which has been investigating the lynching on May 30, of Calvin Hall, his three sons and Daniel Yantis for alleged thefts, has returned three indictments for murder. Robert Leventon, Isom Eades and James W. Brown are the persons named. It is understood that evidence was brought out by the investigation shewing that these three men were the principal participants in the events leading up to the wholesale lynching.

WIND STORM

Does Large Amount Minor Damage at Independence and Vicinity.

Independence, Kas., June. 21—A large amount of minor damage was created here and in teh surrounding country by a severe wind storm today. In the city trees were uprooted, many small buildings destroyed and the roofs of many large houses partly blown off. For a time the people were panic stricken.

In the country, wheat in the shock, was blown down for miles, but as there was no rain, the grain was only slightly damaged. No fatalities have been reported.

TO MOVE TO DENVER.

Headquarters of Brotherhood of Railroad Employes.

Denver, June 21.—George Estes, president of the Brotherhood of Railway Employes, announces that the headquarters of the brotherhood will be removed from San Francisco to Denver in the near future. This organization admits all railroad employes without reference to their particular line of labor. It is a comparatively new order, but is said to have a large membership among the railroad employes of the West.

NEW POSTMASTERS.

Washington, June 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—The following postmasters have been appointed: Hill City, Aitkin county, James E. Gill, vice J. S. Gole, resigned; Ausland, Morrison county, John Knudson, vice Annie Knudson, dead.

NOTHING MADE PUBLIC.

New York, June, 21.—A meeting of the Amalgamated Copper company was held in Jersey City today. Nothing was made public concerning the business transacted.

NOT OVER

Another Boxer Uprising Soon to Occur.

News Comes From Missionary at Shan Tung.

Berlin, June 21.—The Cologne Volks Zeitung, the leading Centrist organ contains a special from a German missionary in Shan Tung, in which it is asserted that the Boxer trouble is by no means over, that the rebels are quietly enjoying their plunder from the missions, and that the philo-foreigner edicts are only a blind. The dispatch also asserts that another and a worse rising is expected soon.

At the foreign office, a gentleman, on Chancellor Von Buelow's authority, told a reporter of the Associated Press that this news was not corroborated by official news from China. On the contrary, every bit of news from there for months has shown that nothing like general trouble is expected. This is especially true of Shan Tung, where everything remains quiet and order is maintained with the active aid of Yuan-Shi-Kai, the governor. There is absolutely nothing to substantiate the alarmist news. Regarding Prince Tuan, the latest official reports indicate that he is not at court nor anywhere where he can communicate easily with the court, and that he certainly now has no influence with the court.

AN AMERICAN MEMORIAL

Thousands of Pounds Subscribed By Members of New York Chamber of Commerce For Statue of Late Queen.

New York, June 21.—A dispatch to the Tribune from London says: When the delegates of the New York chamber of commerce were in London they subscribed to the Victorian memorial, and left J. P. Morgan in charge of this millionaire tribute. It was not considered good taste to have any premature announcement of this subscription, and the delegates separated with the understanding that the matter should be left to the discretion of Mr. Morgan, and be brought out after their return to the United States. Partial subscriptions are reported to amount to £6000, without Mr. Morgan's own check, and it has been understood that the amount will be enlarged to £20,000. There was a proposal that the delegates' money should be turned over to the mansion house fund, but this was not acted upon. The delegates retired from the festive scene of their own entertainment after empowering Mr. Morgan to settle all the details. It will be unfortunate if this disposition be made of their subscription, as there is another fund, controlled by a representative committee of the American society, and started after an exchange of communication with Lord Esher and the king. These two funds ought to be amalgamated and used exclusively for the erection of a distinctively American memorial to the queen, designed and executed by an American sculptor. Englishmen do not want Americans to help them out in paying for the memorial. They prefer to have a distinctive American tribute, without any connection with the Mansion house. The king was consulted on this point and acquiesced.

THOUSANDS DESTITUTE

Men, Women and Children Camping on the Borders of Reservations Soon to Be Opened Are Starving.

Kansas City, June 21.—Thousands of people, men, women and children, camping on the border of the Kiowa, Comanche and Apache reservations in Oklahoma awaiting the opening of the land settlement, are in destitute circumstances according to Dr. J. J. McKenna, who has just returned from the scene. Dr. McKenna said:

"Twenty thousand men, women and children are massed on the border, and half of them are utterly destitute. At least 5000 of them have been there a year and a half. They went with possibly $200 or $300 and have made nothing since they arrived."

AT HENLEY.

The Pennsylvania Crew Shows Up In Excellent Form.

Henley, England, June 21.—The Pennsylvania oarsmen left their raft somewhat later than intended today owing to the photographers, but they were on the regatta course before noon and did about three miles, with occasional stops and bursts of hard rowing, in which Stroke Gardner hit up to thirty-eight without difficulty. As they were lifting the boat out they let her bows strike a nail, which slightly penetrated the paper, but the damage done is easily mendable with shellac, and is of no importance whatever.

"They are not quite right on their slides yet," said Graduate Manager Hart, "but you will soon see a vast improvement in their blade work. This fine weather is making the feel good."

The captain and secretary of the Leander club called on the Americans this morning and exchanged the most cordial courtesies.

STRANGLED.

Woman Kills Month Old Babe Near Murdock, Minn.

St. Paul, June 21.—A Murdock, Minn., special says: An unknown woman, who came here Wednesday with a month-old baby, left the next day without the child, and an investigation resulted in the discovery of the infant's dead body northwest of town, a handkerchief about the neck, indicating death by strangulation. The coroner's verdict was to that effect. A dispatch from Whapeton, N. D., from Sheriff Moody, just received, reports the arrest there of a woman supposed to be the murderess.

ANDREWS A TRUSTEE.

Providence, R. I., June 21.—At the meeting of Brown university corporation in annual session yesterday former President B. Benjamin Andrews, now of Nebraska state university, was elected to fill a vacancy in the board of trustees.

NOT HE.

Ambassador White Has No Intention of Resigning His Position.

Berlin, June 21.—Replying to an inquiry regarding a report published in the United States that he was to resign in December, United States Ambassador White wrote personally as follows:

"I am leaving my present house simply because it has been sold to the government of Baden, and I am looking for another house. I have no intention of resigning as has been announced."

The Associated Press can add that Ambassador White's family will go, July 1, to Sassnitz, Island of Rugen, where a fine villa has been hired by the ambassador until fall. Mr. White has rented apartments in a Berlin hotel, whence he will make weekly excursions of a day or two to Sassnitz, that place being reached direct within a few hours. Mr. White's furniture is being placed in storage until autumn.

SENSATION.

Caused By Arrest of Billings Citizen on Serious Charge.

St. Paul, June 21.—A Helena, Mont., special to the Dispatch says: A profound sensation was created at Billings at midnight last night by the arrest of Samuel Garvin by federal authorities, charged with complicity in stealing $18,000 worth of cattle from the Cree Indians, on which charge Robert Lee is now being tried in the United States court here. The alleged stolen cattle were found, it is said, on Garvin's ranch by Indian Agent Edwards. A year ago Garvin was one of the most prosperous citizens of Billings. After Lee's arrest Garvin assigned his property to the First National bank. A deputy marshal left with the prisoner for Helena early today.

WANTED HIS GIRL.

A Melancholy Lake Avenue Incident.

Speaking of tears, they had a moist and melancholy time down on Lake avenue last night.

The night had fallen like a sable pall on the somber city. Black shadows danced where the electric lights fell slantwise athwart the moving figures on the streets, but blacker than all the other shadows seemed those which followed the dismal wake of Nellie Bates, S. B. Winn and a policeman.

Miss Bates was a fluffy, peroxide blonde, rapturously upholstered. Winn is a married man. He prides himself on his mustache, and when he is not tugging at it he runs a barber shop on the Bowery.

They foregathered in a darksome place of liquid refreshments to study the latest fashions in blowing foam and flicking ashes. They were discovered by Miss Bates' financially shattered fiance. He had given her $70 in order to promote a matrimonial yearning, and when he saw her with another man he hastened to the police station.

He burst into headquarters with:

"She can't treat me in that way; it isn't right."

"What do you mean?" inquired an officer, anxiously.

"I want my girl," he said.

"Why?" demanded the officer.

"Why?" plagarized the man.

"Yes, why?"

"Well, she said she would marry me if I would give her $70, and now she's thrown me over for a married man."

With that the officer accompanied him to the Lake avenue resort and placed both Miss Bates and Winn under arrest. This morning they were arraigned in police court and both fined $35 and costs, or in default of that to spend thirty days in jail.

Miss Bates didn't have any of the $70, and friends neglected to help her, so she went up.

Winn had the nerve to send for his wife and ask her to pay his fine, but up to a late hour today she did not seem inclined to help him out of the trouble.

Longest Day of Year.

Today is the longest day in the year. Since last December the sun has been getting his smiling face above the horizon earlier and earlier and going down later and later, until the maximum is reached today, and from now on the evenings will grow shorter and shorter, until December rolls around again. Although next Monday is called midsummer day, tne one that has the most number of hours, minutes and seconds in it between the time that the sun rises and sets is today, June 21.

A clear skin can be cultivated and plainest faces grow lovely using Satin-Skin Cream and powder. 25c.

MISSION SESSION

Gift of $50,000 For Hospital at Chicago Is Accepted.

Donated By Two Successful Klondike Gold Hunters.

Galesburg, Ill., and Chicago Competing For Next Meeting.

At the session of the Swedish Evangelical Covenant of America yesterday afternoon, at the Mission church, the executive committee was elected as follows: C. A. Bjork, Chicago, president; N. Frykeman, of Kerphoven, Minn., vice president; Professor D. Nyvall, Chicago, secretary; Professor A. Mellander, Chicago, assistant secretary; C. Wahlom, trustee. Auditors were elected as follows, Professor J. A. Linblade and Professor A. W. Fredrickson, both of Chicago. Churches were admitted into the Covenant as follows: Barret, Minn.; Menominee, Mich.; Fish Lake, Minn.; Harris, Minn.; South Maple Ride, Minn.; Providence, Minn.; Jamestown, N. Y.; Crookston, Eveleth, West Duluth, Tower and Ada, Minn.

From the treasurer's report it was learned that the Covenant's property, consisting of North Park college and the Home of Mercy ,of Chicago, with the mission stations in China and Alaska, amounts to more than $70,000 in value.

The evening service yesterday was opened by the singing of the "Hymn of the Reformation." Rev. M. J. Eggan, of Moline, Ill., led in a fervent prayer. Two very able and inspiring sermons were preached by Rev. N. Peterson, of Macpherson, Kans., and Rev. J. Sjoquist. The large chorus choir sang two numbers very acceptably.

The session this morning was opened with Bible reading and prayer by Rev. C. A. Bjork. Rev. Henry Lindeman, of Malmo, Neb., spoke, after which the rest of the morning was devoted to discussion of the feasibility of accepting the offer of Rev. P. H. Anderson and John Brynteson of $50,000 with which to build a hospital at Chicago. Some of the delegates are afraid that the money will not be enough to build the o fthe Reformation," Rev. M. J. Eggan, secure an additional amount through some other source. It was finally decided to accept the donation with gratitude, that a committee be selected to choose a suitable site in Chicago, to solicit aditional means and to report at the next annual meeting.

Rev. P. H. Anderson was a young missionary who went to Alaska some years ago, and while there befriended some miners who, when they struck it rich, let the young preacher in on it. The claim they had turned out well, and Rev. Anderson is able to give the sum of $25,000 to his cause. John Brynteson was one of the men who won out in the Klondyke, and has added another like amount, which swells the sum to $50,000 in cash. The hospital will in all probability be built at Lake View a suburb of Chicago, where the headquarters of the covenant are located.

The afternoon was occupied with further discussion concerning business matters. This evening Rev. J. Peterson and Rev. C. Bowman will preach. Tomorrow afternoon Mayor Hugo will speak at the Mission church, after which the delegates will be taken around the city.

The place of the next annual meeting has not yet been decided upon, but Galesburg, Ill., and Chicago are both anxious to secure it. North Park college and the Home of Mercy are both located at the latter place, and it is thought that the meeting will be held there.

VERDICT SETTLES IT.

Judge Dibell Accepts Findings of Jury.

Judge Dibell has filed his findings for the defendant in the case of John M. Underwood against the Robinson Lake Iron company, a case which had some sensational tendencies. The company made a contract to give Underwood a lease to some mining property at a very small royalty, 10 cents per ton, and it was claimed by some of the stockholders, who fought the execution of the contract, that H. R. Spencer and Silas Robinson, two of the directors, had made the contract by fraud, having made an agreement with Underwood by which they were to partake of the profits.

The question of the good faith of Spencer and Robinson was left to a jury, which held that there was no agreement by which they were to share in the profits. There were some other objections to the lease, and these were taken under advisement by the court. Judge Dibell's findings, which were made several days ago, provide that the company shall execute the lease. In his memorandum he refers briefly to the charges of fraud, saying that the evidence justified a finding either way, and that the court is bound by the verdict of the jury. He admits that if gross deceit had been shown the court might refuse to act in the matter, but there was no such showing, and the court is content to let the finding of the jury dispose of the question of fraud and unfair dealing.

Charles Dailey Tells a Tale of Trials.

Charles Dailey has filed an answer in district court to the divorce suit brought against him by Marion Dailey, and he makes some rather serious charges against his dissatisfied wife. He admits that she abandoned him March 5, 1901, and took the children, but he alleges that he did nothing to cause her to leave. He says that the reason he left her in 1896 and came to Duluth was that she was continually guilty of criminal relations with one "Clem," the rest of whose name he does not know. After he had lived here for four years without her he says she got her cousin to intercede for her, and he sent her $175 to enable her to move here and live with him. They lived together nearly a year. When she came he says she brought her sister, Sadie Bull, to live with them, but as his wages were small he was unable to support her and said so, so she left.

He alleges that his wife is subject to violent fits of anger, and that at times he feared for his life. Several times, he alleges, she attacked him with a knife. Some time ago, he alleges, his wife, "seeking diversion," got one Henry Trudeau to board with him. Then she told the defendant that she loved the boarder and wanted to go and live with him. On the following day, while the defendant was working, she went away with the children and took rooms in West Duluth with her sister. He alleges that Trudeau also lives in West Duluth. He claims that his wife is not a proper person to have the care of the children, and he asks that her prayer for divorce be denied and that he be given the care of the children. Phelps & McManus are his attorneys.

THE LOSS IS HEAVY

Lumber Belonged to Chicago Firm---Value About $200,000.

The Loss Is Total---But the Mill Is Saved.

A fierce fire broke out yesterday morning, at 11:30 o'clock, in the lumber yards of the Tower Lumber company at Bearhead Lake, about twelve miles north of Tower, and pretty nearly consumed everything in sight before it finished. There was an exceedingly strong wind blowing off of the lake, and this was the only thing that saved the mill.

The fire burned fiercely, sending showers of sparks far and wide, and by 3:30 every pile of lumber in the yard was a raging furnace. The heat was intense, and the seething mass of flames rushed over the yard like a whirlwind. The yard is a half mile long and a quarter wide, filled with pine lumber, and the flames shot up high into the air, sending forth the most intense heat. Woods a half mile distant were scorched by the fierce heat, and the flames run down the ties of the railroad track. It was impossible to stand anywhere near the burning lumber yard. The railroad cars were hauled away from the scene to keep them from being consumed with everything else.

Nearly all of the lumber belonged to the Paepke-Leicht Lumber company, of Chicago, and but a small portion of the property was owned by the Tower Lumber company. The lumber was being shipped to Two Harbors by rail and thence down the lakes to Chicago. Five cargoes had already been shipped, and that had made a good hole in the lot. Davis and Comstock represented the Chicago company and were inspecting the shipment, J. C. Sheperd looking after the work for them. The burned lumber is valued at about $2000 and is fairly well covered by insurance, the exact amount of which could not be learned, as part of the insurance is placed here and the rest in Chicago.

The Tower Lumber company bought the mill not long ago from the Tower Logging and Railway company, and on taking possession found that the protection against fire was very slight. They immediately filled up the barrels and had just gotten things in fairly good shape when the fire came and swept everything away. Nothing is known of the origin of the fire.

RAIN AGAIN.

For Second Time Rain Greets Excursionists In Duluth.

Excursion weather! It is a lamentable truth that Duluth weather is generally at its worst when an excursion is scheduled to arrive in the Zenith City. The rainmaker and storm generator works overtime when loyal Duluthians anxious that strangers should view the city and its many points of interest under a fair sky.

The largest excursion of the year arrived in Duluth this afternoon. The train was run in two sections of fifteen coaches each, and the first section reached the Union station at 2:14 p. m., and there were 571 excursionists on the train when it left Staples for a run to the head of the lakes, making stops only for coal and water. The second section of the train arrived here at 2:34, just twenty minutes after the leader, and there were a few over 600 on the train, making the total number about 1200.

This excursion started from Wahpeton, N. D., 230 miles west of Duluth, and a uniform rate of $2.50 for the round trip was made on the Fergus Falls and Black Hills division, as well as the main line of the Northern Pacific. The bulk of the visitors are from Eastern North Dakota, and Northwestern Minnesota. Wahpeton, North Dakota, and Breckenridge, Fergus Falls, Wadena, Moorhead and Staples, Minn., contributed largely to the party.

The excursionists were made aware of what the weather man had in store as far west as Staples, where the rain commenced falling early in the day. It is safe to say that there are 1000 of the party in Duluth. West Superior proved attractive as a stopping point for a number on both sections of the train.

The usual large crowd was at the Union station to meet the train, and those who did not meet their expected friends on the first section waited for the second.

Showers are predicted for tonight, and threatening weather tomorrow. Weeping skies, however, cannot prevent the visitors from enjoying themselves in Duluth.

The Duluth Improvement association at its office, 628 Manhattan building, will secure rooms for those of the excursion party not already provided with a lodging place, and any information in regard to the city, its points of interest, etc., will be gladly furnished.

An Unpleasant Find.

A foetus was found yesterday on Second street, near the corner of Third avenue east. It was well developed and physicians at the health office say that it was three to four months old. It was left on a grass plot between the sidewalk and the curb and was first discovered by a man walking down town to his work about 8 o'clock in the morning. The police removed it to the health office. The foetus was that of a male and was about six inches in length.

MURDERED.

Mrs. Mary Daniels, of Iron Mountain, Killed With Axe.

Milwaukee, June 21.—A Journal special from Iron Mountain, Mich., says:

Mrs. Mary Daniels was murdered today by Jack Goldsworthy while in the summer kitchen of her home. She was struck with an ax while her baby was in her arms. The murderer, as he ran from the house, informed Mrs. Daniels' sister that she had fainted and was in the house. He was arrested.

Mrs. Daniels was a widow, her husband having been murdered in a saloon.

EXAMINES THE PLANS

Noted Engineer Investigates Highland Canal & Power Company.

Agrees That 100,000 Horse Power Can Be Developed.

Company's Plans Progressing---Inquiries to Power Users.

The Highland Canal and Power company is steadily working toward the perfection of its plans for installing its system of water power which is to bring the waters in a large area back of the city to the brow of the hill, and from there drop it to the bottom, and thus provide the city with great water power. The company has been saying little or nothing, but is now getting to that position where it can see the realization of its plans not far distant.

G. W. Bacon, of the firm of Ford, Bacon & Co., contracting engineers of New York city, has been spending the past week here going over the plans of the company. This firm is one of the largest in the engineering business in the country and one of the wealthiest, owning large interests in railways, ferries, etc., in the East and South. In the engineering line they have no superiors in the country. It was this firm which made the estimate and survey of the Duluth street railway, upon which Thomas Lowry purchased it. Both Messrs. Ford and Bacon were in the city at times in connection with that matter.

The firm has had a large experience in the successful construction and operation of numerous important electric railway, power and light plants throughout the country, and their association with the work of the Highland Canal and Power company would seem to indicate a rapid and sucessful development of the company's plans.

Yesterday Mr. Bacon left for Minneapolis with F. A. Cokefair, chief engineer of the company, for a conference with J. T. Fanning, the company's hydraulic and consulting engineer.

While here Mr. Bacon went over and examined the extensive watershed and drainage area covered by the Highland Canal and Power company's system, the forty square miles of reservoir, the Cloquet river dam, all the excavations, embankments and other engineering features of the work; also the plans for the power house and the hydraulic and electric plans, together with estimates of cost of installation and operation for power distribution.

The Herald is informed that these plans as designed by Mr. Cokefair have met with the unqualified endorsement of the engineering profession. All the experts agree as to the amount of power available under this system as being at least 100,000 continuous 24-hour electric horse power, delivered at consumers' meters in Duluth and Superior, and that the cost of construction and operation will be very much less than that of any other hydraulic and electric plant in the country having equal capacity.

Tomorrow the company will mail to all users of power of any proportions in Duluth and Superior requests for full information as to the amount of power used, the times of day at which it is used, etc.

Can Do It Themselves.

As will appear by the ingenious advertisemement of the water and light department elsewhere in this paper, the gas consumers of the city have it in their own power to reduce the gas rate to $1 per 1000 feet by Jan. 1. In order to do this it will be necessary to increase the business of the gas plant 10 per cent. This year has been a steady advance so far, the receipts so far being $3200 more than last year.

Cottelene People Lose Case In Supreme Court.

St. Paul, June 21.—The cottelene people lost in the supreme court today, but may yet win out in their effort to secure the right to sell their product independently of any other. The court, in the case of state vs. P. J. Hanson, of Minneapolis, appellant, held, by a vote of 3 to 2, that the state laws prohibit the sale of cottolene manufactured to resemble lard, except when the package containing it is labelled "lard substitute." Hanson was convicted of selling cottolene without this label, and was fined $25 in the Minneapolis municipal court. Chief Justice Start and Associated Justices Collins and Lovely sustain the findings of the lower court.

Justices Lewis and Brown vigorously dissent. In this case the minority says the purchaser called for cottolene and got it. There was no attempt to deceive.

Treadwell claimed he had pledged the stock, which was only worth $30 a share at the time he purchased it, with Edward Bennett, of London, Eng., as security for an account he had with him. Later, it was sold by parties to whom it was pledged, and finally came into Senator Clark's hands.

THE LOSS IS HEAVY

Lumber Belonged to Chicago Firm---Value About $200,000.

The Loss Is Total---But the Mill Is Saved.

A fierce fire broke out yesterday morning, at 11:30 o'clock, in the lumber yards of the Tower Lumber company at Bearhead Lake, about twelve miles north of Tower, and pretty nearly consumed everything in sight before it finished. There was an exceedingly strong wind blowing off of the lake, and this was the only thing that saved the mill.

The fire burned fiercely, sending showers of sparks far and wide, and by 3:30 every pile of lumber in the yard was a raging furnace. The heat was intense, and the seething mass of flames rushed over the yard like a whirlwind. The yard is a half mile long and a quarter wide, filled with pine lumber, and the flames shot up high into the air, sending forth the most intense heat. Woods a half mile distant were scorched by the fierce heat, and the flames run down the ties of the railroad track. It was impossible to stand anywhere near the burning lumber yard. The railroad cars were hauled away from the scene to keep them from being consumed with everything else.

Nearly all of the lumber belonged to the Paepke-Leicht Lumber company, of Chicago, and but a small portion of the property was owned by the Tower Lumber company. The lumber was being shipped to Two Harbors by rail and thence down the lakes to Chicago. Five cargoes had already been shipped, and that had made a good hole in the lot. Davis and Comstock represented the Chicago company and were inspecting the shipment, J. C. Sheperd looking after the work for them. The burned lumber is valued at about $2000 and is fairly well covered by insurance, the exact amount of which could not be learned, as part of the insurance is placed here and the rest in Chicago.

The Tower Lumber company bought the mill not long ago from the Tower Logging and Railway company, and on taking possession found that the protection against fire was very slight. They immediately filled up the barrels and had just gotten things in fairly good shape when the fire came and swept everything away. Nothing is known of the origin of the fire.

RAIN AGAIN.

For Second Time Rain Greets Excursionists In Duluth.

Excursion weather! It is a lamentable truth that Duluth weather is generally at its worst when an excursion is scheduled to arrive in the Zenith City. The rainmaker and storm generator works overtime when loyal Duluthians anxious that strangers should view the city and its many points of interest under a fair sky.

The largest excursion of the year arrived in Duluth this afternoon. The train was run in two sections of fifteen coaches each, and the first section reached the Union station at 2:14 p. m., and there were 571 excursionists on the train when it left Staples for a run to the head of the lakes, making stops only for coal and water. The second section of the train arrived here at 2:34, just twenty minutes after the leader, and there were a few over 600 on the train, making the total number about 1200.

This excursion started from Wahpeton, N. D., 230 miles west of Duluth, and a uniform rate of $2.50 for the round trip was made on the Fergus Falls and Black Hills division, as well as the main line of the Northern Pacific. The bulk of the visitors are from Eastern North Dakota, and Northwestern Minnesota. Wahpeton, North Dakota, and Breckenridge, Fergus Falls, Wadena, Moorhead and Staples, Minn., contributed largely to the party.

The excursionists were made aware of what the weather man had in store as far west as Staples, where the rain commenced falling early in the day. It is safe to say that there are 1000 of the party in Duluth. West Superior proved attractive as a stopping point for a number on both sections of the train.

The usual large crowd was at the Union station to meet the train, and those who did not meet their expected friends on the first section waited for the second.

Showers are predicted for tonight, and threatening weather tomorrow. Weeping skies, however, cannot prevent the visitors from enjoying themselves in Duluth.

The Duluth Improvement association at its office, 628 Manhattan building, will secure rooms for those of the excursion party not already provided with a lodging place, and any information in regard to the city, its points of interest, etc., will be gladly furnished.

An Unpleasant Find.

A foetus was found yesterday on Second street, near the corner of Third avenue east. It was well developed and physicians at the health office say that it was three to four months old. It was left on a grass plot between the sidewalk and the curb and was first discovered by a man walking down town to his work about 8 o'clock in the morning. The police removed it to the health office. The foetus was that of a male and was about six inches in length.

MURDERED.

Mrs. Mary Daniels, of Iron Mountain, Killed With Axe.

Milwaukee, June 21.—A Journal special from Iron Mountain, Mich., says:

Mrs. Mary Daniels was murdered today by Jack Goldsworthy while in the summer kitchen of her home. She was struck with an ax while her baby was in her arms. The murderer, as he ran from the house, informed Mrs. Daniels' sister that she had fainted and was in the house. He was arrested.

Mrs. Daniels was a widow, her husband having been murdered in a saloon.

EXAMINES THE PLANS

Noted Engineer Investigates Highland Canal & Power Company.

Agrees That 100,000 Horse Power Can Be Developed.

Company's Plans Progressing---Inquiries to Power Users.

The Highland Canal and Power company is steadily working toward the perfection of its plans for installing its system of water power which is to bring the waters in a large area back of the city to the brow of the hill, and from there drop it to the bottom, and thus provide the city with great water power. The company has been saying little or nothing, but is now getting to that position where it can see the realization of its plans not far distant.

G. W. Bacon, of the firm of Ford, Bacon & Co., contracting engineers of New York city, has been spending the past week here going over the plans of the company. This firm is one of the largest in the engineering business in the country and one of the wealthiest, owning large interests in railways, ferries, etc., in the East and South. In the engineering line they have no superiors in the country. It was this firm which made the estimate and survey of the Duluth street railway, upon which Thomas Lowry purchased it. Both Messrs. Ford and Bacon were in the city at times in connection with that matter.

The firm has had a large experience in the successful construction and operation of numerous important electric railway, power and light plants throughout the country, and their association with the work of the Highland Canal and Power company would seem to indicate a rapid and successful development of the company's plans.

Yesterday Mr. Bacon left for Minneapolis with F. A. Cokefair, chief engineer of the company, for a conference with J. T. Fanning, the company's hydraulic and consulting engineer.

While here Mr. Bacon went over and examined the extensive watershed and drainage area covered by the Highland Canal and Power company's system, the forty square miles of reservoir, the Cloquet river dam, all the excavations, embankments and other engineering features of the work; also the plans for the power house and the hydraulic and electric plans, together with estimates of cost of installation and operation for power distribution.

The Herald is informed that these plans as designed by Mr. Cokefair have met with the unqualified endorsement of the engineering profession. All the experts agree as to the amount of power available under this system as being at least 100,000 continuous 24-hour electric horse power, delivered at consumers' meters in Duluth and Superior, and that the cost of construction and operation will be very much less than that of any other hydraulic and electric plant in the country having equal capacity.

Tomorrow the company will mail to all users of power of any proportions in Duluth and Superior requests for full information as to the amount of power used, the times of day at which it is used, etc.

Can Do It Themselves.

As will appear by the ingenious advertisemement of the water and light department elsewhere in this paper, the gas consumers of the city have it in their own power to reduce the gas rate to $1 per 1000 feet by Jan. 1. In order to do this it will be necessary to increase the business of the gas plant 10 per cent. This year has been a steady advance so far, the receipts so far being $3200 more than last year.

Cottelene People Lose Case In Supreme Court.

St. Paul, June 21.—The cottelene people lost in the supreme court today, but may yet win out in their effort to secure the right to sell their product independently of any other. The court, in the case of state vs. P. J. Hanson, of Minneapolis, appellant, held, by a vote of 3 to 2, that the state laws prohibit the sale of cottolene manufactured to resemble lard, except when the package containing it is labelled "lard substitute." Hanson was convicted of selling cottolene without this label, and was fined $25 in the Minneapolis municipal court. Chief Justice Start and Associated Justices Collins and Lovely sustain the findings of the lower court.

Justices Lewis and Brown vigorously dissent. In this case the minority says the purchaser called for cottolene and got it. There was no attempt to deceive.

TAX SALE DECISION

Supreme Court's Rulings In the Duluth Tax Cases.

Few Pieces of Property Can Be Sold On Monday.

Possible That There Will Be None At All Sold.

The decision of the supreme court, briefly announced in an extra edition of The Herald last night, clears up the matters at issue over the forfeited tax sale advertised for next Monday in a more or less certain manner.

Not unclouded by doubt as to its meaning, the decision, written by Judge Lewis, was handed down late yesterday afternoon. Its undoubted meaning is that there will be very few pieces of property on sale Monday. Its less certain meaning is that there will be none at all. At any rate, wherever property was sold under the law of 1897 and no refund has been made or applied for, the owner of the property need pay no more, and the taxes for 1895 and prior years are settled. In some cases they were settled for him by other parties who got no title by their purchase, and who are out what they paid in, the time for making applications for refunds having gone by. The syllabi are as follows:

Horatio N. McHarg, respondent vs. Odin Halden, as county auditor of St. Louis county, appellant.

Under chapter 290, C. L., 1897, certain premises were sold to a purchaser for more than the amount of the accumulated taxes against the land. This court having declared the act unconstitutional and no refundment of the money having been made by the purchaser, as provided by chapter 93, C. L., 1899, held: The sale was valid as between the county and the purchaser and no authority exists for a resale of the land for the same taxes, under the provisions of chapter 290 C. L., 1901. Held: That the county having received the full amount of the taxes at such sale is stopped from reselling the premises for the same taxes, while claiming the benefit under the act by retaining the money received. Judgment affirmed. Lewis, J.

R. S. Munger, respondent, vs. Odin Halden as county auditor of St. Louis county, appellant.

Under chapter 290, S.L., 1897, certain premises were sold to a purchaser for one-tenth the amount of the accumulated taxes. That act having been adjudged unconstitutional by this court and no refundment of the money paid at the sale having been made to the purchaser, as provided in chapter 93, C.L., 1899, held: That the sale was valid between the county and the purchaser, and no authority exists for a resale of the premises for the same taxes under the provisions of chapter 290, C.L., 1901.

Whether or not under such circumstances the county is estopped from reselling the premises for the same taxes while retaining the money received at such sale, query. Judgment affirmed. Lewis, J.

The decision in the McHarg case is clear enough, for there the state received more than the amount of taxes due. In the other, at first blush, it looked as though the state supreme court had taken a lesson in ambiguity fro mthe national upreme court, but viewed through the eyes of the attorneys interested in the case, the matter is more clear.

In effect, the decision is that the state, by accepting money under the forfeited tax law of 1897, has precluded itself from attacking the sale, though the sale was held void when it came to a test of the titles conveyed by it. So owners of property sold in 1899, no matter who bought it or for what price it was sold, are free from the taxes for which the sale was held.

The recourse where refundments have been applied for is the only doubtful point. The chances seem to be, according to the attorneys, that the Windom law, chapter 93 of the laws of 1899, holds, and that the procedure laid down there for the re-collection of refunded taxes must be followed. That is by including them in the next application for judgment against the property.

Joseph Ward Reynolds, the attorney for the petitioners in both of the above cases, gave The Herald this morning his interpretation of the decisions as follows:

"The effect of the decision of the supreme court is to prevent a sale of any property next Monday. The court has fully sustained our position that the state, having availed itself of the remedy provided by an unconstitutional law to collect its taxes, it cannot retain the proceeds of the collection and re-collect the same taxes, on the ground that the law was void. That is, the only right of re-collection is where teh taxes collected under the void law have been refunded; but in such cases I think the proper course to pursue is that provided by the general statutes, or chapter 93 of the laws of 1899—to extend the taxes refunded against the lands affected and enter judgment therefor next March.

"The idea that because a law is unconstitutional it is void is a very common error. An unconstitutional law, the provisions of which are executed, is as valid as any law as to those who have availed themselves of it. The officers of the state are bound to enforce such a law, and the citizens to respect it, until its invalidity has been judicially determined. In these tax cases, the state having obtained a judgment and collected it under the unconstitutional law, the regularity of the proceedings and the validity of the tax deeds issued to purchasers are all facts adjudicated in the state's own case, and at its own instance, and now unassailable by the state."

Wilson G. Crosby, the associate county attorney, said:

"As I understand the published syllabi, without reading the full decision, the court is not certain on the question of whether the state is estopped from making a resale after receiving the taxes. It appears to be the case that the so-called Windom law holds, and that prescribes that refunded taxes shall be extended in the next application for judgment. The decision certainly takes out of the sale all property where no refundment has been made, but without reading the full decision I am not quite certain as to whether it has been held that property, where refundment has been made, is withdrawn as well, though I think it probable that that is the effect of it.

"In brief, the meaning of the decision is that no matter how bad the sale was, and the law under which it was held, and no matter how small the amount of money received by the state for the delinquent taxes, its having received the money and failed to refund it estops it from questioning the settlement.

"It is to be regretted that an earlier adjudication of the matter could not have been had, but the suits were brought as early as possible.

"If the county had not been to the expense of advertising the sale, the decision would be a welcome one, and it clears the atmosphere so much that the county even now can have no quarrel with it."

PAWNEE BILL'S WILD WEST

The Show Is Coming to Duluth July 3.

Pawnee Bill's Wild West show will make its appearance in Duluth on July 3. This show is well known in the South and East, but has never before appeared here. Pawnee Bill is Gordon W. Lillie, president of the Arkansas Valley National bank, of Pawnee, Ark. The Philadelphia Ledger said of it:

"Pawnee Bill's Historical Wild West has the merit of genuineness and diversity of feature. It is a splendid entertainment. Thousands of people have witnessed it and came away delighted. Maj. Gordon W. Lillie, Pawnee Bill, has doubled the size of his already colossal exhibition, and has added to the unusually large number of splendid features by annexing a veritable Juvenile Wild West for the little folks. A lilliputian stage coach, a diminutive prairie schooner, little chariots and numbers of Shetland ponies as well as burros, all ridden and driven by Western boys and Indian boys, and besides the thousand men and horses employed, these little folks give a most unique entertainment."

THE CASE ON TRIAL

H. W. Pearson's Suit Against the Great Northern Railway.

Testimony So Far Is Mainly Reading of Letters.

Claims He Mapped Out the Railroad's Coal Finds.

The suit of H. W. Pearson against the Great Northern railroad for compensation for the location of coal mines in the Western states is on trial in St. Paul. The St. Paul Dispatch, in reviewing the complaint in the case, grows slightly facetious over Mr. Pearson's theories, as follows:

"The sophomore on the college rostrum cries appealingly, 'Go back over the last century,' and his hearers look at him in solemn expectation.

"But to Mr. Pearson a century is a bagatelle. He takes his hearers back over eons that have piled their mighty folds one on the other with appalling inexorability.

"Parts of his story are common to the school geologies and geographies.

"But when he was talking to Mr. Hill, as he says, he tried to illustrate the secret of his faith in his ability to find coal.

"He had one illustration which touched Mr. Hill and made him responsive—of a mighty raft on Lake Superior. 'Suppose, then, that the raft were adrift and Mr. Hill wished to locate it. With the winds in a certain quarter, of a certain velocity, and with the habits of the currents known, why, then, Mr. Hill would be able to locate the raft acurately, say at Minnesota Point.

"Now the location of the great coal fields is after that manner. There were the universal submergencies long ago, before Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, pre-eminent in history for their fertility. The giant growth of those ages would be drifting over the vast floods. Undoubtedly these mighty rafts were wrought under the alembic of nature into the coal fields.

"If a modern scientist studying from data within his reach the character of the primeval submergences should ascertain the currents of the floods that drowned the early world, then he can point to the place of hiding of the coal.

"It is interesting, in a way, and Mr. Pearson is far from being the weak-eyed, near-sighted scholar of the midnight oil. He is rather a man of energy and ideas, with a mind to apply both to modern theories and facts. Mr. Hill does not agree with Mr. Pearson in the character of the contract entered into. The action first named Mr. Hill as defendant, but by a stipulation the railway company was made the defendant."

The proceedings yesterday are reported as follows in the Dispatch:

"The morning was occupied in reading letters, of which there were several score.

"There are many letters from Mr. Pearson, the plaintiff, written among others, to James J. Hill, Lewis Stockett, manager of the Sand Coules company; F. E. Ward, the secretary to Mr. Hill; A. W. Clark, secretary to Mr. Hill, and many letters from Stockett and the secretaries and a few from Mr. Hill in answer.

"The earlier letters from Pearson relate to his engagement and his work in Montana and Washington in mapping out coal mines. The later letters relate, for the most part, to compensation. He urges that his services have been invaluable to Mr. Hill, and that he be paid commensurately with those services.

"In one letter to Stockett, noting the contents of a letter received from that gentleman, he says that he learns for the first time that he (Pearson) has been working for 'fun.'

"Stockett plays an important part in the correspondence, for, as a practical manager of coal mines already opened and worked, he reported to Mr. Hill on the work done by Mr. Pearson, and his estimate of it.

"In one report to Mr. Hill, Stokett informs the latter that Pearson had been of little assistance to him, and that he should not have permitted him to go ahead as he did if he had understood that Pearson would demand compensation for services.

"Mr. Hill quotes a portion of Stockett's letter in writing to Pearson in reply to a letter from him.

"Stockett's later letters depreciated the value of the services performed by Pearson.

"But in one of the Stockett letters to Pearson, written at an earlier day, Stockett says: 'In case of a find, your compensation was to be fixed later,' and Pearson charges Stockett with a change of front.

"Writing to Secretary Ward, Pearson says it reminds him that they were to depend 'entirely on results,' referring to his compensation. And again, writing to Ward, Pearson says on the subject of his pay: 'I object to doing work that no other man can do, and do this work on an ordinary salary. I have no competitors in this field, and object to sell the monopoly I possess on a salary basis, unless, however, the salary should be like the work done, something entirely without precedent.'

"All the voluminous correspondence on this subject was of no avail so far as Pearson was concerned. He did not receive more than the monthly salary, $1300, as he says, in all.

"In one of his letters he made a proposition of settlement for the coal fields now mapped out in Cascade county, Mont., $10,000 on account of services rendered. Royalty of 3 cents a ton on all coal shipped from the mines at the expiration of each quarter or period of three months.

"For the Washington areas, Nos. 1 and 2—$5000 on account of services rendered for each area, when five holes in each field have demonstrated a marketable bed. In addition, 4 cents per ton royalty on all coal shipped from the mines quarterly.

"For future locations in other districts to be made, or attempted to be made, in the specific limits—expenses. In case of success, as demonstrated by agreed test, the cash bonus to be fixed not to exceed $10,000. By agreement in each case, depending on area, etc., royalty of 4 cents a ton quarterly.

"One of the letters on file is a warm one of commendation from J. L. Greatsinger, of Duluth, to James J. Hill, commending Pearson and his theories.

"Pearson appears to be unusually methodical for a scientist. The papers in the case show extensive memoranda, not only of field notes, but notes of interviews and business transactions, of his expenses, and, indeed, of every transaction in which he was engaged.

"He first interviewed Mr. Hill on the steamer North Land, traveling with him to Buffalo. Then in St. Paul, in the presence of Stockett, and to some extent, at least, Stockett was his assistant in the work of locating the coal fields.

"An early statement made by Pearson says, among other things:

"'It has been supposed that all coal deposits have been laid down by chance, and that therefore coal could only be found by search beneath the earth's surface. This theory is wrong. I have discovered the law governing the deposit of all coal on the globe, the law which 100 times in succession has placed the coal beds in the same spot, one bed above another, and there is no mistake or uncertainty in this statement. There are hundreds of square miles of lignites in Minnesota and on the great plains of the West that are waiting to be located. There are thousands of square miles of coal beds on the Pacific coast and in the Eastern United States, Russia, Mexico, Africa, Australia, Brazil and British America that are yet undiscovered. The location of all the coal can be mapped out precisely and accurately by a man sitting here in Duluth, provided that he has the topographical data that is necessary. This data, I believe, is only available in the Smithsonian Institution a Washington.'

"He desired assistance in order to lay his theory before Hill or Frick or Rockefeller. When this information becomes public it will have no commercial value."

MACCABEES' MEETING.

Plans Making For Convocation In August.

Local officers of the Maccabees are already planning for a great convocation which is to be held in this city early in August. A large portion of the Northwest will be represented and it will be one of the most important conventions held in Duluth this year. The local people are negotiating with railroad companies in regard to rates. If they can secure anything like the low fare concessions for excursions, they are confident that from twelve to fifteen thousand people will come to Duluth during the time the convention is here. Maccabees over the entire Northwest are interested in the coming meeting and in addition to the immense number of members who will gather here, their friends in the territory within 500 miles of Duluth would be attracted by cheap fare and take advantage of the chance to visit the head of the lakes at one of the most pleasant periods of the year.

Had Frightened Her.

A falsetto shriek of beauty in distress, caused several policemen to hurry to 102 East Second street, about 12 o'clock last night. Mrs. A. Grues had been sitting in her room sewing when she noticed a man sticking his head through the open window. She called for help and the man ran away.

Laboring Men Complain.

Laboring men in Superior are protesting against the alleged importation of Italians by the Duluth-Superior Traction company. It is claimed that the company is employing this class of labor in making the improvements on its line between West Superior and Old Town. It is alleged that a crew of thirty-five men and an overseer have already arrived in the city and that they are employed unloading steel rails at Central Park. Superior men working with the gang at Central Park claim that the majority of the crew were born 'neath the azure skies of Italy, and that the company is doing home labor an injustice.

THE ELKS TO PLAY.

Ball Game Will Be a Corker.

It will be one of the most distinguished gatherings of alleged ball players that ever kicked up the dust on a local diamond. The small bills announce that every man is fast, noted for hard hitting, and sensational fielding. A small youngster who has been watching the Superior team in practice takes exception to this statement, but he is in the minority.

A large number of Duluthians will go over to West Superior to see the game.

Tailor Shop Burned.

The tailor shop of W. E. Wellberg, No. 14 Twentieth avenue west, was destroyed by fire last night about 10:30. The contents of the shop was valued at $1000 and the building about $300. Mr. Wellberg carried $700 insurance.

The fire was caused by the explosion of a gasoline stove. Mr. Wellberg was working in the shop at the time of the explosion and in trying to save his books and property he had a rather narrow escape.

Randolph Returns.

William Randolph, the man who shot Frank Sullivan in a gun fight last February, and who was recently indicted by the grand jury, for murder in the first degree, arrived in Duluth last night, enroute from Grand Rapids to Koochiching. Randolph is out on $5000 bail for his appearance at the next term of district court in Itasca county.

C. O. Baldwin has been engaged by Mr. Randolph, who with Daniel Waite, will fight the case. Randolph says that he is confident of acquittal as every one in the vicinity knows that Sullivan shot and wounded him before he fired.

They Can Celebrate.

About everybody will have a good time on the glorious Fourth this year. Postmaster Fisher has complied with the request of the Fourth of July committee, and says that the mail carriers will have a full holiday on that historic occasion. No deliveries will be made, and the delivery window will be opened but a short time in the morning.

Mayor Hugo has received word from Ely that the people along both ore roads are taking the greatest interest in the celebration here, and large numbers are expected from that place. A $2.50 railroad rate has been made, while the Missabe range inhabitants will get here and back for $2.

A Good Cough Medicine.

It speaks well for Chamberlain's Cough Remedy when druggists use it in their own families in preference to any other. "I have sold Chamberlain's Cough Remedy for the past five years with complete satisfaction to myself and customers," says Druggist J. Goldsmith, Van Etten, N. Y. "I have always used it in my own family both for ordinary coughs and colds and for the cough following la grippe, and find it very efficacious." For sale at Boyce's drug store.

NEAR AT HAND

End of the Strawberry Season Is Not Far Off.

The housekeeper who annually buys a barrel of sugar and puts up preserves is in a quandary just now as to strawberries. The time is ripe for putting up her strawberry preserves, but while the price is right and the time short, the berries on the market are not particularly choice. There is little more time in which to "do up" strawberries, for the Michigan street commission men say that only a few days more will see the end of the strawberry season. There will be strawberries after that, but not in such quantities and at such prices as will warrant preserving them.

There are a few blackberries on the market, but they have been brought in direct by a few grocers, and they have not made their appearance on Michigan street.

Spring chickens in fairly large quantities are the feature of the poultry market, and the prices are not so terribly steep. They are selling freely at 16 to 18 cents per pound, which is a few cents cheaper than they were when they first appeared. Other poultry is cheaper, hens selling at 10 to 10½ cents instead of 11, and turkeys, ducks and geese selling at 8 to 10 cents, which is lower on all, except geese.

Potatoes, old and new, are weaker, owing to the arrival of larger supplies and the spread between them has narrowed considerably. Old potatoes are now selling at 80 cents per bushel and new ones at $1.25, a fall of 10 cents for old and 50 cents for new. Wax beans are pretty well cleaned out and the price is higher. Green peas are cheaper and so are all of the fruits in which there is any change.

Peaches are particularly cheap, plentiful and good, and the very finest quality on the market can be bought at wholesale for 85 to 90 cents.

TO SUCCEED PLATT.

Editor E. H. Butler Aspires to Be Senator.

New York, June 21.—The first man formally announced as a candidate to succeed Thomas C. Platt in the United States senate in 1903 is Edmond H. Butler, of Buffalo.

Mr. Butler is the owner of a newspaper, and last year was a presidential elector for the state at large. Most of the time in recent years he has opposed the Republican organization of the state. In 1896 he was one of the original McKinley men, joining the Milholland movement and the McKinley league, and took an active part in the fight to prevent a solid delegation from the state for Morton. During that period he bitterly assailed Mr. Platt and the state organization.

Mr. Butler is a candidate for the Republican nomination for mayor of Buffalo this year, and from that city comes the news that he is also a candidate for the United States senatorship.

Prices and the Trust.

Whenever the danger of trusts is referred to there are some people who deprecate that sort of talk, claiming that they will eventually be of benefit to the country and pointing to the reduction of prices in sugar and oil. These are the only commodities that are ever mentioned. If they were not in the control of trusts, sugar and oil would be still cheaper. In the June number of the Review of Reviews, Prof. Jenks gives the result of an impartial investigation of the connection between trusts and prices, and finds in most instances the consumer has not been benefited. He says that nothing is proved by the fact that the prices of some manufactured goods are lower now than before the trust movement gained such headway. The only question to be considered is the margin between the cost of raw material and the market price of the finished product. He finds that this margin has increased since the trust movement was started. The trust has added to its profits by forcing down the cost of the raw material, next by improving the method of manufacture, and third by increasing the price to the consumer. Benefits have resulted from combinations, he admits, but few of them have reached the public. The chief benefit has been retained by the capitalist. Employes have received part of it in higher wages, but the consumer has received little if any benefit.

Recruiting the New Army.

The new army law of the United States will go into effect in about ten days, or July 1, and it appears by reports from Washington that the infantry and cavalry regiments are practically complete. The artillery has been left to the last and the work of enlistment is just about beginning. Of the infantry the Twenty-sixth and Thirtieth regiments are practically complete in Manila, having been made so by transfers there from other regiments, and by the four battalions sent over. The three other infantry regiments are all also complete, and all be wholly so by July 1. Of the cavalry, part of the Fifteenth regiment is in Manila, and the rest of it is here, thus making the enlistment of this regiment complete. To fill the other cavalry regiments about three-fourths of one regiment is needed. When this has been obtained attention will be turned toward the artillery. It is estimated that the total army on July 1 will be about 70,000. Enlistments are now coming in at the rate of six hundred a week. It will apparently be necessary to keep up about the present recruiting force to maintain an army of 77,000 men or thereabouts, as long as it is desired. On a three-year basis the discharges would average five hundred a week, besides the casualties. Then, it is recalled that the terms of a number of the three-year men enlisted in the fall of 1898 will soon be expiring. The recruiting standard has been steadily maintained high, which, with the collapse of the Philippine insurrection and the consequent cessation of interest in affairs there, has prevented a rapid enlistment, such as could have been made had conditions demanded it. The fall months, too, will give the usual impetus to the recruiting, it is expected.

There is nothing like a practical argument to bring men's thoughts to bear on some evil. This is the way the St. Louis Post-Dispatch makes an appeal to spare the birds: "When a big, juicy caterpillar gets down your neck at a picnic, or a nasty green bug flies into your eye as you go along the street," it says, "remember the appeals to spare the birds which delight in eating these summer pests."

RECIPROCITY WITH CUBA.

There will be a warm fight before congress the coming session on the question of a sugar tariff between Cuba and the United States. Cuba will ask that her sugar be admitted at a reduced tariff and already headquarters have been opened at Washington by the Cubans for the purpose of developing a sentiment favorable to the adoption of a reciprocity trade treaty that will embrace Cuban sugar. The representative of the beet sugar interests are alarmed and will fight the proposition with all their strength. It is proposed by the friends of Cuba that the sugar which they will ask be admitted at a reduced tariff shall be raw and unrefined. This will secure the non-interference in the fight of the sugar trust, as its factories would do the bulk of the refining for the Cuban imports. There is a growing belief at Washington that Cuba's demands will be acceded to and that next winter a reciprocity treaty will be submitted to the senate and ratified. The powerful American interests that have allied themselves with Cuba's development will throw their vast influences in favor of a trade treaty, and these and other strong business reasons, together with the sentimental factor, will doubtless win the day for Cuba. The plan at this time is to demand preferential rates of duty for both sugar and tobacco, but those on the inside say that when the matter has progressed to the point where concessions are to be made, the Cubans will be well satisfied to get a reduced tariff for their sugars and let tobacco alone.

The strong argument will be advanced that this government is required by all rules of justice to make concessions to Cuba, in view of the fact that the latter has lost the market of Spain. There are many desirable things that Cuba can offer in return. It is quite certain that one of the first acts of the new Cuban government will be to revise her tariff law. The tariff schedules drafted by former Superintendent of the Census Porter are still in force in Cuba. They were drafted with a special view to benefiting American exporters and the great proportion of Cuba's foreign purchases come from this country. Should Cuba desire to do so, she could raise the tariffs on certain articles that now come almost exclusively from the United States. On the other hand, she could give special rates on a large array of commodities that would enable our manufacturers to wholly control the market for them in Cuba. It is pointed out that it will be necessary to secure a special reduction on cotton goods if we are to furnish Cuba's supply of this staple. A reciprocity treaty between the island and this country would result in clinching for our manufacturers Cuba's trade in breadstuffs, canned goods, refined sugars, ready-made clothing, jewelry, etc. There are very few factories in Cuba, Spain shaping her policy so as to discourage the erection of manufacturing plants, preferring to sell the finished products to her people in Cuba.

It is stated that there are between $15,000,000 and $25,000,000 invested in the beet sugar industry in this country and it is asserted that the industry will be ruined by admitting Cuban sugars with a reduction of 20 to 25 per cent. It is alleged, on the other hand, that the industry has not been phenomenally successful; that, despite the aid of a high tariff, state bounties and the vigorous help of the department of agriculture and various agricultural societies, it has given no promise of ever furnishing all the sugar the country needed. Those who are favorable to Cuba say that with a slight reduction in our duty, Cuba can supply all the sugar consumed by the United States in five years. At the present time Germany and the Dutch East Indies furnish the bulk of our raw sugar. We import about $100,000,000 worth of this commodity every year. Formerly a large part of it came from Cuba, but since the Spanish war we have been buying about $25,000,000 worth a year from the Dutch East Indies. The product of those islands is of a very low grade, however, and is vastly inferior to the output of Cuba.

THE SIXTEEN-INCH GUN.

Buffalo, or rather the Pan-American exposition, was priding itself on having on exhibition the biggest gun in the country, the new 16-inch cannon, which the government has been building during five years past. But it will not have it. The gun is finished, but Gen. Buffington, chief of the ordnance department, has not worked his massive brain with sufficient rapidity as yet to decide what kind of a mount he desires for the monster. As it will require at least six months to build the carriage, it can be plainly seen why the visitors at Buffalo will not see the big gun. It is stated at the war department that there is no lack of money to embarrass the construction, and that entire responsibility for the progress made in completing the gun rests with Gen. Buffington.

The department has decided where the 16-inch rifle is to be established and has selected Fort Lafayette, New York harbor, as the site. It will completely sweep the channel leading to the Narrows and will be a very powerful addition to the defenses of the harbor. It was the original intention of the war department to build forty of these 16-inch guns, to be mounted as follows: Eighteen at New York, ten at San Francisco, eight at Boston and four at Hampton roads. The chances are that no more will be manufactured, the leading ordnance experts having decided that smaller guns were more effective. Maj. James M. Ingalls of the Fifth artillery has made some interesting theoretical calculations of what might be accomplished with a 16-inch gun. He has figured the range of this weapon to be 20.978 miles. He also prepared a firing table for the gun which shows that the above range is obtainable with a muzzle velocity of 2300 feet per second with the necessary angle of elevation of the piece. The trajectory of the projectile shows that in traveling the 20.978 miles the shell would reach the maximum elevation of 30,516 feet, or almost six miles. This is enormously greater than the maximum range hitherto obtained by any other gun, which at present stands to the credit of a Krupp 9.45-inch gun which was fired on the Meppan range in the presence of the emperor of Germany, in April, 1892. The measured range was found to be about twelve and a half miles. The height reached by the Krupp shell in its flight was 21,456 feet, and the time occupied between the firing of the gun and the striking of the projectile was 70.2 seconds. The performance of a shell from the 16-inch gun would easily surpass this. At the extreme height of the trajectory of such a shell a point would be reached equal to the combined height of Mount Blanc and Pike's Peak.

It is a pity that this wonderful gun will not be on exhibition at Buffalo, where the many thousands of people who will attend the exposition could see it.

Harvard is a little more particular in handing out the honorary degree of LL. D. than some other institutions of learning. The custom of the college has been of late to confer the degree only upon persons present. Owing to Mrs. McKinley's illness, President McKinley will not be able to attend the commencement exercises and for that reason will not receive an LL. D. from Harvard this year.

IN MICHIGAN.

Nichols' Body Was Buried Under Tons of Mud.

Ishpeming—The body of Thomas Nichols, a miner, caught in the run of mud in the Cleveland lake mine a week ago yesterday, was recovered this morning. The mud came from the lake basin, causing much damage to the mine. Nearly 100,000 tons came in, most of which was removed in the search for the body.

Edward Latterman, aged 40 years, who formerly resided in Menominee, was drowned on the Pike river drive near Amberg, Wis., Monday afternoon. He was working on the sluices and fell in the river and was carried over the Dow dam. The body was found Tuesday morning. Latterman leaves a wife and family living at Amberg.

Sault Ste Marie—Roy McPherson was arrested by the police at the Soo charged with robbing John McDonald, bartender at the Windsor hotel, Canadian Soo, of $250. McDonald came over here with the money on his person and drank considerably during the evening. While at McGauley's saloon on Portage avenue his money was intact, and he left there to go to the Empire saloon. The trip was made in a carriage, and when he arrived at the Empire he missed his roll. McDonald had no suspicion as to the identity of the thief. During the night the police learned that McPherson was flashing coin, and as he had just been released from jail his possession of a large amount of money was considered suspicious.

DAILY STORY.

Tragedy of the Mountains.

BY JEFFERSON KYLE.

(Copyright, 1901, William R. Miller.)

It was not to be wondered at that the people of Jackson's Cove, which was a hamlet high up on the Cumberland Mountains, should be attracted to Elder Meachem. He was a fine-looking man in the prime of life. He had a gentle look, a sympathetic voice, and his deeds were good. He came up from the lowlands with pipes and tobacco for the men, needles and thread for the women, and toys and sweetmeats for the children. He had medicines and salves and liniments which he distributed with a free hand. He had credentials to prove that he was no revenue spy, but he did not identify himself as a Mormon Elder, sent among the poor and ignorant to make converts, until he had first won his way as a philanthropist. When the time was finally ripe and he began holding services at the log school-house, his hearers were ready to believe that any religion he represented must be a good one to live by.

Elder Meacham was soft and smooth and sly. He preached a creed calculated to strongly appeal to people who knew nothing of the world. There were Baptists and Methodists among his hearers, and he took care not to shock them. He poisoned their minds and killed their faith by degrees. He worked harder and longer to make a score of converts than one of the orthodox faith would have done to convert a hundred. Among those who heard with indifference at first, but who gradually accepted the new doctrine as he heard it expounded time after time, was Tom Carter. Tom was looked up to as the head of Jackson's Cove. He owned land. He got out ties and timber for the railroad. He held a county office, and he was three-quarters owner of the moonshine still a mile away in the ravine. Tom had married a woman several years his senior. She had borne him several children, though none had lived beyond infancy, and she had worked early and late to help him accumulate what he had. At forty, when he was in his prime, she counted her age six years more, and toil and trouble had made her look still older. From the very first she had a fear in her heart. She said nothing, but her fear increased. If the Mormon elder converted Tom then Tom would go with a party to Utah, but would he take her? Elder Meachem spoke to her falsely, but she mistrusted him. She was too old and haggard and homely to be welcomed into the band. She knew when Tom began to have faith in the new doctrine, and she watched him closely. She knew when he began to think of becoming a convert, and every action was noticed and weighed. The day finally came when she realized that he was drawing away from her. He had looked at her as a stranger would, and had found her old and haggard. He would never take her along with him. She did not weep and lament, nor did she haste to know her fate. On the contrary, she forced her tears back, fought down her heart-aches and waited. Tom would tell her in good time.

One day she was told that a party of eighteen converts would be ready within a week, and that her husband was one of them. The Mormon elder came no more to the house. Her pale face and compressed lips and glances of reproach told him that there might be trouble with her. On the evening of this day she sat on the doorsteps with her hands in her lap and her eyes fixed on one of the mountain tops. She was thinking and wondering and waiting for her husband. By and by he came up the road and turned in and sat beside her. He had been to the house of a neighbor to have a talk with the elder, and all things had been settled.

The pair sat for five minutes without a word, and then Tom quietly said:

"Wall, Linda, it's all settled."

"Yes," she answered.

"I'm gwine along with the rest."

"Yes."

"I don't like bustin' up, but it 'pears to be my duty to the Lawd to go 'long. Yes, I'm gwine, Linda, and—and—"

She waited for him to finish. She knew what he wanted to say, but she was calm and quiet.

"I can't take you, Linda," he finally blurted out as he half turned from her.

"No? I'm too old and homely, I reckon."

"Tain't jest that, Linda—'taint jest that. It's bekase the Lawd commanded us to leave the world behind us when we enter the promised land."

"But Bud Taylor is gwine to take Sally along," she protested.

"Meble so, but Sally—. That is—. Yes, mebbe so."

"Look here, Tom," said the wife, as she turned on the blundering and confused husband, "yo' needn't go beatin' all over the woods. Yo' don't dun want to take me along bekase I'm old and scrawny and homely. Don't lay it off on the Lawd nor nobody else."

"But I'm gwine to do what's right by yo', Linda," he replied. "Yo'll hev the house, and I'll leave yo' a hundred dollars, and yo'r brother Ben will help yo' git along right smart. I ain't gwine back on yo' as a wife, but I'm obeyin' the commands of the Lawd when he says to purify myself. I shall hev yo' in mind and write to yo often."

"Shoo! Shoo!" she laughed in a grim, sarcastic way.

"Honor bright, Linda, and mebbe I shall come back in a y'ar or two. 'Pears like the Lawd has called me, but if I find 'taint so I shall come back vere. Yo' ain't gwine to take on, be yo', Linda?"

"Not a bit."

"Ain't gwine to scold or cry?"

"No, suh."

"That's powerful kind o' yo', and I'll remember it in yo'r favor."

That closed the conversation, and in a few minutes later they retired to rest. The husband fell asleep almost at once, but the wife lay with her eyes wide open an her brain busy. By and by she slipped softly out of bed, and kneeling on the bed she prayed:

"Oh, Lawd, dun gulde a poor woman who is in trouble, and tell her what to do."

For the first time since the fear had come to her heart she broke down and wept, and she mingled further prayers with her sobs. For a quarter of an hour she was a weak and helpless woman. Then she rose up with a new look in her eyes and a new feeling in her heart. On the deer horn over the fireplace was Tom's loaded rifle. She took it down, made sure that it held a bullet, and slipping on her dress she quietly left the house with the rifle in her hands. A quarter of a mile down the road was the house at which the Mormon elder was stopping. The hour was late, but he had not yet gone to bed. She saw him standing before the door, with pipe in mouth, and she had stopped at the gate, only forty feet away, before he got sight of her.

"Is—is anything wrong?" he called out as she halted.

"Yes, elder, thar's sunthin' wrong," she answered.

"Is it about Tom—your husband?"

"That's it."

"Perhaps he has told you—told you—"

"That the Lawd don't dun want me in Utah? Yes, Tom has told me that."

"And you—you will stay?" he anxiously asked.

"Suah to stay, elder—suah to stay."

"And you come to tell me so. My dear woman, let me—"

"And Tom's gwine to stay, and the rest of 'em's gwine to stay, and you'll stay, too!" she interrupted as she brought up the rifle and discharged it.

"Whar's yo' hin, Linda, and who was shootin'?" asked the husband as he met her at the door on her return.

"Bingwdon . in taol taoin. E.taoinun

"Bin down to Jim Hapgood's," she replied, as she sank down on the doorstep, "and I shot the elder plump center."

"Yo' don't dun mean it!" he gasped.

"Plump center, Tom, and now kiss me, and put your arms around me like old times, and give me strength to go with the sheriff in the mawnin' and lie in jail till they take me out and hang me by the neck till I won't trouble yo' no mo'."

SCANDAL.

In Handling of Endowment Fund, Knights of Pythias.

Chicago, June 21.—A scandal in the handling of the endowment fund has resulted in a call for an extraordinary session of members of the supreme lodge of Knights of Pythias from the United States and Canada, to be held at the Lexington hotel, July 9. The assemblage will be the first of its kind called since the organization of the order, and sensational developments are expected.

The object of the meeting is to adjust the investment of endowment funds, and provide for the growing needs of the insurance branch of the order.

The call for the session is said to have grown out of the factional fight at the last international business meeting held at Detroit, when John A. Hinsey, of Chicago, the former president of the board of control, was charged with mismanagement of the endowment funds.

The present supreme chancellor, Ogden H. Fethers, of Janesville, Wis., will criticise the manner in which the affairs of the fund have been managed. It is said that he will make sensational charges against certain former officials in high rank.

The investigations of Insurance Commissioner Yates in relation to the order will be considered at the special session.

The deliberations will be watched with keen interest by memebers of the order throughout the country. The session will probably continue for a week.

Officers of the supreme lodge are: Supreme chancellor, Ogden H. Fethers, Janesville, Wis.; supreme vice chancellor, Tracy R. Bangs, Grand Forks, N. D.; supreme prelate, C. F. Easley, Santa Fe, N. M.; supreme master-at-arms, W. Simmons, Wilmington, Del.; supreme inner guard, O. F. E. Beane, Hallowell, Me.; supreme outer guard, J. W. Thompson, Washington, D. C.; president of the board of control, Charles Neal, Chicago; major general, J. R. Carnahan, Indianapolis.

The order has a total membership of 518,914.

GEN. FRENCH'S CAPTURE.

He Broke His Parole When a Prisoner.

Berlin, June 21.—The Rheiniske Westphalische Zeitung, published at Essen, says it has the authority of Mrs. Botha for the statement that Gen. French was captured by the Boers some time ago and released on parole.

"The unscrupulous British general," the paper adds, "regardless of his pledge of honor, broke his parole and escaped. He has, however, profit by his faithlessness, for before he had got within touch of the British lines the keen burghers caught up with him, recaptured him and brought him back to Gen. Botha."

Gen. Botha, continues the story, ordered the British cavalry leader to be shot, and the sentence was about to be carried out, when a message came in hot haste from the British commander in chief, Lord Kitchener, imploring the Boer general to delay the execution, and offering to release 1000 Boers from the prison camp at Simonstown to secure Gen. French's release.

On these conditions, the story concludes, the British general was set at liberty.

The speaker will receive many courtesies from Speaker Gully and members of parliament, and will be a prominent figure at the Fourth of July dinner, where he will speak. This dinner will be unusually large and important. Representatives of every self-governing British colony will have seats of honor and Lord Strathcona will respond for them. Lord Gascheu, Sir Ian Hamilton, Levi P. Morton and Frederick H. Gillet will attend the dinner, and speeches will be made by Ambassador Choate, R. W. Hanbury, Bishop Weldon, of Calcutta, Rev. Dr. Joseph Parker and the head master of Rugby.

HIS LIFE SAVED

By Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy.

"I am sure that Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy at one time saved my life," says A. E. Lafalette, of Gregory Landing, Clark county, Missouri. "I was in such bad shape that the doctors said I could not live. When I was at the lowest ebb, one of my neighbors brought in a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy and I took it and got instant relief. I soon got up and around. That was nine years ago and I am still in good health. Since then that medicine has always been in my house and always will be. It is the best on earth." For sale at Boyce's drug store.

First of Alleged Illegal Homestead Entries on Trial.

Fargo.—The first of the cases against alleged illegal homestead entries is that of Lindsay Little of Grand Forks, who was arrested and brought before United States court officials on the charge of perjury in proving up on his homestead. He was held under $500 bonds. There are other cases pending and it is said that two or three well-known traveling men have asked to withdraw their proofs, fearing prosecution.

The program for the Cass county summer school is out. The school will begin July 6 and continue till July 27. Many prominent instructors have been engaged.

Mayville.—Great indignation is felt by people of Mayville at the attempt to obtain a pardon for William Law, who, with a man named Kelly, was sent to the penitentiary for life for the murder of Even Paulson, a night watchman, on Sunday morning, Sept. 3, 1893. A telegram of remonstrance has been sent to Bismarck, and this week will be followed by a petition which is being circulated today and which is being signed by everybody.

Vermillion.—Two golden weddings have been celebrated within a week in this city. Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Haynes were married in June, 1851, and came to South Dakota from Indiana in 1877. Four children were born to them and thirteen grand children are living. The husband is 7 years old and his wife 71. Mr. and Mrs. William Spensley celebrated their fiftieth wedding anniversary Wednesday and fifty relatives were present, including seven children, twenty-seven grand children and one great grand-child, a daughter of Mrs. William Carter, of Nebraska. Both are natives of England, but were married in Platteville, Wis., June 16, 1851.

Sioux Falls.—The man from Centerville named George Boomer had cause to criticise the wisdom of a South Dakota law, for because of it he met with a keen disappointment. Boomer wanted to marry Miss Anna Dedrick, of Wall Lake township, this (Minnehaha) county, but because of a state statute was forced to postpone the wedding. When he applied to the clerk of the courts for a license that official had to deny the request for the reason that the intended bride was only 17 years of age. It was necessary for Boomer to make a trip across country to the girl's home to secure the written consent of her parents before the license could be issued.

Plankinton.—Guntos Hagaar, a Syrian peddler, claims to have been beaten and robbed by three men north of this place.

Madison.—The state convention of Good Templars of South Dakota is in session. Councillor Guy Saylor from England is present.

Sherman.—It is feared that smallpox has broken out in a camp of railroad graders working in this vicinity and county officials have been called to investigate.

Pierre.—The Billion Dollar Queen Mining company is a New York concern, but just who is back of it cannot be learned. The incorporating was done by the National Incorporating company with offices in this city and at 429-439 Park Row building, New York.

Sioux Falls.—Dr. W. F. Keller, county physician, has returned from Garretson, where he was called to examine a man who is supposed to have the hydrophobia. He has spells when he attacks everything within reach with his teeth. At such times he bites fiercely at the bedposts and bedding.

CABLE FLASHES.

Henry W. Massingham, writing to the London Daily News says six thousand Cape Colonists have already joined the Boers.

The Vienna correspondent of the London Daily Mail says that Arthur Schnitzler, the playwright and novelist, has been expelled from the ranks of reservist officers in the Austrian army and infamously degraded by a military court of honor for publishing a novel in which he throws ridicule upon the practice of duelling.

The navy department received a cablegram from Admiral Kempff announcing his arrival at Nagasaki, Japan, aboard the Kentucky. He is on his way to Cavite.

"A high native authority," cables the Shanghai correspondent of the London Times, "says Germany proposes that China pay the indemnity in small annual amounts for fourteen years with increased amounts for the remaining twenty-six years and that Great Britain will probably agree to this proposition."

A STRONG COMPANY

The Texas Oil Company Organized By Ex-Senator Towne.

Has Over Eleven Thousand Acres, Covering the Entire Field.

Property In Louisiana That Covers Immense Sulphur Bed.

Beaumont, Tex., June 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Export Oil and Pipe Line company, of which Hon. Charles A. Towne is president, and of which he has been the principal promoter, is without doubt one of the strongest oil companies in the United States. It certainly is the best proposition that has been organized in the Beaumont field. Getting here just when he did, Senator Towne took advantage of the lull in the boom and quickly secured two and three-quarters acres on Spindletop heights, part of which is literally within the spray of the big gushers, at a very low price. This land has more than doubled in value since he purchased it for the company. He repeated this same operation in the Sour Lake field and at Sulphur, La. The company's holdings at both these places have more than doubled in value since the company bought it. The company has, in all, 11,400 acres of land, covering the entire field.

Associated with Senator Towne are a number of the best known business men in the country. The directorate is composed of himself, Governor Benton McMillin, of Tennessee; Stephen Scott, the president of two big irrigation companies; Harvey J. Hopkins, a prominent and successful oil magnate of Pennsylvania; Col. R. H. Henry, a wealthy Mississippian; John P. Withers, president of the American National bank of Beaumont, and a director in several other Texas National banks; Gordon S. Orme, of New Orleans, the largest dealer and handler of rice in the South; Charles C. Orthwein of the grain and elevator firm of Orthwein & Sons, of Kansas City, who own and control a large system of elevators in Kansas, Missouri, Oklahoma and Texas and J. E. Broussard, a Texas capitalist.

Aside from the Spindle-top heights property, which is in absolutely proven territory, the company has 150 acres two miles and a half southeasa of the Lucas gusher on what is called Gladys City ridge. This property is very valuable. It is, the officers of the company believe, as good as the Spindle-top heights property. In fact, Sharpe & Co., one of the largest well-drilling firms on the field have offered to drill on this property on a contract providing that if they do not get a gusher they do not get any pay, and if they do get a gusher they are to receive a half interest in ten acres of the land. When it is known that property on Spindle-top heights, where the company's two and three-quarters-acres tract is situated, is bringing $150,000 an acre and advancing every day, some idea of what the company's 150-acre tract would be worth in the event of a gusher being discovered on it may be had. Senator Towne and some friends visited this tract and found the oil seepage oozing from the ground all around it. The same offer has been made to the company by another firm that wishes to drill on 100 acres in towns in Orange county, while A. G. Newton, a well known oil expert, is urging the company to begin development on its fifty acres at Sour Lake. He says that he is satisfied that it is the most valuable property in the list of the company's holdings. Then, again, at Sulphur, La., the company has ten acres bordering on the property of the American Sulphur company (the Standard Oil company) property and only about 250 feet from the sulphur mines and oil well of that company.

This latter piece of property has a double significance. It covers an immense sulphur bed, and one who is familiar with the value of that product will know its great value. The American company has been operating nineteen mines here for the last thirty years. It has done its work so quietly that even the natives paid no attention to them. They have a bed of sulphur, said by those who are in a position to know, to be 135 feet in thickness. It is not necessary to say more than that the development of this property as a sulphur proposition will enable the company to pay dividends equal to the entire amount of its capitalization in two or three years.

The rest of the company's land is scattered throughout the field in such a manner that it will be in the best possible position, no matter where oil is discovered, and any new developments are bound to add value to its stock.

The entire capital stock of the company has been underwritten by the firm of W. G. Hudson & Co., of Boston, Mass., who will, as fiscal agents, place a limited amount on the market for public subscription in a short time. They are now preparing the prospectus and other literature, which will be ready for distribution in about two weeks. The stock will be put on the market at 50 cents per share, on the understanding that it may be withdrawn at a moment's notice.

The officers of the company are as follows: Charles A. Towne, president; Stephen M. Scott, vice president; Martin Gauldin, secretary; Joseph E. Broussard, treasurer, and Ellis E. Beebe, auditor. Mr. Beebe is also private secretary to the president, and has charge of the company's general offices at Beaumont.

THE CLOSE.

The Episcopal Missionary Meetings In Duluth Are Concluded.

The sixth annual convocation of the Episcopal missionary district of Duluth closed last evening, and the delegates departed for their homes today. The business of the convocation closed yesterday morning at St. Paul's church, with the election of officers, and the Woman's auxiliary meeting in the afternoon was devoted to missionary work. Archdeacon Appelby opened the meeting with a short resume of the work done by the Auxiliary during the last year, and urged the need of greater enthusiasm in the coming one. Mrs. Peabody of Hibbing, spoke very interestingly on "The Work in the Mines and Lumber Camps," and was followed by Mrs. Dennell, who read a paper on "The Junior Auxiliary as a Power in the Parish." Mrs. Henry Taylor of Duluth read a thoughtful paper on, "Do Missions Pay?" and Mrs. J. D. Morrison made an address, speaking of the work that the Auxiliary had accomplished in the past and the bright prospects for the future. Mrs. R. J. Mooney of Brainerd, read a paper on "What one Woman can do."

Yesterday evening at the home of Bishop Morrison, 2131 East Superior street, a reception was held for the delegates, the members of the Auxiliary, the families entertaining them, and the members of the choir. A very enjoyable evening was spent and the farewells of the party were made. Some excellent musical selections were rendered by Miss Rena Smith, Miss Alice Cooley, C. D. Shepard and Roy Pritz, under the direction of Prof. A. F. M. Custance.

He Is a Bigamist.

To the Editor of The Herald:

Will you kindly inform me in your valuable paper if a person is liable to the law for bigamy if he marries again without a divorce from his first wife, she deserted him and he having not heard from her for nine years and more. GAMOS.

Eveleth, June 18.

Any man who has married a second time, under the circumstances stated above, has committed bigamy. If he desired to marry again, he should have secured a divorce from his first wife on the grounds of desertion.

BESANT'S AFFAIRS.

New York, June 21.—A dispatch to the Tribune from London says: The late Sir Walter Besant left his business affairs entirely under control of A. P. Watt and made him executor under his will. Mr. Watt is also Besant's literary executor with the manuscript of an autobiography, the existence of which had not been suspected.

GIBBONS DEPARTS.

Rome, June 21.—Cardinal Gibbons started this morning for Florence for a stay of a week. At the railway station he bade farewell to the procurator general and to the brothers of St. Sulpice, whose guest he was while here.

CHANGE FOOD

And Lose That Uneasy Feeling.

A man who has always been a "skinny chap," although hardly ever ill, tells of the way he put on flesh and reduced his irritability and nervous condition.

By chance he had a taste of Grape-Nuts Food at the table of a friend and enjoyed the flavor so much that he began to have it every meal. He says, "In a short time I found myself another person, the old feeling of discontent and uneasiness left me entirely, it became a pleasure to go about my work, whereas, before for years I had always had the feeling of being a little weary, now I seem to have a surplus of energy for everything; my weight has increased 11 pounds in four weeks, and am still gaining.

I have never been very sick and am satisfied if my present improvement in health continues, I shall not be.

The change that this food has made in my life has been remarkable and so satisfactory that I am glad of the opportunity to tell you. Please do not publish my name." Name can be given by the Postum Cereal Co., Ltd., Battle Creek, Mich.

MURDER AT BIBON

Particulars Show It to Have Been Atrocious One.

Man Shot Without Warning or Opportunity For Defense.

Murderers Escaped and Have So Far Evaded Pursuit.

As announced in last night's Herald, the sheriff and his force are on the lookout for two men accused of murder at Bibon, Wis., the junction point of the Duluth, South Shore & Atlantic and Wisconsin Central railways, about forty miles east of Superior.

All trains arriving in the city from that direction have been closely watched, but no one has been apprehended. Details of this murder were learned last night, and it proves to have been atrocious. Last Wednesday evening Stephen Merrigan was sitting in front of Walsh's saloon at Bibon, talking with the bartender, when they were approached by two men, either colored or disguised as such, who advanced to within a couple of paces of them and opened fire with revolvers, with Merrigan as the target. Two bullets found lodgment in his body, one ball striking his arm, the other passing through his lungs. He died almost instantly. The bartender was momentarily paralyzed by the shock and the murderers fled.

The companion of Merrigan aroused the little town as soon as possible, and a search was instituted for the assassins, and officers were looking for them all day yesterday, but at last advices received in this city no trace of them had been found.

The motive of the murder is a mystery, and no cause can be assigned.

Merrigan, who was about 40 years of age, formerly lived at Bibon, where he ran a boarding house for some time, but moved with his family to Ashland about a year ago. He has been engaged in digging wells at Bibon recently, his family still remaining at Ashland.

The murdered man leaves a wife and three young children.

AT BUFFALO.

Speech Delivered By Capt. McDougall on Minnesota Day.

Following is the speech delivered by Capt. Alexander McDougall, chairman of the state commissioners, at the dedication of the Minnesota building at the Pan-American exposition last Tuesday:

Mr. Governor and Ladies and Gentlemen: I thank you for having appointed me, through the governor, to the office that has charge of the building with the other commissioners, the building which we are about to hand over to the governor and to the people of the state, and I want to state that we have, as commissioners, done our duty as best we possibly could. We were late in getting our appropriation and we fell in with the others in the bad weather and it has resulted in delaying the completion, but for the time that we had and the money that we had at our command I think we will show our people that we have been faithful to our trust, and, while handing over our part of it to the governor and to the people, at the present time, I wish to say a little concerning the Eastern portion of our state, in which I am more at home than I am in the bread-and-butter portion, of which the governor and some more of the people in the West will better explain.

And I will start in by stating that some thirty-three years ago, while I sailed on Lake Superior, the end of Lake Superior was hardly on the map. I think it was not as well known, that Eastern portion of Minnesota, as Alaska, in the Arctic Circle, is today. Soon after that time, when the governor was blowing his big whistle on the Mississippi river, chasing people into the state from the west side, I was along the east side, blowing a very large whistle, steamboat whistle, also, and have been blowing my whistle there ever since. (Laughter.) Although I have not got as many people into the east side as he has into the west, we have the room there for all the strangers that want to come in, and we will treat them well. I will tell of some little things that we offer. Some of the people within our state may now just know of their greatness. It was a great empty space that was covered with a forest that was so rich that we have the greatest lumber market on earth, furnishing the greatest tonnage of any port or any place probably in the world, with so much more in sight; we have the largest wheat market, the largest retail coal market in the world, larger shipments of flour and heavy products from the West and from the state of Minnesota. We have lying north of us and within sight almost of Lake Superior one of the greatest deposits in the world, most wealthy. We have in sight there, as I saw last summer, in company with a congress committee, when estimates were made of what we have there, 1,000,000,000 tons of the greatest iron-making ore on earth; that deposit measured and compared with the products of other states, you might consider as follows: Any state that produces corn, any state that produces wheat, there is enough in sight of that material on the face of the ground at present, to be equivalent to the products of wheat and corn from any state for fifty years to come, in its raw condition; manufactured into the iron or steel or the machinery, such as you will see in this great exposition, twenty times as much or more. That product there in the ground, as it lies, means a great deal. It is today the question that comes before the unrest of the commercial conditions in Europe, where steel or the products that make steel come from. We know where they come from, for we have seen them. At first discovery they were supposed to be not valuable. They are granulated, fine and much like the dust or the gravel formations, and the query "where does such material come from?" was asked of this congress committee last year. It was suggested, I think by myself, that it might have been something that was left over when they were making the north pole. The material is there and it is coming forward and it is being manufactured with the labor and the skill of both the West and the East and is going to Europe and all over this country, and all Europe wants part of it. That portion of the state, as we clean it up, we find that it is the richest in grasses and will lead into the dairy conditions that exist in some of the Eastern states, very much like it is in our own Western part of Minnesota. And I must state to you that a state which can grow bread and butter the cheapest, and a state that can furnish the products to make steel for the world for the mechanical necessities of life, that the country or the people who can furnish it the cheapest, is the best off of any country—and that is Minnesota. (Applause.)

STOLEN WHEN A BOY.

Strange Story of a Crookston Man.

Crookston, Minn., June 21.—J. H. Kernes, a tinner employed in this city, learned yesterday that his parents, from whom he was kidnapped when 4 years of age, are still living, and he is rejoicing as a consequence.

Mr. Kearnes was born at Linesville, Pa., and lived with his parents until 4 years of age, when he was stolen, and all efforts on their part to locate him were futile. He was taken to Ohio, and later to Minnesota, where he married and has reared a family. Before the death of the woman whose husband kidnapped Mr. Kearnes, she told him his history and the residence of his parents as near as she could remember. He made every effort to ascertain the truth of the story, but was unable to do so.

Last week there arrived in Crookston an agent for a nursery firm in Rochester, N. Y., who became acquainted with Mr. Kearnes, and it came out that he was from the town in Pennsylvania from which Mr. Kearnes had been stolen. Mr. Kearnes questioned him and learned what all the years of futile inquiry had failed to disclose, that his father was alive and a native of Leon, Ohio.

A telegram was at once sent, and the father was filled with joy to find that the son whom he had long mourned as dead, was still living. As soon as Mr. Kearnes can arrange his business to get away he will go to Leon for an extended visit.

MAY ENDORSE IT.

Trades Assembly May Approve Linemen's Strike.

The strike of the electric linemen inaugurated several days ago promises to be endorsed by the leading labor organizations of the city. A special meeting of the Federated Trades assembly has been called for Saturday evening to take action regarding the strike, and judging from remarks dropped today by labor leaders of prominence the stand of the linemen for an 8-hour day, may be backed up.

At the meeting of the electrical workers' union held last evening in the Kalamazoo block the situation was carefully gone over, and that feature of the strike in which the two telephone companies each offer $500 reward for the apprehension of persons tampering with wires, was discussed at length by the electrician.

Although the strike of the linemen is an individual rather than a union strike, the electrical union has endorsed it, and members take a decided stand in objecting to reports that the strikers have been spiking cables.

The following resolutions were adopted at a meeting of the electrical workers' union:

"Resolved, that whereas recently there have been stories published in the papers reflecting on the striking linemen, and intimating that they were responsible for the trouble recently caused on the wires of the two telephone companies;

"And whereas, we, the Electrical Workers' union as a body have not had a hand in such work;

"Therefore, be it resolved, that we do not countenance any such actions and will do all in our power to prevent such work."

"C. L. HIGGINS, Rec. Sec'y,
"C. J. RINN, Pres."

Wires were not tampered with last evening and both the telephone companies report their systems in good working order and do not anticipate any more trouble.

SOUTH IS BOOMING.

Michael Kelly Says It Is Plunging Forward.

Michael Kelley returned this week from a trip to Texas and Louisiana. He is interested in lumbering operations down there and during the past two years has spent many months in the South.

"The South is developing at a wonderful rate" says Mr. Kelley. "It is largely northern capital that is doing it but the people down there are beginning to capture the spirit. In the lumbering industry a great stride is being made and southern timber that but a short time ago was almost a drug on the market is in great demand and is experiencing a boom much like that has taken place in white pine and the timber on the coast. Other lines of industry are also progressing and the South is waking up in great shape.

"The oil industry is also bringing loads of capital into the South. Of course there are a great many men who lose all they put in, in fact, probably more than 90 per cent will, but they are finding enormous quantities of oil down there and it cannot fail to greatly benefit the country. The number of wild cat schemes is enormous, however. They are now hoping for oil in Louisiana and think they have excellent showings. They are not yet down deep enough to tell whether there is a chance or not.

Towne to Return Soon.

Charles A. Towne will arrive in Duluth June 30 and will then arrange for his removal to New York City. Advices from Texas indicate that he has a good thing in the oil companies with which he is associated and that he has fallen in with successful people and is in a fair way to make a fortune.

A GREAT PARADE

Eight Thousand People to Be In Line on Fourth.

Ely to Send Great Delegation Headed By Band.

Two Thousand School Children In Line--- Railroads Generous.

Eight thousand people marching to the inspiring music of many bands, will be one of the many attractions for Duluth's great Fourth of July celebration.

Eight thousand is a conservative estimate. It will be the largest and most brilliant parade that has ever been seen in Duluth. The advices of the parade committee, received from local organizations, indicate that the parade will be a greater success than at first anticipated. The procession will be fully three miles in length.

The various committees having this Independence day celebration in charge are now in a position to figure out what the results of their weeks of labor will be, and it will be a monster demonstration from start to finish.

The line of march has not been definitely decided on, but it will include Superior street, from Eighth avenue west to Third avenue east. The health department is organizing a "Red Cross" detail, members of which will be stationed at regular intervals along the line of march, supplying the marchers with water and taking care of any person that becomes ill or injured.

Another good feature is that the police will not permit the shooting of fire crackers along the line of march during the procession. This precaution is taken in order to prevent accidents from runaways, and also to prevent fires.

John Pengilly, of Ely, has wired the committee on parade that Ely will not only furnish one of the finest bands in Northern Minnesota, but the Finnish Temperance society, of that city, will be in line 350 strong. The Ely delegation will leave that city on a special train at 5 o'clock in the morning. Other range towns have indicated their intention of sending in many people to Duluth for the big Fourth.

There will be something like 2000 school children in line and labor and fraternal societies and organizations are making big preparations for the day. Fraternal societies will have their degree teams out in full uniform, giving a dashing of color to the procession.

The railroads entering the city, especially from the iron ranges, have been most courteous in arranging special rates and even furnishing transportation for bands.

Committee on sports has arranged a great program for the afternoon at Oneota Park. There will be balloon ascensions, races of all descriptions participated in by the newsboys of the city.

The horse racing program promises to be of unusual interest. Duluth and Superior men have a string of very fast horses and applications for entry are being received from outside towns.

There will be three races run in five heats each. To win a horse must take three heats. For the 3:00 and 2:30 events purses of $200 each will be put up and for the free-for-all a purse of $250 is offered.

CUBANS

Want Better Markets and Less Tariff Restrictions.

Washington, June 21.—Secretary Root has received a report from Governor General Wood concerning affairs in Cuba, in which the governor general says the action of the constitutional convention in accepting the Platt amendment as passed by congress is received with general satisfaction throughout the island. The great difficulty which is now contended with in Cuba is that relating to commercial affairs and the necessity of better markets for Cuban products without the tariff restrictions in the United States. Nothing can be done, however, until the Cuban government is formed, when a reciprocity arrangement may be made, but this will require ratification by the senate.

An order of Gen. Wood relating to debts and mortgages will, it is understood, tide over the difficulties which were feared a short time ago.

Danger, disease and death follow neglect of the bowels. Use DeWitt's Little Early Risers to regulate them and you will add years to your life and life to your years. Easy to take, never gripe. Max Wirth.

AT WEST DULUTH

The business people of West Duluth are very busy today. About $45,000 was paid out at the different mills and the retail merchants are feeling the effects of such an immense sum of money distributed among the working people of the city. All of the sawmills except one have paid their help, and the remaining concern will hand out checks some day early in the week.

McNAUGHTON LEAVES.

There was one home in Duluth this morning where all is woe. The father and 3-year-old child have left for an unknown destination, and the grieving wife is the only occupant of the house, although the neighbors are calling to extend their sympathy. The absent husband was jealous of his wife, and thought that she was too ardent a devotee to the Goddess Terpsichore, and while at these devotions she was unattended by him—he being engaged at labor, from the proceeds of which he kept the family larder supplied. Yesterday William McNaughton informed some of his intimate acquaintances that he was going on a journey. Last night he packed his trunk and, together with his child and pet bull terrier, he left West Duluth. Some think McNaughton has left for California, while others profess to know that he is en route to the Atlantic coast. They all agree, however, that he has said a last farewell to these parts. At 11 o'clock last night Mrs. McNaughton became aware of what had happened, and sought the aid of the police. It is understood she has no interest in the direction McNaughton travels, or how long he is absent, but she wants her child returned.

AUTHORITIES ALARMED

By Spread of Smallpox In Upper Peninsula.

Houghton, Mich., June 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—The rapid spread of smallpox is alarming the local authorities in the upper peninsula. The disease has been mildly epidemic in Houghton county for nearly a year, always breaking out again when considered conquered. There have been more new cases this month than at any time since last fall and the county isolation hospital, built especially for smallpox patients is now filled and no room left for the latest cases.

BAPTIST ASSOCIATION.

The annual meeting of the Lake Superior Baptist association commenced last night at the West Duluth church. A considerable number of delegates are at the meetings. Last night, after the visitors were formally welcomed, a business session was held. This morning the reports of the different committees were read and there was an address by Dr. O. A. Williams. This afternoon the representatives of the Women's Missionary societies meet and Revs. F. Peterson and E. R. Pope are on the program for addresses. This evening there is to be a rally of the Baptist Young People's society.

WEST DULUTH BRIEFS.

A multitude of people were patrons of the ladies of St. James' church at their lawn social. It is estimated that 1000 persons were served with ice cream, and the affair was an even greater success than the ladies had hoped for.

Mrs. P. G. Pastoret and two children, of Two Harbors, who has been visiting at the home of her brother, F. H. Wade, left for home today.

One West Duluth man is accused of great generosity. The person in question is alleged to have secured on rainbow promises a large amount of goods at two different stores. He made a present of the plunder to his daughter, who was, no doubt, much pleased. The merchants deceived have so far failed to secure either recompense or the return of the goods.

J. E. Murray and Melvin Colton, of Lisbon, N. D., arrived on the excursion today for a visit with the Murray brothers.

Mr. and Mrs. James Brotherton came home this morning from Two Harbors. They were accompanied by a niece.

READING STRIKE.

Car Men and Boiler Makers Go Out.

Reading, Pa., June, 21—At 11:30 today over 600 men employed in the car shops of the Reading railroad company struck for shorter hours and increased pay. Immediately thereafter the boilermakers in the company's locomotive shops struck. Their action, though expected, caused the greatest excitement in view of the present strike of 2,000 iron workers of the Reading Iron company, with whom they are apparently in sympahty.

IS FOR HANNA.

Bryan Wants to See Him Republican Candidate For President.

Chicago, June 21.—William J. Bryan, in a talk with Chicago newspaper men yesterday, said:

"I am for Mark Hanna for the Republican candidate for president next time, and hope the Republicans will nominate him, but I'm not sure I can control their convention."

"Who would be a good man for the Democrats to nominate?" was asked.

"It's too early to talk about any man for the Democratic nomination," said Mr. Bryan. "I have taken up a line of work and believe I have twenty years ahead of me to carry it out."

GOING TO NORMANDY.

Cardinal Gibbons Will Take Month's Rest There.

Rome, June 21.—Cardinal Gibbons started today for Florence, where he will remain a week. Subsequently the cardinal will go to Dinan, Normandy, for a month's rest, of which he feels in need.

Although Cardinal Gibbons refuses to discuss his visit to Rome, it is said in competent quarters that the suggestions of the vatican in regard to diplomatic representation of the United States there came to nothing.

Cardinal Gibbons is understood to have accomplished a great deal towards the settlement of the Cuban and Philippine questions, and regarding Catholicism in the United States.

TO RECEIVE KRUGER.

Reception Committee Chosen at New York.

New York, June 21.—Prominent Boer sympathizers are actively preparing to receive President Kruger when he visits the United States a few months hence. A conference of pro-Boers, lasting several days, has been held in this city, at which Charles D. Pierce, consul general of the Orange Free State, was elected chairman of the reception committee. Mr. Pierce said that no definite plans had been arranged so far, and that President Kruger would not reach this country until late in the fall.

INJUNCTION DENIED.

The Opening of Oklahoma Lands Can Proceed.

Washington, June 21.—Justice Bradley, in the equity court, has denied the application of Lone Wolf and other Indians for an injunction against the secretary of the interior, to restrain him from opening the Kiowa, Comanche and Apache lands in Oklahoma to settlement. Without going into the facts of the case, the court held that the question was purely a political one with which the court had no power to deal.

AN APPROPRIATION

Asked to Defray Expenses of Filipino Teachers.

Manila, June 21.—Washington has been asked for an appropriation of $1,0000 to defray the expenses of fifty Filipino teachers who are to study for a year in normal schools of America, these schools having offered them free tuition.

Two hundred soldier prisoners will be sent to the United States on the transport Indiana.

RESTRICTS TRADE.

Combine of Masons and Builders' Association.

Chicago, June 21.—States Attorney Deneen has signed a petition on quo warranto, attacking the charter of the Chicago Masons and Builders' association, on the ground that the association restricts its members to the purchase of brick and stone from certain companies which belong to the Chicago Pressed Brick association. The state contends that this restriction is detrimental to competitive trade.

An Old Friend

S. S. S. has been before the public for many years; from a small beginning, it has steadily worked its way to the front, and is now known in every city, town and hamlet in the country. Its stanchest friends are those who have known it longest and have witnessed its wonderful curative powers in their own families or among their friends and acquaintances. Grateful patients in all parts of the country tell of their restoration to health and happiness, and the testimony of these is the highest evidence of the medicine's worth. S. S. S. is more popular today than ever in its history—no other remedy stands so high, has ever given such perfect satisfaction or is so reliable in the cure of Cancer, Rheumatism, Catarrh, Contagious Blood Poison, Scrofula, Eczema, Psoriasis, Salt Rheum, Acne, or any disease that originates in the blood. Being strictly a vegetable preparation, you will find it agrees with you much better than a drug store concoction or any of the widely advertised potash and mercury remedies, which affect the bones, muscles and stomach, causing Rheumatism or Dyspepsia. If you have never tried S. S. S., you will be surprised at the immediate good effects, for no sooner does it get into the circulation than the appetite increases; you grow stronger, and gradually but surely it drives out the poisons and restores the blood to a healthy condition. If there is a sore or ulcer on the body, it begins to heal around the edges, the discharge finally ceases and the place gets well; muscular and bone pains vanish, and the skin is relieved of all itching, irritating eruptions. Nervous, run down and anaemic people will find S. S. S. just the medicine they need, for blood poverty and ilty nourished nerves are responsible for their condition. For old people and children S. S. S. has no equal; being free from all minerals, it does not nauseate or have any injurious effect whatever, and keeps the blood in good condition, thus fortifying against disease. Experience teaches what is good and what is not good; this applies particularly to medicine, and S. S. S., a remedy that has retained the confidence of the people for nearly 50 years, must have merit—IT CURES, is the secret of its success. When you call for S. S. S. don't be persuaded to accept something else—there is no substitute for S. S. S. It is the only guaranteed purely vegetable blood purifier, and the safest and best for all blood and skin troubles. Do not let them force an inferior mineral remedy on you because there is a larger profit in it. If you have any blood or skin disease, don't hesitate to write us about it; our physicians will carefully consider your case and advise you without charge. Book on Blood and Skin Diseases free.

THE SWIFT SPECIFIC COMPANY, ATLANTA, GA.

WAS CURIOUS.

Jury Finds Beardin Was Not Implicated In Proposed Kidnaping.

Kansas City, June 21.—M. D. Beardin, a former Bonner Springs, Kan., postmaster, who took a bag of slugs placed under the steps of the Bonner Springs lodge hall by Frank Warner, a banker of that city, who had received a letter threatening to blow up his house with dynamite unless he placed $1000 in gold at the spot, took the stand yesterday in his own defense.

Beardin is an Odd Fellow, and on the night in question had attended a meeting of his order in the hall. In his statement he told frankly of lingering behind after the other members had left, of seeing the bag under the steps, making off with it, and being confronted by a guard who shoved a shotgun in his face.

Curiosity and nothing else, he declared, prompted him to take the sack. He had seen it by mere accident. He insisted that until that night he had no knowledge of the letter written to Warner. A dozen witnesses who had known Beardin for years testified to his reputation for honesty.

A verdict was brought in by the jury last night. The attorneys spent the entire afternoon in arguments. Beardin's attorneys were effective in their efforts to impress the jury with their client's good reputation in the past as shown by much testimony. Beardin was a strong witness in his own behalf.

SHAMROCK II'S MAST.

Manimast and Topmast Is One Single Spar.

Glasgow, June 21.—The Shamrock II's new mast was stepped yesterday. The new spar consists of a hollow steel pole 160 feet long, built in a single piece from step to truck. It is the first spar of its kind ever made. The advantage is claimed for the new mast that it saves top weight and also presents a smaller wind surface. It permits of dispensing with gear for the hoisting and lowering of the topmast, and it is believed that a single spar can be braced more rigidly than a spliced telescopic mast. The chief disadvantage of the single-piece pole lies in the impossibility of housing the topmast during heavy weather. In this respect it is pointed out that this maneuver has been resorted to but once in the history of the cup races.

Sir Thomas Lipton and Mr. Watson were present when the mast was stepped. The challenger's sails are due at Gourock next Monday, and the yacht will take her first spin under the new canvass Thursday.

GRAND MASTER.

William McGregor Elected By Odd Fellows.

St. Paul, June 21.—William McGregor, of Minneapolis, was elected grand master of the Minnesota Odd Fellows.

Two ballots were taken.

On the first Mr. McGregor received 189; S. A. Farnsworth, of St. Paul, 125, and C. A. Fosnes, of Montevideo, 95.

Mr. Fosnes withdrew and the contest was between Farnsworth and McGregor on the next ballot. The latter received 265 votes and the former 144.

Mrs. May Johnson, of Appleton, Minn., was elected president of the Minnesota Rebekah assembly. Mrs. Johnson's election was unanimous. Mrs. May Davis, of Minneapolis, was elected to the state vice presidency and Mrs. Olive Tait, of St. Paul, was made state warden.

Dyspeptics cannot be long lived because to live requires nourishment. Food is not nourishing until it is digested. A disordered stomach cannot digest food, it must have assistance. Kodol Dyspepsia Cure digests all kinds of food without aid from the stomach, allowing it to rest and regain its natural functions. Its elements are exactly the same as the natural digestive fluids and it simply can't help but do you good. Max Wirth.

TRIBUNAL OF PEACE

United States Has Only Sentimental Interest In Hague Court.

Will Not Submit to Arbitration Any Vital Interest.

Believed That It Would Not Be an Impartial Tribunal.

From The Herald Washington Bureau.

Washington, June 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—An Eastern paper says that it is not believed that the arbitration court of The Hague will ever be called upon to pass upon a case in which the United States government is one of the principal parties at interest. The views of this government have undergone a modification on the subject of international arbitration. Certain questions involving points of national honor or fixed policy, such as might grow out of the application of the Monroe doctrine, have never been regarded at the national capital as matters for arbitration, but the common understanding has been that the general principle of international arbitration was approved. Those most familiar with our foreign relations, however, believe that our interest in The Hague court can never be more than sentimental.

The discovery that reference of the Chinese question to The Hague, though originally suggested on behalf of this government, would probably result to our disadvantage has caused the state department to give some thought to the question whether there is any contingency probable under which the United States government could go to The Hague with a matter in which it was a party directly interested.

In any case (similar to that arising out of the joint occupation of China) where all the powers are involved, the court of The Hague would not, it is feared, be an impartial tribunal. The judges called upon to arbitrate would be representatives, respectively, of the interested parties, and it is felt here that the predominance of interest would almost unavoidably be antagonistic to the policy of the United States. It is manifest that this would be the case if the Chinese question were to be dealt with, and it is not easily conceived how it could fail to be the case with reference to most any question that might arise between the United States and other powers.

The probability of the application of the principles of international arbitration being in conflict with the interests of the United States has arisen only in consequence of the danger of foreign entanglements through the administration's new policy of aggrandizement. In entering upon a policy of rivalry with the rest of the world it is now realized at Washington that this government can not afford to submit disputes growing out of that rivalry to a court of arbitration which of necessity must be dominated by the powers with which we are contending. Consideration of the Chinese question has made apparent to the state department the inconsistency of applying arbitration to a policy of aggrandizement.

Sentimental interest in The Hague will continue, but it is already a foregone conclusion that this government is not going to submit to arbitration any vital interest.

Even on this continent, where, by special provision of the treaty, the jurisdiction of The Hague court does not extend, the state department contemplates arbitration with reserve. The attitude of the department in siding with Chile as to the terms under which the question of arbitration may be considered at the congress of American republics is not due to a purpose to favor Chile. The question is seriously raised here whether the United States could afford to run the risk of a combination of the lesser republics against it in the arbitration of disputes that might arise.

It is not the purpose of this government to reject the principle of arbitration between American republics, but there is no expectation that an arbitration agreement will be reached, in view of the attitude of Chile.

The officials of the interior department are inquiring into some land transactions in Montana which, they say, have a peculiar appearance. It is intimated that there are evidences of an intent to evade the law. Inquiry discloses that it has been reported to the department that a number of claims in the Montana timber lands have been taken up by friends of Senator W. A. Clark, of Montana, and that the popular impression is they were taken for his ultimate benefit.

The pine lands of Montana are very valuable now and promise to become more so. Timber is scarce there now, and with the increase in population the demand becomes greater and the timber grows in value rapidly. The law stipulates that anyone taking up a timber claim at $2.50 per acre shall do so for himself, and no one shall have the claims taken up by agents, nor shall anyone act as an agent in taking up the claims. Forfeiture to the government of the claims is the penalty for infraction of this regulation.

There is no intention on the part of the interior department officials, they say, to prosecute Senator Clark in this connection, but the case is being handled in the same manner as it would be with any other person suspected of violation of the land laws. It was brought to the attention of the department that about 12,00 acres of timber land in Montana had been partially patented to various parties, who were suspected of acting for Senator Clark, as the certificates ultimately found their way into his possession. The case has not progressed sufficiently for the department officials to know whether the allegations are sustained.

It is said on good authority that if it is proved Mr. Clark had employes take up the lands and then transfer title to him, the government will take proceedings to vitiate the transaction and vest title to the lands in the United States once more and open them for entry. Senator Clark, it is stated, will be held by the department as not being an innocent purchaser in accepting the final certificate.

Deep interest is felt here in the news cabled from Rio de Janeiro that German colonization in the southern part of Brazil was to be augmented by the operations of a syndicate just formed with a capital of $5,950,000.

The widespread discussion in the United States and Germany as to the intentions of the latter country in South America has aroused the attention of statesmen of the whole world. Whether German capital and enterprise are merely engaged in extending the German population in Brazil for the purpose of extending and holding German trade, or whether this movement is the forerunner of an attempt to acquire territory under the German flag, all information that drifts to Washington from Brazil points to a steady growth of German influence.

It is mentioned as a significant fact that German geographers have already begun to print across their maps of Sothern Brazil the words "German colonies in Brazil." Throughout the entire republic of Brazil German merchants, bankers, traveling salesmen, promoters and land speculators are discussing the prospect of large portion of Brazilian territory ultimately passing under the German flag.

Information that comes to Washington is that one favorite German plan is to divide Brazilian territory into three parts—the northern section to the United States, the middle section to Great Britain and the southern states where German influence and German population predominate, to Germany.

The most interesting fact that comes to Washington regarding German colonization and enterprise in Brazil is that the Germans thoroughly assimilate with the Brazilian women and cultivate the Brazilians socially, whereas the Americans and Englishmen hold aloof.

BLOODSHED.

Union and Non-Union Miners Clash With Fatal Results.

Matewan, W. Va., June 21.—The trouble long anticipated has at last taken place and the strained relations between the union and non-union miners has resulted in bloodshed. Yesterday several hundred union miners, who were on strike, marched in a body against the Maratime mines of this place, where non-union men were at work. They tried to effect an entrance, but the operators, with twenty guards, armed with Winchesters behind them, blocked the entrance. The non-union miners were headed by Superintendent Lambert, and when the previously warned union men persisted in their attempt, he gave the command to fire. Fully fifty shots were fired. Boyd Martin and Riley Johnson were fatally shot, and Samuel Artrip was dangerously wounded. The union men did not return the fire, but disappeared, waiting reinforcements and swearing vengeance for the blood of their comrades. All the union miners throughout Mingo are collecting to get here today. Serious trouble is expected when they again try to effect an entrance to the Maratime mines. Sheriff Hatfield, a nephew of the notorious "Cap." Hatfield, is on the scene, with city deputies, and says he proposes to do his duty, and unless the union men back down it is hard to predict the result.

DRAMATIC SCENE.

Professor Smith Reveals Secret Business of Council.

Minneapolis, June 21.—A dramatic scene was enacted at the United Church conference, at Bethlehem church, yesterday morning. For the past three days secret meetings have been held by a council, consisting of the presidents and the theological faculties of the United church and the Norwegian synod, in an effort to unite the two organizations.

The council was unable to agree, and it was proposed to keep its deliberations secret.

Professor F. A. Schmidt, a member of the council in question, refused to abide by the decision in this respect.

This morning, in a dramatic manner, he made a full report of the council proceedings, in spite of protest, after which he asked to be excused from further service on the committee constituting the council.

According to Professor Schmidt, the representatives of the United church held "divine grace to be conditional," while those representing the synod, on the other hand, emphasized "God's promises of absolute, unconditional grace."

The conference has not determined what further action shall be taken in the matter.

During the morning several committees were appointed, among them being one on the division of the United church into districts, and for the improvement of the English hymn book. The sum of $18,506.65 was appropriated for the expenses of the ensuing year.

EIGHT HELD

For Alleged Fraud In Burning Stores.

Chicago, June 20.—Following the exposure of an alleged plot to heavily insure stocks in small stores, rented for the purpose, and collect insurance on the places, which frequently were burned shortly after policies were secured, eight well-known men of this city were today held to the grand jury on bonds aggregating $58,000. Eight more arrests are expected to follow. It is alleged the sums collected from various insurance companies aggregated $75,000 in two years.

GIRL LOST.

Milwaukee, June 20.—A Journal special from Janesville, Wis., says: Miss Helen Sifield, the 19-year-old daughter of Alderman and Mrs. Sifield, left her bed sometime during the night, attired only in her dressing sack and without shoes and stockings, left home and wandered away. Although the entire police force and a large number of citizens are looking for her, no trace can be found.

July Wheat Declines Two Cents In Duluth Markets.

Other Markets Show a Break Fully as Great.

Fine Crop Prospects Over-Shadowing Everything Else.

Duluth Board of Trade, June 21.—The wheat market opened weak and lower this morning, but held fairly steady for a short time, after which it declined steadily and scored a heavy slump. The chief causes of the weakness were the lower cables, wheat at Liverpool showing a decline of ½@¾d, and estimates of a large wheat crop. The Argentine shipments were larger, being 880,000 bus, against 624,000 bus, last week.

Primary receipts of wheat were 446,541 bushels, last year 588,622. Clearances of wheat and flour equal 732,000 bushels. The Orange Judd Farmer reports spring wheat conditions as almost perfect and the Modern Miller is also very bearish. Stocks of wheat at Duluth are estimated to decrease 450,000 this week. Since January 1 the shipments from Argentine have been 25,360,000 bushels against 42,760,000 bushels in the same period last year.

Receipts at Duluth and Minneapolis, 147 cars, against 237 last week and 425 last year. Chicago receipts, 46 cars, 1 of contract grade.

There was fairly active trading in futures on the Duluth board. July wheat opened ½c off at 67¾, sold down steadily to 65¾c at 11:30 and 66¾c at 12:50 and closed at that point, a decline of 2c. Chicago declined 2¼c.

Cash sales were 40,000 bushels at July price.

Cash flax took another heavy advance today and closed 5c up. Rye was off ½c and other coarse grains were unchanged in price.

Following are the closing prices:

Wheat—No. 1 hard, cash, 69; to arrive, 69¾; July, 69¾; Sept., 70¾. No. 1 northern, cash, 66; to arrive, 66¾; Sept., 66¾. No. 2 northern, 61. No. 3 spring, 57; oats, 28-27¾; rye, 47½; flax, cash, $1.85; Sept., $1.33½; Sept. N. W., $1.34½; Oct., $1.26.

Car inspection—Wheat, 36; corn, 5; oats, 8; flax, 2. Receipts—Wheat, 99,048; corn, 8201; oats, 2202; flax, 1548. Shipments—Wheat, 40,675.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Crop Estimates Weakened Wheat and Corn.

Chicago, June 21.—Lower cables and estimates of a large wheat crop were the weakening influence at the opening today. Sept. opened ⅜ to ½ lower at 67¾@68; held fairly steady for a time, and then declined to 67¾@¾. Argentine shipments this week were 880,000 bushels compared ago. Minneapolis and Duluth reported with 624,000 last week and 1,540,000 a year 147 cars against 237 the same time last week and 425 a year ago. Local receipts were 46 cars, one of contract grade.

Splendid crop prospects caused further drop in September to 66⅝c, at which the market closed week 1½c lower.

Sympathy with wheat and favorable weather caused corn to open steady and lower. Commission houses were fair sellers, but there was only a light local demand. Sept. sold down to 44¼, after opening a shade lower at 44½ to ¾. Local receipts were 100 cars, two of contract grade.

September sold down to 43¾@43⅝c and closed weak, ⅜@⅞c lower at 43⅝@44c.

Oats opened steady but the feeling was easier in sympathy with other grains. Considerable long stuff came out. Sept. opened a shade lower at 26¾ and gradually eased off to 26⅜.

Trading in provisions was light. The market opened steady with very little doing in pork or lard. Moderate quantities of ribs were offered during the early part of the session. Sept. pork opened unchanged at $15.00 on light receipts of hogs, but declined to $14.92½; lard opened a shade higher at $8.77½ and fell to $8.12½.

MARKET GOSSIP.

Received over private wire of B. E. Baker, grain and stock broker, 307 Board of Trade, Duluth, Minn.:

Chicago, June 21.—The wheat market was extremely weak throughout. Trading was marked with heavy realizing and poor speculative buying. The weather continues favorable in every way and we see nothing on which to base the expectations of higher prices. Snow's report in Orange Judd Farmer says spring wheat conditions are practically perfect and general prospects warrant an estimate 750,000,000 wheat yield as a minimum.

Corn: Snow says the conditions of the crop are improving but it will require perfect weather for an average result, condition not over 85. Our own advices would indicate that in Kansas and Nebraska the condition of growing crop is by no means promising but weather everywhere is favorable and prospect is improving. There was considerable liquidation in local market induced to some extent by the weakness in wheat.

Oats: Snow says no general improvement although some districts show dampness that the rate of yield will be decidedly below the average of recent years. There was considerable selling pressure also influenced by the weakness in wheat and continued favorable weather.

Provisions were weaker. There was considerable liquidation for local long account and shippers reported demand hardly so good. Receipts: Hogs, 64,000, against 55,000.

Want Canvas Roof.

The employes of the county treasurer's office are thinking of asking the county board at its next meeting to erect some sort of a tent over the wing of the courthouse in which the treasurer's office is located. Every time it rains a good share of the falling drops make their way into the office. This morning Assistant Treasurer Williamson had to encounter the superstition about its being bad luck to raise an umbrella in the house. The water came through the roof in such quantities that Mr. Williamson had to rig up an umbrella over his desk, under which he labored.

ADVANCE IN STOCKS

More Attention Was Paid to the Less Conspicuous Class.

General Market Was Dull But It Generally Hardened.

Close Was Steady With Some Stocks at Top Figures.

New York, June 21.—The opening trading in stocks was dull and price changes not of much significance, being confined to the less conspicuous class of stocks. Iowa Central was lifted 2¾ and the preferred 1½, and General Electric was run up 2. Chicago Great Western gained nearly a point and Canadian Pacific 1½. There was a dip of ¾ in Amalgamated Copper. Otherwise changes were restricted to small fractions.

Recent large price gains by obscure stocks directed more attention to this class of properties, and they became the features of the early trading. United States Rubber, Rubber Goods, Leather, Wabash, Wisconsin Central, Minneapolis, St. Paul & Atlantic, Fort Worth & Denver City, Kanawha & Michigan and Pere Marquette gained from 1 to 2 points, and in general attracted more attention than the leading stocks. Iowa Central lost its opening advance, but Southwesterns moved up 1½ again. Canadian Pacific continued upward and touched 107 on the strength of its London buoyancy. Active stocks became heavy in sympathy with sharp declines in St. Paul and Amalgamated Copper, but the tone bettered somewhat toward 11 o'clock. Colorado Fuel sold ex-dividend off 1¾, and recovered the dividend.

Unusually large dealings in Wabash stock and bond issues resulted in very material advances. No explanation was made of their strength, but the absorption was so large that the professionals unlesitatingly bought heavily, running sales of thousands of shares of the preferred stock being recorded. The price rose 3¾ to 46¾, where it halted. The common rose 1¾, second mortgage bonds 1¾ and debenture B bonds 4¾. Other Southwesterns reflected only feebly this exhibition of strength, and in general, leading stocks made but little progress upward, although the best prices of the morning prevailed. There were several additions to the list of dormant stocks which are receiving attention, Des Moines & Fort Dodge being conspicuous for a gain of 4½. Bonds were active and strong.

Manhattan gained 2¼, but other local tractions remained quiet. The gains over last night for Union Pacific reached 3 and for Missouri Pacific 2¼. Amalgamated Copper rallied to a fraction over last night. The general market was dull, but slowly hardened. There were some recessions in the final dealings, but the closing was steady and dull, with some stocks at the top.

STOCK GOSSIP.

Waldorf gossip to Edwards, Wood & Co: While there was considerable diversity of opinion this evening respecting the importance of the bank statement as a speculative factor, several representatives of the larger Wall street houses were strongly of the opinion that the market would ignore an unfavorable showing. These observers were advising the purchase of good stocks on a scale. In banking circles the firmness in money is regarded as temporary. It is conceded that the financing of several big deals is about concluded and that when arrangements for July disbursements are completed the monetary situation will permit renewed activity and buoyancy in the stock market. In fact, close students of the market say that crops, with earnings, and the state of general trade are so unprecedentedly favorable that when substantial interests cease to oppose an advance or to use a Wall street term, stop sitting on the market, stocks will rise very rapidly and especially such issues as Illinois Central, New York Central, Louisville & Nashville, Atchison, St. Paul, Southern Railway common, Texas Pacific, Reading, Erie and United States Steel stocks. Private advices to the effect that the iron and steel trade shows decided improvement are responsible for the excellent buying of United States Steel common and preferred. Confidence in dividends soon on both is very strong, and it is predicted that the preferred, a sure 7 per cent dividend payer will cross 110 before the fall.

THE COTTON MARKET.

New York, June 21.—Cotton opened steady unchanged to 4 higher. Soon after the call there was a sharp break of 3 to 6 points under selling for profits by nervous room longs and an apparent scarcity of demand. From 733 August dropped to 726 and from 746 January dropped to 743. Then came a decline of 2½ points in Liverpool from top which added to the lack of confidence here. But, before the first hour closed buying for outside account became a factor and bullish news from the south aroused shorts to their danger. A general buying movement developed and led by the July and August positions, the entire list advanced substantially. July worked up to 841, August to 783 and October to 743.

Cotton spot closed quiet 1-16c lower; mid ups, 8 1-16c; mid gulfs, 8 3-16c; sales 650 bales. Cotton futures closed quiet and steady; June, $8.28; July, $8.33; August, $7.80; September, $7.48; October, $7.40; November, $7.37; December, $7.39; January, $7.42; February, $7.42; March, $7.45.

FOR LIBEL.

Court Imposes Punishment on Germans.

Berlin, June 21.—The libel action brought by Dr. Liman, of the Leipsic Neueste Nachrichten, against Dr. Schmitz, Dr. Loock and the Cologne Gazette, arising from Dr. Liman's assertion that the DeBeers company sent 1,200,000 marks to Cologne for political purposes, has resulted as follows:

Dr. Schmitz is sentenced to pay a fine of 100 marks or undergo ten days' imprisonment, and Dr. Loock is sentenced to pay a fine of 200 marks or be imprisoned for twenty days. The court also decided that while the Cologne Gazette was naturally irritated by the assertion made, the manner in which the assertion was repudiated was offensive.

WILL HOLD IT.

Auditor Halden Will Conduct the Forfeited Tax Sale.

Notwithstanding the decision of the supreme court and the opinion of the attorneys as to its meaning, there will be a forfeited tax sale next Monday, as County Attorney Halden has his own ideas on the matter, and they include a belief that it is his duty to sell property wherever refunds have been made, instead of following out the Windom law, as the attorneys have suggested.

"There will be a sale next Monday," he said this morning, "including all property on which refunds have been made. My idea of it is that the law of 1901, under which the sale is held, disposed of the Windom law by repealing all acts and parts of acts inconsistent with the law of 1901. Another thing that might be considered is the value of an amendment to an unconstitutional law, and that is what the Windom law is."

Mr. Halden is anxious to talk with those interested in pending applications for refundment, and he publishes in this paper a notice asking them to appear at his office and consult with him.

There have been some applications for refundment made which the applicants are now anxious to withdraw, because they want to take advantage of the decision. It has not yet been decided whether to permit such withdrawal or not.

SAWYER ARRESTED

Lerch's Contractor Is Charged With Obstructing the Street.

Warrant Out For Lerch But Not Yet Served.

City May Tear Down the Building Very Soon.

H. S. Sawyer was arrested this afternoon charged with obstructing public streets. He is the contractor who failed to move the Lerch livery stable Wednesday night. Mr. Sawyer will be given a hearing in police court tomorrow morning. His only statement, when arrested, was that he could not move the barn for the reason that some person had bought off his teamster. Teamsters are said to be very scarce around livery stables.

A warrant is also out for R. S. Lerch, owner of the livery stable. This warrant had been served at a late hour this afternoon. The board of public works was advised not to have Mr. Lerch arrested, owing to the fact that he is scarcely responsible for the obstruction of First street.

Notwithstanding the most pathetic appeals of distressed citizens the big barn remains unmoved.

The situation today is rather chaotic. Both sides are consulting attorneys in anticipation of more determined action tomorrow.

The board of public works, acting on legal advice, is moving cautiously in order to protect the city from possible damage suits, but the indications are that the barn will be taken down by the city after the necessary legal formalities and technicalities have been observed.

Mr. Lerch applied to the board this morning for an extension of the permit granted him for the obstruction of First street, but his application was not favorably considered.

At latest reports the city officers had decided to serve Mr. Lerch with formal papers for immediate removal of the building now obstructing First street at Fourth avenue west, and if he does not get it out of the way within a few hours the board will order a force of men to take it to pieces.

There is a curious rumor going the rounds that persons interested in keeping the barn off Second, succeeded in getting the "crew" drunk on Wednesday night in order to prevent the tapping of the building. There is no denying that a vigorous fight is being made to keep the barn from moving as well as to compel its moving, but the crew is said to have been drunk twice before, and on one Sunday afternoon a policeman came very near having them stop work altogether.

It is reported also that in case Mr. Lerch attempts to move his barn over on the vacant lots at Fourth avenue west and First street an injunction will be taken out to restrain him.

HANNA

Tells the Ohio Republicans He Must Have Peace.

Cleveland, June 21.—Contrary to general expectation harmony prevailed at the Republican county convention yesterday. Senator Hanna occupied a seat on the platform and made a strong speech in favor of peace between the two factions of the party.

"Seldom has there been any campaign," he said, "of such importance as last year, bearing on questions of such moment and this year it is the same. It will have great bearing on the president's work and we should uphold him. This year we elect a legislature to choose a successor to my distinguished colleague, Senator Foraker, and we should be united in the demand that he be sent back. The legislature that chooses his successor will also redistrict Ohio and on this hangs the fate of at least five members of Ohio's congressional delegation. The Republican party must continue to hold the respect of the majority of the people of the United States.

"It is needless to tell what the Republican party has done for the country in the few years. It is not necessary for me to place McKinley at the first ring of presidents. He is not only president, but a fellow citizen and friend.

"The Republican party has honored me beyond my merits. In 1896 I felt on the turn of events hung the prosperity and the success of our country. New issues had been raised and many honest Republicans were led astray.

"No argument is so strong as an object lesson. The Republican party promised the country if McKinley were elected on the St. Louis platform all promises of prosperity would be fulfilled. They were fulfilled. The renewed confidence of the people came with the fulfillment. Let us give notice to the people in Ohio and United States that Republican ranks are filling up and preparing for the battle of 1901. Let this be the notice to the state and the United States."

Nominations subsequently were made pretty evenly divided between the two factions.

A NEW HEAVEN AND A NEW EARTH

International Sunday School Lesson For June 23, 1901.

Revelation 21:1-7, 22-27. "And I saw a new heaven and a new earth; for the first heaven and the first earth are passed away, and the sea is no more. And I saw the holy city, new Jerusalem, coming down out of heaven from God, made ready as a bride adorned for her husband. And I heard a great voice out of the throne saying: Behold, the tabernacle of God is with men, and he shall dwell with them, and they shall be his peoples, and God himself shall be with them, and be their God, and he shall wipe away every tear from their eyes; and death shall be no more; neither shall there be mourning, nor crying, nor pain any more; the first things are passed away. And he that sitteth on the throne said: Behold, I make all things new. And he saith, write: for these words are faithful and true. And he said unto me: They are come to pass. I am the alpha and the omega, the beginning and the end. I will give unto him that athirst of the of the fountain of the water of life freely. He that overcometh shall inherit these things; and I will be his God, and he shall be my son.

And I saw no temple therein, for the Lord God the Almighty, and the lamb, are the temple thereof. And the city hath no need of the sun, neither of the moon, to shine upon it, for the glory of God did lighten it, and the lamp thereof is the lamb. And the nations shall walk amidst the light thereof, and the kings of the earth do bring their glory into it. And the gates thereof shall in nowise be shut by day (for there shall be no night there), and they shall bring the glory and honor of the nations into it; and there shall in no wise enter into it anything unclean, or he that maketh an abomination and a lie, but only they which are written in the Lamb's book of life."

Golden text: "He that overcometh shall inherit all things, and I will be his God and he shall be my son." Revelation 21:7.

THE CITY OF GOD.

In the year of our Lord 410 a shock came to the whole world of the Roman empire in the fall of the city of Rome, which was then sacked by Alaric, the Goth. A cry went up from the pagan portion of the population against the God of the Christians, who had permitted such a calamity. This cry of complaint gave occasion to one of the best defensive treatises ever written in favor of Christianity. It was by the great Augustine of Hippo, and was called "The City of God." It taught a spiritual view of life, and sought to show that even calamity often brings a blessing in the end. It showed how the empire had decayed because of the weakness of heathenism, and enlarged upon the decline of the strength of the pagan world; and then placed, in opposition to all that, the moral strength and vigor of the Christian faith, with its triumphs and hopes. There is a city of the world whose inhabitants may prosper in this world, but have no part in the blessings of the righteous. The city of God will be glorious forever. It is the story of the old opposition between truth and error, between good and evil.

There is a city of God being built upon this earth. Its foundation was laid in the righteousness of the servants of God in the olden time. Its corner stone is Jesus Christ, the righteous. He is also the master builder, and all his true followers are workers together with him. Its palaces of character rise from the earth, beautiful in the symmetry of Christlikeness. The strength and life of this city first came down from God out of heaven. To his celestial abode they will again be caught up.

The vision which John saw coming down from God out of heaven, was of the perfected city of God. He had previously beheld, in vision, the passing away of all things that had been, and the renewal of the heavens and the earth. Upon the renovated earth, beneath the renewed sky and surrounded by a glassy sea, came the holy city of God, as a gift from the hand of God. Again, we are dealing with strong imagery, and we cannot be too careful in the interpretation of it. If the teaching of Christ is clear that this world is to be the sphere of the planting and development of the kingdom of God, and if John himself wrote of the time when "The kingdom of this world is become the kingdom of our Lord, and of his Christ, and he shall reign forever and ever," then we must guard against so interpreting this figurative passage as to make it seem that the final consummation of the perfected city of God will come in an artificial manner. It will certainly come from heaven, but only as all God's good gifts come from heaven. "Truth shall spring out of the earth, and righteousness shall look down from heaven." The kingdom and city of God are related to both heaven and earth and will spring up from the earth, but only as the seed thereof has first been cast into the earth from heaven.

The splendor of the new Jerusalem eclipses that of the finest of earthly cities. Verses 10-21, which are omitted from the passage assigned for this lesson, record John's account of the vision he saw, and convey an impression of the grandeur of the conception, which he thus obtained, of the new and perfected City of God. Are we to think of its structure as if it were a material city upon which he looked in wrant amazement? No, but rather that the spiritual reality into which he was thus initiated was so glorious that he could find no means to express the truth except the imagery of a city built of precious stones and decorated with gems. We do violence to the message of the God who is a spirit, if we conceive his infinite presence as being other than spiritual. In that city we are told that they have no temple, for the Lord God Almighty, and the Lamb are the temple thereof. The conception is that all are worshippers there, and they need no places where the people can separate themselves for the purpose of worship, but they bow down wherever they will, and it is God's presence, and they worship Him without molestation. They need no created luminaries, for the light of the world is also the Light of heaven, and he will shine there forever and ever, and there shall be no night there. The nations not only walk by the light of that eternal day, but they also bring the products that are their crown of glory and offer them to do honor to that celestial city and the Ruler thereof.

The citizens of that city (21:27-22:5) are those whose names are written in the Lamb's book of life. They are pure from everything that pollutes and from all lying and hypocrisy. They are like trees planted by a river of water. They flourish and are fruitful. Their very leaves are a source of healing to the diseases of the nations. They serve God incessantly, and He honors them by the presence of His face, and puts His name upon their foreheads. "They are unto Him for a people and for a name."

THE DWELLING OF GOD.

At the begining of the gospel story, it was said of the child about to be born of Mary, "They shall call his name Immanuel; which is, being interpreted, God with us." Those words are found in the first chapter of the New Testament. In the last chapter of the New Testament but one, it is said that, "The tabernacle of God is with men, and he shall dwell with them." God's dwelling place is in and with his people. Truly he is not far from any one of them. "The Kingdom of God is within you," is but another way of saying that God dwells in his people. In the present life there are so many imperfections and impurities in our characters that we do not realize, as we should, the presence of God in our lives. But when the new Jerusalem is come, then, without alloy, we shall know that God dwells with us. To be accounted his people in the present time is the greatest of our earthly privileges, and brings with it the best of our blessings; but it will be even a greater boon to us then, for it will mean the perfection of all the benefits we receive now.

If in the present time, we are comforted in sorrow by the truth and Spirit of God, at that time "He shall wipe away every tear from our eyes." If death comes to us now to rob us of the companionship of our loved ones, and we can find relief only in the thought of a good immortality through Christ, then the day when the new Jerusalem comes will be better because "Death shall be no more." The heaving breast of the mourner, the bloodshot eye of the weeping, and the agonizing cry of those distressed with pain will all be no more. These belong to the "First things" and all pass away with the coming in of the perfect day and the descent of the "City of God," arrayed as a bride adorned for her husband.

The writer of the Letter to the Hebrews says, "Let us hold fast the confession of our hope that it waver not; for he is faithful that promised." Again he says that Sarah received the blessing of fruitfulness, because "She counted him faithful who had promised." Paul says, in Corinthians, "God is faithful, through whom ye were called into the fellowship of his son Jesus Christ our Lord." In many other places, the Bible insists on the faithfulness of God to all who believe on him. The closing words of the Book are fraught with insistance upon the same great truth. The Spirit spoke the message to John, and then said, "These words are faithful and true." On that account, he was directed to write them to the churches. God's faithfulness is a most precious article in the creed of every worshipper and servant of our God. "Heaven and earth shall pass away, but my words shall not pass away."

THE WATER OF LIFE.

The City of God is supplied with all things which the people of God need. John says that it not only has the tree of life that bears every month twelve manner of fruit, presumably for food, but that it also has a fountain of the water of life, of which the citizens shall drink freely. Under the figures of bread and water the Scriptures, say over and over again, that God supplies all our spiritual necessities. He is spirit, and is himself the fountain of life. Jesus came that men might have life and might have it more abundantly. He was and is able to give the food and drink of God, of which if a person partake, he will neither hunger nor thirst any more. Food and drink are the two things without which the body cannot live; they are fit emblems of the needs of the soul which nothing temporal can possibly satisfy. "My God shall fulfill every need of yours according to his riches in glory in Christ Jesus." This is truth that is valid, not only for the day of the consummation of the kingdom of God, but also for every day of the believer's life. With Christ he ought to say, "My meat and my drink is to do the will of him that sent me and to finish his work."

HE THAT OVERCOMETH.

The book of Revelation has a great deal to say about the one that overcometh. (Rev. 2:7, 11, 17, 26-28; 3:5, 12, 21; 21:7.) These promises are based chiefly on the language and incidents of the Old Testament. It will be profitable for the student to read such passages as Ezekiel 47:1-12; Isaiah 25:8; I Cor. 15; Psalms 2:8, 9; Numbers 24:17; Psalms 110 69:28; Matt. 10:32, 33; I Peter 2:4-8; Ephesians 2:20-22; Galations 4:26; Hebrews 12:22; Epheslans 2:6; Colossians 3:1-4.

Sonship to God is one of the best promises made to the one who overcomes. The way of the believer's life is not represented as a way of ease; but rather as a way of struggle unto victory. It is a warfare against evil, in which there can be no respite until the final triumph is attained. Then to each victor there shall be given a crown of life. The promise is not given to the shirkers and deserters, to the lazy and indifferent, to the temporizers and compromisers with the seductions of wickedness, to those who are careless in their search after the true obligations of life and negligent in the performance of them; but to those who overcome every difficulty and obstacle in the name and power of Christ, and are faithful to the end. "Therefore let us also, seeing we are compassed about with so great a cloud of witnesses, lay aside every weight, and the sin which doth so easily beset us, and let us run with patience the race that is set before us, looking unto Jesus the author and perfecter of our faith."

HELPED BY CARNEGIE

Bearing Cost of Musical Education For a Scotch Girl.

Emma Nevada Pronounced Her Worthy of a Great Master.

She Is Poor and Mr. Carnegie Responded to Her Aid.

New York, June 20.—One phase of the character of Andrew Carnegie little known to the general public is his fondness for music.

One person, a New York girl of 18, Annie Dobbie by name, has reason to rejoice at Mr. Carnegie's fondness for music. Mr. Carnegie has never seen her nor has he heard her voice, which is said to be a remarkable one. But Mrs. Carnegie has both seen and heard Miss Dobbie, and as her judgment is regarded as unimpeachable by her husband, "the laird of Skibo castle" has agreed to bear all the cost of the young woman's musical education in the best schools of the country and to be her "angel" when she is fitted for a professional career.

Annie Dobbie says she dreamed that Andrew Carnegie took an interest in her welfare and assisted her to become famous. The first part of the dream has come true; the rest may be verified in time. That the young woman had an unusual voice was apparent from babyhood. Before she could speak intelligibly she would spend her days humming and trilling snatches of songs which she had picked up from her mother. Nor did the child ever become so absorbed in play that she would not stop instantly at the sound of her mother's voice and listen enraptured to the simple songs she sang. Unfortunately Annie's parents were poor. Therefore the little girl could have no musical tuition, nor could the family pocketbook afford tickets to opera or concert. But it also happened, more fortunately, that the family boasted a friend who occasionally could and did supply tickets for a recital or opera. And Annie and her mother would spend long golden afternoons of perfect happiness.

Sembrich was the child's favorite, and for days and days after a Sembrich concert she would chirp and trill like a small canary, occasionally stopping to inquire: "Mamma, was that the way Sembrich did it?"

"Yes, dear, a little," the mother would reply.

One day when Annie was about 15 the good fairy who had the pleasant habit of supplying concert tickets, sent Annie Dobbie and her mother to hear Emma Nevada's recital of songs of all nations. The bliss of this experience was almost more than the young singer could bear, and when Mme. Nevada reached her famous encore, "Shall I wear a white ruse, shall I wear a red?" a certain young miss in the first row of the house was positively dizzy with emotion.

"I am sure Mme. Nevada would understand," said Annie to her mother the next day. "Please take me to see her and beg her to let me sing her just one song. She will tell me whether there is any hope for me."

The girl's longing was so intense that the mother yielded, and the next day they presented themselves at the hotel where Mme. Nevada was stopping. They were received, and the great singer recognized Annie immediately as the most enthusiastic person in her audience the day before.

"What can I do for you, my dear?" asked Mme. Nevada graciously. "Hear you sing? Why, with all the pleasure in the world."

Nevada did not expect much from her timid little visitor, and the exquisite fashion in which the child sang amazed and delighted her. The child went home with shining eyes, for she carried in her hands a priceless treasure in the shape of a letter from the great lady. And this is what it said:

"Annie Dobbie has one of the most beautiful voices that I have ever heard. She is musical, and gives promise of becoming a first-class singer. She needs and is worthy of a great master. Her voice has a personal timbre of exceptional beauty. I earnestly hope she may find the means of continuing her studies. —Emma Nevada Palmer."

At this point Mrs. Dobbie, who is a Scotch woman, happened to think of Mr. Carnegie and his wonderful reputation for doing kindnesses to unknown people. Perhaps he would be willing, glad even, to help a little countrywoman to an art education. Educating Annie's voice would cost only a few thousands at the most. To the Dobbies that meant a fortune; to Mr. Carnegie it would be a trifle he would never miss. So she wrote to him and waited. No answer came. Why not write to Mrs. Carnegie?

Accordingly this was done. And there was not very much more waiting, for one day the following letter came:

"New York, Jan. 10.—Mrs. Mary Dobbie; Madam—Mrs. Carnegie had handed her husband your letter and the inclosures which are herewith sent you.

"Mr. Carnegie could not take the responsibility of sending your daughter to Paris, but if she can take lessons here of the best teachers he would be glad to pay for them for a season as a trial. Mr. Carnegie thinks it is not necessary for anyone to be an opera singer, and if your daughter can learn to sing simple music finely she can have a career singing in church oratorios and nice concerts. Should the voice and all the other numerous requirements prove sufficient for a wider stage she can then decide for herself—James Bertram, Private Secretary."

So Annie went joyfully to Frank Damrosch, as Mr. Carnegie suggested in a letter later, to find the best teacher. He sent her to Miss Marie Seymour Bissell, who has a national reputation in voice placing and training. She is well pleased with the rapid progress of the eager little Scotch pupil, and predicts a future for her.

PLEASED AT MANILA

Appointment of Judge Taft as Governor Is Highly Satisfactory.

The Announcement Has Been Received From Washington.

Gen. Cailles on His Way In to Surrender Monday.

Manila, June 21.—The announcement made by the government at Washington yesterday and cabled here that civil government will be established in the Philippines July 4, that Judge William H. Taft will be designated civil governor, that he will remain head of the Philippine commission and that the commission will continue, meaning the establishment of a commission of civil and military government is satisfactory to members of the Philippine commission. Under the circumstances they believe it is politically wise to fulfil the expectations and aspirations of the natives on the date promised, providing this is done without causing liability or a sacrifice of the customs revenues.

Gen. Cailles, the insurgent commander in Laguna province, with 700 riflemen and some bolomen, is now in the vicinity of Pagsanjan, about a day's march from Santa Cruz, on Laguna De Bay. Cailles will surrender Monday, after which he is expected to assist in bringing in Malvar, who, in reality, is his superior officer.

Sun Repeats Its Story About Botha.

London, June 21.—The Sun this afternoon, again prints the sensational announcement which it made June 18, that Gen. Botha, the Boer commander, after the receipt of President Kruger's decision not to concede anything, decided to ignore the former president of the Transvaal and surrender.

The paper also says it is believed at the British foreign offie that the formal act of surrender has already occurred.

It is believed there is still a number of bodies in the wreckage, and there is a belief that the total fatalities may reach seventeen. The injured are all doing well.

RAISE SIEGE

Reinforcements Rushed to Texas Guards.

Outnumbered By Mob of Angry Citizens.

Houston, Texas, June 22.—Reinforcements, rushed to Trinity today by special train, raised the siege of the light guard, who had under arrest Levy Spencer, a negro charged with assault. A detachment of the guard had been sent to Trinity yesterday to bring Spencer here. They had started with him to the railroad station, when a mob of Trinity citizens formed a cordon and surrounded the detachment whom they vastly outnumbered.

As soon as news of the soldiers' plight reached here, the balance of the guard was hurried to the scene. They arrived this morning, drove back the mob and escorted their comrades and Spencer to the station.

As the special train pulled out for Houston, the mob fired. Many of the cars were riddled with bullets, but none of the soldiers were hit. The guard replied to the fire and declare they saw three members of the mob fall. Spencer has been taken to the penitentiary at Huntsville for safe keeping.

DYNAMITED THE CHURCH

First Methodist Edifice at Manhattan, Kansas, Injured on Account of Temperance Movement of Its Pastor.

Manhattan, Kans., June 22.—An attempt was made early today to wreck the First Methodist church here with dynamite. A number of stained glass windows were destroyed, a large hole was torn in the door, near which the explosives had been placed, and the steps were badly shattered. The parsonage, adjoining, was not damaged.

Rev. J. M. Miller, pastor of the church, was recently elected mayor and has waged a bitter war on the keepers of "joints." Recently six of them were fined $200 and given sixty days in jail. No arrests have been made in connection with the explosion.

MILITARY MUST MOVE

The Best Buildings at Manila Will Be Occupied By the Officials of the New Civil Government.

Washington, June 22.—Following the order issued yesterday making Judge Taft civil governor of the Philippines, an order has been issued naming Gen. Chaffee as military governor of the archipelago. The military has been ordered to evacuate the Ayuntamiento, the large public building, which was erected out of the municipal funds of Manila, for government purposes. This will be occupied by the civil officers in the Philippines. The palace of Malacayan, heretofore occupied as headquarters for Gens. Otis and MacArthur, also has been ordered vacated by the military authorities, and will be occupied by Governor Taft. Malacayan was the headquarters of the Spanish captains-general when in command of the Philippines, and the natives have come to regard it as the headquarters or seat of government. The Estada Mayo, another large public building, is to be the military headquarters, and will be occupied by Gen. Chaffee when he assumes command. All of these orders, including that of the president yesterday, have been cabled to Manila.

TROUBLE IS IMMINENT

Striking Miners Are Marching Toward Lick Fork Mines Regardly of the Injunction Issued By the Judge.

Mattewan, W. Va., June 22.—Striking miners are marching today toward the Lick Fork mines, and, regardless of the injunction issued yesterday by Federal Judge Jackson, forbidding encroachment on the mine property, it is believed serious trouble is imminent.

A skirmish occurred last evening in which at least 100 shots were exchanged between the guards and strikers.

It is reported a few men were wounded but that no one was killed.

Sheriff Hatfield and a posse are now on duty at the mines, where it is believed that, owing to the temper of the strikers, who are armed almost to a man, a bloody battle may be precipitated.

No attempt was made to operate the collieries today, but work will be resumed Monday with non-union men.

Huntington, W. Va., June 22.—Another outbreak occurred at the Lick Fork mines, in the Thacker and Mattewan fields, last night. A number of shots were fired and several persons were reported injured, but it is impossible to secure names. Ex-Attorney General Thacker, attorney for the coal companies, was at the scene and a dozen shots were fired at him, but he took shelter behind a rock pile and escaped injury. The strikers are determined that all non-union men shall quit work in these fields, and Winchesters are in evidence everywhere. The National Guard may be called upon to assist the sheriff in keepind down the riotehs. Injunction granted by Judge Jackson will be served today.

A ROYAL KID.

The Future King of England Is Seven Years Old.

London, June 22.—The British public is only just beginning to look upon the little Prince Edward, the seventh anniversary of whose birth occurs tomorrow, in the light of the future king. The importance of his place in the machine of state is somewhat magnified by the absence of his father. According to present plans, Prince Edward will be a sailor, going on the training ship Brittania in a few years. His present education consists of a few short daily lessons given by Mlle. Bricka, for many years companion to the late duchess of Teck. The king is said to be strongly opposed to 'stuffing children with too much knowledge." His recollection is keen of how unpleasant it was to be a "walking dictionary" at 20. A story is going the rounds of young Prince Edward's precociousness. At a juvenile party, in the presence of the duke of Cornwall, he was given toys of wood, for which he solmenly thanked his playmates with old-fashioned expressions, whereupon the duke of Cornwall exclaimed: "The little wretch, he speaks better than I do," which is not far from wrong, for the duke of Cornwall is notoriously nervous and unfitted for public speaking.

REVISED LIST

Of the Dead In the Naper Tornado.

Naper, Neb., June 22.—A revised list of the dead in Thursday's tornado brings the total up to eight. Five were injured, one of whom will die.

Dead: Jacob Greening, Sr., Jacob Greening, Jr., Maggie Greening, John Greening, Mary Greening, Clara Anderson, Ida Anderson, Bertha Anderson.

Injured: Mrs. August Anderson, will die; Mrs. Jacob Greening, serious; Theodore Anderson, Otto Metz, Henry Metz.

Scarcely a business house escaped destruction and the homeless people are sheltered in churches and school houses.

Lynch, Neb., June 22.—Three persons were badly injured near here in the tornado which swept Naper on Thursday. Many farm houses were destroyed and much wheat was destroyed by hail.

SCOTT DESTROYED.

Van Wert, Ohio, June 22.—The business portion of Scott, a village eight miles north of here, was destroyed by fire early today. Loss not yet known.

TO DOUBLE CAPACITY

Carnegie Steel Company to Absorb Other Large Concerns.

Will Have Complete Control of Its Former Competitors.

A Few Independent Mills Have Not Been Included.

Cleveland, June 22.—The Leader today says: The Carnegie Steel company will have absorbed the American Steel Hoop company and the National Steel company by July 1 and will have almost doubled its productive capacity, besides gaining complete control of the mills in the valleys which have hitherto been competitors, but which have until recently been taken into the United States Steel corporation. This deal will not take in the few plants which are still running independently in that territory, nor does it include the competition to the Carnegie plant at Pittsburg, but aside from that President Schwab of the Steel corporation is to permit of the unification of managements of these constituent companies of the trust to such an extent that the Carnegie Steel company, which he helped to perfect, will have one of the richest and best territories of the United States almost exclusively its own property. By the addition of these two plants the Carnegie Steel company acquires what was originally the Ohio Steel company at Youngstown; the Shenango Valley Steel company, New Castle, Pa.; King, Gilbert & Warner, Columbus; Bellaire Steel company, Bellaire, Ohio; Aetna Standard Iron and Steel company, Bridgeport, Ohio, and Mingo Junction; Buhl Steel company, Sharon, Pa.; Sharon Iron company, Sharon, Pa.; Rosena furnace, New Castle; Thomas Furnace company, Niles, Ohio; Ohio Iron company, Zanesville, Ohio; Columbia Steel company, Uniontown, Pa.; Standard-Connellsville Coke company, Pleasant Unity, Pa.; Continental Coke company, Uniontown, Pa., as parts of the original steel company. In addition it has acquired the following plants, which now comprise the American Steel Hoop company:

J. Painter & Sons company, Pittsburg; Isabella Furnace company, Pittsburg; William Clark Sons company, Pittsburg; Lindsey & McCutcheon, Pittsburg; Union Iron and Steel company, Youngstown; Monessen Steel company, Monessen, Pa.; P. L. Kimberley company works, Sharon, Pa.; Portage Iron company, Duncanville, Pa., and Pomeroy Iron and Steel company, Pomeroy, Ohio.

NO SPREAD

Of Reading Employes Strike Has Occurred As Yet.

Reading, Pa., June 22.—The strike of the employes of the Reading railway shops, which was begun yesterday noon, has not spread to any other departments in this city and they are working as ausual today.

Large numbers of people gathered about the car and machine shops last evening for the purpose of counting the number of men who had not gone out. At the former place the crowd included many who had quit work yesterday and at the latter some of the 1000 machinists frankly told their friends they were going out in a day or two. About 250 of these are union men, but the leaders say all the men but a few laborers will go out when they are asked, and the request will probably be made on Monday. The moulders, who are 200 strong, went to work as usual today, but the men said they were simply waiting for the call from their national organization. The number on strike in the company's shops now is nearly 1000. Early next week 1500 men may go out in addition to 2600 Reading Iron company workers, who went on strike several weeks ago and are now locked out.

AT HENLEY.

Pennsylvania Crew Is Photographed and Practices a Bit.

Henley, England, June 22.—The University of Pennsylvania crew were out early today and posed for numerous photographs. They paddled to Temple island and thence to Hambledon dock, where they disembarked and watched their new college rivals in the contest for the grand challenge cup row past. Soon after them came the Dublin crew, out for its first spin. The Dublin men will not meet the Pennsylvanias until they compete on Lake Killarney. Judging from today's exhibition they are not very dangerous rivals, though they have got Goldie, the famous Cambridge oar, who had been rowing with Leander this year as coach. Later Lehman will take them in charge.

On re-embarking the Pennsylvanias rowed remarkably well, putting great driving power into the stroke, which was hit up to thirty-eight. An English expert, who was watching the rowing, said to a reporter of the Associated Press:

"As types of Wards strike they could hardly be better, and I have no doubt they will still further improve."

The entries for the grand challenge cup closed today. Pennsylvania's competitors will be the Leander, New College, Thames, London and Ghent Rowing clubs.

THE DERBY

All Ready For Great Race at Chicago.

Track Fast and Record May Be Broken.

Minn Hist'l Society

Chicago, June 22.—Everything is in readiness for the American derby at the Washington Park tract this afternoon. Although heavy fogs prevailed in the early hours of the morning, the weather this forenoon is clear and warm, and Forecaster Cox promises that these same conditions will prevail this afternoon. The track is fast at present, and there is a possibility, some of the turfmen say, that the record may be broken. Everything points to one of the greatest crowds and one of the grandest races in the history of the event.

Eleven horses are announced as sure to go to the post, with three doubtful quantities on the side. There was lively betting on the race until a late hour last night at the Auditorium annex, where a well known bookmaker made a handbook on a large scale. When he opened up business His Eminence and Bonnibert were equal favorites at 5 to 2, but pretty soon a well dressed stranger came up and had a conference with the bookmaker. As a result of this conference, the bookmaker took out his book and did a little altering in the prices. He marked The Parader down to 5 to 2 and put Bonnibert at 3½ and His Eminence at 4. It developed that $20,000 had been offered on The Parader in one bunch. The bookmaker took $5000, and announced that he would try to place the rest at 5 to 2. Bonnibert's friends rallied and that colt was marked down to 3 to 1, His Eminence remaining at 4. The prices against the other sure starters this morning are 6 to 1, Beau Gallant, 6 to 1 each Silverdale and Lady Schorr, 12 to 1 each Terminus and RRobert Waddell, 15 to 1 Sannazaro, and 20 to 1 Sadie S and Six Shooter. Whether there will be betting at the track to which the general public can get in on is not known at present, but it is believed that there will be plenty of chances on the outside.

There is bound to be a great crowd. Even should a rain storm come up and soak the field the attendance will exceed 25,000 and should the skies be fair at the time for starting the first race, 50,000 people will probably see the derby. There will be the usual great turnout of fine equipages and well-dressed society women, the State street stores reporting an immense sale of derby dress goods during the last fortnight. The entries, jockeys and weights are as follows: Six Shooter, 115, Bullman; Lady Strathmeath, 117, no jockey; Sadie S, 117, McGinn; Brutal, 122, McCue; Robert Waddell, 119, Coburn; Terminus, 112, Van Dusen; Jiminez, 122, H. Michael; Sannazarro, 122, Boland; Beau Gallant, 122, Spencer; Lady Schorr, 117, J. Woods; Silverdale, 127, Winkfield; His Eminence, 127, Odom; Bonnibert, 127, Turner; The Parader, 127, Piggott.

LAMPREY GETS LAND

Court Holds That Contract For 100,000 Acres In Otter Tail County Was Direct Sale to the Plaintiff.

St. Paul, June 22.—Judge Bunn, in the district court, has filed his memorandum in the case of Url L. Lamprey against the St. Paul & Chicago Railroad company, Farmers' Loan and Trust company and Russell Sage, the New York capitalist. Findings in favor of the plaintiff are to be drawn on the memorandum and submitted to the court, and if there are points on which the counsel cannot agree, they are to be submitted to the court.

In 1877 Mr. Lamprey had several land contracts with the railroad company for 100,000 acres of land in Otter Tail and other counties. These contracts were allowed to run on, years after their terms, and finally the railroad company sought to terminate them.

A new agreement was made with Mr. Lamprey, July 13, 1899, under which he was to pay the old indebtedness of some $60,000 to the vendor within a year, but it was not until after the lapse of the year that he was in a positon to make payment.

Judge Bunn, in his memorandum, holds that the agreement of July 13, 1899, was a contract for the sale of the lands, and that no notice for forfeiture was ever given. The court says:

"I think plaintiff is entitled to a deed of the lands in controversy upon paying to the defendant the amount due upon contracts on the day the tenders were made. If defendants refuse to accept such amount and to deliver the necessary deed, then plaintiff may pay into court, and the payment to be entered will satnd in lieu of such deed."

Judge Bunn finds that the plaintiff is not entitled to damages.

DIVORCE WAS NOT VALID

County Clerk of Washoe, Nevada, Testifies In Bow Street Police Court Concerning Marriage of Earl Russell.

London, June 22.—Earl Russell reappeared in the Bow street police court today, on the charge of bigamy and was committed for trial. The court was crowded. Among those present was the woman (Mrs. Somerville) whom the earl claims as his wife, and to whom he was married in Reno, Nev., in 1900, after he had obtained a divorce from his first wife. The register of his first marriage was produced. Mr. Brown, assistant director of public prosecutions, then testified that the present proceedings were taken by the public prosecutor, independently of any other person, thus confirming the first countess' statement that she is not a party to the suit.

Mr. Brown gave details of his investigation at Reno, and B. F. Curler, county clerk of Washoe county, Nev., testified to marrying Earl Russell and Mrs. Somerville at the Riverside hotel, Reno.

The defendant called himself Mr. Russell and the witness was not aware of his rank.

After detailing the Nevada law on divorce, Mr. Curler said that in Earl Russell's divorce the law was not complied with in two respects, and, therefore, the decree annulling the earl's marriage was not valid, even in Nevada.

After counsel had protested that Earl Russell had not been given adequate time to prepare his defense, the earl was committed for trial at the next session of the central criminal court, the same bail ($2500) being allowed.

SOCIETY IS MYSTIFIED

Announcement In the London Post Says the Marriage of Miss Sartoris and Mr. Balfour Will Not Occur.

New York, June 22.—According to a dispatch from London to the World, among the paid announcements in the Morning Post of London today appeared this notice:

"The marriage between Miss Vivian Sartoris and Archibald Balfour will not take place."

London society is mystified. Miss Sartoris, who is a granddaughter of Gen. U. S. Grant, is well known in London, and Mr. Balfour is a cousin of Arthur Balfour, the statesman.

The American contingent in London were surprised at the announcement of the engagement on April 15 last, but prepared to send wedding gifts fitting for the granddaughter of a former president of the United States. Hardly anyone knows the meaning of the sudden notice, and many refuse to believe it true. The Morning Post, however, prints all the authorized society announcements.

When seen last night at his home in this city, U. S. Grant, grandson of Gen. Grant, cousin of the young woman, said: "I know that Mr. Balfour and Miss Sartoris are engaged. If there have been any changes in their plans it is all news to me. More than this I can't say."

It was only on May 28 last, that Mrs. Nellie Grant-Sartoris, daughter of the late Gen. Grant, announced that the wedding of her daughter, Miss Sartoris, to Archbald Balfour would take place on July 11, in the height of the London season, at the home of Mrs. Gordon, sister of the late Algernon Sartoris, and aunt of Miss Sartoris.

Miss Roamond Sartoris, a younger sister, so the society notices read, was to be maid of honor, and a bevy of English and American girls were chosen to attend the bride. The ushers were all selected from London's smartest set.

In her announcement Mrs. Sartoris added that the honeymoon would be spent in Scotland and that in September Mr. Balfour would bring his bride to America in order that he might meet for the first time her grandmother, the widow of Gen. Grant.

Miss Sartoris made her debut in Washington three years ago. Young Mr. Balfour is a London barrister. A dispatch from Washington says that Miss Sartoris' brother, Algernon Sartoris, is supposed to have sailed from New York very recently. Miss Sartoris only left Washington a few weeks ago London. Miss Rosamond, her sister, went with her. Mrs. Grant, her grandmother, and Mrs. Nellie Grant-Sartoris are in Coburg, Canada, for the summer.

DR. MITCHELL

Healing the Sick Without Medicine.

The Old Lady Looked Herself Over, Jumped Up and Down and Cried, "See, See, I Am Cured, I'm Cured!"

Truly, Healer Mitchell is a wonder, and he has displayed that fact the past three years by the large number of people he has treated and cured in Duluth, and from other parts of the country. The doctor has been convincing the people of Duluth that his treatments are not a fake by any means. The people who have seen him perform his marvelous cures believe in him. The blind who have not seen the light of day for years are made to see, the deaf and dumb are made to hear and speak, the cripples throw away their canes and crutches; they give their names and addresses and skeptical people go and see those who are cured. Many investigate the cures and say they are wonderful. Thousands in Duluth will tell you he has cured them, and when cured by him they stay cured. He is not to be classed with those self-styled healers who are springing up mush-room like throughout the country, for his powers are animal electricity and he drives away the disease by changing its polarity, and it disappears as if by magic.

Miss Anna Runum of South Dakota had a stiffened ankle joint and could not move her foot at all without a shoe with a steel frame attachment designed to give control of the limb at the knees. This frame now occupies a place with the many others left with Dr. Mitchell by people who have been cured by him.

Many are crowding the rooms at 17 East Superior street and they are all speaking in high terms of the kind attention shown them. The other day while a great number were waiting in his reception parlors for consultation, an old German lady came hobbling in on crutches, scarcely able to crawl along. While she was relating her tale of woe the healer happened to step into the room. He listened a moment and then approaching the lady he made a few passes over her body and limbs, then took her crutches and threw them into the corner, at the same time telling her she should run home now and that she would never need her crutches again. The old lady looked herself over, stamped her feet, jumped up and down, and cried, "See, see! I am cured, I'm cured." Crying with joy, she left, heaping praises upon this great healer.

Dr. Mitchell's wonderful success in curing difficult chronic cases of long-standing that have baffled the skill of other physicians, has been demonstrated by testimonials from prominent and well-known citizens which have apeared in our columns during the years past, and which have been voluntarily given by patients who have been cured.

If you are suffering, do not be influenced by what some unprincipled person may say, but go and consult Dr. Mitchell personally and he will tell you if he can benefit you or cure you, as he does not care to handle incurable cases. If any one tries to discourage you by telling you these treatments are not what they purpose to be, investigate and you will find that they have either been misinformed or else do not know of what they are speaking. Consultation free by cutting this out and bringing it with you. Office at 17 East Superior street. Office hours 9 a. m. to 7:30 p. m. Sundays 10 a. m. to 12 m. 'Phone 579.

PROSPERING.

Boat Club Attracting Much Interest---Buys Some Barges.

Sixteen years old, a clean record behind it, and an exceptionally bright one ahead of it, out of debt, with money in the bank, and owning its own club house and equipment, is the Duluth Boat club, which was never in a more flourishing condition that it is now. It has taken in more new members this year than it has had for the last five previous ones, and now has about 150 active members. Recently the Superior Boat club disbanded and the local club secured two 4-oared barges from that organization and now has one 8-oared shell, three 4-oared shells, two 4-oared barges, two doubles, five working boats and about twenty pleasure boats in which to skim over the glassy sea.

The men have just started coming out, and have been getting in trim during the last week. It is hoped that an event can be arranged with the St. Paul crew and it is supposed that should a regatta be held here during the summer the men from that place would take part.

Most of the older men have dropped out of the active work, but there is plenty of good material that, if properly worked up, should make a winning crew.

It is proposed in the near future to build a new club house across the canal on the bay side of the Point, and a committee has been selected to go over the matter carefully and select a suitable site. The house will have all modern conveniences, and will be arranged so that a dancing floor can be put in if desired and the social feature will be made a strong point. In the past few years this side of the sport has gradually died out, owing to the undesirable location of the present club house.

The officers of the club are: President, George Spencer; first vice president, G. G. Barnum; second vice president, C. D. Shepard; secretary, W. L. McLennan, treasurer, Julius Barnes; captain, J. D. Mahoney; lieutenant, M. L. Leach; ensign, John H. Upham, Jr. The directors are E. N. Bradley, A. McDougall and W. C. Sargent.

Working at Beaumont.

The Saratoga Oil and Pipe Line company is drilling a well just 174 yards from the Heywood No. 2 well, which is the largest in the Beaumont oil fields. The managers are momentarily expecting word that oil has been struck as strong indications of it have been discovered. The company owns land in block 38 of which a quarter acre sold last week at $50,000.

In order to supply funds to build tanks and pipe lines and lease cars for the transportation of this oil ao the market, they are selling the second series of 100,000 shares of stock at 20 cents per share, the par value being $1. Prospectus can be secured by addressing them at 728 Andrus building, Minneapolis, Minn.

Non-Support Charged.

Charles Peffer, formerly a butcher on Fourth street, was arrested at Two Harbors last night and brought here this morning to answer a charge of non-support, preferred by his wife.

Owing to a law passed by the last legislature non-support is made a district court felony rather than a municipal court misdemeanor and Mr. Peffer was held for an examination on June 26 in the sum of $250 bail.

A BUTCHER EXPLAINS

But His Explanation Has Made Their Cause Worse.

Why Prices Are Lower In Superior Than Duluth.

One Butcher Over There Will Not Join the Combine.

A well known local butcher, in a conversation in which a Herald man had a part, offered a naive explanation of the reason why meat prices in Superior are cheaper than they are in Duluth. It will be remembered that when John Cox, of Cox Bros., answered an article in The Herald on the local meat trust, he failed to mention the fact, referred to in the article he was answering, that Superior meat prices are lower than those in Duluth.

The butcher had been plaintively telling how much waste there is in a "critter," and that it was necessary to charge good prices on the choice cuts to come out even on the deal, and he had been complaining because The Herald had taken a fall or two out of the local meat trust.

Then he started to explain the system of organization, and after he had forgotten about his trouble he slipped into an account of why meat is cheaper in Superior, notwithstanding the fact that there is an organization over there, too. It seems that the Superior organization is not quite perfect. There is one butcher, and a rather prominent one, that is not in the organization. He is quite content with fair profits, and he does not seem inclined to join the organization and put prices up to an unreasonable altitude. The consequence is, according to this Duluth butcher's unguarded explanation, that the Superior combine has not been able to put prices up to the point where the Duluth meat men have raised them.

This is enough reason why Duluth people have a grievance against the Duluth butchers. It is ample proof that the prices asked by the Duluth butchers are not based on fair profits, but on a complete organization that prevents competition and permits the butchers to demand all that the people will pay. They have made meat an expensive luxury, and have made the purchase of a necessary of life a burden that is hard on the people, from the poor up to the well-to-do.

There is such a thing as too much success, and the butchers may find that their complete organization and their successful hold-up of the people will soon react in the shape of an independent house that will bring the organization in ruins about their ears.

Are Ordered Sold.

E. C. Bodman yesterday afternoon began a suit in district court against A. W. and O. C. Hartman to enforce the sale of eighteen bonds of the Commercial Light and Power company put up as collateral for a judgment held by him against the Hartmans. The judgment, amounting to $8885.05, was secured last August on a note for $10,000 made in 1893, and the bonds were put up as security. Their par value is $18,000, but the company has defaulted on the interest payments and is in the hands of a receiver. By stipulation of the parties the court ordered the bonds to be sold by the sheriff. S. T. & William Harrison are the attorneys.

TO BE SOLD.

Oneota Fair Ground Buildings to Be Disposed Of.

For sale—One race track, one county fair building, one judge's stand and numerous other equipments of an up-to-date fair grounds. All, except the land, which cannot be removed, will be sold at a sacrifice. For patriculars apply to William C. Sargent, court house, Duluth, Minn.

That is the situation with the St. Louis county fair grounds. Henry W. Wheeler, the owner of the ground, which the agricultural association leased has acquired a decision in his favor on his suit for $1000 rent, which he claims to be due, and the court has ordered the sale of the buildings erected on the grounds by the association to satisfy the debt.

Judge Dibell's findings in the case were filed this morning in the office of the clerk of district court. He finds $1000 unpaid rent due and he gives Mr. Wheeler judgment for that amount and declares his claim to be a lien on the buildings, which are to be sold to satisfy it. By stipulation a stay of ten days was entered, and the judgment will not be entered before the expiration of the time.

SMASHED WINDOWS.

Fred May Tries to Wreck the Bethel.

A slender little man in the paperweight class tried to knock down a three-story brick building, with a sign board, on the Bowery last night.

"They sold me the wrong kind of a bibble at the Branch Bethel," he said, "and the Lord sent me back to destroy the building and throw it in the lake. If the police will permit me to carry out my instructions I'll agree to do it quickly. I'll make a clean job of the Bethel building, but I'll leave the rest of the town just as it is."

The man's name is Fred May. He is a German and wanted a German bible. When he found that it was an English edition he smashed in the Bethel's big plate glass window and threatened to disfigure the landscape.

He does not have the appearance of a drinking man, and is apparently insane over religion. He says that if the police will only let him get his hands on the three-story building he will pull it down and throw the wreckage in the lake.

When the board of public works heard of this man's ambition they tried to hire him to go against the Lerch livery barn, now obstructing West First street, but he refused to have anything to do with the livery barn till he could get another whack at the Bethel.

He will have a hearing in police court on Monday morning, charged with the malicious destruction of property.

COMPLETED.

Personal Property Assessment Ready For Board of Equalization.

If you have any tears to shed over your personal property assessment, prepare to shed them Monday before the board of equalization

The personal property assessment was completed today. For weeks the city assessor has had a large force of deputy assessors working over time estimating the valuation of personal property which was submitted to the assessors' office. In many instances the assessor had occasion to raise the valuation of the schedule submitted, but in every instance where a raise of this kind was made the property owner received notice.

Those objecting to the raise can go before the board of equalization and kick just as strenuously as they have a mind to.

The board is composed of Mayor Hugo, City Assessor Olafson and City Comptroller McCormick. All three are celebrated as handling the most accommodating and best natured men that ever held public office. They will be in session every day from Monday to Friday next week.

LUMBER SALES SMALL.

Some Difference Over Prices Is Reported.

No sales of importance are recorded in the local lumber market, but there are signs of early activity. There is a steady demand for No. 4 boards, but sales are slow as the buyers and sellers cannot get together. Sellers are holding this stock at $10.50 and the buyers offer $10. At the present time it looks as if the buyers would pay the price demanded before securing any stock.

The tug Gettysburg arrived at the Superior entry yesterday afternoon with a raft of 5,000,000 feet of logs. They were brought from Pigeon river, a trip of 180 miles, and there are 15,000,000 more feet at the same place to be brought in this season. It is necessary to divide the raft now at the Superior entry and it will be at least three days before all the logs are delivered at the mill of the Superior Lumber company. The raft is the property of Alger Smith & Company.

O. D. Leidel, a jeweler of Fergus Falls, came in on the excursion yesterday. He made his first visit to Duluth ten years ago and says he never minds the weather, as he comes to the city often enough to know that the climate is unexcelled in summer. It was raining at Fergus Falls early yesterday morning when the train started. Mr. Leidel thinks the cereal yield will equal the record harvest of 1895.

Game Postponed.

The Duluth-Ashland baseball game scheduled for this afternoon, was postponed on account of the weather. If it clears up a game will be played tomorrow afternoon at Oneota Park.

THE BARN IS MOVING

Contractor Sawyer Went at Lerch Obstruction This Afternoon.

His Hearing Is Postponed to Next Tuesday Morning.

Made Promise That He Would Start Work at Once.

In order to compel the removal of the Lerch livery barn, the board of public works may cause the daily arrest of the contractor and endeavor to have the maximum fine of $100 imposed, until the thoroughfare is cleared.

Both Mr. Lerch and Henry S. Sawyer were arraigned in police court this morning as a first test of this plan of campaign, but the hearings were postponed until Tuesday morning, on motion of the attorney for the defendants.

In the meantime the unsightly obstruction stops traffic on First street and gives homesick farmers the impression that they are out in their own old barn yard.

After the postponement of the case in police court the contractor and Charles Wilson and William Butchart, of the board of public works, had quite an argument in the court corridor.

Mr. Sawyer had the nerve to say that the street railway company had kept him from moving the barn for two weeks, neglecting, however, to mention how the street railway company could possibly prevent the moving of the first section of the obstruction, which is a block past the street car tracks. Mr. Sawyer also denied that he was drunk on Wednesday night.

He then asked the board for a permit to move the second section of the barn up to the street car tracks so that he could get it over at the first opportunity, agreeing to move the first section over on the vacant lots at Fourth avenue west at once.

The members of the board, on advice of Associate City Attorney Holmes, declined to grant the permit, but finally Mr. Butchart said:

"Now you people go ahead and get that barn up to the tracks, and then get the other section off First street as soon as possible."

With that the contractor walked away, promising to have the second section moving in five minutes.

The city is in a peculiar position. The city officers directly interested in the moving of the barn feel that the entire thing is a mere farce, and that there is little intention of getting the obstruction off First street. They have expressed the opinion that it is a play to strengthen a damage suit against the city, and for that reason the legal advice, during the past twenty-four hours, has been against the board of public works' ordering the destruction of the barn. It is now believed that the city's interests can best be protected by causing the daily arrest of the person responsible for delay in moving the building.

Mr. Lerch this afternoon said that the question was up to the board of public works and the contractor, as the board had refused to give a second permit and he was powerless to do anything.

This afternoon, at 2 o'clock, the barn was moving. This statement may seem astonishing, but it is true nevertheless. The second section was being moved up to the street railway tracks, and the men were to go to the first section as soon as they had landed the second one up to the street railway tracks.

There was another policy of $1800 in the British American, which was paid. McGiffert & Hunter are the attorneys.

Put Up His Bail.

A colored man arrested for vagrancy gave the police authorities sundry small chills in court this orning. They claimed that he was without money and had no means of support.

He tried to offset this by asking for a blank check on the First National bank so that he could put up $10 bail for appearance later in the day. A vag with a bank account was something new, but J. R. Hicks did not have an opportunity to prove his alleged possession of a bank account as his attorney put up the necessary bail.

J. B. Richards Case Will Come Up Later.

The suit of John B. Richards against the board of county commissioners of St. Louis county to recover $3000 for services in fighting in the United States court the case of the state against the Duluth Gas and Water company, for personal property tax, was to have come up in special term of district court this morning, but the parties were not ready. It was decided to have the hearing on the matter before Judge Cant, in chambers, whenever it is convenient to the court and both parties. There will be no evidence on the hearing, as the parties have stipulated to all the facts in the ase. It will be remembered that Mr. Richards collected a large amount in personal property taxes from the bondholders of the gas and water company. He was city attorney at that time, and practically the only question involved is whether he had a right to accept pay for doing work for the county, which was also in behalf of the city, by which he was paid.

Other special term matters were as follows: Mariona Dailey against Charles Dailey, ordered that defendant pay $15 attorneys' fees on July 15, and $10 per month for the care of the children until the divorce case is determined; A. W. Cross against Mary Dunton Watt and others, judgment of foreclosure for $3694.10, attorneys' fees fixed at $75; E. C. Bodman against A. W. and O. C. Hartman, order by stipulation for the sale of the security to satisfy judgment; in the matter of the estate devised by T. A. Olmstead, deceased, in trust for the children of Lizzie M. Brophy, deceased, order for trustee to pay Reuben C. Brophy $50 per month and Mildred E. Brophy $10 per month until Jan. 1, 1901.

The beauties of nature have been supplemented with artificial improvements until the little park is one of the finest in the city.

The Interstate Traction company has arranged a new schedule for cars running down to the point and from now on there will be a regular twenty-minute service. The cars leave the Park Point landing on the even hour and twenty and forty minutes after the hour.

Joint bond of $30,000 was given by the receivers, who at once assumed control of the property.

The company is capitalized at $13,000,000, half in bonds and half in stock.

N. F. NELSON,
Master Workman.
J. W SHEPHERDSON, Recorder.

BRITISH MILLIONAIRE.

Squandered Fortunes to Gratify His Whims.

Probably no more interesting personality has been brought before the public for many years than that of the late Sir William Cunliffe Brooks, against whose estate of some £3,000,000 claims are being made to the extent of £800,000. As will be remembered, the case is now being tried in Edinburgh, by which the claimants are endeavoring to prove that his chief residence was Glen Tana, near Aberdeen, says the London Express.

When Sir William first rented the property from Lord Huntley, the house was merely a small fishing box. So he immediately set to work and practically rebuilt it, pulling down a great deal of small property to make room for the new manor. From that time to the date of his death 200 workmen were constantly employed in turning the one-third wilderness into a magnificent place of residence. According to Sir William's own estimate, he spent regularly £20,000 a year upon the property, and this exclusive of the £150,000 which is stated as having been the initial purchase price.

In place of the cottages which he destroyed others, replete with every modern convenience, had to be erected, the course of the river was deflected to form miniature lakes and cascades; trees were planted, and in one case £10,000 was paid by the eccentric millionaire for the "wood" of a forest, so that by their becoming his property the trustees would be unable to sell them to timber merchants to be cut down. In short, the whole of the neighboring countryside has undergone a complete transformation at his hands. Even the deer forest has not escaped "improvement." Within quite a short time of his occupation Sir William encircled its vast limits with a wire fence, seven feet in height, which was constructed in such a way as to allow deer to enter, but not to leave it.

He was never so happy as when talking in the deer forests, accompanied by his favorite keeper, Donald Macintosh. And of these two men several funny anecdotes are told. One of them relates how Macintosh found a big rock in the Tana waters, and said to Sir William that he would very much like to have it placed upon his grave when he died. As the same idea had already occurred to Sir William he announced that "masters should come first and servants afterward." The keeper, with the customary license of old retainers, promptly disputed the point, and after a lengthy argument induced his master to agree that the first one to die should have the stone. Poor "Mac" died first, and the rock now forms the headstone of his grave.

As further illustrating the relations which existed between these two, the story is recorded of an incident which happened while they were traveling in the far East. Upon the quay where they had landed Sir William suddenly stopped short and asked Donald whether he had any money in his pockets. "Lor-rd, yes," replied the unsuspecting gillie, pulling out a handful of gold and silver from his pocket. "Here's as muckle as'll dee for a day or twa." Whereupon Sir William, without a word of warning, flung out his hand and scattered the coins over the quayside, to the evident consternation of his canny companion. Nor did he lose the opportunity of reading him a long lesson on the foolishness of thus wantonly exposing one's wealth to the gaze of possibly criminal eyes.

Sundays seem to have been the customary days for Sir William Brooks' tour of inspection around the property. He would give lavish orders for the building of houses and cottages—after his own designs principally—and would refuse to look at them until they were fully completed. He would then go round, and either praise the result or, should he not like it, order it to be at once razed to the ground.

Another eccentricity lay in his love of inscriptions. If you pleased him you were promptly presented with a card containing some queer quotation written in red and blue chalk. These colors, by the way, soon became regarded as distinctive of the man. The lintels of the cottages he built, the doors of his rooms and the ceiling of his dining room at Glen Tana were all covered with strangely illuminated mottoes.

Although an Englishman by birth, his heart and soul seem to have been centered on the banks of Tana water. He dressed his dependents in a tartan of his own invention, and gloried in the "pipes" that called him in the morning and played to him after dinner at night.

For Mr. Ian Cecil, his heir, he had a great affection, and is said to have induced him to sign the pledge. Not that Sir William was an abstainer himself, for this he was not. In fact, so proud was he of his port, of which he had a renowned cellar, that he frequently referred to his bottles as his "babies."

Visitors to the estates were generally surprised to find curious cairns, bearing equally curious inscriptions dotted about in out-of-the-way places. These find explanation in the fact that wherever a deer was shot Sir William ordered a monument, bearing full particulars as to weight and date, to be erected.

In addition to deer-stalking, however, Sir William took a keen interest in salmon fishing, and as the Tana is only a trout stream he rented a portion of the Dee.

Apart from these sports, his ideas of exercise seem to have been somewhat

CLERKS ARRIVED

Office Force of Oliver Mining Company Reaches Duluth.

Came on Special Sleeper Attached to Omaha Train.

Records of Company Arrived on the Same Train.

The office force of the Oliver Mining company, which has transferred its offices from Pittsburg to this city, arrived here this morning on a special sleeper attached to the Omaha. An extra baggage car brought all of the office fixtures. These filled seven or eight vans, and were being installed at the new offices within an hour after the arrival of the train. All of the records of the company were brought, and they expect to be ready to resume their interrupted business by Monday morning. The additional office room needed has been obtained on the third and fourth floors of the Exchange building. Most of the tenants on these two floors have moved out.

There were a number of people at the depot this morning to see the arrival of the party. There were sixteen persons in all, as follows: W. E. Morrow, auditor; William Jeffry, auditor; C. D. Bingham, chief clerk; Miss Abbott, Miss Garvin, J. L. Mullin, H. H. Johnson, J. T. Melvin, F. B. Fisher, H. F. Black, John Lapsiew, H. H. Bingham, C. D. Mead, L. R. Alexander, C. H. Long and F. H. Rogers.

W. E. Morrow, assistant auditor of the company, was one of the party. This is not his first visit to Duluth; he has been here at different times in summer and winter. He said today: "Of course, it looks very strange to some of the members of my party to see people wearing overcoats in midsummer, but strangers in Duluth for the first time will soon grow accustomed to climatic changes such as are not experienced in Pennsylvania. The first impression of the members of the party who are spending their initial day in Duluth is very favorable. As they are here to remain, many of them are inspecting the Zenith City today. Some are seeking homes today, as they wish to be settled, if possible, when work of the company is again taken up at the office."

DELIVERED A LECTURE.

H. W. Pearson Expounds His Theories to Jury.

H. W. Pearson returned this morning from St. Paul, where he has been all week in the trial of his case against the Great Northern railroad for the recovery of the value of his services in locating coal lands for the railroad. Mr. Pearson had been on the stand four days and a half up to last night.

Yesterday afternoon the examination of Mr. Pearson took a turn almost without precedent. He was explaining his system of arriving at the location of deposits of coal and the interruption of attorneys was increasing matters and preventing him from giving a clear idea of what he wished to convey and it was finally stipulated that he should be allowed to state his theories in detail and without interruption from anyone except the court. Mr. Pearson then took the floor and with an easel in front of him on which he pinned his charts he delivered a lecture for an hour and five minutes. It covered a wide range and dated back to the earliest ages. There was a great deal in it that would have been objected to as irrelevant and immaterial under the ordinary rules of evidence, but it all tended toward the conclusions which Mr. Pearson claimed to have reached.

Mr. Pearson said today that after the presentation of his letters and records the defense admitted the contract practically as he claimed it.

There are still about six or eight witnesses to be examined for the plaintiff before the defense takes the stand.

THE EXCURSIONISTS

Spending the Day Around the City.

The excursionists could be found at the stores all along Superior street today, and at the parks and different summer resorts. Many of them made a trip around the harbor this morning and this afternoon the mountain boulevard is much patronized although the air is so thick that it retards the view. Better weather is expected for tomorrow and it is certain that none of the excursionists will leave the city dissatisfied with the time spent here.

There is not a single report from the agriculturalists of a poor crop prospect. From Wahpeton to Staples in the grain belt the outlook was never better and the acreage is larger than in any previous year. The Northwest harvested its record crop in 1895 and it looks now as if that record would be outdone in 1901.

The first section of the excursion train leaves the Union Depot tomorrow at 4:15 p. m. and the second will depart at 5:30.

ITS WORK IS ENDED

The Swedish Evangelical Covenant Closes Its Business Session.

Remainder of Stay Will Be Spent In Pleasuring.

The Meeting Has Been Both Interesting and Profitable.

Yesterday afternoon the meeting of the Swedish Evangelical Covenant of America at the Mission church in the West End was taken up with the discussion of the question of securing title to the North Park college property. It was finally decided to do so in order that they would be able to avail themselves of the offer of a $2500 donation to the school and $4000 additional for the benefit of needy and deserving students. This morning it was decided to erect on the North Park college campus, a dormitory for students, an auditorium and a residence for the college president, and to empower the president to call additional teachers as they are needed. Miss Hilda Radberg, of Maple Ridge, Minn., will be sent to the Swedish covenant station in China as a missionary and will be given an assistant. One thousand dollars will be devoted to the China missions during the coming year and at least $6000 to the Alaskan territory. The remainder of the forenoon was taken up in hearing the report of the license committee.

This afternoon Mayor Hugo welcomed the delegates to Duluth. It was expected that he would have made the address Wednesday afternoon, but on account of his absence from the city his remarks had to be deferred. Professor A. W. Frederickson of North Park college responded with a few well-chosen words, and the delegates were then taken over the city.

Monday the delegates will attend a picnic in Zenith park. The steamer Bloomer Girl has been chartered for the occasion and will make several trips. This will close the visit of the delegates to the convocation. The meeting has been a successful one and good results are reported therefrom.

Tomorrow the public will have an opportunity of listening to some of the famous speakers who are delegates. At 10 a. m., at the Mission church, the children will unite with the older members and render a children's day program. The junior choir, composed of fifty children, will sing, as well as a male chorus. The following is the program for the day:

SECULAR SHOTS AT PULPIT

Somerville Journal: The number of people who believe that Lot's wife was literally turned into a pillar of salt is becoming considerably smaller every year.

New York World: That Nebraska evangelist who sees his field in the barber shops of the land will find his crusade talked to death before it leaves the first chair.

Boston Transcript: The religious world appears to have donned its thinking cap of late. Not only the Presbyterians, but the Episcopalians are talking about tinkering their creed.

Detroit Free Press: When you come to think of it there is no sense in letting the agitation over predestination and infant damnation which is apparent among the Presbyterians, North and South, communicate itself with the rest of the world. There is conclusive reason for believing that the Westminster confession of faith or any other man-made creed will not govern when the generations are rounded up for final judgment.

Brooklyn Eagle: Oh, the innocence of these good people! The general synod of the Evangelical Lutheran church has declared that the press in demanding the restoration of the army canteen because it is influenced by whisky advertisements. Not a drop of whisky was ever sold in a canteen. The whisky dealers are unanimous in favor of the present state of things, because it forces the soldiers to leave the posts and get whisky outside.

Church Economist: A priest whose church is located not far from Newspaper Row applied through his archbishop for permission to say mass at 2:30 in the morning. The permison had to be granted from Rome. This was done, and mass is now said when men on the morning papers, in the post office and other downtown places get through work. Seven hundred men attended the first morning, but when the novelty wore off there came, as a regular thing, about 400. This is the only place where mass is said in America at this hour, and the authorities at Rome said it was the first application of the sort to reach them. Now masses at the same hour are proposed in other parts of New York and elsewhere, where there seems to be a need. So far as is known, no Protestant church has ever undertaken to meet the need of this night-working class. During the recent missions in England, services were held for them at the hour named, but the meetings continued only for a week.

THE DAKOTAS.

Ten-Year-Old Boy Gets an Eleven-Year Sentence.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Fargo—An 11-year sentence in the state reform school is what 10-year-old Fred Levin got from Judge Pollock for a birthday present. Levin was classed among the incorrigibles, and had been before the court on two or three occasions. After each warning he would be good a few days and then resume his peculations. Three or four arrests seemed only to make him more daring. In this state reformatory sentences continue usually till those penalized are of age. This makes the boy a sentence of greater length than years he has lived.

Minot—L. M. Davis has returned from Minneapolis and St. Paul, where he purchased the machinery for the electric light system, electric power and telephone system.

Hillsboro—The first day of the Red River band tournament opened with a large crowd, good sports and fine music. Hillsboro won a ten-inning ball game from Fargo, 6 to 5.

Lisbon—Mrs. Arthur Baring-Gould, whose children were recently taken from her by her husband, from whom she had separated, has been brought here. She is a very sick woman from worry, causing nervous prostration.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

Plankinton—A 20-months'-old child of the Neese family, while playing about the house, climbed upon a bench and fell off into a pail partly filled with milk and was drowned. The funeral services were held Thursday afternoon.

Deadwood—G. M. Bigelow, of Sioux Falls, is wanted by several Deadwood and Lead men for obtaining money by means of his standing in several fraternal societies. He came to this city several weeks ago as the acknowledged representative of a savings association of Sioux Falls, and did a large business for the company. He borrowed from lodge member upon various pretexts, and the same game was played at Lead. Since his departure it has been found that he borrowed several hundred dollars. He will be arrested.

Fort Meade—Up to this time about 200 head of horses have been accepted by the government inspector for the Thirtieth cavalry.

Aberdeen—Delegates elected at the Republican caucus were instructed for J. H. McCoy for judge of the Fifth judicial district.

De Smet—The milk receipts at the De Smet creamery during May aggregated 1,530 pounds. This puts the creamery far in the lead of any other.

Flandreau—According to a careful estimate, the farmers of Moody county are this season building new houses, barns, etc., to the value of $100,000.

Rapid City—A tornado did heavy damage several miles west of this city Friday, completely demolishing a house on the Little ranch occupied by F. N. Allen and family. The occupants reached a cellar in time to escape death. Trees were torn up and carried many yards. The storm overtook the mail carrier and a lady passenger coming from Silver City. The buggy was demolished and the two had a miraculous escape. The horses have not yet been found. This city was visited by a heavy storm and several hundreds of dollars worth of damage was done to window glass.

THE BARKER TRIAL

Jurors Paid No Attention to Woman's Statement.

New York, June 22.—Efforts have been made to interview the jurors who listened to the evidence in the trial of Thomas G. Barker for assaulting the Rev. John Keller, of Arlington, N. J. Juror Robert McAndrews, in discussing the matter, said:

"We followed the court's instructions. We did not consider Mrs. Barker's statement at all. It cut no figure one way or the other. I read Mrs. Barker's statement, and I guess the other eleven did. For my reasons for convicting Barker, read the evidence and the charge. I consider it no one's business whether I believe Mrs. Barker's statement or not. It had nothing to do with the trial."

Foreman J. G. Gopsill said: "That statement is to come before the court in the contempt proceedings. I don't want to mix up in it."

This was the sentiment of the others who refused to discuss the matter in any shape.

GERMS CAUSE ALL KIDNEY TROUBLES

Dr. Geo. Leininger's For-mal-de-Hyde Kidney Tablets Drive the Kidney Disease Germs Out of the System.

THE GREATEST DISCOVERY YET MADE IN MEDICINE.

A TRIAL TREATMENT SENT FREE

Kidney Disorders are more serious than most people imagine. Kidney diseases are usually the result of weakness, caused by swarms of microbes in the blood. The consequence is that when the Kidneys get sick, we get blood poisoning, caused by the lodgment in the sysem of these animal germs, and once in the blood, however, the law of their nature is to work in flocks and swarms and by feeding here and there upon some vital material of the body to develop the process of inflammation and decay. Therefore, to cure Kidney trouble is to kill the germs that cause the sickness.

For many years physicians have been trying to discover some remedy that would destroy these germs, at the same time disinfect the entire urinary system, but not until recently was the discovery made. Dr. Geo. Leininger, the noted German physician and scientist, gave to the world the first and only Kidney remedy, which not alone will cure all kidney diseases, but drive all disease-breeding germs out of the blood, thereby making it impossible for the kidneys to become sick again.

Dr. Geo. Leininger's For-mal-de-hyde Kidney Tablets are entirely different from any cure ever given to medical science or the public. They are not a patent medicine, but a medical discovery. These Kidney Tablets contain Solidified Formaldehyde, which sets free nascent Formaldehyde gas in the kidneys, and in the whole urinary tract, thus disinfecting the entire urinary system and sterilizing the urine, which has proven the most wonderful method of curing Kidney and Bladder diseases, Rheumatism, Uric Acid troubles and preventing Bright's Disease.

Dr. Geo. Leininger offers to send a trial package of these famous Kidney Tablets, free to any reader of this paper who send their name and address.

FREE MEDICAL ADVICE.

Dr. Geo. Leininger invites the sick to write him for free medical advice: no charges, whatever, are asked or accepted for this noted physician's advice. Dr. Geo. Leininger's For-mal-de-hyde Kidney Tablets are sold by all druggists at 25 cents and 50 cents a package. Booklet mailed free by writing to the Dr. Geo. Leininger Chemical Company, Chicago, Ill.

A FINE PARTY.

Lafayette People Honor Y. M. C. A. Secretary Bevis.

The Morning Journal of Lafayette, Ind., in its edition of May 27, contains over a column and a half on the farewell that was tendered Phil Bevis, the general secretary of the Y. M. C. A. of that place, and who is now in charge of the work here. It said in part:

The service was held at Trinity church by several congregations as a testimonial to Phil Bevis, who leaves the city tomorrow to take charge of the Y. M. C. A. work in Duluth, Minn. During the four years that Mr. Bevis has been at the head of the work here, he has worked hand in hand with the different churches, often filling pulpits, and it was fitting that the ministers of the city should arrange a farewell that would be appropriate as well as expressive. Trinity church was chosen as the meeting place and the Presbyterian, Baptist and the German Reformed churches all united in the service.

Professor Ayres, president of the Y. M. C. A., took charge of the meeting, and spoke of the regret that is felt by everyone at the departure of Mr. Bevis, and the excellent work that has been done by him while in the city.

"Dr. John P. Hale, pastor of the Second Presbyterian church, was introduced by Professor Ayres and referred to the part that Mr. Bevis has taken in the ministers' meetings addressing him as a Christian brother and spoke of the splendid work that had been done in influencing men to become members of the church. He referred to Mr. Bevis as a bishop—a bishop of the boys. He had taken them from their parents and had guided them in ways that could not but be helpful to them.

"Rev. Theodore F. Herman was the next speaker and paid a high tribute to the departing secretary.

"Mr. Bevis, himself, spoke next, saying that he had been overwhelmed with expressions of regret during the last few weeks. He declared that he could not think of taking all of the credit to himself without referring to the splendid work that has been done by the board of directors, by the trustees of the association, by the woman's auxiliary, by his associate, W. A. Stillwell, and by the rank and file of the membership of the association."

The account goes on to say that the hall was packed and there were many expressions of regret at the popular secretary's departure.

AFTER MAD MULLAH.

Was Severely Punished After His Repulse.

Aden, June, 22.—The Mad Mullah, after the recent repulse by Capt. MacNeill of his attack upon the British Zareba, accidentally encountered the main British force of camelry and mounted infantry, which immediately attacked and routed him, and the pursuit was continued throughout the night. A hundred of the enemy were killed and the Mullah and the sultan of Nur narrowly escaped capture. The British force lost seven killed and wounded.

CONSIDER TREATY

British Cabinet Takes Up the Nicaragua Canal Matter.

Will Take Plenty of Time For Its Consideration.

Lord Pauncefote Has Furnished Information to Lord Lansdowne.

London, June 22.—In a tentative, easy-going sort of way the cabinet has begun to consider the Nicaragua treaty matter. Lord Pauncefote has explained many things to Lord Lansdowne, the foreign secretary, and the latter is once more grappling the problem. It is needless to say that the foreign office has no intention of hurrying; and in the course of a month or so it may come to an end. It may take the form of instructions to Lorn Pauncefote, who will return to the United States. These instructions will probably not be officially communicated to the state department until congress shall convene or the attitude of the senate in the matter shall be definitely known. Lord Pauncefote will probably be permitted to interpret his instructions pretty broadly, and they show signs of being elastic enough to provide for any contingency except a direct refusal on the part of the senate to recognize the validity of the Clayton-Bulwer treaty. Lord Lansdowne is as persistent as ever on this point, and however willing he may be to abrogate it, he will vigorously maintain the potentiality of the Clayton-Bulwer treaty until such time as both signatories shall have agreed to its abrogation.

A high official, in the course of conversation with a representative of the Associated Press, said: "Americans seem to think we are trying to delay the construction of the canal, but this is entirely wrong. We are just as anxious as ever to see the canal completed, and are willing to do almost anything to further that end; but we do not want to see a treaty torn up like a piece of waste paper. And we still consider that we are entitled to some quid pro quo for the relinquishment of our treaty rights."

A recent special cable dispatch saying that the Nicaragua matter had been practically settled and that Lord Pauncefote in consequence would not return to the United States, caused much amusement. It is utterly unfounded. On the highest authority the Associated Press is able to state that Lourd Pauncefote will remain ambassador to the United States for the rest of his days, or as long as he cares to retain the position.

Lord Lansdowne an Associated Press correspondent learns, does not take such a pessimistic view of the Chinese negotiations as do a majority of the British newspapers. The foreign office by no means coincides in the view of the Pekin correspondent of the Daily Mail, who cables today that the negotiations are drifting into a hopeless muddle. There is now an opinion among competent officials in Downing street that there is a good prospect of settlement. It is denied that Germany has increased her demand for indemnity; from the British standpoint Germany has now adopted a fair and rational basis, though, of course, in common the United States and Great Britain would have liked the indemnity to be smaller. It is admitted that Great Britain is partly responsible for the delay in deciding the method of payment, but it is maintained that she, as the largest trader with China, is more vitally concerned than any other power in keeping down the duty on imports.

"This question," said an official, "is about the only one which now prevents a total conclusion of the negotiations, and no doubt it will be solved shortly. In any case, our trade is bound to suffer, and we want to minimize the loss by the substitution, to some extent of concession, in lieu of increased taxation. We are not adopting an aggressive attitude, and we believe that before July 1 the powers will see that our suggstions will be for the mutual good."

SARATOGA OIL & PIPE LINE CO.

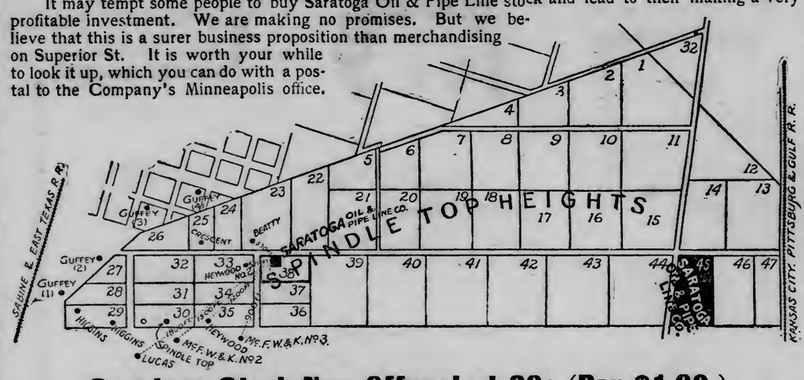
Our Well Now Drilling is Within Stone's Throw of the Gushers.

LOOK AT THIS MAP. The distances and proportions are true and exact—no mere guess. Note where we are drilling—in block 38—521 feet (174 yards) from the Heywood No. 2 well, the largest well in the Beaumont oil field, the only well with an 8-inch hole down to the oil which spouts an 8-inch column of oil 217 feet high.

Do you think there can be any question about our getting oil in block 38? Land in this block cannot be bought today for less than $150,000 per acre—a quarter acre in block 38 sold a week ago for $50.000.

We have just issued a statement to stockholders reporting the action of the company to date. It is an interesting document to any one interested in Texas oil, even though not a Saratoga stockholder. It shows in a brief and concise form the facts as they exist; distances to the "gushers" from the Saratoga well, illustrated views and data as to the fuel value of Beaumont oil.

It may tempt some people to buy Saratoga Oil & Pipe Line stock and lead to their making a very profitable investment. We are making no promises. But we believe that this is a surer business proposition than merchandising on Superior St. It is worth your while to look it up, which you can do with a postal to the Company's Minneapolis office.



Saratoga Stock Now Offered at 30c (Par $1.00.)

The Saratoga Oil & Pipe Line Company is incorporated under the laws of Texas, capital stock $1,000,000, fully paid and non-assessable; owning in fee simple and in leases 1,041 acres of land in the Texas oil fields. In order to supply funds to build tanks and pipe lines and lease cars for the transportation of this oil to market, the second series of 100,000 shares of stock are now offered at 30 cents per share (par value $1.00); not less than 100 shares sold.

HOW I SPENT $10,000 IN 10,000 MINUTES

Last night I was counting money,
In my mansion bright and gay,
Stacking up the rolls of greenbacks,
I was giving them away.
When my horses I had harnessed,
People called me Waldorf Kirk—
My wife called me in a hurry,
Said, "Get up, it's time for work"—
'Twas a pipe dream, pipe dream,
I thought I heard my coachman talking,
As to work I went a-walking,
Pipe dream, pipe dream;
I was happy till my pipe went out.

I was sitting in my cosy little two-by-four room in the Palace hotel in Chicago one evening last March, thinking of the past and dreaming of the future, when the door was suddenly opened by my green-liveried messenger, who announced the presence of the queen of Bavaria, accompanied by the Princess Chimay and a royal bodyguard of 10,000 soldiers.

Now, the announcement of the arrival of such distinguished visitors might rattle some people, but it didn't bother me much, as I was used to receiving guests of noble birth; besides, I had expected the queen, as we had been doing considerable correspondence regarding a little betting matter that we had on hand. Some weeks previous I had been out with the queen and the duke of Manchester, when the subject of betting came up, the queen daring to wager me $50,000 even money that I couldn't spend $10,000 in 10,000 minutes, she agreeing to furnish one-half of the spending money and I the other half. Therefore you can see that I wasn't so greatly surprised after all, as I had looked forward to seeing her royal highness almost any day to settle the final arrangements for the bet.

The queen entered the room the first with the princess, followed by a picked 100 of the royal guards. I said: "Hello," to the bunch, and after a little con talk about the weather and next year's beet crop, we got busy on the real object of the visit. The queen wanted to know if I was ready for the bet, and I immediately proved my willingness by placing in the dainty hand of the Princess Chimay a check for $50,000, drawn on the Chicago Trust and Hot-Air Banking company. It was a credit check, but good for its face value at this bank, as the firm had frequently trusted me with large amounts of hot air. The queen then showed me a check for a like sum drawn on the royal treasury of Bavaria, which I examined, and also turned over to the princess, thus making that fair lady the recognized stake-holder.

"Now, about the $5000 spending money," said the queen, digging down into the royal exchequer, "here is a draft on the Lead-Pipe-Cinch bank for that amount. Of course, it is understood, baran," she continued, "that you are to furnish the other $5000, and our wager is that you must spend the total within the time of 10,000 minutes, or, in other words, 6 days, 19 hours and 20 minutes. You are to begin tomorrow (Monday) morning, at 6 o'clock, and finish the following Monday at 1:20 a. m., or in less time if you can. The money is to be spent legitimately and not to be given or thrown away, or used in the purchase of stocks, real estate or building property of any kind, nor wasted in any manner of gambling."

With this advice the queen and her retinue pulled their freight and again I was left alone. I looked at my diamond-studded watch; it lacked but a few minutes of midnight. And in six hours I was to undertake the task of spending $10,000 in a little less than a week. Oh, well, other heroic deeds had been accomplished, and I wasn't going to worry. I pulled a big easy chair close to the grate and sat down to think it over. But I was tired out and soon dosed away into dreamland realms as a distant clock chimed the hour of 12. And then I dreamed—Oh! such dreams! They were worth millions! And as I dreamed the dreams seemed to form into a familiar air to which the following lines began to dance in rhythmic time before my vision:

Now, my boy, you are in heaven,
You have closed your time on earth.
While down here you were a gambler;
Up above look for a berth.
Peter said, "My boy, in heaven,
A gold harp you'll have to play."
I said, "All right; what's the limit?"
Some one pushed the clouds away.

And that "some one" was the bell boy banging blue-blazes out of my door and yelling that it was 5:30 a. m. and time to get up.

I remembered—I had left a call for that hour. In thirty minutes I was to start in and spend $10,000 in 10,000 minutes.

I rose, dressed, went down stairs and put away a couple of champagne cocktails. Then I hiked up the line to the Crescent Turkish baths and ordered a bath of attar of roses. This luxury stood me $16 per ounce, and figuring at the rate of twelve ounces to the bath and two baths a day, it meant in round figures a daily outlay of $384, which at the end of seven days would make a total of $2681. I flattered myself I was making an excellent start. Now for the remaining $7391. Let me see—yes, I would give an automobile party and luncheon Tuesday afternoon to Mayor Harrison and a few choice friends—say about eight in all. Lunch for eight at the Edelweiss at $20 per plate would be $160; the automobiles would probably figure up another hundred, including seats at the Illinois theater and a little repast later in the evening at the Blue Ribbon. Wednesday I would arrange a magnificent dinner at Rector's in honor of the queen of Bavaria, the Countess Chimay, Edna May, Mollie Newell, the duke of Manchester, the earl of York, Jim Jeffries and—myself. I intended to make this the most elaborate spread ever heard of in Chicago, and with such extras as boutonnieres, corsages, wines, cigars and music, I figured that the price per plate would readily amount to $250, or a grand total of $2000.

Now, I must arrange for my own personal appearance. I could easily spend $500 for such trifles as an evening dress suit, Inverness coat, opera hat, patents, gloves, etc., etc. So far I have managed to get rid of $3441, or a little over one-half of the $10,000. What shall I do next? Ah, yes, I have it: I will spend the day opening wine in ten of the swell cafes in the city, and everyone who will shall drink with me. I will take in the line in the following order: Beginning with the famous Onyx bar, in the Great Northern, then Kinsley's, McGinty & O'Brien's, the Saratoga, Union cafe, Masonic Temple bar, Palmer house, the Imperial, Victoria buffet, and winding up at Heine Cabubler's. In each cafe I will open two dozen bottles of Mumm, purchasing the bottles singly at $5 per bottle, making a total for the ten cafes of 240 bottles, or the sum of $1200. This finishes Thursday and leaves me $4241 for Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

I have always prided myself on being able to get rid of the merry coin as readily as the best of 'em, but a fellow never really realizes what a burden money is until he tries to blow it in at the rate of a dollar a minute. I tell you it becomes tiresome, and I was beginning to do some tall thinking how to send the balance of that $10,000 over the line in three days. I have clothes, attar of rose baths, wine dinners, automobile rides and theater parties with the nobility of Europe and the aristocracy of America, and still I have $4241 to spend in three days. Of course I might take out an "Uncle Tom" show and I'd drop that bunch of money so quickly it would make my head swim, but that would not be spending it legitimately, nor in accordance with my agreement with the quen. I have an idea! Speaking of "Uncle Tom" gives me a hunch. I must not forget my actor friends. Friday at midnight they shall enjoy a "shellfish" supper at the Auditorium Annex. I shall send invitations out for 100 guests, and the repast shall consist mainly of lobsters a la Newberg, New York counts on the half shell, Columbia River crawfish boiled in spiced wine, Little Neck clams, Royal crab baked in the shell, and the usual courses of wines, followed by cafe noir and Henry Clay cigars. Including all incidentals this supper will average $20 per plate, or $2000 for the entire blow-out. I am happy once more. This cuts my balance down to $2241.

Saturday night I am booked to go out with a number of daring male spirits from the Chicago club and a bunch of "Foxy Quiller" chorus girls. We are billed for a high old time at St. Hubert's at my expense, and I only realize late Sunday afternoon what an extremely warm time it was when I figure out that I not only "blew in" the $2241, but have passed the limit by about $50, and still am ahead of time some seven hours, as it now lacks but five minutes of 6. Adding my individual expense account of $557 for a valet, carriage hire, treats, tips, etc., etc., I find I have spent exactly $10,607 in 9565 minutes, or 6 days, 12 hours and 5 minutes, a gain of 7 hours and 15 minutes in time and $607 in coin. Thank heaven! it is over, and I have won. And now for a final attar of rose bath and——

Bang! Bang! Bang!
What's that?
"Hey, you; get up; it's 6:30. I called you an hour ago and your bath is getting cold."

I wake up. In the next room some one was singing. It had a familiar ring and went something like this:

I was walking up on Broadway
With some friends the other day,
When Dan Frohman rushed up to me,
From the bunch took me away.
"Come with me," he quickly shouted,
"Henry Irving's taken ill,
I have hustled down here for you,
They want you his place to fill"—
'Twas a pipe dream, pipe dream,
In his part they quickly drilled me,
But the gang they nearly killed me.
A pipe dream, pipe dream,
Irving never played the part like me.

TREATMENT AT HOME

Dr. Hartman's Free Advice to Women—A Generous Offer to the Afflicted.

Mrs. Nellie Blyler, president of the Ladies of the G. A. R., has the following to say about Peruna:

"Gentlemen—In taking a medicine I consider it of vital importance that you should be sure that is the right kind and that it will cure.

"As a rule patent medicines claim to do much while they really do little; but I will say for Peruna that it is the only medicine I ever knew that does all and more than it claims.

"I recommend it especially for women as it promptly cures the weaknesses of our sex and will always be sure to give satisfaction.—Mrs. Nellie Blyler."

Secretary Illinois Woman's Alliance.

"Last year from continued strain in literary work, I became very much exhausted, my nerves seemed to give way, and I had backache, headache and serious indigestion. One of my friends suggested that I try Peruna. It certainly acted like magic on my system.

"Within ten days I felt new life and health given me, and by taking an occasional dose off and on when I feel extra tired, I keep my system in perfect order.—Miss A. Brady."

Miss Esther G. Lowe, a prominent young society lady of Washington, Ga., writes:

"I took Peruna in early spring, receiving glorious benefits from same. Before taking Peruna I suffered with catarrh, always felt tired and had a dull headache. A friend of mine told me of Peruna. I began taking it at once, gaining each day. I now feel as well as I ever did in all my life. I advise all my suffering friends to give Peruna a fair trial"—Esther G. Lowe.

Miss Millie Baker writes from 290 East Ohio street, Chicago, Ill.:

"I suffered for years with weakness peculiar to women, severe bearing-down pains, and continual headache. My system seemed completely upset and I did not know where to find relief. The doctor tried three different remedies but they did not seem to help me any.

"After using five bottle of Peruna I was as well and strong as ever. I would not be without it for any money.—Miss Millie Baker."

DECIDING ON SITES

Surveys of the Cuban Coast By American Gunboats.

Are Looking For Desirable Sites For Naval Stations.

Havana Is Favored But There Are Others With Advantages.

From The Herald Washington Bureau.

Washington, June 22.—(Special to The Herald.)—Surveys of the Cuban coast under direction of the navy department have developed many desirable sites for naval stations, with ample depth of water and fine natural protection. The acceptance of the Platt amendment by the Cuban constitutional convention includes, among other things, cession of a site for a station at any point selected by the navy, and it has been generally assumed that this station would be at Havana.

Havana, because of its proximity to Key West, is regarded as the most desirable site. There are others, however, having advantages which many naval officers believe exceed those of Havana. The north coast of Cuba is regarded as the most practicable for a naval station, although the Isle of Pines by some is considered with greater favor.

For many months three gunboats, the Eagle, Yankee and Vixen, have been conducting surveys, and the work, which has been practically confined to the harbors, is now about completed. Probably the most important points are Cape San Antonio, at the extreme western end of the island, and Cape Maysi, at the extreme eastern point. At the latter it has been found that a reef runs far out into the water, and there is no suitable harbor within forty miles. The Bay of Nipe appears to afford the most available harbor in that section.

Cape San Antonio has no harbor of any kind in its immediate vicinity suitable for a coaling station. This locality is regarded as important from a naval and strategic point of view, as it commands the Yucatan passage. Most of the larger harbors along the northern and southern coast have been surveyed and charted, those of Cienfuegos and Guantanamo apparently being the best on the southern part of the island.

Senator James K. Jones, chairman of the Democratic national committee, was in Washington a few days ago. His visit had nothing to do with politics, but the opinions he expressed as to the issues of the next national campaign are significant.

"The Supreme Court decision," he said, "has marked the issue that must be fought out and settled by the people. The court has decided that congress may determine how the people of territory acquired by the United States shall be treated; whether they shall be citizens or subjects. The issue before the people is what the course of congress shall be in the exercise of this power.

"It will have to be determined whether, congress being given the power to extend government to a people, the government extended shall be in accord with the American declaration of principles and the constitution, or whether it shall be some other sort of government, foreign to our institutions. The contention of the Democracy will be for the preservation of the doctrines upon which our government is founded. We shall oppose the theory that here may be subjects under our republican form of government.

"I believe President McKinley said in a speech recently that it was 'merchandise, not maxims,' we wanted. The people of this country will have to determine whether equality before the law, self-government by the people, the principles of the declaration of independence and the rights guaranteed by the constitution are 'maxims' to be abandoned for 'merchandise.'

"This issue is directly presented, and will, I believe, overshadow every other consideration."

* * *

The full strength of the coast and field artillery authorized under the army reorganization act will probably not be secured until late in the autumn, if then. Army men who, under the decision of the secretary, are awaiting their new commissions, are grumbling over the delays that must follow. The promotions cannot come until the full authorized strength is enlisted, and at the rate men are now being enrolled it is not possible this will be accomplished under several months.

The present average of enlistments does not exceed 600 a week at all the recruiting stations in the country. Proceeding at the present rate of recruiting, and with the idea that two-thirds of the rceruits each week are assigned to the artillery, the accessions this year would be 11,600. This means that the artillery may not be fully recruited much before Dec. 31. Into this calculation must enter the allowances for expirations of service. These expirations from July 1 to Dec. 31 are approximately 916 for the field artillery and 3964 for the coast artillery, or a total of 4830.

IN MICHIGAN.

Belief That John Bodean Was Robbed and Murdered.

Houghton—The body found in Portage lake Monday was identified by the wife and son as John Bodeau, of Calumet, who has been missing since last September. He was an industrious and sober man, who left a comfortable home in search of employment with several hundred dollars in cash in his pocket. Only a few dollars were found on the body, and a piece of rope tied about the ankle indicates foul play.

The rapid spread of smallpox is alarming local authorities in the upper district. The disease has been mildly epidemic in Houghton county for nearly a year, always breaking out again when considered conquered. There have been more new cases this month than at any time since last fall, and the county isolation hospital, built especially for smallpox patients, is now filled, and no room left for the latest cases.

The Copper Journal of Hancock was sold Friday to a company of Hancock business and professional men who will merge it with the Houghton County Progress as an evening daily, being the only newspaper printed in English in a community of 15,000 people. A. D. Petit, of the Progress, will be editor and general manager.

Sault Ste. Marie—John A. Couch, of this city, was awarded the sum of $2500 in his suit for libel against the Marquette Mining Journal, which was finished this afternoon. The suit occupied three days in circuit court. The defendant will take the case to the supreme court unless it is settled for a smaller figure.

"A Spoke In the Wheel."

The physical machinery of most people often has a "spoke in the wheel." That is, they have some disorder which either impedes their progress or creates nerve friction in some portion of their delicate mechanism.

Piles is a tedious and persistent disease which wears out the patience of its victims. It has several forms of torture.

Sometimes it's a maddening itching sensation. At other times it's a knot of aching tumors highly inflamed.

The only way to cure the disease permanently is to use a remedy that has the power to permeate through the delicate membranes and tissues and remove all traces of inflammation.

The Pyramid Pile Cure possesses this power to perfection. It is formulated on scientific principles by specialists who understand the nature of the disease thoroughly.

Thousands have been permanently cured by it and the manufacturers have come to look upon it as a "remedy that never fails."

You need not go through an inconvenient course of dieting and supplementary treatment while using it. It is a complete cure requiring nothing on your part but a strict observance of the printed directions which go with each package.

It is manufactured by the Pyramid Drug Co., at Marshall, Mich., and may be had of all first-class druggists.

Don't experiment if you are afflicted with this troublesome disease. It may lead to serious complications if allowed to continue. Get this remedy and check the disease before it becomes chronic; don't allow it to drain your best energies and weaken your constitution.

HOTEL IS SCORCHED

West Superior at Superior Is Damaged By Fire.

Occurred Shortly After Midnight and Caused Much Excitement.

Three Servants Have Narrow Escape---One Case Serious.

Fire at 1 o'clock this morning threatened to destroy the West Superior hotel, the chief hostelry of the Wisconsin city. Before the flames were extinguished the firemen had a hard half hour's struggle and the interior of the building was damaged to the extent of $2000, largely from water. Three servants were nearly suffocated in the smoke. They apparently did not know of the fire and remained in their rooms. They are Finns and unable to speak English. Rescuers had to break into their rooms and carry them out. They sustained some severe burns and cuts and were removed to St. Mary's hospital. It was feared this morning that Katie Yaroches, one of the victims, cannot recover. The names of the other two are Anna Macki and Carrie Jenson.

After the discovery of the fire the clerk sounded the fire alarm gongs in each room. Although there was great excitement among the 100 or more guests all arrived without injury in the lobby of the hotel. It is true that some of them came to the first floor in costumes which would answer for the tropics, but after learning that the fire was confined to the old part of the house, they returned to their rooms and removed their jewelry and other valuables.

The fire originated in the rear part of the building at the foot of a hallway leading to the top floor. The spread of the flames was rapid and the entire fire department was summoned. Thirty minutes sufficed to quench the blaze. A perfect flood of water was poured into the blazing hallway and dense clouds of smoke permeated that portion of the hotel, which was used exclusively as quarters for the help employed about the house. There was no grave danger at any time after the arrival of the firemen and every room in the house was visited by some of the employes so that no person should be trapped in case the fire was unsubdued.

The only cause which can be found for the fire was the crossing of electric wires. No other theory seems tenable. This morning Manager Rossiter of the hotel estimated the loss at $2000.

Maj. Winner and Wife at Great Eastern Next Week.

The greatest attraction in the city next week will be at the Great Eastern, where M. S. Burrows will have Maj. N. G. W. Winner and wife on exhibition, commencing Monday. They are the smallest married couple known, and are the greatest store attraction in existence. Mr. Burrows has gone to great expense to secure them for one week, and his big store will be packed during the whole time if their former successes are any measure. The children are especially invited to attend, and Mr. Burrows wants the mothers to bring them in as often as they can. Maj. Winner is 36 inches in height, weighs 42 pounds, and is 31 years of age, while his wife is one inch shorter, two pounds lighter and nine years younger than her husband.

HE RESIGNS.

E. C. Little Leaves Civil Service Board---Business Reasons.

The threatened scarcity of available business men to serve as commissioners in municipal affairs is becoming somewhat serious.

Within the present month two business men have resigned from their honorary positions in the city's government, and it is understood that several others are contemplating the same action.

Yesterday E. C. Little, of the civil service commission, tendered his resignation. Mr. Little says that he resigns for business reasons. He is a member of the firm of Little & Nolte, and this firm has always carried more or less insurance for the city. Last fall Mr. Little accepted a position on the civil service board, and in organizing the classified service he gave up much time and experience to the city.

But last Monday night the council turned down payment on an insurance policy to the firm of Little & Nolte, for the reason that Mr. Little was a city officer, and under the new charter no city officer can be directly or indirectly interested in any contracts with the city.

This provision in the charter was designed to prevent any dishonesty in municipal affairs, but it may deprive the city of the services of several of the most competent business and professional men in town.

It is believed that the provision in the charter was scarcely designed to be so far-reaching as it has been, and it is probable that an amendment of some kind will be proposed to remedy it.

WORK OF TORNADO

Frightful Wind Storm Visits Town of Naper, Nebraska.

Nine People Were Killed and Four Were Injured.

One Entire Family Was Killed By the Storm.

Omaha, Neb., June 22.—Special dispatches to the World-Herald from Naper, Neb., tell of the frightful work of a tornado which visited that vicinity Thursday night, the details being obtainable only late last evening.

The storm swept down the Keyepaha river Thursday evening at 6 o'clock. One family of seven were killed and out of another family of six two were killed and the balance, except the father, fatally injured.

The family killed were:

Jacob Greening, father, aged 40.
Mrs. Jacob Greening, mother, still living, but not expected to survive.
Grace Greening, aged 14, seriously injured.
Maggie Greening, aged 9, killed.
Margaret Greening, aged 7, killed.
John Greening, aged 4, killed.
Jacob Greening, aged 2, killed.

Out of the Anderson family of six, two children, Ida and Clara, aged respectively 7 and 8, were killed and the other and her daughter Bertha and son Theodore, aged respectively 10 and 12, were seriously injured. August Anderson, the father, was away from home at the time.

No other casualties have been reported. The families of Jacob Berg and Metz were injured somewhat when their houses were demolished, but not seriously.

All communication with the outside world is cut off and it is impossible to learn what damage the storm did along the Keyapaha river, west of where the Greening and Anderson families were found.

A great crowd of people visited the homes of the stricken families. The dead were buried today. The big wagon bridge across the Keyapaha river was completely destroyed.

A correspondent visited the houses of Greening and Anderson today. Where once stood fine dwellings and other buildings there was nothing to be seen except kindling wood. The father of the Greening family was found a quarter of a mile from the house badly mangled. There is no chance for his life. Little Maggie and Jacob Greening were found 60 yards from where the house stood. They were stripped of all their clothing, but were not disfigured.

The other two children were close to the house and were in full view of their mother and oldest sister, who were both fatally injured and who could see them, but render no assistance.

The storm cloud appeared about 5 o'clock and traveled down the Keyapaha river. It seemed to rise up and skip houses and then swoop down and emolish everything.

The tornado was preceded by a severe hailstorm. Stones fell that measured ten inches in circumference. The Keyapaha river is a raging torrent and impassable.

Everything in the track of the storm was destroyed. Trees were blown down and the smaller ones were stripped of leaves and barbed wire fences were carried 600 yards. The furniture that was in the homes of the Andersons and Greenings cannot be found. A trunk and pieces of a table were picked up half a mile away.

BRIEF TELEGRAMS.

G. G. Dickerman, sheriff of Wabasha county, has been suspended for failing to make returns to the county commissioners of the county on the personal property tax of 1899, and delinquent March 1, 1900. On his return from Buffalo the governor will appoint a commission to give Dickerman a hearing. The suspension was made on the advice of Public Examiner Pope.

The threatened invasion of the lake front, which was set for Saturday by the Pottawattomies of Michigan and Indiana, has been postponed pending action of the Chicago syndicate, which is negotiating for the necessary funds to pay the Indians their long promised $45,000.

Adjt. Gen. Libby has issued an order mustering out the field and staff officers of the Fourth regiment of the National Guard and Company M, of Minneapolis, the last company of the regiment. The Minnesota State band, the band of the Fourth, was also mustered out.

Miss Fannie B. Watson, aged 18, was assaulted by William Mills, a negro, at Curtis Bay, near Baltimore. Threats of lynching were made and the negro was brought to the city to avoid trouble.

The Compress, owned by Inman, Nelms & Co., at Houston, was burned Friday morning with 2300 bales of cotton. The loss is placed at $125,000, the plant being totally destroyed.

The supreme court has decided the case of Sylvester Kipp vs. William R. Johnson, county auditor. The decision of the court is that the amount required to redeem property from a tax sale is only the amount paid at the sale, plus interest, and not all delinquent taxes and costs, as construed by the auditor.

The body of a man was found near the dock of the National Bridge Setorage company at Communipaw Friday. From papers found on it there is little doubt that it is that of B. Stevens, of Newdorp, S. I., who has been missing since the Northfield accident.

Sought Her Lost Child

Crazed Mother Did Not Know the Sympathetic Woman Who Wept Over Her Was Her Own Little Girl.

Margaret Hall died in St. Louis but a few weeks ago. Many who read the brief notice in the daily papers knitted their brow and tried to remember something that the name suggested; some romance or some tragedy. There was no line added to the terse statement, "Louisville papers please copy." Had there been, the name might have passed unheeded, for the woman was known as Jessie Morgan here. Mrs. Mary Mitchell, a Red Cross nurse, whose good work leads her into the dark portions of Louisville, saw the announcement and remembered an incident in the history of the unfortunate woman which is among the annals of everyday life.

About ten years ago a woman stood at her door; a woman with wan, hungry, marked face and worn feet. "I won't do any harm," said the intruder, pleadingly. "I an only looking for my little girl. I can't tell you how I lost her, and I want to ask you if you have seen anything of a lost child; I thought, maybe, she might be here. She is so pretty and likes pretty things, and I have been told she might be here."

Just at that moment a suppressed groan came from behind the draperies that veiled the drawing room door. The servant rushed to the place, forgetting for a moment that anyone was in the open door. He found Mrs. Mitchell with tears streaming down her face, presenting a picture of despair. "Bring her in," she said. "Don't stand there looking at me like that; bring her in." The old woman heard her and came forward. "Have you seen my little girl?" asked the stranger. The woman pointed to a chair and sank down, her face trembling. The stranger looked over the room with childish pleasure, glancing at the face of her hostess and lingered, while gradually there grew in her eyes a pitious, doubtful expression. "You said you had seen my little girl, didn't you, ma'am?" "Yes, I have," answered the woman, sobbing, "and she has grown the dearest thing on earth to me." "Tell me about her," exclaimed the stranger, suddenly standing erect and grasping the arms of the chair for support. "Pray sit down, madam, and I will tell you all that I know. It happened in this way: Six years ago I was returning from the opera one stormy night in my carriage. As we passed an alley I saw in the gaslight a girl of perhaps 12 or 14 years lying prostrate on the pavement. Ordering the coachman to stop and pointing to the figure, I told him to bring her into the carriage and we took her home. Arriving at the house, I at once telephoned for the doctor, then as soon as possible she was put to bed in a warm room and everything that could be done was done to restore consciousness, but nothing could be done until the doctor arrived. He soon brought her back to consciousness, but her mind was still cloudy, although she was able to tell us that she had left home while in a state of temporary insanity, which was very common to her. She was completely broken down from exposure to the cold, from her mental derangement and from being without food for so long. We put her under the personal care of a specialist, and in a short time under his skillful treatment she was thoroughly and permanently cured, and in a few months she was a healthy, rosy-cheeked girl, as handsome and cheerful as a butterfly; such a change from the condition in which we found her. She has won her way into my heart, and the thought of parting with her caused me a terrible shock as I recognized your features as looking like those of the girl's. She is now completely cured of her afflictions and is as healthy and handsome as a rose in full bloom."

Sank Back Into Her Chair.

The old lady during the story had sank back into the chair in a state of partial insensibility from time to time murmuring, "She was so young and pretty," "Such a bright little one." She was soon, however, fast asleep from utter weariness and exhaustion. She finally woke, but was very weak and could remember scarcely anything that had happened.

The lady called Margaret into the room and told her all that had happened; that this was her mother who, crazed by her loss, since her leaving home, finally becoming a street wanderer, looking for her girl. Upon hearing this the girl broke into tears, clasped her arms around the old woman's neck, calling her "mother" and doing all possible to restore her. Such, however, was in vain. The Specialist, Dr. Rea, who had so successfully treated Miss Hall, was summoned, but, unfortunately, he was out of the city and could not be had. Other physicians were called in and all that kind hearts and loving hands could do was done for the sufferer, but the best treatment and attention was of no avail. Her daughter was constantly at her bedside with the hopes that her mother might regain consciousness and recognize her, but she died without regaining consciousness and without knowing that the sympathetic woman who wept over and cared for her was her own little girl.

In an interview with Mrs. Mitchell she sadly said: "I regret one thing very much, and that is that we were unable to secure the service of our physician, Dr. Rea, he had been so successful with the child that I am most sure that he could have saved her mother if we could have only had him. He was too far away and by the time that he would have reached her bedside would have been too late.

I have known of several such cases that Dr. Rea has cured. I have known him to take these cases when others had failed and bring them out with perfect ease. Dr. Rea is curing thousands of patients all over the United States. I know personally that he is treating patients in every state in the Union and that he is acquainted with all kinds of climate and is particularly experienced with the different diseases that are liable to occur in the different sections of the country. Not long ago I was in the Northwest and while there I met a number of his patients. They all tell me of the miraculous features in his practice. His unerring ability to tell a patient his disease without asking a question and the ease with which he cures the most malignant diseases. It is said that Dr. Rea can take any patient and in a few minutes tell every symptom of their disease even better than they can tell him. In cancer, consumption, tumor, paralysis, heart disease, kidney, nervous and stomach diseases he has no equal. That his patients as a rule are those who have been given up by physicians as incurable and yet these incurable diseases seem to be handled by him with the utmost ease. He has cured more than a thousand patients in the state of Minnesota and the Dakotas alone. From authentic reports I will name you a few.

Mrs. Catherine Dilly, Northfield, Minn., cured of deafness of long standing. Had doctored lots before, but had no relief.

John Burr, Parker Town, Minn., cured of nervous, stomach and bowel troubles. Cured easily by Dr. Rea and in a short time.

J. H. Miller, Cold Springs, Minn., cured of piles, weak, watery blood and loss of nerve powers.

Andrew Coldwell, Enderlin, N. D., cured of a growth over the eye. Cured in one treatment.

Martin Orth, Holding Ford, Minn., cured of chronic catarrh of the stomach. Had tried other doctors, but received no benefit at all.

W. W. Scott, West Duluth, Minn., cured of chronic diarrhoea and bad blood troubles. Was an old soldier and had been sick for years. Cured in two months.

P. W. Shea, Kellogg, Minn., operated on for ptsegyum on both eyes. Removed in fifteen minutes.

W. A. Thompson, Duluth, Minn., cured of cancer of the lip.

Mrs. Louis Thoreson, Nelson, Minn., cured of chronic funguid cancerous growth of the stomach.

John Hazelton, Hastings, Minn., cured of neuralgia and threatened paralysis. Had not done any work for eight years. Has worked now every day for the last six months.

Mrs. Edward Hopkins, Duluth, Minn., cured of a complication of chronic troubles.

O. A. Ralstead, Crookston, Minn., cured of catarrh and removed large growth from nose.

Dr. Rea will continue for several months to visit the Northwest.

MANY ARE KILLED

Explosion of Fireworks Causes Loss of Life at Paterson.

Crazed Woman Leaped From Window to the Ground.

Several of the Victims Were Literally Roasted to Death.

New York, June 21.—Sixteen people are believed to have been killed and a number injured yesterday in a fire following an explosion among a quantity of fireworks in the store of Abraham M. Rittenberg, at Paterson, N. J. The store was on the ground floor of a tenement building. The cause of the explosion is not known. The property loss will not exceed $35,000. The dead are:

MRS. LUCINDA ADAMSON.
MRS. CHARLES WILLIAMS, burned trying to save her husband.
CHARLES WILLIAMS, a cripple.
HAROLD RITTENBERG, 18 months old, son of the keeper of the fireworks' store.
HENRY ELASSER, baby.

Those missing and almost certainly dead are:

Mrs. Bert Bamberg, Charles Bamberg, and 6-months-old child; Mrs. Andrew Elvin was in the house and has not been seen since the explosion; Mrs. Mary Elasser, Joseph Elvin, Mrs. Burns, not seen since the explosion, and known to have been in the house; Clarence Burns, 6 years old, son of above; Mrs. Ann Fontenmann, not seen since the explosion, and known to have been in the house; Mrs. Annie Lanagen, seen to enter her apartments a few minutes before the explosion. Two nephews of Mrs. Lanagen were with her when she entered her rooms. Their names not yet ascertained.

The injured: J. Jessup, bruised and burned about the head and body; Mrs. J. Jessup, bruised and burned about body; — Bamberger, head severely cut; Nicholas Hillman, cut on head; Fireman Edward S. Lingland, injured by falling wall; Mr. and Mrs. John McGlone, burned about face and bodies.

A number of people received minor injuries, but went to their homes. The explosion occurred shortly after noon and many of the occupants of the building were out at dinner. The building in which the explosion occurred was a frame tenement, four stories high, with stores on the ground floor. The middle store was occupied by Rittenberg. Ten families occupied flats in the building. So great was the force of the explosion that a boy playing in the street, half a block away, was lifted from his feet and hurled against an iron fence, one of his legs being broken.

A trolley car was directly in front of the building when the explosion occurred. Into the street scorched the sides of the car and singed the hair of the passengers.

A number of those who were on the upper floors of the building when the explosion took place were either stunned and then burned to death or found escape cut off and were suffocated. After the first explosion there was a succession of smaller ones, and then came a second big explosion, which was muffled and deadened, and probably occurred in the cellar.

Every window seemed to be emitting flames within a minute after the first explosion. A woman, her clothing on fire, leaped out of one of the windows and fell to the yard below. Her dead body was dragged out of reach of the flames, but her flesh was roasted and dropped from the bones. She later proved to be Mrs. Williams.

Mrs. Williams' husband was a cripple. His wife is supposed to have remained longer than she could with safety in an effort to save him. He was found burned to a crisp on his bed.

Some of the occupants of the rooms dropped from the windows and were bruised. Others hung from the windows until the firemen came. Twenty persons were taken down in this way through the fire and smoke by the firemen, while others dropped into life nets.

Daniel Dooley, who was in the yard when the explosion took place, saw the two Rittenberg children in the rear room and rushed into the flames for them. He got one of them and carried it out and tried to go back for the other, but the room was then one mass of fire and he was too late. He was badly scorched after rescuing the first child.

While the rescues were going on the firemen were fighting the flames. Capt. Allen led with a hose line in an effort to keep the fire from the upper floors, where it was said many were pinned in. The men had hardly taken their positions and begun, from the sidewalk, to throw water into the upper floors, when, without any warning, the whole upper part of the building above them sagged outward and fell. The captain and two of his men were buried under the blazing debris. One of the men is badly hurt. The building in which the explosion occurred was entirely destroyed.

Rittenberg will probably be arrested pending an investigation. In the debris was found the head of a man or a woman. The hair is burned off and the features unrecognizable. The remainder of the body has not been found. The bodies taken out thus far are almost unrecognizable and are burned and torn by the fire and the collapse of the timbers of the building.

EXPLAINS.

Gage Tells Reason of Duty on Russian Petroleum.

Washington, June, 21—Most of the time of the cabinet yesterday was spent in discussion of the action of the treasury department in imposing a countervailing duty on certain Russian products. Secretary Gage explained in detail the action which the department had taken and the cabinet unanimously approved of what he had done. He was authorized to give out a statement to clear up the misunderstanding which exist and later did so at the treasury department.

As a result of the consideration of the entire matter by the cabinet, Secretary Hay will soon make representations to the Russian government fully explaining the attitude of this government and pointing out that Russia has acted hastily and under a misapprehension of the fact in her position of retaliation. The statement of the secretary of the treasury is substantially as follows:

"Secretary Gage called attention to the tariff act of July 24, 1897, known as the Dingley act, which, among other things, provides that if there be imported into the United States crude petroleum, or the products of crude petroleum, produced in any country which imposes a duty on petroleum or its products, exported from the United States, there shall, in such cases, be levied, paid and collected a duty upon said crude petroleum or its products so imported equal to the duty imposed by such country.

"This provision was embodied in a circular issued to the officers of the customs, dated April 21, 1898, to which was appended a schedule of 109 countries, imposing a duty on petroleum and its products. These countries included France, Germany, Austria-Hungary, Russia, Spain and practically all of the leading countries of the world. This circular was issued for the purpose of carrying into effect the petroleum provision of the Dingley tariff law. No protests were received from any country, or could they be reasonably expected, in view of the fact that the countries named had already in operation laws fixing a tariff duty on petroleum and its products. So far as known in the treasury department no importations of petroleum had been received into the United States until June 18th, 1900, when an invoice of refined petroleum was received at Rochester, N. Y., manufactured from crude petroleum produced in Russia. The collector of customs at Rochester held that the refined article was subject to duty as a production of Russia, and assessed duty accordingly. While the importation came from England, it was shown that the crude oil was produced in Russia. An appeal was taken from the action of the collector to the board of general appraisers at New York. This board, on Jan. 28, 1901, sustained the collector, holding that petroleum produced in Russia and imported into England, and there refined and thence sent to this country, was dutiable at a rate equal to that imposed by Russia on petroleum into that country from United States.

"No protest or objection, so far as the department knows, was received from any country against this decision, and the matter was not again brought to the attention of the government until March 9 of this year. On that date the department, replying to inquiries from the collector of customs at New York as to how he should ascertain this country of origin in the liquidation of duties on petroleum or its products arriving in this country, held that invoices of products of crude petroleum must be accompanied by a United States consular certificate showing the country where the petroleum was produced. In the absence of this certificate the liquidation was to be suspended, and pending further information the rate of duties must be estimated at the highest rate levied by any country on such petroleum. Further than this the department has never taken any action whatever on the subject of petroleum, and even in these instances it will be observed the rules laid down apply equally and without discrimination to 109 countries of the world.

"Upon this statement of facts, the officials are at a great loss to understand how Russia can feel aggrieved at the government's action, and inaugurate a system of discriminating duties against products of the United States in consequence. It is hoped that Secretary Hay will be able to present the facts so that Russia will rescind her action in tariff matters. The cabinet feels that the administration has a strong case, and believes that if Russia is entirely friendly she will be made to see that her action in this case has not been such as to call forth the most friendly feeling in this country."

WORLD OF LABOR

Strike of Telephone Linemen of Chief Local Interest.

The Men Are Struggling For an Eight-Hour Day.

Labor Organizations Will Probably Back Up the Linemen.

The leading matter of labor interest during the past week has been the strike of the linemen of the two telephone companies. Although the linemen have no union of their own, they are affiliated with the Electrical Workers' organization, and that is pretty much the same thing.

The original strike included the employes of the Commercial Light and Power company. About thirty linemen quit work, asking that the working day be reduced from 10 to 8 hours. They are apparently satisfied with the pay, which is $2.50 a day. On the second day of the strike the Commercial Light and Power company agreed to the 8-hour day, but the two telephone companies held out, though the Duluth company offered to compromise at nine hours, and on that basis several men went back to work, only to be pulled off their jobs by the others.

The wires of the two telephone companies were tampered with and the company officials seemed to think the strikers were at work, so rewards of $500 were offered for the apprehension of any person endeavoring to interrupt the telephone service. The linemen and the electrical workers' union take exception to this inference that the strikers caused any damage to the wires, and say most emphatically that if the lines were tampered with it was by outsiders and without the sanction of those directly interested in this 8-hour strike.

Last evening, at a meeting of the Building Trades' council, in the Kalamazoo block, the strike of the linemen was endorsed, as it probably will be at the special meeting of the Federated Trades' assembly this evening. The labor organizations of this city are vitally interested in the 8-hour movement and will probably back up the linemen in their stand, without exception.

At last evening's session of the Building Trades' council, William E. McEwen made an address in the interest of the strikers, in which he said:

"You are engaged in a struggle for the recognition of the cardinal principle of trade unionism. Enemies of trade unions in the ranks of labor are opposed to us because we demand too many things at once. But we recognize the fact that 'Rome was not built in a day,' and that our movement is necessarily slow, in order that it shall be progressive. Our movement is an aggressive movement. It is the aggressive movements that have moved the world. It was aggression that brought success to our army and navy in the war with Spain, and it is aggression that will give to labor improved working conditions, shorter hours of labor and higher wages. Never in the history of the labor movement have the trade unions of America experienced such a wonderful growth as during the last two years. The number of non-union men in the trades are becoming fewer each year. If you stand firm in this struggle victory will be yours. If you do not you will simply be required to make the effort again at some future time, and under less favorable circumstances."

Meetings of the Building Trades' council will be held at 21 East Superior street from now on.

LABOR NOTES.

F. of L. has 640 organizers.
Mexico contains 115 cotton mills.
China possesses 156 Chinese papers.
Coal fields aggregate 471,800 square miles.

New Orleans has the only paper in the United States that publishes a Sunday evening edition.

There are now in operation in all countries about 100,000,000 spindles, consuming about 14,000,000 bales of cotton. The Southern states furnish about 75 per cent of the raw material and operate only about 6 per cent of the spindles.

India is rapidly becoming an important factor in the coal market, the output last year was nearly 40 per cent in excess of that of the year before, and a still further increase will be seen this year. Exportation of coal from India has already begun. The coal is found over wide areas.

Judge Baker, in the district court of Omaha, Neb., has decided that the statute known as the female labor law of Nebraska, prohibiting the employment of females for more than sixty hours per week, is constitutional. The court holds that it was necessary to limit the hours of female employment in order to protect the public health.

The Stationary Firemen of Pennsylvania will go on strike on July 15, if they are not given the pay they now receive for eight hours a day instead of for twelve hours. If the strike is ordered every coal mine in the anthracite region will be closed. Over 150,000 mine workers will be thrown out of work, while the mines will be greatly damaged by the stopping of the pumps.

The New York Hebrew Actors' union has established a scale of wages (or salaries), which divides the Jewish theatrical talent into three grades—first, second and third class—to be paid respectively $36, $27 and $18 per week. These union rates have been indorsed by the United Hebrew Trades' council and the Central Federated union. East Side play houses will be rated and recommended accordingly by organized labor.

Notice should be taken of a decision handed down during the past week by the supreme court of New Jersey. It is a decision that will, if upheld by the higher court of errors and appeals, to which it will probably be carried, compel the electric railroads of that state to pay, through taxation, more for their transportation privileges than they are now paying. It classifies a franchise or right-of-way as real property or real estate, and thereby makes it subject to taxation, in addition to the taxation now borne by its tangible property in tracks, poles, wire, cars and buildings. Insomuch as the court of errors and appeals is composed of teh same judges, save one, who have delivered this decision from the supreme bench, a reversal of this decision is highly improbable. Here, then, is a way, while leaving the ownership and operation of railroads in private hands, to compel a heavy payment to the public for the transportation privilege. Nor is it likely that the effect of the decision will be confined to electric railroads. Its scope may later be seen to include steam roads. That it includes gas and electric light and telephone and telegraph companies seems certain, says Henry George, in the Philadelphia North American.

Superficially, from the brute force point of view, everything would seem to be on the side of the sixteen millions and against the fifty thousand, says the New York Journal. Take the workingmen out of this country and property now worth hundreds of billions would be worthless in a day. The coal mines are worth endless millions because there are workingmen to dig the coal. The steel industry is capitalized at eleven hundred millions—because there are workingmen to make the steel. Without these workingmen the mines, the wheat fields, the factories would be worthless. Apparently workingmen have only to organize, have only to realize their strength, in order to take for themselves as much as they choose of all of which their labor is an essential part. When each of the sixteen million voters knows as much, thinks as hard and as clearly as the fifty thousand millionaires, there will be no labor question and no capital question. Organize Messrs. Sixteen Millions, stick together; get all you can, since more wages means a better chance for your children. But endeavor to work and vote for education. The emancipation of the sixteen millions depends on the education of the sixteen million families.

The unions composed of men employed in the different branches of maritime industry are seriously considering the formation of a new federation. The Longshoremens' union, with 100,000 members, is considered the natural base for the operation of this combine, and already steps to that end have been taken by the organization. If the prejudice between the skippers and the other classes of labor can be overcome it is likely that within a year all branches of the maritime industry will be allied.

Messrs. Nelson, the great tea dealers of Louth, England, are running a novel scheme to push the sales of their goods. It is a scheme of insurance for widows—practically a pension for those married women who lose their husbands—and at the present time there are over 2,000 widows in receipt of a weekly sum which will be paid to them regularly as long as they live and do not marry again. The idea is to get married women to buy "Nelson's pension Tea," which it is modestly claimed is "equal to any other offered at a similar price." If they buy a quarter of a pound weekly, and should lose their husbands after five weeks continuous purchase of the tea, they will be entitled to five shillings a week pension for life; if they buy a half pound weekly, ten shillings weekly for life, but there is no higher pension advertised, the half pound of tea being considered to be the ordinary consumption for an average workingman's family, and that is the class the scheme is intended to benefit.

DUN'S REVIEW

Increasing Distribution of Merchandise Tells of Prosperity.

New York, June 22.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly trade review says:

Increasing distribution of merchandise, particularly in the territory beyond the Ohio river, including the far Northwest, is a feature of the general business situation and tells of widespread prosperity and confidence. The railways are carrying more goods than may be classed as luxuries than before and in spite of Wall street's slightly higher money market there is no fear on this score in any line of legitimate trade. Crop news continues good, there is less trouble from disagreements with labor and the long lagging cotton goods market has recovered slightly with the reduction of unsold stocks of print cloths.

Less interruption through labor controversies at machine shops makes the iron and steel industry more fully employed than in recent weeks, and for another week there is assurance of vigorous activity at the mills and furnaces. In many instances promised deliveries cannot be made before July 1, and urgent business that is now offered cannot be undertaken. It is also noticed that much foreign business is available, but manufacturers refuse to make bids. On the other hand, it is stated that quiet conditions will soon be the rule and fires will go out for the customary summer overhauling. This may be the case at few plants, although the requirements of railroads and other known needs are such as to render any general suspension very important. Large sales of Bessemer pig reported last week and have since been denied and foundry iron is now the favorite, especially at Southern points. No alteration is recorded in prices, aside from a moderate reduction in grey forge.

No decrease is seen in shipments of boots and shoes from Boston, forwardings continuing far in excess of other years, but actual production of the shops is slightly reduced and there is less new business offered. Quotations are shaded about 2½ cents on a few grades, particularly as to boots, and seasonable goods as well as fall deliveries are more quiet. The more fortunate manufacturers have business enough to occupy shops to the end of August. Local concerns have fair orders from the West and South for autumn goods, but are otherwise inactive. Leather reflects the decreased needs of shops, though heavy stock commands top figures owing to the scarcity.

Excessive stocks of print cloths at Fall River has been reduced to a surprising extent since the combination of attractive prices and warmer weather infused a little animation into the market. Sales are heaviest on wide goods, but standard sizes are also sharing in the enlarged business. The rapid stride of exports to China in the brown goods division were not without influence, and taken as a whole, the cotton goods industry has a more encouraging aspect than at any time for many months. An undertone of strength was seen in the raw cotton market on account of great activity at the mills and good foreign buying also helped to neutralize the effect of better crop news. Improvement in woolen goods is less pronounced, yet distinctive gains are reported in certain lines and a more hopeful feeling is entertained as to the volume of new orders about to come forward. No change is perceived in wool, and prices remain barely steady at the lowest figure in nearly four years.

A year ago the trade was beginning to realize the extent of injury by drought in spring wheat states, and in a few days about eight cents was added to the price. This year a decline of similar proportions has occurred unattended by any startling disclosures. As the season advances crop conditions steadily improved in some states, the winter wheat is being harvested. No severe drop in quotations is anticipated, however, for the crop is by no means beyond danger in the Northwest, and even a yield equal to the largest estimate may be required if the most gloomy foreign fears are realized. Instead of raising sufficient for its own needs, France has come forward as an anxious purchaser, and that many other foreign countries are dependent on imports to an unusual extent. In three weeks exports from Atlantic ports have been 10,410,316 bushels against 8,826,688 last year and 6,504,262 in 1899. For the last week the movement from the Eastern seaboard does not show the usual gain over last year, but Pacific shipments were 950,910 bushels against 546,435 in 1900.

Failures for the week numbered 193 in the United States against 179 last year, and 14 in Canada against 15 last year.

HOME

Needed For Working Girls When Out of Employment.

To the Editor of The Herald:

Where can we find a room? Is the question constantly asked by the working girls. Rents are going u, making it impossible to secure rooms for the poorer class. Shop girls are getting no more wages this year, than last year. We are constantly asked by the general house girl, and in fact by many other working girls, to lay the situation before the liberal public of Duluth, or set on foot some movement whereby the working girls can have a home of their own when out of employment, or a place to rest through their vacations. A working girl would require a small bank account to find room and board for any length of time in this city. As one third of the girls working in Duluth, are girls who have come here for work through advertisements, and have no friends to stop with.

But Duluth must have girls, and the girls must find stopping places. Much has been said about the help problem, but very little action has been taken. Whether it is through the carelessness of our benevolent people or lack of interest remains for the public to guess. All over the states the newsboys' homes have proved a success. The young men have their Christian association rooms for a lounging place. Is it not just as necessary for the homeless girls to have such a place?

Now, what the girls want is a friendly association room, where they can go and entertain and have their own amusements, with lunches, piano practice—a place to meet their friends in a friendly, social way, without taking the street for it, rain or shine. Duluth people are constantly contributing to something, some public entertainment, industrial enterprise, or public building. But are any of those more necessary than some accommodation and comfort for our girls? True, this is all for the benefit of the public. But do they reach those that need them most?

How many are there who are not in need of servant girls—yes, even have to do their own work? Why not retain what few we still have in the field? Every year shows a decrease in general house girls. A close record discloses the fact, that out of every twenty-five hiring help there is only one good general cook to be obtained. It would seem this would be enough to make the dependent housewife act. Many are forced to do their own work on account of exorbitant wages. Unless something is done in regard to this movement, we may look for a dearth of general house girls in a very short time. A SYMPATHIZER.

Prescriptions are filled correctly...

Every drop of medicine that goes into a prescription which is filled here is perfectly pure. We make it our business to see that everything is pure and of standard strength. There is no guess-work about it. Pure drugs and intelligent compounding are what make a prescription filled here so effective.

No doctor can obtain the desired results in the sick-room unless his prescriptions are filled with drugs of the highest quality. The sick-room is the one place above all others where quality counts more than anything else. If you want the patient to improve, to respond to the physician's labors, you should be particular about the medicine. You should have his prescriptions filled with nothing but pure fresh drugs and chemicals.

More and more physicians are depending on our prescription department. We compound as we think your doctor would like to have them compounded, and as we know they should be.

Most of the reputable physicians of Duluth patronize our prescription department. This fact should be of interest to you. It means that if you bring your prescriptions here to be compounded, that the physician is satisfied—the patient gets the best medicine.

Schlitz

In the Schlitz brewery you will find a plate glass room. In it are cooling pipes, over which the hot beer drips. Above it is an air filter, and no air comes into this room save through that filter. No germs can reach beer handled with such rare caution. But, after the beer is aged, we filter it, then bottle and seal it, then sterilize every bottle.

We take triple precautions because beer is a saccharine product. Impurities multiply if they get into it. There is no grade between absolute purity and utter impurity.

Every bottle of Schlitz is absolutely pure, and purity is healthfulness. Your physician knows—ask him.

PAWNEE BILL

Great Wild West Show to Be Here July 3.

Gibney Company at Sixth Avenue Theater.

Wednesday, July 3, will see the appearance in Duluth, for the first time, of Pawnee Bill's Wild West. Then will Duluth people see his great gathering of hero horsemen of the world. Stirring scenes will be enacted by genuine Indians, Cowboys, Cossacks, Mexicans, Australian bushmen, Arabs, Gauchos and natives from many lands. The decorations from the foreign armies, together with a full battery of artillery, will give a grand military review. Over a thousand men and horses are employed.

Not the least of the strong attractions are the sharpshooting contests in which May Lillie, the champion woman shot, figures prominently. During the performances the spectators will see the strange accoutrements worn and carried by Kit Carson in '49.

The show itself has so many good features that it is hard to particularize them. There is so much that is instructive and novel in the entertainment, and so attractive, that an afternoon or evening passed in the company of Pawnee Bill and his associates should prove alike agreeable to young and old.

Maj. Gordon W. Lillie is better known the world over now as "Pawnee Bill." This sobriquet he earned by serving the government among the Pawnees and by having been chosen by that band of warriors and useful nation as its own white chief and interpreter.

A new and added feature to the juvenile wild West for the children. Indian, Arabs, Cossacks and Western boys and girls participate.

The Morning Chronicle of La Crosse, Wis., said of the show:

"The big show, or the wild west in this case, is given in open air and is much on the same principle as the performance given by Buffalo Bill, although, as before stated, it is not as large. The show opens with an introduction of wonderful riders and important personages from all parts of the world. This is a pretty sight, and when all the members of the company appear the arena is crowded with people of various colors and horses of all descriptions. During the performance the audience is treated to scenes of the wild West, such as the early delivery of mail before the advent of railroads, in which stages were used. The attacks upon the whites by the Indians and the fights, in which some remain dead on the field, were all illustrated in a realistic manner.

"The Arabian acrobats gave an exhibition of strength, building pyramids, after which tumbling closed their part of the show. Another feature of the show was the method of dealing out justice on the Western frontier and hanging a horse thief. A horse was stolen, after which the thief was captured, dragged to the camp of the cowboys, where he was hanged, then shot. The scene ends with a funeral procession, the dead man being borne to his grave on the back of the horse that he stole.

"Miss May Lillie, the champion lady horseback shot of the world, gave a splendid exhibition. During her entire performance of shooting glass balls she did not miss a ball, but each shot fired was successful.

"The entire show is made up of attractive features, and the performance closes with exciting hippodrome races of all kinds. Pawnee Bill has a show that is well worth seeing and one that can be said to have pleased those who witnessed the performance yesterday."

PAWNEE BILL'S WILD WEST.

SIXTH AVENUE THEATER.

Of the Gibney Stock company, which opens at the Sixth Avenue theater Monday next, the Scranton, Pa., Tribune says:

"The Gibney Stock company played to another good house last night at the Academy of Music, when they presented for the second time this season the great melodrama, "The Last Stroke." The company is above the average of repertoire shows. The special scenery carried by this company added materially to the production. Special mention may be made of Nellie Gibney as Sister Loyalo, a part which gives that artist great scope for emotion and pathos. Morgan Gibney as Dr. Blake, United States consul in Cuba, is also a strong character as played by Mr. Gibney. It plainly showed that he is one of the very best character actors that Scranton theater-goers have had the pleasure of witnessing. Arthur McNally as Richard Vance proved himself a clever actor, and as the hero had the audience in his favor from the start. Frank D. Melville as Ychoa, the Spanish spy, was another good bit of acting. Don McMillan and Dorothy Grey as Lieut. Drum and Margery Blake carried the comedy of the play in good shape and received many laughs for their efforts. Fred Golding as Zavalla, a confederate of Valdez, showed himself to be a versatile actor, and W. I. Flagg as Padre Navano was also strong in that character. Miss Carrie Weller as Senora Martinez, the forced accomplice of Valdez, the spy, was finely acted. Taken altogether, "The Last Stroke" was a first-class production at which the audience laughed and applauded continually."

The novelties promised for the opening of the houses in early September form an unusually long list. Daly's will have "The Messenger Boy," with James T. Powers; the Casino will give Anna Held an opportunity to please the public with "The Little Duchess," Andrew Mack will show us a "Tom Moore" at the Herald Square; David Warfield, in "The Auctioneer," will be at the Bijou; the Lyceum will see Bertha Galland's debut as a star, and the Criterion, William Faversham in "A Royal Rival;" James K. Hackett will open Wallack's, John Drew the Empire, E. H. Sothern the Garden and the Rogers Brothers the Knickerbocker. All these new plays will be seen between September 2 and September 16. "Arizona" and "Captain Jinks" will open the Academy and the Garrick.

There is war to the knife again between the rival bandmasters, Fanciulli and Sousa. Last year Fanciulli held sway at Manhattan Beach to such satisfaction of the visitors that the management made a verbal contract with him for this year. Then Sousa came home from Europe, and decided that he would play at the beach as soon as he finished at Buffalo. The management broke the news to Fanciulli that all bets were off, and in consequence will probably spend a portion of the winter defending a lawsuit. In revenge Fanciulli got in some fine work and hired out to the Buffalo Exposition people for the four weeks just ahead of Sousa. Each composer has written a march for the Exposition. Fanciulli's is "The Electric Century" and Sousa's "The Invincible Eagle."

The agreement between James K. Hackett, Mary Mannering and Frank McKee for a Shakesperean production early next spring will bring about a consummation devoutly wished for by the young couple. Hackett is devoted to his wife and his home, and the long separation during his tour and her's has been sorely against his will. When they were both playing for Dan Frohman at the Lyceum they fell in love, wedded and kept it secret for months because of the unwritten Frohman law against married couples in the same company. The separation of their stage work almost immediately followed the wedding announcement, and McKee brings them together for the first time. The play selected for them will probably be "The Taming of the Shrew." Miss Mannering will be Katherine and Hackett the Petruchio. It is possible that the couple will go to London under the McKee management, but this could not be until 1903, because of existing contracts.

Robert Grau is winning the title of the Charles Frohman of vaudeville. Nothing is out of the reach of his ambition, and the next thing Broadway expects to hear is that the future visit of Bernhardt and Coquelin will be in vaudeville under his direction. He made an offer to De Reszke and, of course, was promptly turned down, but he succeeded in tempting Zelie de Lussan for a while. Whether she will fill her contract with him remains to be seen. Grau has been doing wonders with the tour of Cissie Loftus. He claims that it is "without agents, pictorial printing, special trains or sensational methods," and whatever it is there is no doubt that the little lady is being boomed and handled as has never been done before. Reports from Miss Loftus herself indicate that her heart is still true to vaudeville, and she may return to it in case her coming season with E. J. Southern is not altogether one glad, sweet song.

Old "Rosedale" posters have been on view in the American theater lobby for several days. One goes back a quarter of a century. Another is only nine years old and shows Joseph Haworth as he appeared in his starring tour, when "Rosedale" was revived with considerable success. Yet this seems old-fashioned now alongside the gay productions of today's lithographers. The old Wallack poster shows Lester Wallack, Ada Dyas and Joseph Shannon in the most remarkable outfit of clothes and the greenest lawn ever seen.

It was only the Captain of a Staten Island ferry boat, but his heart was all right. Besides, he had two actresses on board, and hence deserves a niche in the Temple of Fame. Minnie Dupree and Minnie Madden-Fiske were the theatrical lights in question. Just as the ferryboat neared her New York slip a dog was seen swimming immediately in front of the rounded prow. All hope seemed lost when suddenly one of the actresses rushed toward the Captain with a shout of "Hold thy hand" upon her pretty lips. It was useless, for the sturdy seaman had seen his duty and had done it. With a swift turn of the wheel he changed his course so that his boat bumped into the outer end of the pier with a force that reminded all on board of breakfast. The dog swam away in safety, and the actress continued her course to the old house and shook hands with the brave old salt. The othe ractress was off the boat before she heard of the incident. So she immediately returned to the pilot house and shook hands, too. Honors being even, all were happy.

Mrs. Fiske's company at the Manhattan will be a remarkably strong one. Tyrone Power will be the leading man, and is coming all the way from Australia. He was last seen in New York at Daly's, where he made a great hit. He was tempted by Manager J. C. Williamson and went to the Antipodes two years ago. J. E. Dodson and Annie Irish have also been recruited. It is Dodson's first association with Mrs. Fiske's company, but Miss Irish recently supported her as Marian in "Tess of the D'Urbervilles." It is understood that Dodson will be starred under the Fiske management as soon as the season with Mrs. Fiske closes. Her husband plans to have the Manhattan a center for dramatic enterprises. Dodson will not go abroad this summer, but will spend his vacation near by that he may attend rehearsals. He came over with the Kendalls and has remained here ever since. He was Lancelot Gobbo in the Goodwin revival of "The Merchant of Venice."

According to reports from London things theatrical are in a bad way over there. Mrs. Langtry has had to close her new playhouse, the Imperial, because "The Royal Necklace" was an utter failure. Edna May has not won out in "The Girl From Up There," and it will be withdrawn soon to give Miss May a rest. Mrs. T. P. O'Connor's "A Lady From Texas" has been put on the failure list, and Alice Neilson has all kinds of trouble. Cawthorne is out of the cast with a sprained ankle, and Eugene Cowles has quit in a huff.

Willie Edouin writes that he is much pleased with his part in "The Silver Slipper," by the authors of "Floradora." Manager John C. Fisher has gone to London to bring his musical comedy over, and thereby afford us a chance of seeing Edna Wallace Hopper in a new part. He brought Edouin over for "Florodora" last year, but the comedian will be allowed to delight London audiences without interruption this time. "The Silver Slipper" has proved a sinecure for one American girl, Irene Perry. She was engaged to play the principal role at a fat salary, but the author, Pierce Hall, wouldn't have it. He objected to any American artist in the cast, and Miss Winifred Hare was given the part. That she has not made a hit does not influence Hall's ideas, and Miss Perry is just drawing her salary and enjoying life to the limit.

William Faversham, still the matinee idol of the young and gushing maidens of metropolitan society, has chartered a yacht and will cruise in nearby waters. The handsome leading man of the Empire Theater Stock company is an expert sailor, and enjoys roaming on the briny deep.

Fay Templeton, who made a great hit as the character comedienne with Weber & Fields, has gone to Europe to get some idea on English character impersonations to add to her other well known talents.

Lillian Russell, the female star of Weber & Fields, has gone to Rockaway Beach, where she has a cottage. Miss Russell perennially beautiful and ever young, has sporting blood, and she has selected Rockaway Beach to be near the race track. When Saratoga race meeting opens Miss Russell will move to Balston Spa to enjoy the waters and view the work of the thoroughbreds.

Lew Fields, after a brief stay in Chicago, will travel to West Baden Springs to recuperate.

Mr. and Mrs. James T. Powers are now in London, where Mr. Powers is studying his role in the musical comedy, "The Messenger Boy." He will return in time for the opening season.

Eleanor Robson, one of the successful leading ladies of Liebler & Co.'s forces, will make an European trip.

Joseph M. Weber and his wife started for Europe on last Thursday. Mr. Weber will pick up some new and comic ideas for the Weber-Fieldians.

William H. West, the successful minstrel, leads the theatrical colony at Bensonhurst, Brooklyn, N. Y., which includes Charles Dickens, his wife, Lillian Burkhardt, Loyal Prince, Peter F. Dailey, Helene Mora and Ralph Delmore. Mr. West has a beautiful piece of property called West Lawn, where he generously entertains hosts of friends during the summer. Mr. Dailey, his brother-in-law, tries amateur farming on a vacant lot immediately opposite the minstrel's home. The fat comedian has only succeeded thus far in raising a crop of jokes which he used many years ago while in the vaudeville and are now doing duty in the almanacs, but Mr. Dailey is persistent and has hopes. Mr. Dixon will shortly leave for Chicago, where he will appear for several weeks in farce-comedy called "The Explorers."

James K. Hackett and his wife, Mary Mannering, who achieved success as stars last season, are taking a European trip. Miss Mannering began her professional career in her home in England, and was chosen by Daniel Frohman for his Lyceum Theater company, where she won sufficient distinction and popularity to go starring. Mr. Hackett has held a stellar position for several years.

Reginald DeKoven, the composer, and his wife, who is well known in literary circles, have taken a cottage at Newport.

William Collier and his wife, Louise Allen, will go to St. James, Long Island, where they will have a cottage. Mr. Collier calls it "On the Quiet," after his successful comedy.

William Gillette is in Europe, and has several plays on hand.

Bessie Tyree has gone to Europe to select a play for a starring tour.

Ethel Barrymore will start for Europe after the successful run of "Captain Jinks of the Horse Marines."

Edna May, who is appearing in London in the "Girl From Up There," under Charles Frohman's management, will undoubtedly stay in the British metropolis all summer.

Nat C. Goodwin and Maxine Elliott have a house outside of London, in one of the most beautiful suburbs. Mr. Goodwin, after his shy at Shakespeare's "Merchant of Venice" in this country, will hardly care to try it on Londoners. He therefore has no plans beyond a needed rest for himself and his wife.

GOSSIP OF THE RIALTO.

The Premiers of "the Strollers at Hand.

New York, June 20.—Great preparations are making for the premiere of "The Strollers," which is to be the wind-up event of the season. Several changes in the cast have been made at the last minute. Marie George is home from London just in time to appear in one of the principal roles. Carolyn Huestis Graves, after haunting Lederer's office faithfully for weeks, is turned down apparently. She sweetly announced to her friends that she was going to have the prima donna role, and she never saw one of the winks that followed. The Rialto did not look at it in the same light, because in matters of this kind the Rialto generally knows its business. If Miss Graves gets into the "Bib 6" she will be lucky. The "Bib 6" is the Broadway name for the headliners of the Lederer chorus. Time was, at the Casino, when it was eight instead of half a dozen, but when the business manager got in his fine work, the sextet was all that remained. The chorus girls who composed it wore the best dresses in the company, had their names on the program in type as big as the star, and, if fortune was very kind indeed managed to get three lines each from the author. It came to pass that the "Bib 6" stuck by Lederer and he by them until the Casino went to the Sires. Now the half dozen are separated. Half of them, headed by Susie Drake, of the permanent smile, landed in "Florodora" clover, the others will be in "The Strollers" all right, and it may be that Miss Graves will be among them.

The way of the "angel" is hard enough, goodness knows, but it now looks as though next season would be a crusher for him. For a long time Broadway looked with envy upon A. H. Chamberlyn. No one knew how he did it. His angel was a "lim dandy," for there seemed no end to his confidence. No manager in town lost money with the nonchalance that marked Chamberlyn. When the crash did come the facts were enough to make that angel heart sick for the rest of his life. Yet here is Chamberlyn still on Broadway positive that he will be making productions in the fall, the first of which he calls "Morocco Bound." If he still has the same old angel every hat should go o fto him. Then there's Sweet Marie Dressler. In the confidence of her child-like nature she undertook to elevate the public to the level of "Miss Printt." All she knew about it was that there was a deep and widespread yearning to behold her as a star. Nobly did she respond to the call of duty. Lo! and behold! find that it was a public's yearn to behold her star for nothing. The paper that was distributed in this town would have covered several times all the theates that Oscar Hammerstein will build before he dies. Small wonder is it that Marie owes a lot of money and has asked the courts to ease her and her creditors of the worrying burden. Blithely she declares she will star in the fall time, and the angels had better look out.

Walter Jones is another who is going after the public's money, but the cash will be all in the family or out of it. Of course, there are plenty of others, but the summer makes men forget, and the crop of angels ought to be ready for reaping when the leaves begin to turn.

The hot weather is telling on the few theaters still open, but Willie Collier and Ethel Barrymore are having a close race to see which will be able to keep it up the longer. Miss Barrymore succumbed to the heat by fainting during Wednesday's matinee, but she was able to appear at night all right. Collier's audiences are remarkably good, and there seems to be no need of shutting the doors for weeks yet. "Florodora" will go right through the summer, and with Lederer at the Knickerbocker for a summer run, "The Buxton Burglary" at the Herald Square and "The King's Carnival" at the New York the dramatic field will be fairly lively during the hot term. Terrace Garden and the American Roof are additions to the out-door field and the continuous houses will keep their stock companies going night and day.

FOOTLIGHT FLASHES.

London has fifty-three legitimate theaters.

Houdine is the chief card of a circus bill in Germany.

James O'Neill will star in "Monte Christo" next season.

"The Bohemian Girl" was sung at two St. Louis theaters last week.

Digby Bell is to be seen in Frank Perley's production of "The Chaperones."

Mascagni and his orchestra for eight weeks in America next season will receive $80,000.

"The Blundering Mr. Bubbs" is the title of a three-act comedy by Frank Tannehill, Jr.

It is said that Faversham will star in "The Second in Command," now a London success.

May Warde, daughter of Frederick Warde, will play the juveniles next season in her father's company.

Sam S. Shubert is to produce "The Emerald Isle," Sir Arthur Sullivan's posthumous opera, in this country.

Fred Terry and his wife have leased and will produce, "within a certain period," the stage version of Pope's poem, "The Rape of the Lock."

Minnie Palmer has just performed the part of Tina, in "My Sweetheart," for the six thousand five hundredth time, the place being Bishopsgate, Eng.

English adaptation of Bronson Howard's "Shenandoah"—to be renamed "Ladysmith"—is to be disclosed in London shortly. The cast will include Maud Jeffries.

"Old Jed Prouty," Richard Golden's comedy, will be presented for one more season. Early in the spring it is announced that Mr. Golden will be seen in a new play.

Milton Aborn has signed a 40-weeks' contract with Harry Davis, of Pittsburg, for stage director of the Avenue theater, which will run grand opera, burlesque, vaudeville and minstrels.

The bill posting interests have $1,500,000 invested in the business in New York city. It is claimed that the "skindicate" is treading on the toes of the bill posters; the latter threaten to enter the theatrical business.

The new Prince Regent theater, or Richard Wagner Festival Playhouse, in Munich, Germany, is advancing toward completion. The theater is on the banks of the River Isar, and is being constructed according to the ideas of Richard Wagner.

Tony Fernandez and Miss May are now at the Flore theater, Hamburg. Tacianu is working strongly on the hit that he made in America and was prolonged at the Apollo, Dueseldorf. Juno Salmo is at Becker's theater, Karlsbad. Alburtus and Bartram are at the Palace, Brussels. Saharet is at the Aquarum, St. Petersburg.

It has been, in reality, an exceptionally unsatisfactory and disappointing season to almost every one prominently engaged in the theatrical business, especially since, in view of the general prosperity of the country, great things were rightfully expected of it. The great things have not been forthcoming. The season has been marked by few real successes and by many failures and quasi-failures.—Rochester Democrat and Chronicle.

Mnemonics must be rigorously applied to recollect the various matrimonial partners to popular actresses. Here is Saide Martinot, for example, whose Louis Nethersole is her third venture. No. 2 was Max Figman, but No. 1 is not to be extracted from oblivion without effort. Who can remember the different spouses of Adelina Patti, Lillian Lehmann, Ellen Terry, Lillian Russell, Harry Davenport, De Wolf Hopper, John Mason, Rose Coghlan, Aubrey Boucicault or Nat Goodwin?

"The Burning of Joan of Arc," Morgan A. Sherwood's spectacle, was produced at Washington on Sunday last before a large gathering of invited guests. Originally a living picture of the fire scene alone, the spectacle has ben enlarged into a play of five scenes, with seven speaking parts, special music and elaborate settings and costumes. The dialogue is the work of Will A. Page, the brilliant dramatic editor of the Washington Post. The audience was enthusiastic in approval. It is said that this will be a vaudeville headliner next season.

The Sun Becoming Extinct.

An eminent scientist has startled the world with the declaration that the heat of the sun is being exhausted. He assures us, however, that it will be many centuries before it takes place. In the meantime we should try and make the best of life and enjoy it while we have the opportunity. This, however, is impossible unless you have good health, and especially a strong stomach. Use Hostetter's Stomach Bitters to keep the stomach in order and you will be happy. It cures dyspepsia, constipation, biliousness, aids digestion and keeps the bowels regular. It has been the standard medicine of the American people over fifty years. Insist on having the genuine with our private revenue stamp over the neck of the bottle.

Mr. Carnegie on "British Pessimism."

Manufacturers and business men will be much interested in Andrew Carnegie's article in the current number of the Nineteenth Century, a London magazine, that has just reached the news stands in this country. It is fully up to the advance notices. The subject is that most interesting topic at the present time, "British Pessimism," and there is a frank review of Britain's failure to keep the lead in commerce and industry, the causes for the same, together with some sound advice on the way to do better in the future. The article deals almost wholly with the decline of Great Britain as the world's manufacturing and money center, and of the wonderful strides that have been made by the United States and Germany during recent years. Mr. Carnegie declares that Great Britain's loss of supremacy is caused entirely by the slovenly way into which the country has fallen. It is not the fault of the blood, he declares, and proves this by stating the fact that Englishmen make the most enterprising kind of American citizens. Then he adds: "It is pitiable to see so many lives lost and so much money squandered in pursuit of shadowy dominion over barren territory in far-off, sparsely populated lands, ostensibly to secure new markets for British products. The markets of uncivilized lands amount to so little and Britain has no advantages from her nominal sway under the policy of free trade; for trade does not follow the flag—it follows the lowest price current. If ever a nation had clear and unmistakable warnings, as the writer thinks, that the time has arrived when it should henceforth measure its responsibilities and ambitions throughout the world with its resources, and cut its garment according to its cloth, it is the dear old motherland of the race, with its trade stationary, an army of 20,000 or more to be provided for in South Africa (even after peace comes), its expenditures and taxation increasing and its promises to pay already at such a discount as to attract capital from across the Atlantic. Rocks ahead, sure enough!" It is difficult to see, in view of the state of things, how the British manufacturer can accept Mr. Carnegie's cheerful dictum, "No cause for pessimism here," in the enthusiastic spirit in which it is written by the remarkably successful American manufacturer.

Reports of the Industrial Commission.

It is claimed by those who have watched the reports of the Industrial Commission thus far, and are in a position to know, that its word will be largely controlled by politics. The Republicans are in a majority on the commission, so the majority reports will be favorable to legislation that meets the general views of the Republican party. There will be minority reports on nearly all important issues. At the very outset of consideration of the final conclusions it is a fixed belief in the minds of most of the commission that Prof. Jenks' suggestions will be thrown out merely because they are anti-Republican. Representative Livingston is talking about the importance of having nonpartisan consideration of the testimony and recommendations entirely free from politics. Others voice the same sentiments, but when it gets down to actual work the Republicans are found lined up on one side and the Democrats on the other. The commission has covered a vast amount of ground in its researches, having examined more than 700 witnesses. The testimony taken will fill about nineteen volumes and will be a valuable reference library. Seven volumes have thus far been issued and they have called forth considerable praise. Economic authorities both here and in Europe have commended the thoroughness of the work of the commission and the manner in which the reports were compiled. Before a witness' testimony is put into the hands of the printer it is submitted to the author for correction or elaboration. A very comprehensive digest and an index system add to the value of the reports. The eighth volume of the reports has just been issued and deals entirely with the recent labor troubles at Chicago.

OMAHA'S RETROGRESSION.

Omaha is going backward. The last census showed that the population had shrunk several thousands while her sister cities had been advancing. A bull fight has been arranged to give entertainment to those of her inhabitants who have retrogressed to the period of the dark ages. Now comes a report that the school board has passed a resolution excluding married women from the ranks of teachers. In this latter movement the school board has harked back to the time when the sphere of woman was confined to the kitchen, a time when woman was a chattel and the servant of her lord and master. The arguments offered by the advocates of the innovation are unique, to say the least. Merit seems not to have been considered, but as one philosopher states it, "we don't propose to have our school teachers receiving Persian rug salaries to support rag-carpet husbands." Well, well, this is interesting. If a man or a woman perform his or her duty in the school room, it is none of the business of the school board whether the salary is spent in supporting a widowed mother, a sick child or a rag-carpet husband. This economist proceeds upon the theory that the public schools are an elemosynary institution for the purpose of giving young girls something to do to earn pin money until they can secure a rag-carpet husband.

Every school superintendent of experience knows that married women who are in the schools, not as a temporary makeshift, but because they prefer the work to housekeeping, are the most successful. They have experience in life and sometimes experience with children of their own. Their judgment is matured and they are free from the vacillating giddiness of the young girl. It is a great mistake to place the youth in the charge of immature minds for instruction. There are many capable young girls in the public schools, but from the very nature of things their work cannot be compared to that of older women. This policy, if carried out, will reduce the standard of teaching in the public schools. Already men of the best ability will not remain in the profession, but leave it as soon as something better offers. If the schools then are to be in the hands of men who can not get anything else to do and young women who can do nothing else, heaven help the system!

An objection urged to the employment of married women is that they have family cares which take up their thoughts. Any judge of human nature knows that the family cares of a married woman do not take up so much of her thought as the love adventures of the young lady surrounded by a half dozen hair-brained young men. The married woman who holds a position in the schools spends her evenings at home, while the young woman who has her mind on her future relations, is at the theater and the ball five nights in the week. This may be drawing the long bow to some extent, but it is the extreme case that is used as an illustration. Some school boards have gone so far in their pursuit of imbecility that they have passed resolutions that exclude all married women and all unmarried men from their schools. There should be a severe civil service law enacted to govern school boards. No politics should be allowed to enter. Neither sex or social status should be considered. Nothing but ability to do the work required should influence the action of the authorities.

In some cities it is the custom of the school boards to employ all graduates of the public high school as far as possible. This is a most pernicious practice. It is nothing less than charity work. The local influence is brought to bear upon the superintendent and the teachers' committee to get a place for a "home girl" no matter whether she can earn her salt as an instructor or not.

Under the new order of things where woman is supposed to pursue her bent the same as a man, even if she be married, there can be no reason given why she should not be employed in the public schools if she has the ability and the desire to teach. Her private affairs, so they do not offend the moral sense of the community, are not subject to the inquiry of the school board. The school boards act as agents of the people and results are what they should strive for, not the granting of personal favors by giving this girl or that girl a job.

CHINESE POETRY.

It will probably be news to many people that the Chinese have a poetic literature, containing many poems that expressed very similar thought to those of more modern poets, and written many hundreds of years before the English language was originated. In the June North American Review Dr. W. A. P. Martin, president of the Imperial university of China, discusses interestingly "The Poetry of the Chinese," quoting from numerous poems, some of them edited by Confucius. The ancient Chinese lyrics consist chiefly of a copious anthology, reflecting the manners, thoughts and aspirations of various states of the empire. There are many love songs, too, that, if rather inane, compare well in point of morality with those of later eras. Confucius being careful, in his judgment, to allow no impure thoughts to find expression in what he edited. And he was himself a composer of many canticles. One temperance poem, Professor Martin says, is the oldest of its kind in the world, and probably antedates in origin the founding of Rome.

There is a book of elegies, of a later date, chiefly the work of one man, who ended his career by drowning himself. At a still later era, the middle age, literary activity in China was still greater. One poem, written by a minister of state, contains almost the identical thought of Poe's "Raven," though nobody ever accused Poe of being a plagiarist. Yet the translation of this poem makes it tell of "an exiled poet"—

> "On his bed of straw reclining
> Half despairing, half repining,
> When athwart the window sill,
> In flew a bird of omen ill
> And seemed inclined to stay."

The poem in several other stanzas certainly might be a crude original for Poe's more metrical flamboyant and tragical masterpiece. And another production is also very like Poe's "Annabel Lee." There are other poems that suggest the simplicity and purity of Wordsworth, or the humor of Hood, or that would not be much out of place in company with some of our modern poets. One text-book used in Chinese schools is called "Selections From a Thousand Bards," and the title is no misnomer.

It has been well said that a people who have developed so many poets, or poetasters, and who have so vast a volume of poetic and philosophical literature, are scarcely to be classed, offhand, as "heathen," except in a narrow sense.

FOOLS RUSH IN.

Another fool rush is being made to occupy the government lands about to be thrown open on the border of Oklahoma. The lands comprise the reservation of the Kiowas, Comanches and the Apaches. It is of about the same nature as the lands thrown open twelve years ago in that region. Twenty thousand people are now waiting to make the rush when the opening day arrives. When Oklahoma was opened it seemed that the entire population of the adjoining states had been waiting for months for the eventful day. When it arrived, every possible stratagem was resorted to to secure the coveted quarter section of land surface. All this trouble of weary waiting and the dangers of the race were endured to secure a piece of land not one whit better than could be had in the civilized states for the same price. The best kind of farming land in Missouri and Kansas was passed over by those homeseekers that they might enter the promised land of Oklahoma. It is the forbidden that has such a fascination to the average human. If this land had been opened for settlement as was Kansas and Nebraska, it would today have remained a comparative wilderness, as is the western parts of the two states mentioned. If the western parts of Kansas, Nebraska and the Dakotas were re-ceded to the United States and kept twenty years as Indian reservations, then opened up in small portions at a time, the land would be taken up as rapidly as human feet could touch the soil.

This crowd waiting to get land in the Oklahoma reservations is starving, but that does not matter. When the territory is opened up they will have no means of tilling the soil, but that does not matter. They are the roving "ne'er do weels" of the border states, who are not happy unless they are on the move. Along the western frontier we have a population that is in many respects nomadic. A pair of old horses, a few chickens and a rickety old wagon is all they need to be happy. Yes, there is one other thing they need, and that is a reservation to be opened in the future. On this expectation they will live for years. When they get their claim they hold it but a short time—just long enough to get a purchaser, when the wagon is stocked up and the itinerary begins anew.

Mixed with this crowd of land adventurers—this agricultural advance-guard—are many people from the East who have been attracted by the stories of the fertility of these new regions. They come with the intention of occupying and subduing the wilds. It is this class that suffers. Not hardened to the life into which they have drifted, they become discouraged when their savings are gone, and, broken in spirit and often in health, they return to their wife's folks, sadder but much wiser men. A new feature to be introduced into the method of disposing of these lands. All who make application for lands receive a number. At the time of opening, these numbers are to be drawn by lot at the land offices, and the holder is to make his choice from the lands not selected. This will obviate the necessity of skurrying to be the first on the land. All will be orderly, and while some may be disappointed in getting just what they want, still each will have a choice until the last parcel is taken.

Minnesota has thousands of acres of land much better adapted to the needs of the average family which is now waiting to settle in Oklahoma than the lands they seek. But there is no excitement connected with the purchase of 160 acres of land from a private individual at $1.50 per acre.

It has been stated time and again that comparatively few of the candidates for examination for commission in the regular army have passed and it has been urged that the examinations are too strict. In view of these misleading statements the secretary of war has had the exact figures collected. From these it appears that of the 640 only 28 of the volunteer officers offered transfers to the regular list have been rejected, while 119 have received their commissions or passed and become entitled to them, and thirty-five have declined their appointments, which have been tendered them without their application and wholly on their fine records in the service. Of the enlisted men promoted to commissions, 312 have been examined, 184 have passed, 101 have been rejected, and 16 have been ordered for a second examination on the ground that their failure to pass was due to lack of opportunity to prepare themselves, being engaged continually at arduous duty, or serving where the necessary books could not be obtained. Secretary Root says that the thirty-five officers who declined transfers do not represent, by any means, all who were appointed without application or influence. Many commissions thus offered have been accepted; and he adds that in the entire list of appointees there is not a man who has not earned his commission by good service alone irrespective of the question whether he applied or not.

Some idea of the enormous correspondence of the people of the United States may be gained from the requisition of the postmaster general to the bureau of engraving and printing for next year's supply of stamps. It certainly shows that we are a letter-writing nation. According to the estimate a total of 75,116,236,000 stamps will be required to meet the demands of the writing and shipping public for the twelve months beginning July 1, distributed among the various denominations as follows: One cent, 1,200,000,000; two cent, 3,500,000,000; two cent in books, 86,976,000; three cent, 40,000,000; four cent, 40,000,000; five cent, 70,000,000; six cent, 16,000,000; eight cent, 20,000,000; ten cent, 30,000,000; fifteen cent, 4,000,000; fifty cent, 200,000; one dollar, 50,000; two dollar, 5,000; five dollar, 5,000; ten cent special delivery, 9,000. The following Pan-American stamps are to be issued: One cent, 75,000,000; two cent, 115,000,000; four cent, 4,500,000; five cent, 6,500,000; eight cent, 4,000,000; ten cent, 4,500,000. The total number of stamps to be printed for the coming year represents a big increase over the supply necessary for the current year; the gain in one cent stamps being 250,000,000; in two cent stamps, 400,000,000, and in three cent stamps, 6,000,000.

The official call for the Trans-Mississippi congress to be held at Cripple Creek, Colo., July 16 to 20, has been issued. It is stated on good authority that representative men have been selected as delegates from the several states in the Louisiana purchase territory and that more than ordinary importance is attached to the meeting of the congress this year. Coming previous to the assembling of congress, and embracing almost every department of industrial and commercial activity on its program, the discussions will doubtless throw considerable light upon the questions affecting the interests of the people living on this side of the Mississippi.

There are six surviving governors of New York: Cornell, elected in 1879; Cleveland, in 1882; Hill, first elected in 1885; Morton, elected in 1894; Black, elected in 1896, and Roosevelt, elected in 1898. Three of the six, after having been governor, attained honors in the field of national politics, Cleveland as president, Hill as senator and Roosevelt as vice president.

Harlem Life: "Can't you give me a nickel, sir? I am starving," said the beggar. "Certainly, my man. Here's 30 cents, five for your meal and a quarter for the waiter," replied the kind-hearted pedestrian.

Detroit Free Press: "Papa, what does the phrase 'in due time' mean?" Benny Bloobumper asked.

"First of the month, I guess," replied Mr. Bloobumper.

Judge: Crawford—How do you figure that the exhibition in Buffalo is better than the one they had in Paris?

Crabshaw—It doesn't cost so much to get there.

Washington Star: "I suppose you have said some things you were sorry for."

"Oh, yes, answered Senator Sorghum. "I have occasionally said 'ten dollars' when five would have brought results just as well."

Puck: "There's one good thing about an automobile."

"What's that?"

"It doesn't try to run up to every watering fountain it comes to."

Philadelphia Press: "Too bad about young Dr. Bright having to move to some other town just as he's established a nice practice."

"Why does he have to move, then?"

"His wife's sister is going to marry the undertaker."

Baltimore American: "The difference between a restaurant and a cafay," said Mr. Meddergrass, who had just returned from the city, "is that at a cafay they charge you two-bits for bread an' butter, an' at a restaurant they throw it in."

Chicago Tribune: "But, Corinne, darling, when we have all the arrangements made for next week it will look strange to put it off another month."

"I don't care. I won't be married this month. That's all there is about it."

"Why not, dear?"

"I'm not going to be a June bride. It's too common."

Cleveland Plain Dealer: "That eastern girl who is suffering from unstrung nerves made a mistake when she tried to doctor herself."

"What did she take for it?"

"Diamond rings and anything else she could lay her hands on."

Mr. DOOLEY

On the Yacht Races.

By F. P. DUNNE.

"In th' ol' times whin I was a yachtsman—" began Mr. Dooley.

"Scowman," said Mr. Hennessy.

"Yachtsman," said Mr. Dooley. "Whin I was a yachtsman, all a man needed to race was a flat-bottomed boat, an umbrella an' a long dhrink. In thim days 'twas 'Up with th' mainsail an' out with th' jib an' Cap'n Jawn first to th' Lake View purpin' station f'r th' see-gars.' Now, 'tis 'ho, f'r a yacht race. Lave us go an' see our lawyers.' 'Tis 'haul away on th' writ iv ne exeat; an' 'let go th' peak caplas.' 'Tis 'pipe all hands to th' supreme coort.' 'Tis 'A life on th' boundin' docket an' a home on th' rowlin' calendar.' Before we die, Sir Lipton'll come over here f'r that cup again an' we'll bate him be gettin' out an over-night injunction. What's th' use iv buildin' a boat that's liable to tip an' spill us all into th' wet? Turn th' matther over to th' firm iv Wiggins, Schultz, O'Mally, Eckstein, Wopoppski, Billiotti, Gomez, Olson an' McPherson, an' lave us have th' law on him.

"I don't suppose, Hinnissy, I ought to be gettin' off me little jokes on a sceryous matther like this. What's it all about, says ye? Well, ye see, 'tis this way. Wanst before th' war some la-ad fr'm this counthry took a boat acrost th' Atlantic an' runs it again an English boat an' iv ccorse, he won, not bein' tied to th' dock, an' they give him a cup. I don't know why they give him a cup, but they gave him a cup. He brought it back here an' handed it to a yacht club which is an assocyation, Hinnissy, iv mimbers iv th' bar. He says: 'Ye keep that cup on ye'er mantle-piece an' if e'er an Englishman wants it, don't ye give it to him.' Afther awhile, an Englishman that ownded a boat come afther th' cup, an' 'twas lave go altogether an' th' las' man to th' line knows what he is. He's an Englishman, iv coorse. That was all r-right too. But th' time come whin th' lagal pro-fission took a hand in th' game. 'Look here,' says they, 'Ye's vilated nearly all th' statues iv th' state iv Noo Jersey already,' they says, 'an' if ye ain't careful, ye'll be hauled up f'r contimpt iv coort,' they says. So they took th' matther in hand an' dhrew up th' r-right papers. 'State iv Noo York, county iv Cook, s.s. Know all men be these prisints. To all magisthrates an' polls officers, greetin'. In re Sir Lipton again th' Cup. Ordhered that if Sir Lipton shall secure said cup fr'm aforesaid (which he won't) he must build a boat as follows: Wun hundhered an' twinty chest, fifty-four waist, hip an' side pockets, carryin' three hundhred an' sixty-three thousan' cubic feet iv canvas; th' basement iv th' boat to be papered in green with yellow flowered dado, open plumbin', steam heat throughout, th' tinant to yap f'r all repairs. Be means iv this infernal machine, if onable to kill off th' rile fam'ly, he will attimpt to cross th' stormy Atlantic an' if successful, will arrive at th' residince iv th' party iv th' first part said John Doe. Wanst there, he will consult with mimbers iv th' Noo York Bar association, who will lead him to a firm iv competent expert accountants, who will give him his time which is two minyits measured be th' invarse ratio iv th' distance fr'm th' binnacle to th' cookstove, an' fr'm th' cook-stove east be north to th' bowsprit. He will thin take his foolish boat down th' bay, an' if he keeps his health, he can rayturn to th' grocery business, f'r he's a jolly good fellow which nobody can deny.'

"Ye can see this, Hinnissy, that yachtin' has become wan iv th' larned pro-fissions. 'Tis that that got th' la-ad fr'm Boston into it. They're a jolly Jack Tar f'r ye. In dhrawin' up a lease or framin' a bond, no more gallant sailor rides th' waves thin hearty Jack Larsen iv th' Amalgamated Copper Yacht Club. 'What ho!' says he, 'If we're goin' to have a race,' he says, 'Shiver me timbers if I don't look up th' law,' he says. So he become a yachtsman. 'But,' says th' Noo York la-ads, thim that has th' Cup on their mantle-piece, 'Ye can race on'y on two conditions.' 'What ar-re they?' says Larsen. 'The' first is that ye become a mimber iv our club.' 'With pleasure,' says he. 'Ye can't, says they. 'An' havin' complied with this first condition, ye must give us ye'er boat,' says they. 'We don't want it,' they says. 'Th' terms suit me entirely,' says Cap. Larsen. 'I'm a simple sailor man an' I'll give ye me boat undher th' following conditions,' he says. 'First, that ye won't take it; second, that ye'll paint me name on th' side iv it in red letters, three feet high; third, that ye'll inthrajooce me to th' Prince iv Wales; foorth, that I'll sail it mesilf. Nawthin', he says, 'wud give me gr-reater pleasure thin to have me handsome an' expensive raft in th' hands iv men who I wud considher it an honor to know,' he says. 'An' so,' he says, 'I'll on'y ask ye to sign a bond an' lave a small security, say about five hunderd thousan' dollars, in me hands in case anny paint shud be knocked off me boat,' he says. 'Yachtin' is a gintleman's sport,' he says, 'an' in dalin' with gintlemen,' he says, 'ye can't be too careful,' he says."

"What's Sir Lipton doin' all this time?" asked Mr. Hennessy.

"He's preparin' his bond, makin' his will, an' goin' through th' other legal preliminaries iv th' race. He's built a boat too. Th' King iv England was aboord iv her, an' he was near killed, be havin' a mast fall on him. Th' Lord knows how he escaped. A mass iv steel weighin' a hundhred thousan' ton fell on his Majesty an' bounced off. Sir Lipton felt pretty bad about it. He didn't mind losin' a mast or two but he didn't want annywan to know he had th' King aboord. 'Twud hurt business. 'Boys,' says he to th' rayporthers, 'Th' King's on me yacht. D'ye hear me? Th' King's on me yacht. But don't say anything about it. I don't want to have it known. Don't print it cnless ye have to, an' thin put it in an inconspicuous place, like th' first page. He's here sure enough boys. The' mast just fell on his Majesty. It nearly kilt him. I'm not sure it didn't kill him. He remained perfectly cool throughout. So did I. I was almost cold. So did both iv us. But, mind ye, not a wurrud iv this in th' papers.' I don't know how th' rayporthers got hold iv it. But they're a privin' lot."

"How did th' mast come to fall?" asked Mr. Hennessy eagerly. "D'ye suppose Sir Lipton is wan iv us?"

"S—sh," said Mr. Dooley, adding softly, "He was bor-rn in Limerick."—(Copyrighted, 1901, by Robert H. Russell).

The Beacon Light

By Maud Vivian Harvey.

(Written for The Herald.)

I had at last decided to spend my two weeks' vacation near the little fishing village of A— far removed from the noise, bustle and excitement of any popular summer resort. I soon found that I had indeed discovered a lonely, but nevertheless beautiful spot. The wild, picturesque scenery delighted me, the sun shining upon the rippling waters of the great boundless ocean, the birds merrily singing in the tree tops, the fragrance of the sweet wild flowers greeting my nostrils all imparted to me a scene of peace and rest, but above all the solitude I was seeking. I was perfectly at my ease among the simple fisherfolk, living so contentedly in their humble shanties, spoken of as "home," just as proudly as though they had been mansions grand.

Removed from the others and nestled snugly among the rocks, I had noticed a lonely shanty. Every night since my coming I had seen a light burning in its little attic window, and casting faint, flickering rays over the water. I learned the inmates of the little shanty were generally known as "Cap'n Dick" an' 'Aunt Mary," but concerning the light steadily shining in the window I was simply told "'Tis a whim o' Cap'n Dick's, an' he don't like to have us say much 'bout it."

My curiosity was aroused, however, but when in my solitary strolls, I chanced to meet "Cap'n Dick," he had very little to say, but many times I caught him looking at me with an expression of sadness on his old, wrinkled face.

One day, shortly seeing when my vacation was nearing its close, I started out on a long ramble through the cool woods. I wandered on and on, wholly absorbed in the wild, beautiful scenery, and utterly unconscious of the dark storm clouds gathering overhead. Coming suddenly out of the dense forest through which I had been aimlessly wandering, I came upon an open grassy plot. There grass grown and literally covered with trailing vines and wild flowers, were two graves, each marked by a wooden slab. I stooped to read the rudely cut inscriptions, on one I traced the words "Our Willie," on the other simply "Bessie."

My imaginative mind began weaving a romance, which had been enacted here among the lonely rocks and hills. Perhaps—

Suddenly the storm in all its violence, and without a moment's warning, swept down upon me. Soon everything was shrouded in complete darkness, and it was with great difficulty I discovered a narrow path winding in and out among the rocks and trees. Looking around to find some place of shelter, I saw to my joy, shining faintly through the darkness, the light in the little attic window. Guided by its feeble rays, I soon found shelter 'neath the roof of Cap'n Dick's humble home. I received a very hearty welcome and soon was seated near the open fireplace enjoying its welcome glow and listening to the loud peals of thunder, the moaning of the wind, and the ceaseless roars of the waves dashing upon the rocks. I notice Cap'n Dick's glance often wandering to an old southwester hanging upon the white-washed wall. Outside the tempest was raging a perfect demon of fury. Wishing to break the oppressive silence that had fallen upon our little group, I remarked upon the wildness of the storm, adding: "I suppose Captain Dick, your old southwester hanging there, has seen many such gales as this."

"Ave, aye, my lad! You're right it has," he replied, rousing himself from his dreaming. "Many fur'us storms 'dade, but 'taint my hat though, that's my boy Willie's sou'wester, an' that's the reason I set sech a store by it. 'Taint much we speak 'bout our boy now, but you kinder brings 'im back to me, an' then again sech a night as this allus brings him back to Mary an' me. That old sou'wester is a'l I 'ave b'longin' to Willie, but my lad, 'tis dearer to me than all else I 'ave, 'cept Mary 'ere."

Then refilling the old brown pipe, and drawing his seat nearer the fireside, and with a fond, half wistful glance toward the old sou'wester, he began:

"'Pears to me 'taint but a day since Mary an' me was happy with our little Willie here by our side. 'Pears to me I can see 'im now as when a little tot, playin' here 'round the room an' comin' first to Mary an' then me with his baby troubles, an' when tired o' play, I can fancy 'im at his mother's knee, repeating with his lisping tongue, 'Now I lay me down to sleep.' Then again I can fancy 'im to manhood grown. Never was there a braver sailor boy than our Willie—never a lad sailed these waters more nobly an' good than he. Ah! How proud we was o' him an his little sweetheart Bessie, the dearest an' truest lass in all the village, an' soon we hoped to welcome her as our daughter. Dear me! How quickly the seasons fly on, don't seem but a few days ago since we 'eld our little village fete on the hillside among the trees and flowers. Nature seemed at her best that day, everything looking as bright and gay. Our Willie was gayest an' handsomest o' all the lads. Bessie the fairest lass o' the lunch. Ah! Could but recall that day, how different things would now be! I noticed our Willie kinder slighted his sweetheart, Bessie, an' paid much more attention than needful to a strange lass. Maybe my love for Bessie, made my old eyes see things clearer, but I saw her lovin' heart was wounded. Towards evening a storm had suddintly risen, so Mary an' me came home, I waited an' waited for Willie, an' when he came, I tole him in plain words, 'bout Bessie. But I had 'roused his quick temper, an' so one angry word brought mother, 'till our first quarrel was as fierce as the gale outside. In my anger I told him to go! Yes! Heaven help me! I tole him to go! An' never, never, darken my doors 'gain.

"I shall never forget the look in his blue eyes as he said: 'Father, I will go! I've tried to be honest an' upright, but some how you think I've done wrong. Give my love and my good-bye to—to Bessie. I shall never come back, father—never! May heaven bless you—good-bye! He was gone! Gone out into the raging gale! Gone out into the lonely, friendless world! Gone away from Mary an' me, an' he said he would never come back. Gone! Willie gone! An' sent away from his home by me. I stood for a time like one in a spell, then when it came to me more clearly that our boy was gone, I rushed to the door an' I called him. But nothin' but mockin' echoes came back to me over the rocks. Long, lonely days followed that dreadful night, days became weeks, weeks—months, and the months became years, an' still no tidin's came o' our Willie. An' Mary an' me got so tired an' weary waitin', so ev'ry night Mary placed the light in the window, for we did not know when he might come home. An' we knew he'd feel forgiven when he saw the beason light shinin' brightly fer him.

"Little Bessie soon faded away. Her lovin' heart had remained true to our boy, but it grew a wery with its fruitless watchin' an' waitin', so one bright summer day, when the little birds were carrolling, an' the sun sparklin' on the waters, we buried her up yonder on the hillside. One night, not long after Bessie was laid to rest, Mary an' me was a settin' here by the fireside, jus' like we are to-night. I knowed a storm was a brewin', an' on such nights we'd allus think 'bout our wanderin' boy, bein' tossed 'bout on the angry waves, an' Mary would go to the window an' trim the light a little brighter, an' I knowed her heart was offerin' a silent prayer to 'eaven for the safety o' our boy. As we sat there a thinkin' an' listenin', an' watchin' the fire light play 'round the old hearth stone, an' harkin' to the wind amoanin' an' sighin', an' the waves dashin' on the rocks suddenly above the roar o' the breakers, came the boom o' a signal gun! Quick we knew some ship was in danger, with naught on her lee, save them sharp, treacherous rocks. Mary shuddered an' softly whispered, God save them poor sailors, out on the sea.' I quickly prepeared to go down an' lend a helpin' hand to the brave life savin' crew.

"Never had sech a storm swept this coast, all night long 'mid the fearful gale the men worked on unceasingly, savin' many a precious life, but the great waves washin' over the deck, swept many a brave sailor down 'neath the angry waves. At last after what seemed ages, 'twas the gray dawn abreakin' in on the scene o' death an' destruction. But some thin' seemed to chain me to the spot, the mockin' waves seemed to laugh at me in fiendish glee. Wet an' shiverin' I stood there, an' with achin' vision gazed out over the breakers, 'spectin' to see—I knew not what. When all o' once I noticed comin' floatin' toward me on the billows, what 'peared to be a body. Nearer—nearer it floated—'twas—Yes! 'Twas the face I had seen in my dreams, an' soon in the light o' the breakin' mornin' it lay at my feet on the shinlin'.

"There, on the sands, the sun shinin' 'pon the dear curly head I loved so well, his hands tightly claspin' to his breast Mary's last lovin' gift—a Bible, an' all stiffened an' pallid an' death-like, life's troubles an' cares all past, after all the long, long years o' waitin' our Willie came to us—at last. We burled him up yonder on the hillside, by Bessie, where in summer the wild flowers grow, an' soft sighin' winds from the woodian' move more gently above their graves. Still ev'ry night, Mary places the light in the window as a sort o' guide to sailors out on the sea. But dearest o' all to me is that old hat. For when the shades o' evenin' fall, an' I look at my boy's old sou'wester, it brings back to me many mem'rys o' Willie."

Years have passed since the night I listener to Cap'n Dick's story, still in fancy I can see, faintly shining through the darkness, the beacon light.

Summer Boarders.

"Oh mamma, mamma!" bawled the calf,
"What's coming through the yard?"
"Be still, my child; you'll make me laugh.
That's Mrs. Boulevard."
"And does she bite?" "Hush, little cow,
There's nothing you should fear,
Of course she does—or else, I vow,
She wouldn't now be here."

"Oh, mamma, mamma!" neighed the colt,
"Do tell me if you can,
What's that?" "My dear, don't be a dolt—
That's Mr. Cityman."
"And is he broke?" "Perhaps not yet.
"Twill doubtless take some days.
But you can rest assured, my pet,
He will be, when he pays."

"Oh, mamma, mamma!" peeped the chick,
"What all's that creature's leg?
He acts so funny! With a stick
He tries to hit an egg."
"Beware—it is a golfiac!"
The anxious hen replied.
"His hose is turned this way—alack!
We'd better run and hide!"

Reflections of a Bachelor.

New York Press: When civilization really understands itself it will have pray or fret more than she has any business to do.

A man's generosity depends on his disposition and not on what you take the trouble to do for him.

It's a funny thing to think that the most ordinary man in the world couldn't help being extraordinary if he was.

The man who never minds comes in to be most as popular with the women as the woman who never tells does with the men.

Relief For Tired People.

Chicago Chronicle: There is a new revelation of faith science. It comes from a Denver prophet of occult influences. He brings a gospel for the lazy. He has a new plan of physical culture. He calls it "mental gymnastics." He exercises his subjects by telepathy, or suggestion. He says: "They don't have to exercise at all—simply to think—and by the power of my mind I develop their muscles. I follow the same plan with women as with men." Nothing could be more simple. Ample physical exercise can be taken by simply thinking that you are walking a long distance or running a foot race or turning double somersaults. All that you have to do is to "think"—the professor of mental gymnastics does the rest. It is a big thing.

Concerning Quail on Toast.

New York Tribune: Enterprising gamedealers in the West are said to be arranging a storage trust of quail. Several states have adopted laws forbidding the slaughter of Bob White for two years and these forehanded and sharp-sighted men of affairs are preparing to accumulate big stocks of these delicate birds before the protective laws go into effect. They expect to control the price of quails in the principal cities of the country for a considerable period. This is a shrewd plan and it seems likely to be gainful to the promoters. A corner in quail will be a novelty, but it may work less harm than some other corners have done. After all, quail is not indispensible to sustain life. States have been saved without quail.

Not If They Know It.

New York Press: The appointment of "Switchman" Newman to the $50,000 presidency of the New York Central is not causing any extraordinary stampede of our young men from city monotony and hopelessness to the strenuous, exciting and promising occupation of holding trains dowr to the main line or throwing them into a siding. The trouble is there are 100,000 switchmen to one Newman. Boys are not trying to begin at the bottom these days. The top is good enough for them.

OTTO AND HIS AUTO.

'Tis strange how fashion makes us change
the objects we admire;
We used to sing the tireless steed, but now the steedless tire.
So Otto bought an auto, so as not to be antique,
But the thing was autocratic,
As well as automatic,
And the auto wouldn't auto as it ought to, so to speak.

He thought to get an auto-operator for the work,
And first he tried a circus man and then he tried a Turk,
For he knew the circus man drove fifty horses with success
And if a man be shifty
Enough to manage fifty,
It's palpable enough he ought to manage
one horse-less.
As for the Turk, 'tis also plain, deny it if you can,
He ought to run an auto, since a Turk's an Ottoman.
'Twas all no use, so Otto moved to Alabama, purely
That he

The marriage of John R. Williams, son of E. T. Williams and member of the firm of E. T. Williams & Sons, took place in Chicago Wednesday, the bride being Miss Franc Reece, of that city. The Chicago Tribune has this to say of the wedding:

"The wedding of Miss Franc Mae Reece, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alonzo N. Reece, of 5216 Washington avenue, and John Roger Williams, of Duluth, took place at 7:30 o'clock. It was one of the most elaborate of the home weddings of the year, the 300 guests overflowing the house to the enclosed verandas, and passing thence through a gallery filled with palms to a large tent erected on the lawn, and covered inside with smilax, where the refreshments were served.

"In the house the flowers were pink and white. One room, in which a green and white trimmed frappe table was placed, was draped in pink and white over the entire surface of wall and ceiling. The bride and groom stood within a bower of smilax and white roses, which had a background of palms. Smilax festooned the doors and window recesses, and in another room was combined with pink peonies. The Rev. John E. Crosser performed the ceremony at 8:30 o'clock, the bride's only attendant being her sister, Mrs. William Harvey Loper, who was matron of honor. The groom's brother, Louis E. Williams, was the best man, and there were two ushers—Benjamin H. Marshall and George C. Hilton. The bride's gown was of white satin and chiffon, with transparent yoke and sleeves of point lace. Her bouquet was a shower of lilies of tho valley, and her veil was fastened with a diamond pin, the gift of the groom and orange blossoms. Mrs. Loper's gown was of bright new shades of pink satin, the bodice and the skirt trimmed with duchess lace. Master Morris Booth, the small son of Mr. and Mrs. William Booth, acted as page.

"After a wedding trip in the East, Mr. and Mrs. Williams will go to Duluth, their future home."

KNOWS HOW.

Been Over the Road Himself.

When a doctor, who has been the victim of the coffee habit, cures himself by leaving off coffee and taking Postum Food Coffee, he knows something about what he is advising in that line.

A good old doctor in Columbus, Ohio, who had at one time been the victim of the coffee habit, advised Mrs. Carrie Moran, 162 North Sixth street, Columbus, Ohio, to leave off coffee and take on Postum Food Coffee.

She suffered from indigestion and a weak and irregular heart and general nervous condition. She thought that it would be difficult to stop coffee abruptly. She says, "I had considerable hesitancy about making the change, one reason being that a friend of mine tried Postum and did not like it. The doctor, however, gave explicit directions that Postum must be boiled long enough to bring out the flavor and food value.

"His suggestions were carried out and the delicious beverage fascinated me, so that I hastened to inform my friend who had rejected Postum. By the way, she is now using it regularly, after she found that it could be made to taste as nice as it does.

"I observed, a short time after using Postum, a decided change in my nervous system. I could sleep soundly, and my brain was more active. My complexion became clear and rosy, whereas it had been muddy and spotted before; in fact, all of the abnormal symptoms disappeared.

"Mrs. David McDonald, a friend, was troubled much as I, and she has recovered from her heart and stomach trouble by leaving off coffee and using Postum Food Coffee.

"I know of several others who have had much the same experience. It is only necessary that the Postum be well boiled and it wins its own way."

A FLOATER.

Body Found at Superior Believed to Be John McDonald.

The body of a man was found in the water at West Superior yesterday afternoon. The police are of the opinion that he is John McDonald, a blacksmith, who was arrested here on the night of June 1 and forfeited his bail the following Monday morning.

It was claimed that the body was discovered with the face turned upward. If that is true it is somewhat singular. The body of a man invariably floats downward, while a woman's body will float face up every time. This is accounted for by the fact that the chest of a woman is more like a sponge, and fills with gasses, holding the face upward.

Beyond the fact that he was arrested on June 1 and gave the officer a very hard fight at that time, little is known of McDonald.

SHOWING UP WELL.

Crosby-Kinney-Hawkins Property Is Rich.

The developments on the iron property in sections 31 and 32, 57-22, on which George H. Crosby, O. D. Kinney and Senator F. B. Hawkins have the lease, are proving decidedly encouraging. The last two holes that were put into the ground are both deep in ore of excellent quality, and the outlook is that the property will be an important one. One of the holes is down 170 feet, bottomed in ore, with the end not yet. The other is 217 feet down in ore of a very high grade. It is reported that the physical structure of the property is as good as any on the ranges.

Another Superior Row.

Some of the Superior taxpayers are consulting attorneys with the view of learning whether the building of the Kimball school by the parties securing the contract can be stopped. The school board did not award the contract to the lowest bidder, and some of the taxpayers believe that the best interests of the public were not served by the board. The contract was let for a building to cost $12,000, when there were bids before the board which, if accepted, would have made the structure cost about $9500. And thus the people of Superior have the prospect of another civic quarrel confronting them.

THE SHIRT WAIST FOR THIS YEAR

White Ones Are the Favorites and They Are More Severe In Style---Wash Dickies For Flannel Waists.

New York, June 20.—The automobile shirt waist is the latest thing in fashiondom, and though the garment may on occasions run to all sort of glorification in the way of lace yokes, diaphanous textiles and ribbon accessories, it is in the main an astonishingly simple creation.

It is said that in gay Paris, where the automobile received its baptism, so to speak, and the dressy shirt waist first blossomed into being, the fair ones are turning with delightful zeal to the English severities they at first despised.

Certain heavy lines, in coarse, irregular weaves, the very same, indeed, that supply the butchers' aprons and French porters' smocks, are cut in severe shirt waist models. A stock and belt of white pique supply the only ornamentation for a blue, red or brown linen shirt. The narrow, folded, or crushed bias tie is made of the colored linen, and sometimes a dashing effect is created through the addition of a scarf bias of the shirt waist texture to the trim sailor hat. In this case the coarse stuff is made to fold flatly and trimly about the crown and brim, but if the waist is fashioned of some airy textile, Swiss, mull or French muslin, the hat scarf may tie veil wise over the brim and float its ends merrily in the breeze.

For boating and mountain use—for "damp service," as the furnishers put it, the shops are showing shirt waist materials in soft wools, among the nun's veilings and figured and striped challies, some plain and checked summer flannels standing out with particular seductiveness. They are flannel in name only, being of a silklike fineness. In truth, it is said that these delicate wools are cooler than many of the coton textures. In the looser weaves a comfortable ventilation is supplied and the addition of a wash front or "dickey," and cuff bands, to be buttoned on, will give the newly scrubbed freshness so dear to the trim girl's heart.

A boating shirt of this soft summer flannel, in large checks of red and blue, shows a tucked and plaited "dickey" of white porter's linen, stiffened like a masculine shirt bosom and worn en plastron, which is to say, on the outside of the garment.

A pretty one that, weather permitting and seems gay enough for any morning occasion, is of white bunting, the coarse flag sort, with round red braid outlining yoke and collar. This fastens at the back, a becoming artifice for youthful figures, and one just now much in evidence. But let the large lady eschew the back fastenings, unless she wishes to emphasize her avoirdupois, for these back arrangements, which permit an unbroken expanse at the front, have a way of making such a one look hopelessly fat.

So rampant is the appetite for novelty that a white lawn waist may own a front plait, tie, cuffs and belt of color. One exquisite little French shirt waist of apple blossom pink mull had these details in sky blue, some rarely beautiful hemstitching adding further glory in outlining hems. The favorite shirt waist, however, is pure white, and the lawns and Swisses that flood the market all run to lace and needlework treatment, enchanting to behold. The prices charged are not such as to bring happiness to the heart of woman, but any girl who has been brought up properly can easily imitate the expensive luxury at home. The newest shirt waists seem to be made more skimpily than ever, and most of them run to yokeless backs and a slight, a very slight, pouching of the front. Many turn-over collars, in daintiest lace trimmed white, are seen on them, and for heavy materials there are some buckled stocks in black velvet that look very natty.

Alpacas and mohairs for morning wear are very trim and cool and crisp to look upon. They are trimmed with a good deal of coarse lace by the smart dressmakers. The pin-spot alpacas are effective and stylish-looking, and make up well with fronts and revers of satin the same shade as the spot. In fact, the alpaca gown is being made to look very dressy, for the skirt and bodice are treated with open herring-boning, in coarse, twisted silk, which reveals a different colored silk lining underneath. This open work or herring-bone insertion is enjoying a tremendous vogue for all gowns, especially for those of glace silk. Royal blue is a fashionable color in glace silk just now, and ag ood model was made with a much-flounced skirt, the flounces continued right up to the waist, each flounce piped and corded with black satin and lined with deep cream satin. The bodice had a short empire bolero of black satin, tucked all over, showing the blue glace underbodice pouched at the waist over a black satin waist band, and opening over an inner vest of deep ecru lace, gathered into a big bow in the center. This rich royal blue has a certain smartness of its own, but it is not the color for a woman who has only a limited change of dresses, for one soon gets tired of it.

For almost any wash dress in the natural linen color there's hardly a prettier choice for a guimpe, or a blouse, than the sheer, silky, grass linen.

It may be had in tucks, plain or shirred, and in the last named it is very beautiful, though, of course, any but a very slender woman should choose the tucked for a whole blouse.

It is always safe and very nearly always effective, which can not be said of some more ambitious and showy color schemes.

These ready-to-clap-on stuffs cost from 85 cents the yard up.

The needs of the woman who can make her own dress, but who isn't up to giving it a sufficiently elaborate finishing touch, are taken into consideration.

Say one has a dress of heavy linen. Well, here's a sailor collar with elongated fronts.

For variety's sake it has a clever design done in white pique applique. It costs $2.50, and is just the touch that many a one will find her dress in need of.

As a finish for a rather too plain tucked blouse, or any bodice, one who can not afford a fine bolero and can not like a cheap one, may make one for herself.

Skill is the only requirement.

Tucked net or batiste or grass linen will be found effective.

And as for shape the bolero ranges from a full fledged jacket down to a mere band at the bust line. In the latter instance it is often Van Dyked at the top and the bottom. This design is sometimes more becoming where the top is higher, in low neck affair, with a round, turnover, lace collar.

In any case an applique, pointed or scallopd, will be an addition around the edge.

Many women care little or nothing about their wash frocks, for the very good reason that they give little or no thought to the planning of the dresses. In reality it pays one every bit as well to plan and make a gingham as artistically as silk. Beside one may appear in the gingham every morning, while the silk is for occasions.

If only women would get this through their heads we should see fewer freak frocks. For instance, we often see a get up with certain trimming on the skirt. Instead of carrying this same idea out on the waist (even if it be only plain stitching or strapping), there'll be some entirely different scheme, with crazy patchwork effect.

Of course, a trimming may be added to a waist which is not on a skirt, but it be accesory to the whole dress scheme, rather than starring itself at the expense of the rest of tht righ. Say the dress is strapped and lace is to be added to the waist only; don't make the mistake of not putting strapping on the waist. Make it catch the lace or hold it suspender fashion or head it. Anything to form a pleasant completeness.

Like clouds and flowers are the summer ball cloaks and coats, for that is the fashionable form of these wraps, made with trains nearly as long as the gowns beneath them. Gray chiffon, lightly brocaded with gray velvet and mounted over pale pink, makes a lovely coat; rows of chenille-edged net ruchings are on the train, and under the cape-like sleeves of kilted gray chiffon full undersleeves of gray over pink and frilled with lace. A coat that would serve for carriage or evening wear is of black point d'esprit arranged in bouillonnees over white satin caught down by stripes of black velvet. Long and semi-fitting, it has a deep square collar, and a wide, soft pink ribbon knotted at the throat. A three-quarter length coat is made of alternate tuked rows of glace silk and wide insertions of black Chantilly lace, and cut en coeur at the neck, the large collar of Venetian point is frilled with black lace. Gray glace silk insertioned with stripes of white silk crochet work forms a graceful cloak called the "Alencon." A pointed stitched belt fits it to the waist at the sides, and above the little shoulder capes bordered with stitched panne is a small white satin yoke embroidered with shaded French silks. New and pretty are capes made entirely of frills of cloth; very chic is one in cafe-au-lait, with a black shoulder collar veiled with embroidered lawn and guipure, and the litle shoulder capes of chiffon and lace are the prettiest and most up-to-date light wraps.

It would be hard to find a more graceful trained evening coat than one in white satin veiled with string-colored chiffon edged with kilted frills, the upper part and sleeves covered with cream point de Venise lace, and slung over it from the shoulders is an exquisite coat of fine black lace beautifully worked with steel and jet, the high collar all of lace frills. A striking Japanese coat suitable for either outdoor or evening wear is of biscuit colored faced cloth, bordered all round with wide gold tissue applique, with cloth embroidered with gold thread; the neck is cut slightly square, and the fronts, which fasten over at the side, show when opened facings of the same beautiful embroidery.

The exhibition of flowered batistes, organdies, French lawns and India muslins this season is more attractive and beautiful than any display of similar textiles ever made. The array of French batistes is notably dainty and elegant, and some of the most charming gowns for June bridesmaids and graduates have ben made of embroidered batiste, lavishly finished with soft ecru lace flounces, scraf-fronted fichus draped low on teh shoulders, and yokes and undersleeves of plain batiste deftly gauged.

"Celestial blue" is the name of the very newest of the tints of this still remarkably popular color. It is an even more beautiful shade than bebe or turquoise blues, and bieu celeste appears among the lovely crepes de chine, batistes, creped satins, snmmer brocades and taffetas, as well as in the list of dainty belt and neck garnitures in chiffon, velvet or satin, and in hat fabrics and trimmings innumerable.

Elbow sleeves appear on more than half of the dressy summer gowns. The pompadour ruffle is very graceful and it makes the prettiest finish. This is quite deep at the back of the arm and graduates to a few inches as it nears the inside seam. Another model shows the graduated puff. It is made of chiffon or batiste, and it is gathered just above the elbow and ends several inches above the wrist, where an open-work band is placed, through which velvet is run. Many sleeves are elaborately made with tucks, puffing, shirrings, fine hand work and trimmed with lace insertion. An excellent idea is to have an adjustable undersleeve of washable chiffon. These may be taken out, cleaned and sewed in again. Those who have tried this plan have found it most satisfactory.

Fashion recognizes the increasing popularity of the athletic girl by evolving styles for her own particular adornment. Blouses for tennis, boating, yachting, etc., are much tucked, and big collars are a feature of their decoration. Linen blouses are adorned with stitched straps of white or biscuit linen or white blouses are trimmed with colored straps.

The chief characteristic of the gowns of the moment on which Mme. La Mode has set the seal of her august approval is their intricate and elaborate needlework. This, at times, certainly runs beyond the bounds of common sense, being really a waste of human energy. Think of a skirt with thirty-seven strippings of silk running the whole way round! Another has thirty small tucks or pipings on the flounce alone, and several above it in groups or five.

Very pretty hats for steady summer service are in a modified sailor shape, of burnt straw, trimmed with a Paisley silk scarf drawn around the crown into a bow in front. The scarfs are in various effective colorings, from the orange and scarlet, favored by the brunette, to the amber and turquoise, becoming to the maiden with golden tresses.

For street and every day wear nothing is prettier or in better taste than the round straw hat, with medium wide brim, draped with silk and finished with a quill. Polka dots are fashionable, and a white hat is pretty draped with white silk, dotted with red, or red silk, dotted with white. A white quill is added to this. For a brown straw, the silk is ecru, with turquoise or pink dots, and a gold quill. Those in all white are pretty, and some are shown in all brown, gray, tan and black.

That this is to be a season of solid comfort is signalized by the number of short-sleeved collarless frocks that are being turned out. Never will there have been a year in which elbow sleeves have been so prevalent. It is rather hard, to be sure, on the slender girls, whom fashion has spoiled with her partiality on all other points. A pretty novelty mousseline has perpendicular vines of little roses on a white ground, with the floral stripes separated by groups of closely laid lingerie tucks. At the neck is a collar and round yoke of yellow lace edged with a little ruching of narrow black Chantilly. Points of the same ruching are ranged on the front of the loose bodice, crossing the perpendicular stripe below the yoke. The mousseline sleeves are short and finished with a frill over a frill of yellow lace. A long white or black satin ribbon, passing around the waist, should be tied in tight sailor knot behind.

Dressmakers very frequently select the corselet skirt for traveling, outing and beach promenade costumes for morning uses, and when worn over a trim shirt waist of China silk, dimity or other fabric, the effect is chic and pretty on a fairly slender figure, the corselet top doing away with all the detail's of a waist of the ordinary kind that calls for careful fastening, belting and adjusting. A short Eton jacket is the almost invariable finish for these skirts, the most novel models being made with vest front sections and an Aiglen collar. This jacket always matches the fabric used for the skirt, which, as a rule, is cut with five very shapely gores, and is made variously with suspender tops, with simple pointed corselet effect, or with the front of the girdle portion slashed and laced across with silk cords.

The newest girdles sent out by a noted city designer are very deep, and have a decided dip in front. They are draped, but are supplied with carefully fitted foundation, which gives them perfect symmetry. When worn with boleros or Eton jackets, which end above the waist line, these girdles give just the requisite length to the figure. In former seasons both of these styles have falled to prove becoming to many women who adopted them, on account of the short-waisted effect.

The newest blouses and fancy waists close either at the back or they show the revived style of fastening on the left shoulder and under the arm.

Straw Etons are the latest. They are mounted on white silk and have girdle belts and collars of Russian embroidery. The price will keep them from becoming the rage.

THE NEW KATE GREENAWAY GOWN

Charming Little Maids In Huge Poke Bonnets and Long Coats With Short Waists.

Little maids of four and five are again charming the artistic eye by their immense poke bonnets and long coats with the short-waisted Kate Greenway effect. This little beauty is wearing a poke with a white satin straw crown and brim of white shirred silk mousseline. A cluster of buds and leaves nestles in the right sire next to the hair, while the outsire is decorated with a cream satin bow and two cream ostrich tips. The coat is made entirely of all-over embroidery and trimmed with insertion and frills to match. A sash of baby blue silk mousseline, finished at the ends with blue silk fringe, is passed high around the waist and fastens with a rosette bow at the left side. The entire coat is lined with blue taffeta. Both hat and coat are from Best & Co.

Cures Dragging Pains

Waldo, Ark., August 18, 1900.

I can truthfully say that Wine of Cardui has been the greatest help to me. The Wine has brought me back to health. Three years ago I was past walking at all. One day I read a Ladies' Birthday Almanac and read of many women who had been in my fix being helped by Wine of Cardui. So I tried it and it did all that was claimed for it. I had falling of the womb and had fainting spells. I could not stand or walk. I have used three bottles and now I can do all my housework. I will tell all of my friends of the great Wine of Cardui for the good it has done me.

Mrs. ANNIE BELL.

WINE OF CARDUI

What can be more distressing than the feeling that some weight is pulling down on your abdomen? Following the first abdominal pains inflammation usually sets in and shooting pains and dull aches make life a misery. The ligaments which hold the womb in place soon become diseased and weakened and the womb let down out of position. Every strain on the body is felt there and that is why Mrs. Bell said "I could not stand or walk". As the trouble grows the agony of falling of the womb increases. Thousands of women are suffering in this way. But the suffering is unnecessary. If you suffer the pains of falling of the womb or any kindred female trouble we want to say to you emphatically that Wine of Cardui will cure you. Mrs. Bell secured relief by taking the Wine. Thousands of women who were suffering these troubles have been made strong and well. Why not go to your druggist and buy a dollar bottle of Wine of Cardui today? Thedford's Black-Draught, the companion medicine, expedites a cure by freeing the bowels.

From our German cooks we may obtain a great variety of recipes for deserts made in the form of cakes and thin, light breads.

The cakes very nearly resemble our pancakes and are usually of goodly size, so that one is sufficient for each serving. The batter is made of eggs and flour, cooked in a hot pan and transferred to the oven to be finished. They are served with powdered sugar and quarters of lemon, or are spread with preserved fruit before they are put into the oven and glazed.

GERMAN PANCAKE.

Sift and then weigh half a pound of flour. Beat three good-sized eggs until light, make a well in the center of the flour and gradually work the eggs into flour until you have a smooth batter free from lumps. Add a tablespoonful of powdered sugar and gradually half a pint of cold milk. Beat the batter again until very smooth and light. Heat a frying pan and when it is hot brush it well with melted butter and pour in the batter. Cover with a pint of preserved pineapple or preserved apples and set in a hot oven for twelve or fifteen minutes or until the batter is thoroughly cooked under the fruit. Then slide it carefully out of the pan onto a hot plate. Sift powdered sugar over it and serve at once.

ROLLED PANCAKES.

Separate four eggs, beat the yolks until light, add ½ cupfuls of milk, measure one teaspoonful of salt; add the eggs and milk to flour and beat until smooth. Beat the whites of the eggs to a stiff froth and stir slowly into the mixture, put a tablespoonful of butter in a frying pan and when hot pour in enough batter to cover the bottom of the pan. Bake a delicate brown on under side and then turn and brown on the other side. When done spread with marmalade or fruit jam and roll up quickly. Serve at once.

KOLATSCHEN.

Put one cup of milk in a saucepan with two ounces of butter, three level tablespoonfuls of sugar and a quarter of a teaspoonful of salt; as soon as the milk boils throw in four ounces of sifted flour, stirring rapidly and constantly until a smooth paste is formed which loosens itself from the botton and sides of the saucepan; transfer this to a bowl and set away to get cold, stirring occasionally. Then add one whole egg and the yolks of four. Drop the mixture by spoonfuls on buttered tins, placing each portion two inches apart; brush over with beaten egg and bake in rather quick oven until a light brown and perfectly light to the touch. When done, brush over the top of each with one egg mixed with a tablespoonful of milk and one of sugar; sprinkle with chopped almonds and return to the oven for a few minutes. When they are cold cut an opening in the side of each puff and fill with whipped cream and strawberries. Whip a half cup of good sweet cream to a stiff dry froth; add half a cup of fresh crushed strawberries sweetened with powdered sugar.

APPLE CAKE.

Measure two cups of sifted flour, add two teaspoonfuls of baking powder and half a teaspoonful of salt and sift them again into a mixing bowl; make a well in the center; beat whites of two and yolk of one egg until light, add grated rind of a lemon, one tablespoonful of melted butter and a cup of milk; mix this gradually into the flour until you have a thick batter or very soft dough. Spread this on shallow, well-buttered tins, having latter not more than half an inch thick. Pare and cut into eighths enough large, tart apples to cover the top of the cakes by laying the pieces closely together in rows, pressing the sharp edges into the dough; brush well with softened but not melted butter, sprinkle thickly with granulated sugar and bake in a hot oven. When done dust with powdered sugar and cinnamon.

PEACH CAKE.

Make a good, rich baking powder biscuit dough and roll out until not more than half an inch thick. Place in long biscuit pans; brush well with butter and cover the entire top of each cake with sliced peaches, arranged in symmetrical rows. Sprinkle generously with granulated sugar, cover the pan with a tin baking sheet or another biscuit pan and bake for twenty-five or thirty minutes. The idea is to cook the fruit thoroughly without reducing it to a pulp or drying it up and to retain the shape. If peaches are well ripened they may be cut into halves and placed with with rounded side up.

These cakes are very simple and make plain but delicious dessert when fresh fruits are in season. They closely resemble the American open fruit pies, but are more wholesome than the rich pastry of the pie crust.

AMERICAN PINEAPPLE CAKE.

This makes a delicious summer dessert. For the cake part beat three eggs without separating until very light and foamy. Add 1½ cups of sugar and juice of half a lemon and beat again until it is a foamy mass. Then beat in a scant cup of cold water (not ice-cold) measure two cups of sifted flour, add two teaspoonfuls of baking powder and sift again. Add this to cake mixture and beat until the batter is very smooth. Spread the batter in two layer cake tins and bake in a rather slow oven for at least twenty-five minutes. It must be thoroughly done but not bake too dry.

THE FILLING.

Select a very ripe sugar-loaf pineapple, pare and remove eyes and core, chop as fine as possible and then pound to a paste; add sugar enough to sweeten the pineapple to taste and spread between the layers quarter of an inch thick; or cook the pinapple and sugar together until you have a thick marmalade; this will prevent the juices from running away from the pulp while the meringue is baking. When the cake is put together, cover it with a merinque made by beating the whites of three eggs to a stiff froth and adding three tablespoonfuls of powdered sugar and a tablespoonful of lemon juice. Bake the meringue very slowly in the oven for ten minutes; if it cools too fast it will be spoiled.

ANSWERS TO INQUIRIES.

(No attention paid to inquiries not giving name and address of writer, plainly written).

Mrs. J. D. N. writes: Will you kindly inform me how the little caramel custards are served which are made in the individual cups, the caramel poured in before the custard. Are they turned out and do they require a sauce?

They do not require a sauce. Turn them out, while warm, into little sauce dishes and pour the caramel, which forms the sauce, over them. They can be eaten hot or cold, but are preferred cold.

HOW TO USE BARLEY.

Scotch barley should be more generally used than it is, especially included in diet for children, the aged and those with weak digestive organs.

It may be cooked in any kind of meat broth and served as a vegetable, or served as cream of barley soup, using milk. Scotch broth is delicious, nourishing and most suitable for children and individuals as well as, for the robust.

Wash the barley well in cold water and cook it at least two hours before serving.

SCOTCH BROTH.

Take a good-sized neck of mutton, not too fat, have it well cracked; cover with cold water and let stand over a moderate fire until the water is well colored with the juices; then bring to a boil, skim and simmer gently for an hour. Add half a cup of well-washed barley and simmer for two hours longer, adding enough boiling water to keep the meat well covered and sufficient to serve six persons. When done, remove the meat and season to taste and serve.

$5000 will be paid to any one producing as good a spring tonic as Rocky Mountain Tea. A family blessing. 35c. Ask your druggist.

SPORTING

Duluth and Ashland Ball Teams to Meet.

Plans For Central Gun Club Shoot Made.

There should be great ball at Oneota park tomorrow if the weather is not too threatening. Ashland, probably the strongest aggregation that has ever represented a south shore town, will be here to win both games if possible. Duluth will entertain the same generous ambition. Cummings, the young high school pitcher, will do the twirling for Duluth in the first game and Glenny in the second.

The Duluth team has been putting up some great practice work during the week, and the best showing has been made by young McLaren at third. He has been playing a phenomenal game—in fact, outplaying his predecessor, Connors, at every point. The line-up announced for tomorrow is:

Duluth.	Ashland.
Sturgeon.....	catcher .....Gardner
Glenney.....	pitcher .....Howe
Hansell.....	first base .....Ware
Cameron.....	second base .....Thorp
Shepard.....	shortstop .....Pease
McLaren.....	third base .....Marx
Augustine.....	left field .....Leonard
Lambert.....	center field .....Foss
Randall.....	right field .....Erickson

Arrangements for the shoot of the Central Gun club on July 5 and 6 are practically complete. In the two days' shooting there will be twenty events of fifteen targets each, and money will be plentiful. A man shooting well inside the money will pull out the largest sum ever won at a tournament in this vicinity.

Andrew Freedman, Richard Croker's representative among the Hebrews of Greater New York, has applied tactics learned in Tamany hall, and made himself dictator to the National league. Freedman's fight has been a long one. He made the National league a losing venture, sunk thousands of dollars in the New York club, refusing to let it win until he had forced enough club owners to bow to him to gain control of the organization. In the beginning he had only the Boston triumvirate on his side, and they were stockholders in the New York club. Now he has them all in line, except Hart, of Chicago, and Robison, of St. Louis, and these two are helpless.

Having reduced the league to subjection and baseball to a disreputable level, Freedman this year decided that, to make the National league pay during its fight with the American, the New Yor kclub must win. He controlled six votes, and so he was in a place to vote himself the pennant.

He had no club. The players he had were second-raters, except in the cases of Hickman, presented to him by his partners, Bilings, Conant and Soden, who also own the Boston club; Selbach, presented to him by John T. Brush, who owns stock in New York and owns the Cincinnati club; some relics of the stone age of baseball, a few castoffs from the Chicago club, and some "men" bribed to jump American league contracts. With that outfit he determined to win. No one else thought it could win, unless it was Brush, the Boston triumvirate, and those who were told.

Freedman was wise enough to see that, to win, his team must have all the umpires could give it. Having control over the National league he commenced to exercise it in selecting umpires. He made an example of Nash, defied the National league, and the last week has seen him come into absolute power. He can now discharge any umpire who gives a decision not liked by the New York team, put any one he pleases in to umpire, and keep up the hippodrome until he lands the pennant in New York.

Fredman has been in the habit of telling umpires what he expects of them—in fact ordering them to give New York all the close decisions. His word is law now, and the umpires know they must give New York everything, or, like Amos Rusie, go back to mattress making.

Whether Ebbets and Dreyfuss, owners with pennant aspirations, will carry their desire to see New York win far enough to allow Freedman to carry off the pennant, remains to be seen. Dreyfuss wants New York to win, but he wants to win the pennant himself. Freedman, however, could stop Pittsburg's winning streak by applying his power and ordering the umpires to decide against the Pirates, but even then Pittsburg is strong enough to beat New York and the umpire. The National league is in the grip of Tammany methods, only applied more brazenly than ever that organization dared apply them.

* * *

Tiny Tim Hurst, whose sweet voice has been stilled for the time being by Freedmanism, tells a good story anent the order Freedman gives to umpires. "Freedman declared I could not umpire in New York," said Tim, "so Nick did not send me there for quite a spell. But one day I got a telegram from Nick, telling me to go to New York. As I walked into the ground, there stood Freedman. He sized me up, then said: 'Hurst, I've concluded to let you umpire here.'

"'An' we want what's comin' to us,' says he.

"'All right,' says I, 'and if I see anything coming to you it won't get there.'

"That afternoon I had one of those bad days. Somehow I couldn't see the Giants at all, and I got all mixed up on balls and strikes, so after that Andrew did not like me."

A fight of national importance, and upon which hinges a championship battle, in which Terry McGovern will be one of the contestants, will be that between Tim Hagarty, the champion featherweight of Australia, and Tim Callahan, of Philadelphia. The contest will take place in San Francisco on or about June 28, under the auspices of the Twentieth Century club. Hagarty, the new Australian arrival, comes among us with a reputation as the best little man turned out of that country since Griffo's time. Reports say he is wonderfully clever, but, like Griffo, is not a knocked out, neither can he, it is said, be knocked out.

The latter assertion will hardly down in this country. Goddard, Sharkey and a number of other strong jawed fighters I could mention were also supposed to be knockout proof, but they were put asleep nevertheless. Hagarty is without doubt a scientific fighter, but if he is really under the impression he cannot be put away for the count he had better dodge McGovern. The two Tims ought to furnish a royal battle, regardless of the result. The American Tim is as scientific as they make them, and if the Australian Tim is as clever as reported Californians will surely witness a high-class contest.

The enormous crowd of 125 people surged into the Boston National grounds Tuesday. Immediately after the close of the game Soden announced 25-cent ball. Soden's team has been putting up about a 15-cent article to date.

Phillippe is one of the most reliable pitchers in the national league. He is a product of the old Red River valley league, and was secured by Pittsburg from Minneapolis. He has great speed and fine control of the ball, and therein lies his effectiveness.

* * *

Terry McGovern has stipulated that before he will fight Tim Heggarty, the Australian, the latter must whip either Dave Sullivan, Marty McCue, "Kid" Broad, Tim Callahan or "Young Corbett. McGovern has posted a forfeit of $100 to bind the match with Heggarty as soon as the Australian qualifies.

Although flushed with victory over Yale the Princeton baseball players got down to business long enough after the game on Saturday to elect a captain for next year. The man chosen to succeed Green in 1902 is Steinwender, the second baseman. He is of the short spry type, a good fielder and a strong hitter. His batting average last year was 337 and his fielding average .904. He will be a senior next year, and his home is at St. Louis. He knows the game well and will carry over enough of this years strong team to give him a good outlook for 1902, among these being Underhill, the freshman pitcher, who was in the box in the two games that Yale lost to the Tigers.

Even Tom Sharkey's most bitter enemies have a good word for him when speaking of his kindness toward his parents. Tom deserves all the praise bestowed upon him for looking after his good old father and mother and providing for them a $20,000 home in this country. It is a very commendable act on the part of the sailor, and a worthy example to other fighters.

Sharkey's father has been to this country before, but it is the first visit of his mother and two sisters to the land of the free. Tom takes his parents to church in a handsome automobile, and provides for them every comfort at his villa on Sheepshead bay. Mrs. Sharkey is the mother of eighteen children, and is now 63 years of age. She thinks Tom is a great boy, and the old man is also very proud of his son, who left old Ireland at the age of 18 to sail on the high seas. Sharkey also has a brother, Jack, who is somewhat of a sport, but so far has shown no inclination to follow Tom's footsteps in the roped arena.

"Kid" Lavigne intends to return to the ring. In a letter to his former manager, Sam Fitzpatrick, he writes that he has been taking the best care of himself and would like to arrange for a 20-round battle with McGovern. Fitzpatrick will endeavor to match Lavigne with McGovern when the latter returns from San Francisco.

A benefit to Peter Jackson, who is ill with consumption in Australia, netted the colored heavyweight $3000. According to a letter from Australia, Jackson cannot live many more months.

Why Some People Are Always Cross and Ugly.

"Dou you know," said a prominent specialist to a reporter, "that thousands of men become irritable, cross and mean on account of their liver?" Nothing irritates a man so much as the general run-down feeling produced by disorder of the bowels. He can enjoy none of those things which tend to make life pleasant. He becomes isolated from his friends because their good humor grates on his nerves. He looks upon life through blue glasses. He feels miserable all over. If he only took a good dose of Cascarine once in a while he would soon feel considerable better. This remedy is being prescribed by physicians all over the country for all stomach troubles and is a great family laxative, having stood the test for many years. If your bowels are not in good order, get a bottle of Cascarine at once. Do not let your complaint drag on until some awful disease like appendicitis sets in. Take Cascarine and use nothing else but Cascarine for it is the only laxative that deserves a place in every home, being made from roots, barks, herbs, plants and berries, nature's true remedies. The manufacturers guarantee it to be satisfactory or they will refund the money paid for it. Go to your druggist today and buy a bottle of Cascarine. Price, 50 cents per bottle.

The manufacturers will send to any address, free of charge, a little booklet explaining thoroughly the cause and cure of diseases of the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels, and one week's treatment for 10 cents in stamps to cover postage.

ORDER ISSUED

Establishing Civil Government In Philippines.

Washington, June 21.—Secretary Root today issued the order of the president establishing civil government in the Philippines. The order removes the military governor of the Philippines from the performance of civil duties on and after July 4, but declares that his authority will be exercised as heretofore in those districts in which the insurrection still exists.

William H. Taft, president of the Philippine commission is appointed civil governor and will exercise civil authority in all civil affairs in the government of the Philippines heretofore exercised in such affairs by the military governor.

FROM BALLOON.

Chicago Photographer Gets a Bad Tumble.

Chicago, June 22.—George R. Lawrence, a photographer, who attempted yesterday afternoon to take a bird's-eye view of the stockyards from a balloon, was thrown from his car after it had risen about fifty feet. The accident was caused by the breaking of a cross bar. Lawrence struck a web of telegraph wires and was not injured beyond a few cuts.

THROWN OVERBOARD.

London, June 21.—During the discusion in the commons today of the necessity for appointing only qualified veterinary-surgeons as officers in the Remount department, it transpired that during the voyage of the steamer Cervonia from New Orleans, a remount officer, contrary to the advice of the veterinary surgeon, caused twenty-eight horses valued at £6750 to be thrown overboard, under the belief that they were suffering from glanders. It was afterwards proved that the horses were only suffering from ordinary colds. This, probably, is the origin of the story, circulated by Boer agents, of the shipping of glandered horses to South Africa.

WINS ANOTHER.

London, June 21.—William C. Whitney's chestnut filly, Elizabeth M., (L. Reiff), won the King's stand stakes of 800 sovereigns, added to a sweepstake of 10 sovereigns each. Zanoni (Maher) was second, and The Twincastor filly was third.

IN COPPER DISTRICT

Baltic, Trimountain and Champion May Be Consolidated.

Production at the Quincy Is Making a Good Showing.

Dividend of the Calumet and Hecla Was Disappointing.

Houghton, Mich., June 22.—(Special to The Herald.)—It is the general impression, which seems to rest upon good grounds, that the Baltic, Trimountain and Champion mines will be consolidated under the so-called Standard Oil management, which is in control of the Arcadian, Isle Royale and Trimountain mines, among Lake Superior properties, in addition to controlling the Amalgamated Copper company, which is heavily interested in the leading Montana copper mines. Such a consolidation would make one of the greatest mines of the world within the next few years. All three mines are opened on the Baltic amygdaloid, which improves in richness toward the south, so far as opened. The lode is of phenomenal width and, strange to say, seems to carry the most copper where widest, which is the reverse of the usual rule. The Baltic was the first mine opened in this amygdaloid, whence the name of the lode. The Baltic was opened in 1897 and became a producer to a limited extent in 1899. It is now making an average of better than 125 tons of mineral per month, with the use of two stamps at the Atlantic mill, but for the past ten days has been turning out seven to tight tons daily, or at the rate of better than 175 tons per month. The rock is yielding about twenty-two pounds of ingot per ton of material stamped, which is under the average of the Wolverine and Quincy, but above the Osceola, Franklin, Atlantic and Isle Royale. The great width of the Baltic lode renders rock of such quality extremely profitable, and there is little question—in fact none at all—that the Trimountain will average better than the Baltic, while it is highly probable that the Champion, still south of the Trimountain, will do yet better. The amalgamation of these three mines would give the consolidated property a longer stretch of paying lode than is now owned by any Lake Superior mine, and owing to the sharp pitch of the lode, which descends into the earth at an angle of 69 to 73 degrees, and also taking into consideration the great width of the lode, it is probable that the properties named carry at least twice as much copper per acre of area as the Calumet & Hecla. This is not to be construed as meaning that these properties are twice as good as the Calumet & Hecla, but is a statement of fact regarding their remarkable copper resources. It may be safely said, and this statement will be concurred in by the most conservative judges, that the consolidation of these three young mines will make a property that will rank with the ten greatest copper producers of the globe within the next few years, and which will give employment to thousands of men and build up one of the world's greatest mining camps a few miles southwest of Houghton.

The Quincy is now stamping between 3000 and 3500 tons of rock daily at its mills. The rock is not chosen with a view to making a good showing, but is strictly "mine run" and reflects accurately the average underground condition of this great mine. The present average monthly production of a trifle under 1200 tons of mineral can be maintained without crowding, and if necessary the mine could be made to yield 1500 tons monthly, but such a production would be secured at the expense of the reserves. The new No. 7 shaft is in very rich ground, while at the opposite end of the mine the Mesnard shafts are in ground which does not come up to the Quincy average, but is amply good enough to pay a substantial profit.

The third stamp at the Arcadian is being placed in readiness for work. It is the general impression locally that some sort of a deal has been made or will soon be made between the Arcadian and Centennial by which the rock of the latter will be treated by the former, which has a surplus milling capacity. The epidote shafts of the Arcadian continue to yield good rock, which is being quickly turned into cash at the mill, and is responsible for a materially enlarged monthly product. Work at the Arcadian proper is mainly confined to the southern end of the property. The northern end of the Arcadian is a pretty lean sort of proposition, but there is some good rock to the southward, and it is probable that the future development of the Arcadian proper will be the southward, where there is a long stretch of undeveloped territory before the north line of the Isle Royale is reached.

The $15 dividend of the Calumet & Hecla is a disapointment to many shareholders, who had grown used to a $20 division of the profits quarterly; still, dividends at the rate of $5,000,000 per annum are paid by very few mines. It is probable that the net profits of the mine were at least $2,000,000 for the past quarter, but the management is conservative, and wishes to keep adding to the surplus fund. The economies already effected at the mine since James MacNaughton took charge, only three weeks ago, will result in the annual saving of hundreds of thousands of dollars and further retrenchments are to be put into effect.

An assessment on Winona is regarded as likely in the near future. The work on the property is of an exploratory nature at present, and is being conducted with economy. The fine showing originally had at the Winona has not been followed by developments to correspond. The Winona district is much disturbed, gellogically, and the results secured so far by the expenditure of several hundred thousand dollars by the Winona, Wyandot and Elm River companies have been mainly of a negative nature.

Good progress is being made on the new mill of the Osceola, which should go into commission before the end of the year.

Work at the new mills of the Wolverine and Mohawk is advancing speedily. The Wolverine mill will be in readiness when the lease on the Allouez stamp expires next spring, and the Mohawk mill will be finished only a few weeks later, at the farthest, and possibly at the same time as the Wolverine mill.

The Adventure is making more rapid progress on its new mill than the companies having sites adjoining. The mine is well opened and capable of supplying a large amount of rock as soon as the mill is ready.

The Mass mill is nearly ready for stamping, and work will probably be begun there within four to six weeks. The Mass and Adventure are both phenomenally rich in heavy copper, and the only question about their future is regarding the percentage of good stamp rock that they can furnish. The showing at both mines is favorable as regards this latter particular.

A mill site for the Michigan has been tentatively selected, on the Lake Superior shore, in the same district as the new mill sites of the Trimountain, Champion and Adventure.

The Copper Range company has completed its new coal wharf and is prepared to handle a large amount of fuel economically and with good dispatch. The question of coal supply is one of great importance in this district, where the mines will consume upwords of three-quarters of a million tons of bituminous coal this season.

All of the lake mines, with the exception of the Tamarack and Osceola, are shipping their copper almost as rapidly as smelted. The two mines named have a large amount of copper on hand, said to be retained because a satisfactory traffic arrangement has not yet been made with the steamship line that usually carries the copper from Dollar Bay to Buffalo during the season of navigation.

An assessment of 50 cents per share is payable today on the stock of the Resolute Copper company, a local corporation owning a property of some little promise, located in Keweenaw county.

The Belt mine is being unwatered quite rapidly. An option for the purchase of the mine is held by R. C. Pryor, of Houghton.

HORACE J. STEVENS.

AN ADVENTIST.

Declines to Sit With Jury on Saturday.

Eldorado, Kas., June 21.—In the second trial of Jesse Morrison on the charge of killing Mrs. Olin Castle, the defense rested today. Adjournment was then taken until Monday owing to what is believed to be the most peculiar reason in court annals.

J. W. Sproul, one of the jurors, stated to Judge Aikman, when the evidnce was all in that he desired to be excused from sitting in the case tomorrow. Asked why, he replied that he is a member of the sect known as the Seventh Day Adventists, and observes the last day of the week as Sabbath. The judge conceded the request and adjourned court until Monday when closing arguments will begin.

Judge Aikman today admitted as evidence, the blood stained clothing said to have been worn by the defendant when she engaged with Mrs. Castle in the fatal razor affray.

Two witnesses were introduced by the state in rebuttal of statements made by defendant. Rev. Soull and W. J. Scott told of statements made to them by Miss Morrison differing quite materially from that which she made on the stand.

Hayward Morrison the prisoner's brother then testified in surrebutal denying the statements made by Scott and Souli.

CLEANSES THE SYSTEM. KILLS GERMS. . . . .

Mull's Grape Tonic is a fruit remedy, agreeable to taste and strengthening to the system. It is especially recommended as a bracing spring tonic.

Do you want to get rid of that languid, tired feeling which is prevalent at this season of the year? Take Mull's Grape Tonic, it agrees to put your system in a healthy state. Grapes, crushed fruits and nature's health giving herbs are the ingredients. Nothing injurious or irritating is used, so that if you have a weak or sickly child, or if you are a chronic sufferer, or perhaps an invalid wasting with disease, Mull's Grape Tonic can be taken with safety and beneficial results.

Because of its rare merits, druggists will hereafter keep it in stock. You get a large bottle for 50c, almost as large as you pay $1.00 for of other kinds, only remember there is no other Fruit Tonic, and therefore nothing so good as Mull's Grape Tonic. It is an ideal spring remedy. We advise its use to all without delay.

Yours truly,

Mr. J. B. Robinson, residing at Highland Park, office, 502 Palladio building, says: "I can highly recommend Doan's Kidney Pills to anyone troubled with backache or kidney complaint. For ten or twelve years I was a great sufferer from kidney remedies, designed for the kidneys, but did not receive any material benefit. The kidney secretions were very irregular and unnatural. I could not rest well at night, and in the morning felt used up. I was advised to give Doan's Kidney Pills a trial, got them at W. A. Abbett's drug store and used them with the most satisfactory results. They well merit the high esteem in which they are held generally."

FREE HELP FOR WEAK MEN

"CALTHOS"

Prof. Laborde's Marvelous French Cure for Lost Manhood.

FIVE DAYS' TRIAL TREATMENT

Sent Absolutely Free by Sealed Mail To All Sufferers.

NO C. O. D. OR DEPOSIT SCHEME.

The only preparation known to science which really cures Lost Manhood is "CALTHOS," the marvelous French remedy discovered by Prof. Jules Laborde. It is controlled in this country by The Von Mohl Company, of Cincinnati, Ohio, a concern which occupies a high and honorable place in the world of medicine. It is one of the largest and most responsible houses in Cincinnati, as anyone who is acquainted in that city will testify.

The Von Mohl Company invites all men suffering from Lost Manhood, Spermatorrhœa, Varicocele, Small Parts or Weakness of any nature in the Nerves or Sexual Organs, to send their names and receive a five days' treatment. This will prove the wonderful vitalizing powers of "CALTHOS." After using it five days the sufferers will find new vigor in their organs, new force in their muscles, new blood in their veins, new ambition, and rapid progress toward the buoyant feelings and sensations of younger days.

This liberal free offer is genuine. There is no swindling C. O. D. or Deposit Scheme connected with it. The five days' treatment is sent by sealed mail to all on request, wrapped in a plain package, and full printed instructions accompany the medicine, so that each patient becomes his own doctor and cures himself at home.

It doesn't make any difference what caused the weakness—whether bad habits in youth, or excess, or overwork, or business troubles. "CALTHOS" will effect a cure, no matter what big name the disease may be called by doctors.

The Von Mohl Company treats all correspondence in perfect confidence. Under no conditions will it make public the names of the thousands who have written testimonials telling of their restoration to robust manhood after other medicines and appliances have proved worthless. "CALTHOS" is regularly used in the French and German armies, and the soldiers in those countries have come to be perfect models of strength and vitality. Cures are effected at all ages from twenty to eighty years. There is no case (except where the stage of epilepsy or insanity has been reached) which it will not radically, quickly and permanently cure. Sexual weakness does not cure itself. It grows worse from week to week. Each day aggravates the mental and physical anguish.

Send today for the free five days' trial treatment. If it helps you, more of the medicine can be purchased. If it does not help, no harm is done and no money has been paid out. You can send your name in the full knowledge that it will be kept from all. The "CALTHOS" department of our business is strictly confidential. Address applications for trial treatment, etc., to

19,846—CURES LAST YEAR—19,846

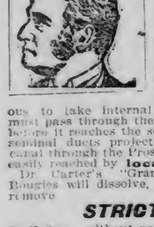
Why Weak Men Are Restored by the Magic St. James Treatment Applied Locally and Directly to the Affected Parts.



We answer the questions briefly. If you cut an artery in your arm, you do not take internal medicine to stop the flow of blood. YOU USE LOCAL APPLICATIONS. Similarly when the urethral ducts become weakened and relaxed it is ridiculous to take internal treatment, which must pass through the stomach and urine before it reaches the seat of disease. The seminal ducts project into the urethral canal through the Prostate Gland, and are easily reached by local treatment. Dr. Carter's "Gran-Solvent" soluble Bougies will dissolve, digest and forever remove IRRITATE THE MEMBRANE. NO INTERNAL DRUGGING TO RUIN THE STOMACH. The St. James treatment is local, direct and positive.

The St. James treatment is prepared in the form of crayons, very narrow, smooth, flexible and wholly soluble, which are inserted into the water passage at night, where they dissolve and deposit the medication in its full strength upon the Prostate Gland, contracting and strengthening the ducts and FOREVER STOPPING DRAINS AND EMISSIONS, and curing while the patient sleeps.

VARICOCELE

Varicocele is an accumulation of sluggish blood in the veins of the scrotum, due solely to imperfect circulation, and has its origin in a diseased and torpid Prostate Gland. Operations in this disease are only temporary, and no mechanical device yet discovered has cured a single case. Gran-Solvent heals the Prostate and restores healthy circulation. Varicocele disappears and the sluggish accumulation is replaced by pure healthy blood.

Thousands of men stricture, weak, wasting and despondent were cured and restored by the St. James method last year. A vast army of men in whom the light of life has penetrated the fearful nightmare of stricture and seminal decay.

HOME TREATMENT By Mail can be used by the patient as successfully as by ourselves.

Space will not permit a complete description of the incomparable St. James Treatment in urethral diseases. Every sufferer from Stricture, and its offspring, Prostatitis and Seminal Weakness, should write to the St. James Association, 71 St. James Building, Cincinnati, Ohio, for their wonderful illustrated work, showing the parts of the human system involved in urethral ailments, which they will send securely wrapped in plain package, prepaid..... FREE

BY GEORGE K. STILES.

(Copyright, 1901, Wm. R. Miller.)

When the Fifth artillery grumbled and cursed its way through the gate of the Dragon Star and into the outer Chinese city, he whose grumblings rose most persistently was Lieut. Crawford, known at home as Bob, but whose identity so far as the regiment went was lost in the more euphonious epithet of "The Soul."

Now, "The Soul" was a nice young man with godly people at home and good traditions at bottom. Yet when a man crosses billions of tons of heaving, restless water in the hold of an army transport and fights three battles in a day and half of a night, it seems hard to reach the goal in a lurching ambulance with one's eyes bandaged and a headache surpassing all analysis. Just so "The Soul" was treated, and the fire of his words went up like the rattle of the six-inch little guns, and the heat of them scorched him, but the sense of it all caused Corporal Murphy, he of the broken wind, to pray fervently and unceasingly, albeit his eyes took in the strangeness of the forty-foot wall with the height of two small men across its breadth.

"Murphy, you brute!" said "The Soul," as the mules bit one another and reared screamingly, "are you there still, you meandering, blaspheming creature?"

"Oi am," replied Murphy, "but for the love of Gawd, lieutenant, don't say thim words again, it'll bring judgment on ye; I see ye burnin' in hell for them words, lieutenant, dear. Howly Virgin!" and Murphy dropped off the wagon as he discovered "The Soul" making careful passes at him with his sword, for since he could not see him he was attempting to judge of the distance by the Irishman's mouth.

"Did I reach you, Murphy; tell me, you dog;" howled the fever-stricken lieutenant; and what he called the corporal took the fever-ruffed skin off his lips in passing.

Then it came to Murphy of the broken wind what was the matter with this good natured officer of his, and the man's heart softened and he lied to "The Soul," and lied sweetly, so that it would soothe the sick one.

"Ye did; ye did thot, lieutenant, dear; as nice a thrust through the arum as iver man had. Now, lie still while I tie it, ye'll let me rescue me dead, lieutenant—'tis the rules of war, darlint." And as he coaxed the maddened one becarrestive, but when Murphy tried to get his sword it grew worse than before.

"Shure, he'll kill himself. If it goes loike this wid him," said Murphy, "cosparingly, and just then a small, well moulded hand moved him aside and a woman climbed into the ambulance with the three steps.

She went straight to "The Soul," who was muttering and thrusting about, hoping to catch Murphy unawares. "Attention, lieutenant!" the girl said, sternly, and with mechanical accuracy he saluted and awaited the next command. "Disarm, commanded this commander in the uniform of an army nurse, and "The Soul" obediently laid aside his sword, which Murphy quickly confiscated. "Lie at ease!" was the final command Grace Carnot gave the delirious lieutenant, and presently "The Soul" was sleeping a dream-tormented slumber, while the mules penetrated that Mongolian holy of holies —the purple Forbidden City.

The imperial palace was filled with the soldiers of many peoples, and an international hospital was arranged in a low-ceilinged arm of the palace reaching out into the private garden of the dowager empress. Here the wounded man struggled for days, battling against the inflammation that had crept from his eyes along the tissues leading toward the brain. It was Nurse Carnot who alone could quiet the maddening fancies of some diseased portions of his brain, and even she could not persuade him to drink from the coarse and huge cups used in this rude hospital. So she brought him a silver cup, a souvenir of happier times, and the patrician feel of it calmed the soul, and she left it always with him, while during the frenzy of his sickness "The Soul" talked to the thing and caressed it as if the metal were a living creature and the cooling fluid which it carried to his lips he imagined were spontaneously produced by this bit of molded silver.

But before "The Soul" was well enough to understand things, Grace Carnot was taken ill and put in a small room with walls of bamboo streched over with matting, and hither he managed to crawl when strong enough to leave his cot. Now, alas! the conditions were reversed, and "The Soul" spent many hours by the side of the low-muttering creature in the tumbled bed. Strangely enough, the silver cup again appeared to possess some miraculous power of soothing the fever patient, but when Grace was about to become conscious "The Soul" withdrew from a curious feeling that she would not care to have him see her as she was.

But three weeks after her fever had departed Nurse Carnot raised her eyes to meet those of Lieut. Crawford, in whose hands glistened a silver cup. She drank the milk without speaking, only when it was gone she found a ring set with a single diamond flashing through the milk drops clustering on its gold setting.

"But this?" she questioned, as her heavy eyelids refused to lift under the gaze of the soldier beside her.

"This is for you, sweetheart, if you will wear it," and then as she held out tired arms he drew her close to him. Yet the cup was held tightly between these two. Nurse Carnot and "The Soul" while outside the clamor of a brazen gong and a brass hammer signified the time to close the dragon-marked gates of the imperial palace of the brother to the sun and the uncle of the moon, but inside at least two were happy.

STICKNEY GETS IT.

St. Paul, June 22.—Control of the Duluth, Red Wing & Southern railroad was bought yesterday by Chicago Great Western interests for $320,000 cash.

A. B. Stickney and his associates have bought a majority of the preferred and common stock and the entire bond issue of $500,000 par.

The proceeds will clear off the obligations of the railroad company to the construction company which built it. Negotiations have been in progress with other parties for three months, when Mr. Stickney suddenly stepped in and made a cash deal at a higher price than the one discussed.

The company will be newly organized in about two weeks. For temporary officers, Ambrose Tighe was elected president and C. O. Kalman secretary and treasurer.

It is believed that the road may be extended from Zumbrota to Skyberg, on the main line of the Chicago Great Western, a distance of some fifteen miles, giving a direct line from Red Wing to Southern Minnesota and cutting across a rich country not now immediately served by any road.

The bather sometimes finds the sand soft and yielding to his feet. It does not trouble him and he goes on until presently he sinks to his knees and discovers to his horror that he has to fight for his life in a quicksand.

Disease is much like the quicksand. The first symptoms of stomach trouble do not cause anxiety. But when the body grows weak through lack of nourishment and disease of the stomach breeds disease of heart, lungs, liver or kidneys, the sufferer realizes his danger and seeks for medicinal aid.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cures diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition. It cures diseases of heart, lungs, liver, kidneys, etc., when these diseases have their origin in disease of the stomach and its allied organs.

Thomas A. Swarts, of Sub-Station C, Columbus, Ohio, Box 103, writes: "I was taken with severe headache, then cramps in the stomach, and my food would not digest, then kidney and liver trouble, and my back got weak so I could scarcely get around. At last I had all the complaints at once, and the more I doctored the worse I got until six years passed. I had become so poorly I could only walk in the house by the aid of a chair, and I got so thin I had given up to die. Then a neighbor said, 'Take Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and make a new man out of yourself.' The first bottle helped me so I thought I would get another, and after I had taken eight bottles, in about six weeks, I was weighed and found I had gained twenty-seven (27) pounds. I have done more hard work in the past eleven months than I did in two years before, and I am as stout and healthy to-day, I think, as I ever was."

DISEASES WHICH DETHRONE MANHOOD

And their Absolute Cure.

Professional Excellence Can Be Obtained Only by the Doctor Who concentrates All His Faculties to a Single Class of Ills.

MASTER SPECIALIST.

I do not cure all cases, but I cure all I treat; I treat men only and cure them to stay cured.

In the treatment of special diseases there can be no comparison between the ability of the ordinary doctor and that of the trained and scientific specialist.

The trouble with the ordinary doctor is that he tries to do too much. In his fruitless effort to explore and conquer the whole field of medicine and surgery, he so scatters his talents that he becomes proficient in no particular branch. Like the Jack of all trades, he is master of none. He possesses no special skill, no expert knowledge on any given subject but simply a hearsay of a few diseases, a single class of them, on which all his efforts are concentrated, and to which his entire practice is strictly limited. Hence he becomes easily supreme in his chosen field.

Mike Gleason was over from Hibbing Tuesday.

Deputy Sheriff Anderson passed through Virginia Monday on his way to Duluth with a 30-day jail bird.

Mrs. Jacob E. Watson and children have returned from a visit at Minneapolis and St. Paul. Mrs. Watson was a sister of Mrs. M. F. Darma, who will visit here for a few weeks.

Mrs. Pearl Wilmot arrived from Mankato Wednesday evening and will visit a few weeks at the home of Editor and Mrs. Cuppernull.

Axel Pakkala transacted business at Eveleth Monday.

Hon. M. B. Hawkin was over from Eveleth yesterday.

If you are therefore, an unhappy victim of VARICOCELE, STRICTURE, SYPHILITIC BLOOD POISON, NERVO-SEXUAL DEBILITY, or allied troubles, who ought to be able to do you more good—the ordinary doctor who treats all diseases and cures few of them, or the expert specialist who treats a few diseases and cures all he treats? There can be but one answer.

Varicocele Under our special treatment this insidious disease rapidly disappears. Pain ceases almost instantly. The pools of stagnant blood are driven from the dilated veins, and all soreness and swelling quickly subside. Every indication of varicocele soon vanishes, and in its stead comes the pride, the power and the pleasure of PERFECT HEALTH AND RESTORED VITALITY.

Stricture Our special treatment dissolves and completely removes every obstruction from the urinary passage, allays all inflammation, reduces the prostate gland, cleanses and heals the bladder and kidneys, invigorates and restores health and soundness to EVERY PART OF THE BODY AFECTED BY THE DISEASE.

Contagious Blood Poison Our special form of treatment for this disease is practically the result of our life work, and is endorsed by the best physicians of this and foreign countries. It contains no dangerous drugs or injurious medicines of any kind. It goes to the very bottom of the disease, and forces out every particle of impurity. Soon every sign and symptom disappears completely and forever. The blood, the tissue, the flesh and the bones and the whole system are cleansed, purified and restored to perfect health and the patient is prepared anew for the DUTIES OF LIFE.

Nervo-Sexual Debility Your vitality is failing and will soon be lost unless you do something for yourself. There is no time to lose. Weakness, like all nervous diseases, is never on the standstill. With it you can make no compromise. Either you must master it or it will master you and fill your whole future with misery and indescribable woe. We have treated so many cases of this kind that we are as familiar with them as you are with the very daylight. Once cured by us, you will never again be bothered with emissions, drains, prematureness, small or weak organs, nervousness, failing memory, loss of ambition or other symptoms which rob you of your vitality and absolutely unfit you for study or business. Our treatment for weak men will correct all these evils and restore you to what nature intended—a hale, healthy, happy man, with PHYSICAL AND MENTAL POWERS COMPLETE.

Rupture Cured to stay cured by our special treatment without the use of the knife and without detention from business.

Reflex Diseases Many ailments are reflex, originating from other diseases. For instance, weakness sometimes comes from Varicocele or congested glands; innumerable blood and bone diseases often result from contagious blood taints in the system, or physical and mental decline frequently follow weakness. In treating disease of any kind we always remove the origin—WE CURE THE CAUSE.

Correspondence One personal visit is always preferred, but if you cannot call at our office, write your symptoms fully. Our home treatment by correspondence always successful. Legal Contract given to all patients to hold for our promise. Do not hesitate. If you cannot call today, write and describe your troubles. Successful treatment by mail.

WHEAT IS STRONGER

Market Started Out Lower But Had a Sharp Rally.

Opening Weakness Was Due to Decline In Liverpool Market.

Excellent Crop Prospects Also Added to the Bearishness.

Duluth Board of Trade, June 22.—The wheat market started out weak and lower this morning under the influence of bearish cables and the splendid crop prospects in all parts of the country. Wheat at Liverpool closed 1/4@1d lower. There was a sharp rally during the early part of the session due to heavy covering.

The market ruled fairly steady during the remainder of the session and closed 1/4c higher than yesterday here for July, and 3/8c higher for September, and 1/4c lower at Chicago for the September option. The elevators were pretty generally sellers of July and there was considerable liquidation on the part of September shorts. Clearances of wheat and flour equalled 231,384 bus.

Receipts at Duluth and Minneapolis, 324 cars, against 347 last week and 411 last year. Chicago receipts, 63 cars, none of contract grade.

There was fairly active trading in futures on the Duluth board. July wheat opened 3/8c down at 65 1/2c bid, rallied to 66c at 10:05, rose to 66 3/8c at 11:10, advanced to 66 5/8c at 11:50 and closed at 66 3/8c, a net gain 1/4c. September wheat opened 1/2c down at 65 1/4c bid, sold at 65 3/4c at 9:40, rose to 66c at 10:05, reacted to 65 3/4c at 10:20, recovered to 66 1/4c at 11:07 and advanced to 66 1/2c at 11:15, closing at 66 3/8c or 3/8c higher than yesterday. Cash sales were 35,000 bus at the July price.

There was little trading in coarse grains. September flax was up 1/2c and October 1c. Other coarse grains were unchanged in price.

Following are the closing prices:

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Again Wheat Opened Weak and Lower.

Chicago, June 22.—Wheat opened weak and lower today influenced by lower cables and excellent crop prospects. September opened 1/4@3/8c lower at 66 1/4@66 3/8c, and weakened to 66 1/4c. Covering and strength in the Northwest then brought about a sharp rally to 66 3/4c. Minneapolis and Duluth reported 524 cars, against 345 a week ago, and 411 last year. Local receipts were 63 cars, none of contract grade.

September touched 67c, but dropped back to 66 3/4c, at which it closed 1/4c net lower.

Corn was active and strong on heavy buying by the bull leader. Shorts covered freely. September opened 1/2@3/4c lower at 43 3/4c and advanced to 44 3/4c. Local receipts were 192 cars, 7 of contract grade.

Reports of damage to the growing crop on account of the intense heat, caused a further advance to 44 3/4@44 5/8c. The close was firm and 5/8@3/4c higher at 44 3/4c.

Oats were active and quite strong. September opened a shade lower at 26 1/2@26 3/4c, weakened to 26c and rose to 26 1/4@26 3/8c. Local receipts were 149 cars.

Provisions opened firm, but dull. September pork opened unchanged at $14.85 and advanced to $14.90. Lard opened a shade lower at $8.62 1/2@8.65, and rose to $8.70, while ribs opened a shade higher at $8.12 1/2 and advanced to $8.15@8.17 1/2.

MARKET GOSSIP.

Received over private wire of B. E. Baker, grain and stock broker, 307 Board of Trade, Duluth, Minn.:

Chicago, June 22.—The wheat market opened with considerable selling pressure from liquidating sales, and September sold as low as 66 1/4c. There was, however, very heavy general covering of shorts, which steadied the market and caused the subsequent rally. Aside from this we see very little buying of an encouraging character and no change in news on general conditions. The weather seems very favorable for maturing the harvesting of the crop. A moderate decrease in the visible supply is looked for Monday and it is estimated the world's shipments will be about 10,000,000 bushels. We still advise selling on the bulges.

The tone of the corn market was strong. After an early weakness there was general covering of shorts and the buying was mainly of this character. The weather is favorable for the crop, but there are many complaints from the Southwest in regard to the outlook. Primary receipts are still the bullish factor.

The oats market was dull and steady and did not respond to the strength in corn or wheat. There was considerable pressure from the liquidation of July holdings. Estimated cars 152.

Provisions were firm and a shade higher. The receipts of hogs continue to fall below previous bearish estimates and are running about the same as last year.

DULLNESS IN STOCKS

Trading Was Slow Until the Bank Statement Appeared.

Fear of Its Nature Caused Prices to Ease Off.

Was Followed By Better Prices But Close Was Heavy.

New York, June 22.—Prices at the opening showed but little variation from yesterday's closing figures, but changes were in the nature of improvements. International stocks as on yesterday failed to get up to a parity with the London level, the improvement in St. Paul here reaching only 3/4, compared with 1 3/4 abroad. Business was small and confined chiefly to tractions, Pacifics and Southwesterns.

Not much significance was attached to fluctuations, which approximated a point in only a few instances. Prices moved in a desultory manner, the professionals holding off until the bank statement came in. The important steel stocks were bid up, but there was a gradual shading off in St. Paul, Missouri Pacific, Union Pacific and Wabash preferred, which affected the general tone before 11 o'clock. Iowa Central common and preferred lost a point each on realizing, but Minneapolis, St. Paul & Sault Ste. Marie preferred rose 2 3/4 points.

The market continued to sag from apprehension of the bank statement. Declines ranged from 1/2 to 2 points for some of the leading stocks. The selling was evidently by the bears as the unfavorable statement was followed by better prices on covering. Long Island jumped 8 3/4 points and International Silver preferred 6 1/2. New York Central rose 1 3/8 on moderate dealings. Some stocks drifting away to the lowest. St. Paul, Union Pacific and Sugar leading and others rose to the best. The closing was dull and heavy.

THE COTTON MARKET.

New York, June 22.—Cotton opened quiet, unchanged to 2 points higher, this being about in keeping with the English market news. Southern demand for near months strengthened the market decidedly after the call. Shorts rushed to cover and not until August had reached 785, October 746 and January 747 was there sufficient cotton for sale to appease the needs of the bears.

Cotton spot closed quiet, 1-16 higher;

TO BUILD FIFTY HOUSES IN ENDION

George H. Crosby Receives Instructions From Eastern Owner to Build For Purchasers--- Bryan Lathrop Buys More Acres.

George H. Crosby received instructions during the week from an Eastern party to build fifty houses in Endion to suit purchasers, and the deal, which is advertised elsewhere in this issue of The Herald, will go a long way toward relieving the congested condition of the population of Duluth and providing homes for those who wish them. The houses will be built between Tenth and Fourteenth avenues east, and between Superior and Fourth streets, the party making the offer owning property in that section. The entire matter has been left in Mr. Crosby's hands, and he has full authority to make arrangements with anybody who desires to have homes built for them. The terms will be 25 per cent cash, and the balance to suit purchaser, at 6 per cent interest. The houses, of course, will be built to suit the purchasers also.

The deal is very important, as it gives a large number of families an opportunity to provide themselves with homes on reasonable terms in a very desirable portion of the city.

George H. Crosby during the week closed the sale of the balance of the Brighton tract to Bryan Lathrop, of Chicago, for about $20,000, and he has given Mr. Crosby instructions to improve the new addition to his holdings there at once. It will be remembered that a large portion of Brighton was purchased some time ago by Mr. Lathrop, and that he made arrangements to spend a large amount of money improving the property. The work on this tract has been in progress for some time. The latest acquisition includes 160 acres, and comprises all that Mr. Lathrop did not already own of Brighton, making his total holdings 400 acres. The purchase is from Rhoble L. Sargent. The tract adjoins Lester Park on the east, and it is a beautifully located site for a suburb. When the improvements contemplated by Mr. Lathrop are made the site will be ready for building.

Real estate agents report a stiffening in prices on Duluth real estate during the past two months. There is good inquiry, but most of the demand is for slightly lower prices than are being generally asked. Almost every retail estate agent reports cases where property is held higher than it was a few months ago. Instances where offers have been refused at prices that the owners were asking two months ago are common.

* * *

MUST NOT INTERFERE.

Important Injunction Against Striking Machinists.

Milwaukee, June 22.—A temporary injunction restraining the striking machinists from interfering in any way with the operation of its machine shop was obtained today by the Viltor Manufacturing company. The injunction is returnable in Judge Elliot's court.

The outcome of this case will be of national interest. It is contended by counsel for the Viltor company that while the men have a right to strike in concert, they have no right to combine to force employers to their terms, or establish their own rules in shops of employers.

ITS PLANS GROWING

Union Steel Company Is to Be a Strong Factor.

Buys Coal Beds and Will Make Its Own Coke.

National Steel Company to Be Absorbed By Combine.

The Union Steel company, which is now building a very large plant at Donora, near Pittsburg, information of which was given a few days ago in The Herald, is going into the field on a large scale. Not only is the company building steel plants that will cost from $18,000,000 to $20,000,000 and buying mines on the range to furnish the ore necessary for the operation, but it is also reported to be acquiring coal lands to provide the coke used in blasting the iron.

The Pittsburg Dispatch announces the purchase of 3200 acres in a new coal district in Pennsylvania, known as the New Klondike, and says it is probably for the Union Steel company. The Dispatch says:

"Andrew W. Mellon, the well-known banker, has just closed the deal for the purchase of the entire stock of the Republic Coke company, which owns 3200 acres of fine coking coal in the new Klondike region, for a sum approximating $1,300,000. The coal will probably be used by the Union Steel company, although Mr. Mellon has not declared his intentions. The Brier Hill Coal and Iron company, of Youngstown, Ohio, has also purchased 1000 acres of Klondike coking coal from James V. Thompson, the well-known Uniontown banker, for about $400,000. Both large tracts will be opened at once and several hundred coke ovens erected.

"The Republic Coke company was formed about one year ago by Selwyn M. Taylor, the discoverer of the Klondike field and the chief engineer for the Federal Steel and American Steel & Wire coking plants; Thomas A. Noble, E. G. Hays and A. M. Neeper, Pittsburg lawyers, with others. They have held their property for investment. The property is the finest and largest body of coking coal left in the field, and it is reached by railroads already in operation.

"The Republic property is adjoined on the east by the Buffington mine and coke works of the Federal Steel company; on the south by the American Coke company's property, which belongs to the American Steel and Wire company, and on the north by the choice plot secured by the Brier Hill company. The Republic acreage runs to within 400 feet of the Buffington shaft, and has an eight-foot vein of the finest coking coal, to which a shaft will be constructed. The tract is about twelve miles from Brownsville, and is divided by the Masontown & New Salem railroad, built by the Federal Steel company, but leased and operated by the Pennsylvania railroad. The Federal and American wire properties are now in operation and are producing a coke that has been admitted to be equal to the best Connellsville product.

It is probable that the Union Steel Company, for whom the property is thought to have been purchased, will begin at once the developement and the sinking of shafts. It is said to be the intention of the Union company to erect a large number of coke ovens on the property, as two blast furnaces are projected for early erection at Donora, the site of the present rod, wire and nail plant."

As Mr. Mellon is one of the projectors of the Union Steel company, there is little doubt that the coal is for his company. This purchase gives evidence of the completeness of the plans which the Union Steel company has made for its entrance into the steel field. In this also is found confirmation of the fact that Henry C. Frick is especially a coke man, and it was in that field of the Carnegie company's operations that he became conspicuous.

The course which this company is taking also gives evidence of the wide scope which the plans of any company which means to enter the field of steel manufacture must take. It must have its own mines, its own coal beds and its own coke ovens. So close is the competition, and so fine must every item be figured, that some are doubting whether the fact that the company owns no railroad to its mines in this county, and therefore will be at some disadvantage in the matter of freights, as its competitors own their own roads, will not operate so much to their disadvantage as to be a serious problem.

News also comes that the National Steel company is to be absorbed by the United States Steel company. The Pittsburg Dispatch says:

"It is probable that on July 1 the National Steel company will be leased to the Carnegie Steel company for a long term of years, and that the Carnegie officers will be elected to similar positions in the National company. This determination will not involve the necessity to secure new offices in Pittsburg for the National, but it will necessitate the resignation of a large number of officials of the National company. The reason for the lease is said to be the fact that the National company virtually produces the same material as the Carnegie company, and the United States Steel corporation officials thought two sets of officials for practically the same work was extravagant.

"The stockholders of the company will vote for the proposed lease because it is the will of the powerful majority that this plan should be followed. It is said that other changes will be made slowly and that the different companies in special lines will be allowed to continue as they have been. The scheme is simply to place the various companies manufacturing certain kinds of steel finished product under one head, so that both economy and harmony can be secured. There will be no domination of all companies by the Carnegie concern."

Damages Asked For Street Car Accident.

For the annoying experience of having a street car start up while he was getting aboard, and thus precipitating him to the ground, Thomas Brotherton has asked the district court for a judgment of exactly $4264 against the Duluth Street Railway company and the Duluth-Superior Traction company through John Jenswold, Jr., his attorney.

He says that on May 4, this year, he was boarding a car bound west at the corner of Seventh avenue west and Superior street. While he was in the act of getting a foothold he alleges the car suddenly started up without warning, and he fell to the ground and was injured. He asks general damages of $4000 and special damages of $264.

HAY BETTER.

Has Nearly Recovered From His Sudden Physical Collapse.

New Haven, June 24.—After passing a fairly restful night, Secretary Hay, who arrived late yesterday afternoon at the residence of Seth H. Moseley, where the body of his son lay, was stricken with physical collapse, was very much improved this morning. At 9 o'clock he received a call from Dr. Gilbert, his physician. The doctor found Col. Hay so much better that he permitted him to sit up, and while directing that he remain quietly in his room for the day, expressed the belief that he will be able to leave the city this evening, if necessary.

Immediately after the departure of the physician, Secretary Hay arose and had breakfast in his room.

It was stated this morning that no definite plans for the funeral will be fixed upon until the arrival of Mrs. Hay and her daughter, who are expected this afternoon from Newbury, N. H., their summer home. Meanwhile, however, arrangements are being made tentatively for departure with the body later in the day.

The class of '76 of Yale university, of which Adelbert S. Hay was a member, took action today by passing a resolution deploring his untimely death and expressing "Appreciation of his noble character and admirable qualities." Two hundred members of the class, who are here to attend their tri-ennial reunion—the largest class reunion known in Yale's history—were present at the meeting. Frank E. Simmens, of St. Louis presiding.

The ball game which was to have been played by members of the class with a team representing the class of '76 and which was to have ben a notable feature of commencement week festivities, has been given up. A committee consisting of Robert Reynolds Hitt, son of Congressman Hitt, of Illinois, Payne Whitney, son of ex-Secretary of the Navy William C. Whitney, of New York, James T. Wadsworth, son of Congressman Wadsworth, of Genesee, New York; Robert Garrison, of New York, and Julian Starkweather Mason, of Chicago, will represent the class at the funeral. Mr. Hitt was a room mate of Adelbert Hay in college.

Washington, June 24.—Telegrams of condolence from all quarters of the world are coming to the state department today addressed to Secretary Hay. Cards also are being received at the Hay home here, expressing regrt.

ARE UNJUST

Sheriffs Decline to Serve Coal Operators.

Situation at the Lick Fork Mines Is Critical.

Matewan, W. Va., June 24.—Quiet prevailed today in the Lick Fork mine region, where 2000 miners are on strike for the recognition of the union and where serious riots occurred last week, leading to the issuance of an injunction by Federal Judge Jackson, forbidding the strikers from trespassing on the mine property.

Several hundred strikers were at work today repairing damage to the Norfolk & Western roadbed caused by the storm.

It is feared there will be an outbreak on Wednesday, however, when it is reported, Writs of ejectment will be served on strikers occupying company houses.

Perhaps the most sensational development is the announcement that Sheriff Hatfield and a posse who reported for guard duty at the mines, have refused to serve and returned to Williamson.

Deputy White said today: "We declined to take a hand in the controversy because the demand of the operators that all intercourse between the strikers and the non-union men be suspended, was unjust. We agreed to preserve order, prevent interference of a violent nature and protect property, but, beyond this, we could not in fairness go."

Guards now on duty at the six collieries in the district have been selected from among the non-unionists. They number about 100 and are heavily armed.

It is believed the coal operators will now appeal for militia, but no such move has yet been made.

At a secret meeting of strikers at Thacker it is understood Judge Jackson was vigorously denounced. Conservatives were in the majority, however, and no plan for evading the injunction, which had been posted by telegraph throughout the district, was mapped out by the 2000 strikers.

While the injunction has actually been effective since Friday night, the defendants in equity were not formally served until today, when Deputy Marshal Huffard of Welch and Special Agent Feltz of the Norfolk & Western company, walked in from Williamson, where they were compelled to leave the train by the cloudburst. Service of the summons was met with derisivle shouts and imprecations, but no violence occurred.

It is stated on good authority that warrants will be issued for all participants in recent riots by the Mingo county authorities.

PLAGUE INFECTED SHIP

British Steamer Arrives at San Diego, California Having Had Six Deaths on Board From the Bubonic Plague.

Washington, June 24.—Surgeon General Wyman of the Marine hospital service today was informed by Dr. McKay, quarantine officer at San Diego, Cal., of the arrival at that port of a plague infected ship. The vessel is the British steamer Carlisle City, which sailed from Hong Kong on May 16, and coming via Yokohama and Honolulu, reached San Diego late last Saturday.

Dr. McKay reports that there were six deaths en route, five of which were certainly caused by plague, and the sixth is supposed to have been. All the deaths but one were among members of the crew, the exception being a Chinese steerage passenger. The first death was that of the cook, who died on June 9, after three days' illness. There is some doubt as to plague in his case. The next case developed on June 14, being that of a fireman, and his was a well developed case of bubonic plague. The last death occurred on the day before the vessel reached San Diego. Dr. McKay reports that all on board are in good health. Nevertheless the vessel is being thoroughly disinfected and kept well away from the wharf, so as to prevent the escape of rats as well as of persons. The dead bodies were all buried at sea.

The baggage of the deceased was burned. Dr. McKay says that dead rats were found on this ship before the sickness made its appearance.

The crew of the Carlisle City consisted of eight Europeans and forty-four Chinamen. The vessel carried one European cabin passenger and twelve Chinese passengers.

DEWITTE SCORES GAGE

Russian Minister of Finance Says In Substance That Secretary Gage Does Not Know What He Is Talking About.

London, June 24.—A dispatch to a news agency from St. Petersburg, dated today, purports to quote M. De Witte, the Russian finance minister, as saying that the statement issued by Secretary Gage in explanation of the United States treasury department's action in imposing countervailing duties on certain Russian products, shows the question is not fully understood by Mr. Gage. M. De Wittee says he cannot imagine that Mr. Gage would intentionally mislead the people of the United States and, therefore, can only conclude that Mr. Gage is not possessed of all the facts in the case.

WAS TO SERVE McKINLEY

The President Was About To Appoint Adelbert Hay As His Assistant Secretary---His Death Deeply Regretted.

Washington, June. 24.—The deepest sympathy for the secretary of state and his family in their affliction is expressed at the White House. The president had a high estimate of Adelbert Hay's talent and capacity, and desired him to accept the position of assistant secretary to which he was about to appoint him. Young Mr. Hay, after deciding to accept the position close to the president, had already begun to examine into the duties which would be required of him. He had a conference with Secretary Cortelyou, at which much had been explained to him, and late last week Mr. Cortelyou had written about several other features of his work.

Postmaster General Smith, who has an engagement to deliver an address at Wesleyan university tomorrow afternoon, decided this morning to keep the engagement, as it will not interfere with his attendance upon the funeral exercises, which it is not believed will be held before Wednesday, if they occur here, and Thursday if they occur at Cleveland, where it is thought the interment will be made.

Boston, June 24.—Governor Crane today received a telegram from the private secretary of Secretary of State Hay to the effect that the latter could not avail himself of the opportunity to visit Harvard with his excellency on commencement day.

New Haven, June 24.—This afternoon it was announced that it was hoped the Hay family will be able to leave with the body for Cleveland, Ohio, by a train starting at 7:30 this evening. There is still some uncertainty as to the coming of Mrs. Hay, and she may go direct to Cleveland.

Telegrams of condolence from President McKinley, members of his cabinet and many others reached Secretary Hay today.

SINCERE REGRET

Expressed In London On the Death of Hay.

London, June 24.—The afternoon newspapers voice the sincere regret universally expressed here on death of Adelbert S. Hay, the former United States consul at Pretoria, in New Haven, on Saturday. All the papers refer with emphasis to the debt Great Britain owed the late Mr. Hay for his many kindly offices.

TWO DROWNED

By Capsizing of Boat In a Squal.

Port Costa, Cal., June 24.—H. Sherry, telegraph operator at Benecia for the Southern Pacific railroad, Kate and Agnes Kerns and Mamie Sullivan were sailing in Carquines straits last night when a squall threw all into the water. Miss Sullivan and Sherry were drowned. The Kerns girls clung to the boat two hours and were rescued by a fisherman.

THE BAND PLAYED

As Gen. Cailles and Men Marched In to Surrender.

Mass Was Celebrated and the Insurgent Column Reviewed.

Cailles and Staff Wept as Arms Were Given Up.

Santa Cruz, Province of Laguna, P. I., June 24.—When Gen. Cailles surrendered here today, with 650 men and 500 rifles, he entered Santa Cruz to the music of native bands, which were drawn up in six lines in the church yard. Cailles and his staff entered the church, where mass was celebrated by Chaplain Hart, of the Eighth United States infantry.

The column passed in review before the United States army headquarters, with arms at port, returned to the convention enclosure, there surrendered their rifles and received recipts entitling them to thirty pesos each. All the receipts were deposited in the hats of Cailles' men and his officers, Cailles insisting that the arms were not being sold but belonged to the revolutionary government, and that the proceeds must go to the widows and orphans. During the surrender of arms Cailles and his staff, who were outside the enclosure, wept.

The officers afterwards walked to headquarters, where Cailles tendered his sword to Gen. Sumner, who gallantly handed it back. Gen Sumner also handed back the revolutionists flag which Cailles will personally present to Gen. McArthur. Gen. Sumner congratulated Cailles on his surrender and the latter responded that it was a happy day for Laguna province.

The president of the federalists in Laguna made a patriotic address to the former Filipino officers and then the latter and the rank and file of the Filipinos took the oath of allegiance publicly on the plaza.

Frank Mekin, the deserter of the Thirty-Seventh infantry, who had been acting as a lieutenant with the insurgents under Cailles, and who surrendered territory, was placed in irons.

INTERVENE.

Chance For Commercial Bodies to Work For International Good.

London, June 4.—Sir Ambrose Shea, formerly governor of the Bahama islands, writes to the Times from Brussels regarding the recent displays of good will between the New York and London chambers of commerce, and as an instance of how commercial bodies sometimes are able to intervene unofficially to international advantage, Sir Ambrose recalls how, in 1885, at the time of the fishery trouble in New Foundland, the London chamber of commerce sent him on an open mission to Washington, as a result of which he was enable to induce the Dominion government to abandon its intended retaliatory policy against American fishermen in British waters, and thus avert a revival of the fishery feuds.

Sir Ambrose thinks the present moment, when negotiations are in progress for what he had hoped would prove the final disposal of this vexed question, opportune for the publication of this hitherto unpublished record.

AFTER PLAYERS

Who Have Signed Contracts In Two Leagues.

New York, June 24.—At the recent meeting of the Protective Association of Professional Baseball Players in this city, "Lave" Cross, James McGuire and Fielder Jones were appointed a committee to thoroughly investigate a report that several players here signed with clubs in both leagues. To sign two contracts is a violation of the constitution of the association, and should the charge be proven by the committee, the guilty players will be suspended.

NOT UNMINDFUL.

Londoners Remember What Hay Did For Them.

New York, June 24.—People in London, says the Tribune's London correspondent, are not unmindful of the fact that during the early days of the Boer war Adelbert Hay discharged his honorary duties on behalf of the British prisoners in Pretoria with the utmost tact and discretion. It is felt in London that his tragic death closes one of the most promising careers in the American diplomatic service.

TO VISIT LONDON.

Senator Lodge Expected at World's Metropolis Soon.

New York, June 24.—Senator Lodge of Massachusetts is expected to arrive in London shortly, the Tribune's correspondent announces. The Chronicle thinks his presence may have an indirect and unofficial, but at the same time none the less important, effect upon the negotiations pending between England and America, particularly on those relating to the Nicaraguan canal.

VALUABLE HORSE DEAD.

Sacramento, Cal., June 24.—St. Andrew, the valuable thoroughbred stallion and sire of some of the best horses on the turf, is dead at Rancho Del Paso from rupture. St. Andrew was valued at $25,000.

AIR THICK WITH STONES.

Alicante, Spain, June 24.—Serious disorders have occurred at Alcoy, during a jubilee procession. A mob attacked the processionists, wrenched the crucifix from the hands of the priest and tore it to pieces. For a time the air was thick with stones. The gendarmes charged the rioters and numbers were injured.

CONTINUES TO IMPROVE.

Washington, June 24.—Mrs. McKinley continues to improve and the arrangements to go to Canton next week are unchanged. The date of departure has not been fixed.

FLOOD SWEPT

Coal Fields of West Virginia Devastated.

Over Two Hundred Persons Lose Their Lives.

"It is estimated that 200 lives were lost in the Elkhorn flood. The damage to the Norfolk & Western road is estimated at $500,000, and to the coal companies and individuals at $2,000,000.

"There is no communication with any point further down the valley than Elkhorn. I am unable to tell whether outside assistance will be needed until further information comes in."

Roanoke, Va., June 24.—The passenger train from the West over the Norfolk & Western railroad, which is due here at 11:55 p. m., did not reach Roanoke until 5:30 o'clock this morning. When the train came in there were many people at the station who had waited anxiously all night for the belated news carrier from the devastated coal fields of West Virginia. Among those who came in on this train and who had been in the storm was a prominent business man of Roanoke, several railroad men and a woman and two children. They came direct to Roanoke from Vivian, and were compelled to walk a distance of eleven miles from that place to the small town of Ennis, Va., where they were enabled to get a train for this city. These passengers declare that the number of deaths has been exaggerated in their opinions, and feel confident that not more than 100 people have lost their lives, though they cannot say with any certainty as to the number. The mountain district lying back from the railroads probably have suffered heavily, and the exact loss of life will not be known for several days. A railroad man who has been working at Vivian told the Associated Press correspondent that the rain started last Friday night and continued for some time in moderation, but shortly after midnight the heavens seemed to open and pour forth great volumes of water. When the cloudburst came over the town of Vivian, there was a passenger train standing in the yards. About forty passengers, of whom three were women, were in the cars. The water rose rapidly and soon was over the trucks of the cars. Houses and cars were being washed about before the eyes of the frightened passengers. Ropes were thrown to the cars and the male passengers caught them and waded through the water, which was now waist deep, to places of safety around the coke ovens on the adjoining hill. The ladies were too much frightened to get into the water and were placed upon the tender of the engine, where they were safe. Other portions of the railroad yards were washed out and 100 box cars were wrecked. The house in which the section master at Vivian lived was washed away. A young son of the section master rode on drift wood for four miles and was then lodged in a tree, from which he was rescued. A colored section hand was in the section master's house when the flood waters struck the building and was drowned. There has been no rain since that hour and the streams are gradually falling. A big furniture store and a large clothing house were washed away at Vivian as also were about a dozen small dwellings which were situated in the lower portion of the village. Two dead bodies, both colored men, were seen at Eckman and three colored and one white corpse at Empire. Two iron bridges werew ashed away at Vivian and another at North Fork Junction, and three persons are reported to have been drowned near the latter place. All the bridges and trestle work have been washed away on the Simmons river branch of the Norfolk & Western system. All telegraph lines are down and tracks are badly washed out on this division. The people who came from Vivian did not come through the town of Keystone, but only around it. They state, however, that the damage done there is nothing like as great as was at first reported. They think that not more than a dozen houses were washed away. They cannot find out how many, if any, lives were lost at Keystone. Of the ten miles of railroad between the towns of Vivian and Ennis it is stated there is not 100 yards of track in one place and it is thought this division will not be repaired for a fortnight. Fifty people walked over this washed out territory Sunday to get from Vivian to Ennis. The damage done all over the coal fields is immense, but everyone seems to have been too greatly excited and too anxious to get away to take time to inquire into the affairs of their neighbor. It is certain, however, that much valuable machinery has been washed away. Many of the wrecked cars along the Elkhorn Valley have been washed down the river and probably will be a total loss. East of Ennis, the train had little trouble getting through to Bluefields. Two bridges are gone between Vivian and Welch. At Shawnee, the Shawnee Coal company lost all their mine mules, which were in the stable when the storm swept down on them. A report from Keystone has it that a mob of negroes there refuse to work for $2 a day, but are loafing around and watching their chance to steal from the debris. Another report says that the number of dead there is seventeen and that of this number ten have been buried. Newspaper men have gone to the coal fields to get reliable information and it is expected that something definite will be known within the next twenty-four hours.

Montgomery, W. Va., June 24.—No lives are known to be lost here in yesterday's great storm. Much damage was caused to mining property. Many tipples were destroyed and various other structures about the mines were damaged. The loss, probably, will exceed $75,000.

Richmond, Va., June 24.—Reports received here place the loss of life in the Flat Top region from the flood at from 200 to 300. It is pretty certain that Keystone had been virtually washed out, but the loss of life there probably is overestimated.

The Norfolk & Western people here know nothing except that they have suffered heavy damages to tracks.

The track of C. & O. near Hinton also is heavily damaged and trains are tied up. There has been a tremendous flood at Charleston, W. Va. Several children were drowned near Tazwell.

Huntington, W. Va., June 24.—Governor White is here arranging to get tents and provisions for the flooded district along the Norfolk & Western railroad.

Governor White fears the death list will exceed 1000.

Roanoke, Va., June 24.—Norfolk & Western officials here say that owing to wires being done and no direct communication, they are unable to estimate the damage caused by the flood in the coal fields. They do not believe the damage to property will amount to $500,000, as at first reported. Estimates of 200 lives lost are now thought to be too great.

Columbus, Ohio June 12.—Little information has reached the Norfolk & Western offices in the city regarding the storm in West Virgini. Telegraphic communication has not yet been restored, and passengers are not being accepted for points south of Williamsburg. It is stated that fully twenty-five miles of the Norfolk roadbed was destroyed.

Cincinnati, June 24.—The only trouble caused on the Chesapeake & Ohio railroad by the storm was a land. Trains are running as usual today. Norfolk & Western officials have no advices whatever.

Wheeling, W. Va., June 24.—A special to the Dispatch from a reliable correspondent at Bluefields says all news so far is based largely on rumor; that facts cannot yet be obtained and it is probable the reports are exaggerated.

Columbus, Ohio, June 24.—Representatives of a local lumber firm, at Williamson, have wired that east of Panther, W. V., the railroad tracks have been washed out for a mile. About 200 feet of roadbed will require a fill in of ten feet.

Governor Nash today wired Governor White the sympathy of the people Ohio and inquiring as to how he can be of assistance.

SHIP CANAL BENEFITS

Would Enable Duluth and Chicago to Land Direct to Foreign Ports But Would Not Hurt New York.

New York, June 24.—Alexander R. Smith, of the New York state canal commission, in the course of a conversation upon the subject of the state's canal, said:

"Any opposition to the construction of a ship canal must, in my opinion, be prompted by local considerations instead of by the broad interests of the port of New York and the state of New York as a whole. It seems to me that not only the governor, but influential men of the state generally, if the commercial interest would work with them to secure action by congress in favor of a ship canal, it could be united much more quickly than in a contest for a 1000-ton barge canal.

"My idea is that the fear is quite prevalent in this city among people who have shown much interest and activity in canal matters that the construction of a ship canal would make New York a by-port. They say they fear that New York, with a seaport, would be largely obliterated, and Chicago and Duluth would supersede it. For my part I have no such fear. I think it possible that at times ships might load at Chicago and Duluth for foreign voyages, but they will be exceptions and not the rule. I believe New York would be a great center for transshipment of lake cargoes; that local industries would be developed along the line of such a canal; that the population would be very much increased and the tangible wealth of the state also be very largely increased, and that the domestic interests of the port and the state would be increasingly enhanced."

FORAKER

Addresses the Ohio State Convention.

Strikes the Keynote For the Campaign.

Columbus, Ohio, June 24.—The Republican state convention convened here at 4 p. m. today to nominate a state ticket and organize for the election of state officers and members of the legislature, which will select the successor of Senator Foraker.

Senators Foraker and Hanna, the Ohio Republican congressmen, members of former legislatures and other leading Republicans arrived yesterday and were in conference during the night. The indications are that the old ticket, headed by Governor Nash, will be renominated with the exception of candidates for supreme judge and clerk of the supreme court. Governor Nash, Lieutenant Governor Caldwell, Attorney General Sheets and Treasurer Cameron have served one term of two years each and will be renominated for second terms without opposition. The only one against whom there is any opposition is Lieutenant Governor Caldwell, who is opposed by the state anti-saloon league because he has been the attorney of the brewers in certain suits.

G. W. Johnson will be renominated for a second term of three years as a member of the state board of public works. Thaddeus A. Minshall has had three terms on the supreme bench and Josiah R. Allen three terms as clerk of the supreme court. The former has as his opponents W. B. Crew, J. L. Price and D. A. Russell and the latter has as his contestants A. C. Critchfield, Lawson E. Emerson, W. T. McLean, Alva B. Hall, Newton M. Miller and J. C. Copeland. While there is talk of Crew and Critchfield being slated there is a practically free-for-all contest for these two nominations.

The control of the legislature is of unusual importance this year as under the Ohio laws the next general assembly apportions the state under the census of 1900 for legislative representation as well as for other purposes and that apportionment cannot be changed until after the consus is taken in 1910, while the apportionment for congressional districts can be changed at any time.

As the next legislature selects the successor of United States Senator J. B. Foraker, he is considered the leader of the coming campaign and much interest was taken today in his keynote speech as temporary chairman of the convention. It is understood that the committee on permanent organization will tonight select Senator Hanna to preside over the convention tomorrow, when he will address the convention. While the platform will endorse the administration of President McKinley and Governor Nash strongly, it is stated that Senators Foraker and Hanna will be consulted on the declarations on national issues and Governor Nash on state issues. The only issue causing any difference of opinion is that of local option.

The forenoon was spent in conferences over the temperance issue, which includes the question of the renomination of Lieutenant Governor Caldwell as well as the form of one of the planks in the platform. There is also some agitation over the form of the resolution endorsing the re-election of Senator Foraker. The delegates met at 2 p. m. by congressional districts to select members of the committees on credentials, rules and order of business, etc., which was reported to the convention when it convened at 4 p. m.

FORAKER'S SPEECH.

Senator Foraker opened his speech by referring to the importance of the coming election, because it will redistrict the state for representation in congress and be charged with the duty of electing a United States senator.

"It is this fact," said the senator, "that gives the campaign upon which we are entering its national character, and thrusts upon us, whether we would have it or not, the discussion and consideration of national policies and national questions, and it is for this reason that every vote cast in our state next November will be a vote for or against the administration of William McKinley, just as certainly and emphatically as though he were again our candidate this year as he was last, for we must of necessity, by the action we take, endorse his work and give him encouragement or discredit his record and embarrass his efforts. His first administration was triumphantly successful, but it could not have been so had it not been supported by a Republican congress. His second administration can be, and will be, even more illustrious than his first if we give him that same support, but it cannot be, and will not be so, if we withhold it.

"All this might be truthfully said as to the election of members of congress from any state, but it is particularly true when spoken of Ohio. This is the president's own state. In population, wealth, intelligence and influence we stand in the very forefront. Ohio represents the average sentiment of all the states. When she speaks the whole country gives heed. Our influence affects the president, it affects congress, affects public opinion, affects public policies, determines public questions and promotes or retards the public welfare. The achievements of the past four years are still in large measure incomplete and insecure. We have unexampled prosperity, but a Democratic wave would blight it. We have unheard of combinations of capital against which the rights of the people must be guarded without destroying our industries or retarding our development. We have added new lustre to our arms and new glory to our flag, but an application of Democratic policies would tarnish the one and dim the other. We have expanded our limits, advanced our jurisdiction and assumed new responsibilities, but Democratic ascendancy at this time would mean abandonment, retreat and national humiliation. This is not imagination, but a serious fact. The record shows it."

He claimed that at the end of President Harrison's administration the country was more prosperous than ever before. Then the Democratic party came into power, prosperity vanished and four years of disaster followed. Then came the campaign of 1896, when conservative, patriotic men, including hundreds of thousands of Democrats, rallied to the support of William McKinley, and, by his election, saved the country, its honor and its institutions. The senator reviewed the campaign of 1900. Once more the people sat in judgment. Their verdict was the triumphant re-election of William McKinley and a total collapse of Democratic claims, pretentions and policies. It seemed as though their day of woe was come. Their flag was in the dust; their columns were routed; their issues were gone; free trade was gone, free silver was gone, idleness was gone, discontent was gone, government by injunction was gone, imperialism was gone, and now, finally, even Aguinaldo is gone. From November to April the Democratic party was in a state of humility, but local successes at the April election produced a marvelous change. Humility gave way to arrogance, and now again we hear the blare of horns, the rushing of feet and the shouting of captains.

It is only June, but already, over and over again, in Democratic newspapers, and Democratic imaginations, there has been a great Democratic victory in November. What does it all mean? What has the Democratic party done that entitles it to a new hearing in the people's court? Has it turned a new leaf? Has it abjured free trade? Has it forsaken free silver? Has it cast out populism? Has it followed Aguinaldo's advice and taken the oath of allegiance? Has it denied any article of its platform? Not one. Its official declaration of principles remains identically the same bundle of un-American fallacies that the people condemned last year, and years before.

"If it has done nothing, what then does it propose to do? Can any man tell? Does any Democrat know? Great questions concern us. How will it deal with them? What about a merchant marine, the Nicaragua canal, Cuba, Porto Rico, the Philippines? These are stupendous problems. They are worthy of the highest and best thought of the greatest men of America. They are of the highest dignity. They are pressing for solution. They cannot be postponed or evaded. Our power as a nation, our prosperity as a people, our good name, our honor are all involved. We cannot afford to grope in the dark, or guess, or experiment, or halt, or hesitate about such matters. If we are to send an additional number of Democrats to congress, how will they speak and vote on these questions? Are the policies of McKinley to be continued or discontinued? Is our flag to come down or stay up? Where, my Democratic friends, do you stand? We know where you stood last year, but where do you stand this year? What answer do we get?

"We are told that although our election has direct reference to our representation in congress, and those great national and international questions, yet we are not concerned about them at the time; that the next election is to determine only whether 3-cent fares shall be charged on street railroads, and whether or not the field and opportunities of the political boss shall be enlarged by municipal ownership of public utilities, and whether or not, in the name of single tax, the farmers and other real estate owners and holders shall be compelled to bear all the burdens of taxation, while those who hold mortgages and stocks and bonds shall be made a privileged class, and be exempted from all the expenses of government. These are not the questions we are now to settle. They are brought forward only to divert attention from the real issues and because they appeal to the discontented, the disappointed, the visionary, the communistic and anarchistic classes."

Mr. Foraker then discussed the disfranchisement of colored voters, expansion, the supreme court and its decision in the Porto Rican cases, and then touched on the future of Porto Rico and the Philippines. In closing he discussed the Democratic record, and then said:

"Whatever else we may be let us be Americans, and be worthy of the events with which we are associated. This is a great history making epoch. Except only Washington and Lincoln, no president has had such opportunities as have fallen to McKinley. Not one has escaped him. All have been improved to the honor and glory of the republic. No emergency has arisen that he has not triumphantly met, and no duty of war, peace or diplomacy has been so delicate or so difficult that he has not performed it grandly and successfully. All his achievements are the nation's. His fame is ours. It fills the earth. All races honor and applaud him. The single note of discord is here, at home, among ourselves under our own flag. It misrepresents the American people. It misrepresents the people of Ohio. Their verdict in November will so declare."

KNIGHT'S OF ST. JOHN.

Large Gathering at Twenty-third Annual Convention.

Cincinnati, June 24.—Uniformed Knights of the Catholic order of St. John convened here today in their twenty-third annual gathering. The Ladies' auxiliary also met.

Fully 15,000 knights were in the city today to attend the opening session of the convention and 10,000 more are on the way. Opening services were held at St. Peter's Cathedral, Rev. Thomas Byrd, bishop of Nashville, read pontificial high mass, assisted by Archbishop Elder of the Cincinnati diocese and Bishop Maes of Covington. The knights then marched in a body to the Odeon where they were welcomed by Mayor Fleischmann. Responses were made by President Freis and Mrs. M. A. Stewart, on behalf of the knights and the auxiliary.

FEW RETURN.

No Change In the Reading Strike Situation.

Reading, Pa., June 24.—There is practically no change in the strike situation here today. Not a dozen men who struck last Friday returned to work and at least 600 men are out. The result will be a disappointment to the Reading officials. Labor leaders say they have the situation well in hand.

Tomorrow is the all important day, as the time limit set by President Baer, of the Reading company, in which the strikers may either return to work or be discharged, expires on that day.

Philadelphia, June 24.—At the car shops of the Philadelphia & Reading company, at Nicetown, near here, where a strike was inaugurated last week, the situation was unchanged today. Employers and men say the test will come tomorrow.

AT WEST DULUTH

West Duluth has withstood a bombardment today from the heavens the like of which is not known to the oldest inhabitant. Lightning struck two churches, one man, a residence and several poles, and the current ran along the wires on Central avenue and shook up the passengers on a street car—particularly one who was sitting over the fuse when it was blown out. It was a most severe storm and after 3 o'clock a. m. until noon there was one continual flash of lightning illuminating the heavens. There was an almost constant fall of rain, and miniature Niagaras were pouring over every bluff, small streams were converted into rushing rivers and the streets were flooded. The telephone companies have suffered much loss as nearly every 'phone in this portion of the city is useless.

The residence of Charles Silger, 5715 Cody street, was struck at 6:30 this morning. The bolt came through the wall at the lower part of the house and the upper portion of the building was not damaged a particle. The strangest feature is that the lightning came directly through the side of the building. Mr. Silger was looking out of the window of the room adjoining when the flash came. He was only temporarily stunned and ran into the room almost immediately. It was filled with plaster, dust and a sulphurous odor, while the floor was covered with bits of paper torn from the wall. Mrs. Silger was severely shocked and her right arm is still so numb as to be of no use, but her injury is only temporary.

An aged man, whose name could not be learned, was walking along Raleigh street when he was sent to his knees by a bolt striking near him, the lightning affecting his head. He was carried into a house nearby and restoratives applied. It is thought his injuries are not of a severe nature.

The new Norwegian church, at Gosnold and Fifty-seventh streets, was slightly damaged. Lightning came into contact with the steeple and tore away the shingles for several feet of its length.

The roof of the Norwegian Baptist church, on Fifty-ninth and Ramsey streets, was slightly damaged. The old saying that lightning never strikes twice in the same place was disproved in this instance, as this is the third time that the edifice has been a mark for an electric shaft.

A street car was struck on Central avenue, near Gosnold street, while in motion. There were several passengers on the car, but no one was hurt. A man sitting on the fuse which was blown out received a mild jarring.

A LIVELY ANIMAL.

A West Duluth young man drove to the ball game at Oneota park yesterday and had his best girl with him. They enjoyed themselves thoroughly and all went merry until the spectators commenced cheering the Duluth boys after their victory. The horse attached to the rig was frightened by the noise and gave a greater exhibition of bucking than has ever been seen in any of the Wild West shows visiting Duluth. The driver was plucky and clung to the reins and the young woman remained at his side with apparent difficulty. When the refractory animal was brought against a fence the woman left the vehicle. As the horse was apparently pacified, the lady was induced to again occupy the seat and the horse went across the field again in the style of a mustang endeavoring to unseat its rider.

For a second time the woman left the buggy, and although the driver was anxious for her to stay, she refused to ride behind that horse again. A great crowd of spectators chased over the field after the horse, but none were near enough at any time to lend the driver their assistance.

Duluth Hillside Made One By the Storm.

Storm Sewers Overflow and Damage Is Heavy.

At 2:30 this afternoon the weather office instruments recorded a rainfall of 3.45 inches, and the indications were that the record of July, 1897, would be equaled. That record was 4.20 inches for twenty-four hours. Heavy showers may continue all night.

The meterograph at the weather bureau indicates a moist, local, progressive atmospheric disturbance, accompanied by manifestations of electrical phenomena.

In less scientific words, there has been a storm. More violent and less technical terms would be more appropriate, but the intricate weather recording machinery is not addicted to profanity.

The terrific local thunder storm which set in at 2 o'clock this morning has caused thousands of dollars' worth of damage. An accurate estimate at this early time is impossible, but the loss will undoubtedly run into five figures.

Not since the record-breaking cloudburst of July, 1897, has Duluth been visited with such a heavy rain. Storm sewers have been washed out, delaying street car and railway service within the city limits, and worst of all, flooding hundreds of basements and lawns. The paving on several avenues has been washed away in places, and the storm practically put a finish to the Superior street paving, which has been on the verge of collapse all spring.

From 3 o'clock this morning to noon today the rainfall was about two and a half inches. An inch of rain under the present atmospheric conditions is equivalent to 14,500,000 gallons per square mile.

Duluth is twenty-six miles long and about three miles wide, and the rainfall has been two and a half inches instead of one, so some idea may be had of the amount of water that has rushed off the hillsides in the ten hours mentioned.

The storm sewers and small streams which are almost dry under ordinary conditions, are simply torrents of muddy water. The pressure was so great on the storm sewer at the foot of First avenue west that many feet of solid masonry was washed away, and the water spouted up several feet in the air like a geyser. The water from this break flooded the railroad yards, completely stopping traffic. Huge sticks of timber were floated over the tracks and lodged on sand bars formed by the soil carried down from the hilltops.

At the Union depot the storm sewer broke with another geyser effect, completely flooding the passenger train sheds, and pasengers from the in-bound Omaha train at 10:55 found themselves cut off from Fifth avenue by a running stream of murky water fully six inches deep. Nearly all were compelled to take drays. The carriage shed of the Union depot was flooded with over a foot of water. Down at the west end of the car sheds was another geyser, which seriously delayed both freight and passenger traffic.

Lester Park street car service was abandoned most of the morning on account of the numerous washouts along the line. Lester river was clear over the little rustic bridge near the pavilion, and within a few feet of the street car bridge.

A report was circulated that a Duluth & Iron Range logging train had been ditched at Fifty-fourth avenue east by the storm. This proved incorrect. There were several very bad washouts on the road within the city limits, but a large force of men was kept busy fixing up the track. The logging train mentioned was delayed somewhat, and the noon passenger train from the range got into Endion forty-five minutes late, owing to these washouts. Being unable to reach the Union depot the passengers came in from Fifteenth avenue east on the street cars.

Many Superior street, Michigan street and First street basements were badly flooded, causing great damage. In a number of instances the sewers filled, backing the water into the basements, but on First street most of the basements were flooded directly from the hillside. Every gutter was a torrent and the center of the avenues was little better.

Lightning struck the fire department headquarters early this morning, ripping out a few bricks and giving the firemen an exciting time for a while, but no very serious damage was done.

Another building on the corner of Fifth street and Sixth avenue east was damaged considerably by lightning.

The West End got more than its share of the water from the hilltops. Nearly every merchant from Eighteenth avenue west to Twenty-fourth avenue west, notified the board of public works this morning that their basements were flooded with anywhere from an inch to a foot of water. Johnson & Moe and C. O. Nelson complained of the greatest damage, but neither could make an accurate estimate.

Probably the worst flooded residence in the city, outside some of the homes of squatters down along creek bottoms, was that of Samuel Nesbitt, corner of Eleventh avenue east and Fourth street. The house was flooded in every sense of the word and it is a wonder that it was not washed away.

The home of F. W. Kugler, on Nineteenth avenue east, was also set awash at an early hour, and the fine lawn of L. H. Whipple, at Lakeside, is under several feet of water.

At Eleventh avenue east there is a small stream that has been running under some houses through a pipe. This with everything else broke loose this morning and completely undermined the house of H. V. Holmes, at 1029 East Third street. The water is running through the cellar at a rapid rate, and had the rain kept up much longer there is not much doubt but that the house would have fallen several feet. The house next to it, which is directly in the path of the stream, has no basement, but the water has cut three tunnels under it. Most of the cellars in the course of the stream, all the way from Fourth street to the lake, are flooded, although none of them are very seriously damaged.

Tenth avenue east is almost demolished. The street is completely torn up and the water was rushing down the gutters at a fearful rate. At 1 o'clock the street car men were working up to their knees in the water, clearing off the tracks.

The Ingalls' house at 412 Fourth avenue east had the cellar flooded in pretty bad shape, and most of the houses in that part of the city had more or less of the rain floating around in their houses.

At Ninth avenue east and London road the street is completely flooded, and the children of the neighborhood were in wading up to their waists. A raft was carrying passengers across the road, and at last accounts two young fellows were going to try and start canoe service. There is almost three feet of water in the road and no outlet in sight.

One of the most singular washouts was at the corner of First street and Mesaba avenue. When the new Upham terrace was built a very heavy stone wall was put in front of it. This wall weighed many tons, but the water washed it out this morning as if it were so much slab wood piled up. The terrace is in no danger as it rests securely on a rock.

Both telephone companies report that the lightning burned out several of their lines, and the telephone service throughout the city was rather uncertain all day. Owing to the strike of the linemen the two companies are delayed somewhat in fixing up their lines.

A peculiar feature of the storm was that it was strickly local. Back of the lake a few miles there has been intense heat for several days, and it may be that the warm wave striking the cool Lake Superior atmisphere, caused the storm. The area covered by the rain extends about two-thirds of the way down Lake Superior, reaches over Northern Minnesota and Wisconsin and extends as far west as the Dakotas, where heavy local showers were reported from the wheat districts this morning.

In St. Paul today they were having delightfully warm weather, and over at the Soo not a drop of rain had fallen. The wind velocity last night was not very high, according to the anamometer on the tower of the Federal building. The highest velocity was twenty-seven miles an hour at 2:17 this morning. Frequently in fair weather this velocity has been attained.

The rainfall and vividness of the lightning made up for the lack of wind. At times the rainfall was almost equal to a cloud burst. At 10:45 this morning the downpour was equivalent to 3.60 inches an hour for a few minutes.

The rainfall of two and a half inches for ten hours falls somewhat short of the record made July 2-3, 1897. On that occasion the rainfall was 4.20 inches, but that was for nearly twenty-four hours of steady raining.

In the storm of July, 1897, Cascade Park and Fifth avenue west suffered more severely than any other part of the city, except possibly Lincoln Park. The creek in the park was not large enough to carry off the water and it practically tore a large part of the park to pieces and carried a large part of the paving blocks on the avenue down the hill. This storm, however, has left the park with out injury. All the water has drained off very easily and there is scarcely a sign of the storm's effect.

Lightning entered the Providence building over a wire this morning, but did no more damage than to burn out an elevator fuse.

A new brook trout stream made its appearance on the bluff up from Fourth avenue west during the storm this morning. A torrent of water coursing down the hill cut its way through the boulevard, and from the down-town district it made a very pretty appearance, as it zipped its way down the hill, looking like a mountain torrent with a 50-foot fall.

All the railroads are having trouble with washouts today and with the exception of the Omaha all are more or less behind time. The Eastern Minnesota train due here from Stony Brook at 11:58 will not arrive before 5 o'clock this evening. It is reported that a very serious washout has occurred on this line.

At the residence of H. A. Smith, corner of Thirteenth avenue east and Superior street, a section of the terrace about ten feet wide was flooded out and landed on the sidewalk, leaving a gap about three feet deep.

WANTS RELEASE.

William Hill Wants Writ of Habeas Corpus.

William Hill, who has been in the county jail since April 30, serving a sentence of ninety days for larceny, Saturday afternoon, through his attorney, Alexander Marshall applied for a writ of habeas corpus, and he will ask for his release on the ground of various eccentricities in the commitment by which a range justice of the peace sent him to jail.

He claims that he is being illegally held because the mittimus does not charge him with a public offense under the law, because it does not show that he has been convicted, because it does not direct the sheriff to confine him, and because it does not show that he failed to pay the fine that was the alternative of his imprisonment. The mittimus is given in copy, and it says that Hill was "convicted of having, on the 28th day of April, did willfully and unlawfully obtain certain personal property and appropriate it to his own use, to-wit: One silver watch, one shoemaker tang."

FREIMUTH NINE BEATEN.

Aitkin Men Too Strong For Them.

The Freimuth aggregation of ball tossers went to Aitkin yesterday and ate gravel after a very determined and stiff game. The team was in good condition, but the Aitkin men were too husky for them. Up to the fifth inning the department store men played magnificent ball and had a "special delivery" for each man as he came to bat. With the score standing 1 to 0 in their favor at the fifth inning, they were beginning to plan how they should spend the gate money when the Aitkin men cut in blew out their gas and led them to a woeful finish. The dry goods sellers were away from home and couldn't holler for help but they died game. Aitkin was on to their methods and kept them so busy they couldn't wait on trade with the result that the score at the ninth inning was 12 to 3 in Aitkin's favor. It was a good swift game all around and the Aitkin men won all the runs they made fairly. Freimuth's pitcher, Ryan, struck out eight men, and the Aitkin man went him two better and sawed ten. The Duluth boys are delighted at the splendid and hopitable treatment they received at the hands of their victors. They did everything they could to give them a good time and succeeded in the usual Aitkin way. The Freimuth team are pushing things, their next outbreak being a moonlight excursion on the Bloomer Girl next Thursday evening, June 27.

Brewer-Percy Wedding

The residence of Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Brewer, 120 Twentieth avenue west, was the scene of a very pretty wedding at 8 o'clock last Thursday evening, when Mr. Brewer's sister, Miss Hattie E. Brewer, was united in marriage to J. W. Percy, of Seattle, Wash. Miss Laura Yates, of West Superior, was bridesmaid, and A. A. Brewer, was best man. The bride was given away by her brother, C. A. Brewer.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. A. C. Manson, pastor of the Second Presbyterian church, in the presence of relatives and immediate friends. The parlor was very tastefully decorated with smilax and ferns. The wedding march was played by Mrs. C. A. Brewer and during the ceremony Mrs. George Dingwall, of Superior, rendered a well played violin solo with piano accompaniment by Mrs. Brewer. Following the ceremony and congratulations, the wedding party sat down to an elaborate supper.

Mr. and Mrs. Percy will remain in the city about two weeks, after which time they will leave for their future home, Seattle, Wash.

Among those present from abroad were: Mr. and Mrs. William Percy, of Steven's Point, Wis., father and mother of the groom, and Mr. and Mrs. T. W. Lusk, of Eveleth, Minn.; Mr. and Mrs. George Dingwall, Superior, Miss Laura and Olive Yates and Miss Kennedy, of West Superior.

Burglars Broke Out.

Burglars broke out of the saloon of Nusbaum & Shillin, 102 Lake avenue south, last night and took 600 cigars with them. From the appearance of the saloon the thieves must have been locked in and they apparently had some difficulty in breaking out with the stolen merchandise.

Yet the steel plates with which it is built are only one-eighth of an inch in thickness. The spar is fitted inside with struts while the main sheet strops and blocks are arranged in a novel fahion, designed to distribute the strain over a considerable length of the spar.

THE SALE OPENED

County Auditor Halden Begins the Forfeited Tax Auction.

Most of Purchases Were Those Representing Owners.

Sale Adjourned Owing to Delay With the Books.

The forfeited tax sale began this morning in the county commissioners' room at the court house. There was a large attendance of men interested in the sale in one way or another, but the bidding was not particularly lively. In fact, not very many pieces of property were bid in by anybody, but the state, which is in such a position that when nobody else buys a piece of property put up this way, it has to buy it.

There was very little buying for investment, if there was any. Practically all of the purchasers were there in the interests of the owners of the property, and in no case did anybody pay more than the minimum allowed by law, 50 per cent of the delliquent taxes. This was because there was no competition whatever.

The law as originally passed provided that in order to redeem property from this sale it would be necessary for the owners to pay the full amount of taxes and penalties, but the supreme court has decided that the owners can redeem on payment of the amount paid in by the purchaser with interest.

The sale did not last very long this morning, owing to the fact that the books are not quite ready. This is due to the overwhelming rush of work that the supreme court's decision of last Friday brought. The sale was adjourned to 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon, by which time the books will be ready and the sale will be pushed on to the bitter end.

The lack of competition for property, however, robs the sale of any interest. There is some question whether there should be any sale or not, because while County Auditor Halden believes there should be some of the attorneys believe the supreme court's decision disposes of any opportunity for a sale.

IT CLOSES.

Final Session of Swedish Mission Covenant.

Saturday afternoon at the Mission church in the West End, the Swedish Mission Covenant held its final session. The place for the next meeting was the topic of discussion for the afternoon, and Galesburg, Ill., was the choice of the assemblage. Minneapolis was second. Services were held at all of the Swedish churches in the city yesterday at which some of the prominent visitors spoke. It was proposed to have an outing at Zenith park today for the visitors but the bad weather interfered and the plan had to be disbanded.

At the services held yesterday afternoon at Mission church, a feature was the address by Rev. A. E. Andre, missionary from China, who has recently arrived from the far East. He was dressed in Chinese costume and was listened to with marked attention. He was delighted at the great interest in Chinese missions which he had seen manifested in America, and gave an extended review of the work done in China by missionaries of the Swedish Evangelical Covenant. He expressed great pleasure at having an opportunity to meet his friends here, but at the same time he said that the missionaries who had left China during the recent uprising are all longing to go back to their old fields.

Professor David Nyvall of Chicago, department of the mission work in the United States by the Covenant. From a small beginning it has grown wonderfully, and has reached great proportions. The vast audience listened to the speakers with marked attention.

Bear Head Lake Fire.

D. Wittenberg, of the Tower Logging and Railroad company, returned this morning from Bear Head lake, the scene of the great fire last Thursday. He says the flames made a clean sweep, and that all of the yard was burned over with its contents. The only timber untouched is a small pile close to the mill. The wind was blowing in an opposite direction from the mill, and that is all that saved the plant from destruction. Mr. Wittenberg says the combined loss of all parties interested aggregates $125,000, well covered by insurance. The lumber burned amounted to 8,000,000 feet and was recently sold by the Tower Logging and Railroad company to the Pacific Flight company, of Chicago. The Tower Lumber company, which recently purchased the mill, again have their plant in operation.

Mr. Wittenberg left Tower this morning and a light rain was falling. Up to the time of his departure the storm had not exhibited any of the violence with which it swept over Duluth.

Death Resulted.

Took One Each.

The games between the Duluth Fashions and Hurley yesterday at Hurley were fast ones, although in the afternoon the umpiring was rather bad. In the morning Staub pitched for the Fashions and won his game by a score of 10 to 2, and in the afternoon Lever and O'Connors pitched for the Fashions and Hurley won by 14 to 6.

From all reports the rainfall up on the ranges was about as heavy as that at Duluth. The railroads are working, however, and the mines while experiencing some difficulty with water, were not shutting down to any extent.

THE MIDGETS HERE.

Maj. Winner and Wife at the Great Eastern.

At the Great Eastern store today one would not think that everybody was cussing the weather, as the second floor was packed all day with the crowds that visited Maj. N. G. W. Winner and wife, the smallest married couple known. Maj. Winner is 22 years of age and owes his small size to a severe attack of spinal meningitis. He is a jolly little fellow and a ceaseless talker. He has a remarkably large head, wearing an 8¾ size hat. He is 36 inches high, weighs 80 pounds and enjoys good health. His wife owes her small size to sickness also, as she was unable to walk until she was 4 years of age. Mrs. Winner is 35 inches in height, weighs 65 pounds and is 22 years old. She spends most of her time knitting, while the major entertains the large crowds that are in attendance, and incidentally advertises Burrows' clothes. They have traveled all over the world and are very interesting talkers. Mr. Burrows deserves great credit for securing this attraction, and the children testify to their appreciation in vast crowds. They will be at the Great Eastern every day this week, and no on should miss seeing them, the older ones as well as the younger ones.

MANAGER CHANGED.

Western Union Put New Man Here.

George E. Fletcher, who has been manager of the local office of the Western Union Telegraph company for more than ten years, has resigned and his successor, W. Humes, of Marquette, Mich., is in the city to take up the duties of the position. Mr. Humes has been manager of the Marquette office for some time. Mr. Fletcher has been an obliging representative of the company in Duluth, and his service in that respect has made him many friends. His plans for the future are not yet formed.

LESSONS FROM WAR

Russian State Councillor On Lessons of Transvaal War.

Maneuvers In No Way Related to Real Warfare.

It Has Been Impossible To Wage War Decisively.

London, June 24.—An interesting paper written by Jean de Bloch (the Russian councillor of state and member if the Russian ministry of finance) on the lessons of the Transvaal war, was read at the united service institute today. M. de Bloch declared the South African war had proved that military service, as practiced today, is absurd and that the sacrifice made on the continent to support conscription is unnecessary. The war showed that the theatrical spectacles called maneuvers are in no way related to real warfare. One of the most remarkable features is the constant impossibility of determining the enemy's position. This is not attributable to British defective reconnaissance, but to the new conditions of war. It was not mistakes made by the British nor the qualities of the Boer, who had shown an entire lack of rational strategy and actics, which produced the results seen, but smokeless powder and long range quick-firing rifles, which involved dispersion and invisibility to a degree unheard of formerly and to the possibility of providing riflemen with a large number of cartridges. The action of artillery in South Africa had been generally absolutely contemptible against an entrenched enemy.

The main lesson, continued Councillor de Bloch, was that a successful outcome of a war of aggression could not be hoped for against any great power. I still less against allied powers, no results could be obtained in a great European war. Consequently it had become impossible to wage war decisively.

HORRORS

Of the Flooded Coal Region Cannot Be Told.

New York, June 24.—A dispatch to The Evening World from Bluefield, W. Va., says:

"The corps of searchers and relief workers have penetrated into the flooded coal region only a few miles, but have revealed a state of affairs whose horror cannot be told.

"Many dead bodies have been found and some identified. No estimate can be made of the number of victims as there are one hundred miles to be searched over. Fifteen hundred workmen are clearing debris and re-establishing railway facilities."

Gasoline Yacht Missing With Twenty-five on Board.

St. Louis, June 24.—A report to the effect that the gasoline yacht Charles Edmond was sunk in a storm off Jefferson barracks, twelve miles south, last night, and that twenty-five persons are believed to have been drowned, is being investigated by the police, to whose attention the story was brought this afternoon.

It is said the Edmond was sighted off Jefferson barracks at 7 p. m. yesterday, during a storm. The boat was in distress and was heading for the shore.

The Edmond, which is a handsome gasoline craft, owned by Charles and Edward Twitt, of St. Louis, was due to leave on a trip down the river and was expected to return at 6 o'clock. Twenty-five young men, friends of the Twitts, are said to have been invited to join the party. The boat left her moorings at the foot of Locust street at the appointed time, and has not been sighted since 7 p. m.

Manile, June 24.—The schooner Esmeralda, which has just arrived here from Guam, brings confirmation of the distressing reports in circulation regarding the conditions prevailing in that island. The new tariff stops trade and it is asserted the people will starve unless they receive government support.

Because of the theft of a barrel of whisky from the hospital stores, and owing to his inability to discover the offender, Commander Schroeder, the governor of Guam, issued a proclamation lamenting the prevalence of hoodlumism and on account of the punitive and disciplinary measures adopted, seventy-five marines fled from the barracks and hid in the interior of the island. Seventy-two of these men were recaptured and were awaiting trial by court-martial when the Esmeralda sailed.

QUIZ CLASSES.

"Quiz classes on the various big railroads," said a veteran railroad man to the New York Sun, "are a new idea. Accidents are mostly caused by a want of knowledge of railroad rules, and for this reason various quiz masters have been put at work.

"A quiz master generally has an entire car to himself in which he travels over the lines. He has the employes of each section in his list, and they are notified when and where to appear for quiz class on the rule.

"When this idea was first introduced the men did not take to it kindly. They are generally exceedingly well-informed men, but there are always some things that need explanation. For instance, a quiz master will take a whole train crew at once and put them through a preliminary examination that will very soon develop points that they know very little about. Rules are all right, but frequently there are things that need explanation and elucidation, things that the rules do not exactly cover. After a trainhand had passed the ordeal of an impartial quiz he is doubly competent to do his duty.

"The employes are being graded by the quiz master. After he finds that a trainman is not only thoroughly informed as to the rules but as to any situation that may arise in his work he gives him a certificate. It is a sort of a diploma that will entitle him to the best consideration of any employing railroad official. The trainhands who do not first pass the examinations have other chances. If they are likely men and take an interest in things, they are patiently instructed and examined again.

"Every company has its book of rules for all classes of railroad labor. These rules are the basis of the knowledge of the men. It is deemed best that the men shall know these rules by heart. Then comes in the work of the quiz master. He must see that they know exactly what each rule means, and if ever there is an exception to a rule, when and where it must be exercised. Of course, all this means that in the near future no train man can secure employment unless he has a certificate. Railroad companies are tired of recruiting new men and then training them into service. Railroad employes are to be expert workmen. They will gradually receive better pay, according to the merit of their certificate. Such a certificate not only covers their ability as trainmen, but it has to do with their moral character, integrity, sobiety and standing in the community in which they live.

"Thousands and thousands of dollars are now being saved to rolling stock and equipment, simply because employes are being drilled into a thorough knowledge of taking care of cars and trackage. This new education of train hands by the quiz masters takes in everything from the brakeman of a coal train to the engineer and conductor of a lightning express. It takes in station masters, telegraph operators, train despatchers, signal-tower men, crossing watchmen, flagmen, track walkers and repair gangs."

EVIDENCE

That Was Circumstantial But Kentuckian Was Hanged.

Drummer Tells a Story Showing Death of Innocent Man.

They were talking in the hotel office about a Kentucky case and the conversation turned naturally into a discussion of the value of circumstantial evidence, says the New York Sun. The sporting man couldn't see how on the evidence given against the dentist any sane person could have voted for the acquittal of the murderer of Dolly Reynolds and said strong things about what he would have done to the jurymen who differed from him had he been in the jury room at the recent trial. Most of the others were inclined to agree with him.

"Gentlemen," said the drummer from the South, who had been shifting uneasily in his chair during these remarks without having had a chance to break into the discussion, "I should have agreed with you about six months ago, in fact before my last trip South; but now, should I ever have the power, never would I vote to condemn any human being to death on circumstantial evidence alone."

There seemed to be a story coming and the other men waited while the drummer chose a fresh cigar and lighted it.

"On my last trip," said the drummer, "I pased through the Western part of Kentucky and there I heard this story, which forever has destroyed my faith in uncorroborated circumstantial evidence. It was down in Barren county. I was struck by the appearance of a fine old mansion. They told me down there that it had belonged to a wealthy and aristocratic family named Hamilton, now extinct, and then I heard of the crime which for years put the Hamiltons under a cloud of disgrace.

"Somewhere about 1825, when the family held their heads as high as any folk in Western Kentucky, John Hamilton, the young head of the house, took to Louisiana a drove of mules for the Southern market. In New Orleans he was stricken with yellow fever and lay for weeks at the point of death. At the hospital in which he was confined was a certain Dr. Sanderson. The doctor took a fancy to young Hamilton, and pulled him through the fever.

"Hamilton on his part seemed to take an equal liking to Sanderson. They were thrown much together while Hamilton was recovering, and a warm friendship sprang up between them. Sanderson had money and when the time came for Hamilton to leave the hospital, the Kentuckian invited his friend to return with him and try a venture in the slave market in Kentucky. Sanderson was only too willing. He resigned his post in the hospital and the two men started out together on horseback through the then almost untraveled wilderness between Louisiana and the Blue Grass state.

"They arrived safely at the Hamilton homestead and Sanderson was hospitably entertained for two weeks. He had brought with him $10,000 for investment in slave dealing, and he was anxious to go on further to a part of Kentucky where the people would be more readily invested. The $10,000 was the bonds of the Louisiana State bank. One summer morning the doctor took his departure for the slave market at Glasgow, and young Hamilton rode with him for a mile or two to get him on his way and to wish him good luck.

"Hamilton returned in an hour or two and went about his work. Several days passed and nothing was heard of the doctor. Then one morning, the horse on which he had ridden away from the Hamilton homestead was found riderless in the road a few miles outside of Glasgow. The saddle was stained with blood. In the grass by the roadide not far away there was picked up a brass-barreled flint-lock pistol. It was recognized as belonging to Hamilton, the lock was broken and a fragment of it was missing.

"Further search revealed in a shallow hole only about 300 feet from where the pistol was found a decaying body which was readily identified as Dr. Sanderson's. The $10,000 worth of bonds which he had carried away with him were missing.

"Now, all this was discovered before Hamilton was informed that his friend was dead. As soon as the body was found he was placed under arrest accused of the murder. On the first day of the trial he did was to produce from the lining of his hat the $10,000 worth of Louisiana state bonds, which Dr. Sanderson had brought to Kentucky. He did so protesting that the doctor had given them to him in exchange for cash and that he was innocent of the murder, but nobody believed him.

"Then a pair of blood-stained overalls that had been worn by Hamilton were found in a corn crib and the evidence seemed complete. The young man was placed on trial at the next term of court. All that he had had the best of reputation, and his friends had been legion. He hadn't many friends left when he went to trial. One of the ablest lawyers in the Kentucky bar of that day defended him, but it was a hopeless case.

"Hamilton took the stand on his own behalf and he was an excellent witness, according to the grades they've handed down in Kentucky. He swore that he accompanied Dr. Sanderson a mile or two on his way, had given him a pistol because the doctor had none and also had persuaded Sanderson to exchange his bonds for United States currency because he thought the doctor might have difficulty in cascading the bonds. He had bidden Sanderson Godspeed at last, he said, and had left him riding away toward Glasgow.

"A negro was ready to testify that he had seen the overalls with blood himself, having stolen them from his master, to wear to a party. But he was a slave and his testimony was inadmissible. Few of those who heard it regarded Hamilton's story of a cleverly concocted tale to account for circumstances so clearly against him. The jury certainly didn't believe it, and, as I thought before hearing of the outcome, I would have done as those jurymen did.

"In spite of the many efforts to save him Hamilton was adjudged guilty. He was condemned to death and executed, protesting his innocence even on the scaffold. Only one person believed in the probability of the man's story being true. He was the judge.

"'I believe John Hamilton was innocent of the murder of Dr. Sanderson,' they say he told Hamilton's friends after the execution. 'But by God, the very wind of Heaven blew against me in that trial.'

"And now comes the most astonishing part of the story. Many years after Hamilton's execution, there died in Western Kentucky an old half-witted man named King. On his deathbed his mind seemed to grow clear and he sent for witnesses and told them what he said was the true story of the murder of Dr. Sanderson.

"One day while wandering as a lad in the woods near the road to Glasgow, he saw a stranger riding past alone. A minute later the sheriff of Barren county, the man who afterward found Hamilton's broken pistol on the road, who was instrumental in finding Sanderson's body and who was Hamilton's bitterest prosecutor in the proceedings that followed, appeared from the opposite direction. The sheriff rode past the stranger, turned and rode up to him, wrenched the pistol from his saddle and dealt him a blow that knocked him from his horse.

"The dying man who told this swore that the sheriff knelt beside the body and searched it. Then, seeing the lad watching him from a little distance, he called him and made him help carry the body to a sand hole where it was afterward found. They covered it with leaves and then the sheriff, after threatening the lad with instant death, should he ever tell what he had seen, remounted and rode away. Such was his fear of the murderer, the old man said, that he had kept the secret, though keeping it had driven him half crazy.

"One Gaspar D. Craddock had been sheriff of Barren county when the crime was committed. He lived for years afterward in a distant part of the state, but a short time before the old man's tale was told he had disappeared. Investigation showed that not long after Hamilton's execution Cdarrock had deposited nearly $20,000 in United States currency in a bank in that part of Kentucky to which he moved, and from his subsequent life no one who knew him doubted for a moment that he was really the murderer of Dr. Sanderson.

"In his new home the ex-sheriff gave himself up to a life of crime and violence. The citizens who had lived near him finally warned him to leave the community if he valued his life, and a few days later disappeared. He was recognized long afterward in Cuba and the desperate ruse by which he got away from Kentucky was then revealed. They say it was characteristic of the man.

"One night soon after he had been warned to leave Kentucky, Craddock was called from his house by a stranger. The next day, in a hog pen a few yards from the house, was found a body clad in the remains of Craddock's clothes, but so gnawed and mutilated by the hogs that it was unrecognizable. Every mark by which Craddock might have been recognized was obliterated, but from the clothes the body was supposed undoubtedly to be Craddock's, though I believe his neighbors wondered how he could have fallen into the hogpen.

"It was realized when news came that Craddock was alive in Cuba that he had either murdered his caller and after exchanging clothes had thrown his body into the pen, knowing what the result would be, or that he had disinterred and thrown into the pen some newly buried body for the purpose of concealing his flight.

"There, gentlemen," concluded the drummer from the South. "This is no fairy tale. It is well-known in Western Kentucky, and when I heard it from the lips of men whose fathers well knew Hamilton and the circumstances attending his trial, I resolved never again to believe uncorroborated circumstantial evidence. Now, gentlemen, name your poison."

And the party adjourned to the bar and discussed circumstantial evidence all over again.

A TINY SPARK

Conveys a Message to the Peaceful Boer.

The big fighting is over, with its Ladysmiths, Modder rivers and Stormbergs, and in its place a new warfare has sprung up, a warfare on the run. The British are in Pretoria; they hold the towns and the railways, and the lively, waspish commandoes are active in their endeavors to make the outside country uninhabitable, says the London Chronicle.

There are in the Transvaal tranquil, whitewashed, iron-roofed dorps, through which the trains run twice daily with a homely punctuality; where shopkeepers grow fat in trade with the big garrisons and officers fill comfortable billets as provost marshals, district commissioners and what not, which are none the less in a state of actual siege, so far as their surroundings go. In the streets and market places, in the shops and pretty houses, there is nothing—save the everlasting topic of conversation—to indicate the presence of war and the proximity of an armed foe. Good-natured soldiers lounge through the place and guards change with a clash and rattle at the corners of the streets. It looks rather like Germany in khaki, and the good relations which prevail between the townsfolk and the soldiery heighten the resemblance. Surrendered burghers, who have handed their Sunday-best Mausers and temporarily suspended active operations, smoke on their stoops with an outward air of patriarchial decency that disarms the caution and invites good faith. To them the Britisher, with his belts and bayonets, ranks and files, stars and grades, is an ever-interesting anomaly; a puzzling creature to be tolerated to a certain point, but to be sniped at and rushed on proper occasion. They come and they go, these burghers, regarding each other meanwhile like the laws of the old constitution, framed for the advantage and not for the oppression of the wise men.

This is a view of the inside. Beyond the pickets it is otherwise. From the hills, which rise abruptly like islands standing out of the water the gray, comfortless veldt rolls mutely to the very skirts of the town. The skyline is bare and clean as the edge of a knife, and, looking straight before one, one seems to see the rim of the earth. An ox stalks solemnly across his grazing ground; he is the only moving thing visible between here and the sky. An innocent outlook; a most innocent outlook. So innocent and open that the cossack post, striding slowly from one bowlder to another and back again—it is well to have cover at hand—almost permits himself to think of home—and that girl. In the Transvaal the night drops quickly: "at one stride comes the dark." The twilight, for the few brief minutes that it lasts, is exquisite. It smooths out the creases of the day, healing where the sun has touched, easing where the dust has stung, cooling the brain and comforting the body. The cossack post does think of home; he remembers just such another evening. Then there was something with him, and the talk was not of war.

But—a light, a mere spark, winks across the miles. It might have been a star, reconnoitering over the edge of a cloud before making its debut at the dance of the zodiac. On the other hand, it might have been a signal lamp, an affair of lenses and pivots, the tongue of a fate, and who was Hamilton's bitterest prosecutor in the proceedings that followed, appeared from the opposite direction. The sheriff rode past the stranger, turned and rode up to him, wrenched the pistol from his saddle and dealt him a blow that knocked him from his horse.

"The dying man who told this swore that the sheriff knelt beside the body and searched it. Then, seeing the lad watching him from a little distance, he called him and made him help carry the body to a sand hole where it was afterward found. They covered it with leaves and then the sheriff, after threatening the lad with instant death, should he ever tell what he had seen, remounted and rode away. hannes Cotezee, and he has four sons on commando and three more buried down by the Tugela. His wife and daughters are out yonder on the farm, protected from plunder and insult2 by a fiat of Great Britain, and their eggs and poultry are very comforting to the poor fellows out in the hills with their rifles. His cattle, it is true, were commandered by an irresponsible brigadier, racing northward with his column to join French, but who, nevertheless, found time to leave a receipt in full insuring generous payment. And Petrus Johannes Coetzee finds the British officer very affable and sympathetic, and takes great interest in the army news that he hears.

His friends outside carry on an affectionate correspondence with him, and their side there is the helio and signal lamp; on the other that marvelous machine, the Kaffir telegraph. Kaffirs are vermin, as we know, and much lower in the scale of creation than the oxen they tend. This we have on the authority of the Boers, who ought to know, for they have hunted them, fought them, killed them, used them and damned them long since. But the Boer has taught us as little of the inwardness of the Kaffir as of the source of his armament. We work the Kaffir bodily; the Boer knows how to enslave his soul.

A Kaffir walks out of the town toward dusk in the direction of the "location." More than likely he is a very fine Kaffir, with the limbs and trunk of an Antinous and a face of human intelligence. He saunters, with the peculiar Kaffir swing of the body, along the edge of the gutter, for he has no place, by the adopted law of the land, on hte sidewalk, and passes unobserved everywhere by the man with the guns. Perhaps a policeman, in khaki and spurs, stops him to inspect his pass, or unless he be labeled human, he is mere stray cattle. But that document is in exemplary order. He is in the employ of ——— Brothers, as laborer, and lives in the location, whither he goes.

But before morning that Kaffir is eating freshly killed beef and mealies, in the lager on the hills, while Commandant Van der Westhuizen eagerly peruses a certain letter extending over several sheets of paper. And Petrus Johannes Coetzee, in his bedroom in the town, looks over his pipe howl and lifts up his eyes to the hills whence cometh a certain message in dots and dashes from a lamp, advising receipt of his communication of even date.

Nevertheless, the intelligence department offers to hammer you in two rounds if you make any reference to "lucus a non lucendo."

HAMMER DIAMONDS.

You can test diamonds by merely hitting them with a hammer. If the stone resists it is certain to be genuine; if it does not, the damage is insignificant, as only an imitation has been destroyed. The test, however, is doubtful with rubies. If a ruby can be affected by a steel file or by quartz, it is surely not genuine; but such a test with topaz is liable to injure a valuable stone, says the Cincinnati Enquirer.

The test for hardness is of no avail with emeralds, as this stone is not much harder than quartz, and in addition possesses the quality of cracking easily.

For examining rubies and emeralds the optical test is best. A glass magnifying about 100 times suffices. Every expert knows that almost all precious stones have little flaws. Nearly every ruby and all emeralds have many defects, which are so characteristic that the genuineness of the stones is readily established. Such a test is very necessary with rubies, because the imitations are very deceiving. The diamond is absolutely durable, and often much finer than that of the genuine, although it may be stated that a somewhat yellowish tint is always suspicious.

The only reliable way in which genuine rubies can be told from imitations is by the minute air bubles of the latter, which become clearly visible under the magnifying glass. These are not to be found in the natural gem; on the other hand, the imitations lack certain defects characteristic of the genuine rubies—certain vacuums, whose outlines are much more indistinct than those of the air bubles in imitations.

Large Sales at Ashland Docks Are Clearing There.

The last week was monotonous in the lumber trade. The mills are busy day and night, ships arrive daily and take large cargoes of lumber sold during the winter, no change in prices, inquiries continually being made, large arrivals of logs by steamer and rail, and a more pronounced scarcity of good men for operations in the woods, cover the situation in a few words.

Nearly all of the logs lost on the north shore in the gale of ten days ago have been recovered. Most of them have been gathered up already. There have been some small losses on the south shore. The rivers are not high, but some heavy rains have fallen during the past few days and will help out. Some of the rivers have been very low, so as to interfere seriously with driving. This is the case not only in this immediate neighborhood, but on the Upper Mississippi also, and driving crews without number have been laid up. Mills here are well supplied with logs, however. The heavy rain of last night will cause a flood of water in all the streams, as the downpour seems to have been general over the Lake Superior region.

Water shipments for the week amounted to 11,235,000 feet. For the present month they have been about 25,000,000 feet. There is no change in the vessel rate for the week. There is a sharp demand for all large boats in the ore trade, and there have been more of the smaller class of lumber hookers in the Lake Superior trade than for some years. Their business elsewhere seems to have fallen off.

Mitchell & McClure will build a logging road from a point on the Duluth & Iron Range road near York, using the rails, etc., from the line back of Duluth, which was taken up this spring. Little other logging road work is planned for this section of this year, except an Alger-Smith extension, the usual spurs to present lines and the Duluth, Virginia & Rainy Lake, whose contracts have been unavoidably delayed.

The Eva lake sawmill of Seaman & Co., on the Canadian Northern road, was burned last week. It was a small mill, but was to cut a large amount of timber needed for the new road. It will be rebuilt.

Messrs. Scott, Arpin, Finger and Hickson, of the Pigeon River Lumber company, have been in Duluth some days and have now gone down the north shore to their property. They are logging extensively on Pigeon river and have large timber berths on that river and its tributaries and a large mill at Fort William.

Logs are coming out slowly on the Bayfield Western road from the Scott-Graff camps in Street, Chatfield & Co.'s timber; half a train daily is the total. It is expected this will be doubled shortly.

The John O'Brien Lumber company made one of the largest sales of lumber last Tuesday that has been made in Ashland for some time, 5,000,000 feet of white pine, delivery to begin immediately. It is understood that the stock will go to Eastern parties. The purchase price was in the neighborhood of $75,000. The lumber is already sawed, and most of it is on the docks of the South Shore Lumber company at Washburn, and the rest on the docks of the W. R. Durfee Lumber company at Ashland.

The docks at Ashland are greatly relieved of their lumber as the result of the heavy shipments from this port during the past ten days, especially those of the Ashland Lumber company and the East End mill, owned by the Nester estate. The lumber being shipped from these docks is stock sold in the spring mostly, although some of it is from more recent sales. The Ashland Lumber company reports having made several small sales during the past week to Cleveland, Buffalo and Chicago parties.

The Ashland, Iron River & Siskowit railroad has just finished a week that has proven a record-breaker. During the week ending June 15 the road hauled a total of 1945 cars of logs over its rails and dumped them into Chequamegon bay near Nash. This is an average of over 300 cars a day. The amount of logs hauled can be better understood when it is stated that about 1000 men are employed to get out these logs, and that they clear over forty acres of land in a day. At this rate it would not be many years before the pine land in Northern Wisconsin will be entirely cleared and the lumbermen will have to look for other fields.

Excursionists Leave.

Twelve hundred happy excursionists left Duluth yesterday for their homes in Western Minnesota and Eastern Dakota. Their last day spent in Duluth was a perfect one for visiting the pleasure resorts. Apparently every one in the party had their expectations of entertainment fulfilled. Twenty-two coaches were needed on the two sections of the train to accommodate the returning tourists. This was the last excursion which comes to Duluth until July 4.

Mr. James Brown, of Putsmouth, Va., over 50 years of age suffered from a bad sore on his face. Physicians could not help him. DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve cured him permanently. Max Wirth.

COMPROMISE.

One Suggested to Linemen But Not Yet Accepted.

The two telephone companies have offered to compromise with the striking linemen on a 9-hour basis. The strikers hold out for eight hours, however, and their position has been endorsed by the leading labor organizations and aided considerably by last night's storm. The storm knocked out several circuits, and linemen were scarce to do the repairing.

At the meeting of the Federated Trades' assembly on Saturday night a committee was appointed to urge an adjustment of the strike. The members of this committee are Gordon O'Neil, 'Longshoremen's union; Henry Dworschak, Typographical union, and S. Kielley, of the Carpenters' union.

This committee, together with a committee from the Electrical Workers' union met the managers of the two telephone companies yesterday, but the conference did not result in anything definite except the offer to compromise on a 9-hour basis.

COMMITTEE KICKS.

Comments on Action of Some Business People.

The committee on publicity of the Fourth of July elecbration has a grievance against the business men who have taken the advertisements of the Fourth of July celebration out of their windows and replaced them with those of a show that is coming here about the same time. It is particularly noticeable that the saloons have done this very generally. As the object of the Fourth of July celebration is to bring people into the city, and thus aid the business people, the committee thinks it is a very mean spirit that will allow a thing of that kind. The celebration will keep the money in town and the other will take it out. The idea is all the more repugnant from the fact that it is probable that the inducement which prompts the change is the presentation of a couple of complimentary tickets.

WOULD NOT CALL COOK.

Madagascar's Captain Prefers Charges Against Mate.

For refusing to call the cook in the morning the captain of the steamer Madagascar has filed a formal complaint against Martin R. Donohue, who was first mate of the vessel. The complaint is a very formal document, and would seem to recite a grievous offense.

Capt. John Jenks, master of the steamer, charges that Martin R. Donohue was guilty of wilful disobedience of orders and neglect of duty, on June 16, on Lake Superior, in American waters. He refused to obey orders, and thereby caused the crew to rebel, "stopping my steamer for the period of an hour, at great risk to the steamer and cargo, causing loss of time and money to the business of said steamer."

When this was handed to Supervising Inspector John D. Sloan, who has been here in the absence of Inspectors Monaghan and Chalk, who are in the Rainy Lake country, he showed much interest, as it seemed to narrate a serious offense. When he asked the captain as to the nature of the offense and learned that the mate refused to awaken the cook from his morning slumbers and that breakfast had been thereby delayed, he was quite overcome.

There has evidently been a hot time on the Madagascar lately, and Mr. Donohue has been in it. After the arrival of the boat he caused the arrest of the first engineer for assault, but his case was not sustained. Then the captain announced that the mate was a disturbing element and that he would prefer charges against him. This charge is probably the threatened one.

JUMPED THROUGH WINDOW.

Leaps From Car and Escapes Uninjured.

A man named Christopher Lachoski, en route from St. Paul to Duluth on a Northern Pacific train yesterday, while temporarily deranged, leaped, feet foremost, through a car window, near Hinckley, while the train was moving at full speed. The train was stopped and the train crew and some of the passengers started back with the intention of picking up Lachoski's body. Rounding a curve they saw the man walking along the track uninjured, the only mark on his person being a cut on the thumb, which he received from the glass as he went through the window. Lachoski was unable to explain the reason for his wild jump, but as he began to recover his senses shortly after returning to the train it is supposed that the intense heat at St. Paul resulted in his becoming temporarily demented. Lachoski left the train at Willow River, where he has a married daughter living. He recently left New York city and came West for the purpose of visiting relatives.

W. C. Holden Dead.

W. C. Holden, formerly of Duluth, died suddenly from apoplexy at Kearney, Neb., Saturday night. Mr. Holden was prominently identified in the A. P. A. movement when it had a vogue here in 1893, and he published a paper called "Liberty" in the interests of that movement. He was about 58 years of age.

Loss Is Heavier.

The damage caused by the fire at the West Superior hotel, Saturday morning, is heavier than was at first announced. After a thorough investigation the management is of the opinion that the hotel cannot be repaired and the furniture replaced for less than $5000.

Unnecessary Loss of Time.

Mr. W. S. Whedon, cashier of the First National Bank of Winterset, Iowa, in a recent letter, gives some experience with a carpenter in his employ that will be of value to other mechanics. He says: "I had a carpenter working for me who was obliged to stop work on account of being troubled with diarrhoea. I mentioned to him that I had been similarly troubled and that Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy had cured me. He bought a bottle of it from the druggist here and informed me that one dose cured him, and he is again at his work." For sale at Boyce's drug store.

ASHLAND DOWNED

Wisconsin Men Failed to Connect With Glenny's Curves.

Manage to Score But Once to Duluth's Six.

Home Team Is Strong and Only Needs Patronage.

Duluth put Ashland in the hole yesterday afternoon to the tune of 6 to 1, and did it handily too. The game showed some of the knockers that Duluth can play ball if she gets only half a chance, and it cannot be said any more that Duluth has no pitchers, as Glenny showed up in great style, striking out four men. He evidently tried himself when he faced Gardener, as that far famed stick man went down before the redoubtable Duluthian three times. The Ashland manager sawed but twice during the whole of last season, and yesterday he got each of his first two strikes by knocking fouls. The game started very auspiciously for Ashland, as the first three Duluthians at the bat each knocked an infant fly and stopped at first. Then Glenny sent the first two mining men to first on balls, but redeemed himself by striking out Gardener and giving Lagger and Pease scratchy hits, retiring them at the starting post. In the second inning, Randall sent a screaching two-bagger into the right field, fully ten feet inside the foul line, but the umpire called it foul, and Randall was unable to do the trick a second time and went out at first. Erickson gave Cameron his base on balls and sent him to second by extending the same courtesy to Hansell. Augustine, the fast Superior pitcher, who was in the outfield for Duluth yesterday, brought in the two runs with a well placed single and went to second on Sturgeon's single. Glenny knocked out at first and McLaren, the new third baseman, went up against the Ashland pitcher for two turns, bringing in Augustine and Sturgeon. Lambert went out at first, retiring the side.

In the second inning only five Ashland men went to bat, two getting hits which took them to first, but the other three men all went out at the start. Shepard and Randall each went out on scrub hits and Cameron sawed. Ware, Ashland's fast first baseman, got a two-base hit, Gardener sawed and Ware went to third, getting there on an error by McLaren. Lagger knocked a pop up fly which Shepard muffed and Ashland scored. However, it was the last time that they did the trick, as Pease and Felix each went out at first. In the fourth Hansell went out on a pop up fly, Gardener caught a foul on the redoubtable Augustine, Sturgeon got to first on errors, stole second and was left there, when Glenny went out on a fly to Thorp.

In the fourth Thorp was hit and was left at second. Duluth went down one, two, three, and Ashland did likewise. Randall got his base on balls, made a spectacular steal of second and went to third on Cameron's sacrifice. Hansell was hit and stole second on a walk, as Gardener did not dare to try to stop him for fear of letting Randall in. Augustine got another well-placed hit, bringing Randall in and advancing Hansell to third. He stole second likewise, and Sturgeon tried to sacrifice, but Thorp got the ball over to Ware, putting Jupiter out, and then sent it home to Gardener too quickly for Hansell, who was caught at the plate. Felix singled, but died at second on Gordon's hit. The latter went to second on a wild pitch by Glenny, but Cole and Erickson each went down on hits to Thorp. Duluth went out on three scrub hits, and Ashland dittoed. Shepard got to first on errors and came the rest of the way home on a wild throw by Ware to Pease. That about ended the game, as neither side scored in the ninth.

Although Ashland secured the most hits, they had more men struck out and gave more bases on balls than Duluth. Erickson, the Ashland pitcher, is an all-around player and chalked up two hits to his credit. Thorp and Ware play together better than any of the other members of the team, and most of the put-outs are credited to them.

McLaren, the new third baseman, has been showing up well in practice and secured a clean 2-base hit, but made one rather bad error, giving Ware, the only man who scored, his third. He was rather timid about throwing to first, but bids fair to become one of the fastest men on the team. Hansell played an excellent game, and covered his territory without an error for twelve put-outs. Augustine made two of the four hits, and brought in runs each time. All of the rest of the men played good ball, and the prospects for a first-class ball team are looming up brighter. All they need now is financial support and for some of the knockers to go into their holes for a while. About 500 spectators saw the game.

Cameron, who has been playing such a good game on second and third, left this morning for Milton, S. D., where he will play in the state league. He is a good man and his place cannot be easily filled.

ARE ROASTING UP.

Brooklyn Already Turning on President Greatsinger.

President Greatsinger, of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit company, is beginning to learn that running a street railway system is different from running a railroad, whose main business is to carry iron ore. Not that he will not win out, for everyone who has watched his work while here, will believe that he will, but the public is exacting and expects much. When Mr. Greatsinger first went to Brooklyn and for some time afterward the newspapers there were full of "jollies" for him. Now although only about three months have elapsed, they are beginning to roast him.

The Eagle, which was one of the first to predict good things under his regime, had a cartoon last Thursday that would make all of Mr. Greatsinger's friends smile if they could see it. It pictures him on a stage rendering a song entitled "Brooklyn Slow Transit Rendered Slower," by Mr. Greatsinger. Tune, 'The Poor Suburbanite.'" The audience is hurling all kinds of missiles at him. Bay Ridge, one of the suburbs, sent in a bludgeon labeled "The worst that ever happened." Flat Bush sends in another labeled "Get thee hence." Another bears this funny label: "Are there any more like you?"

The cartoon is entitled "He may be a Great-singer, but he's badly out of tune with suburbanites."

All of which goes to show that fame is shortlived, that the public is fickle and that the News Tribune's "jolly" this morning was well meant, but slightly off.

DISMISSED.

Charges Against Cedar Island Lake Settlers Not Sustained.

G. A. Burns, Henry Wickey, Michael Cronin and Ephraim Trenholm, the Cedar Island lake settlers who were arrested last week charged with having designs to blow up the Cloquet Lumber company's dam, were discharged by Justice Saari at Sparta Saturday.

The men were arrested on a warrant sworn out by the Cloquet Lumber company, on the grounds that the settlers were acting in a suspicious manner in the vicinity of the dam which the lumber company has repaired for the purpose of driving the logs banked in Cedar Island lake. The settlers admitted that they were there with pick and shovel to cut a ditch around the dam and change the channel of the Fly river, but they say they were doing this because the dam was closed and caused the water to overflow the bottoms which the settlers have planted.

The case came up in Justice Anderson's court, but a change of venue was taken to the court presided over by Justice Saari. County Attorney McClintock appeared for the state and R. R. Briggs for the settlers. Mr. McClintock wanted the settlers placed under bonds to keep the peace. After the hearing Judge Saari dismissed the case. This was his first case as justice.

Printers Who Sprint.

Charles Carlson, a well known member of the Typographical union, ran 100 yards in remarkable time at the Svea Glee club's picnic up the St. Louis river yesterday. He was entered in the fat man's race, and the report is that he sprinted down between the tape in ten seconds flat. There is some talk of matching him against Ed Prophet, who is said to be one of the fastest men in the union, and the printers are preparing to put up large sums of money on the result.

Eagles at Clam Bake.

About 350 members of the Order of Eagles, of Duluth and Superior, with their friends went to Virginia yesterday, where the aerie of that town gave its first clam bake. A special train took the party up in the morning and back last night, a band accompanying the party, and a high time is reported. There was a parade when Virginia was reached, and then everybody went to Sparta, where the events of the day took place. There was a 6-round bout between Ramsey, a colored fighter from Terre Haute, Ind., and Nelson, "the Terrible Swede," from North Dakota. There was a wrestling match between A. H. Kelkey, of Iowa, and Jack Welch, of Superior, which the former won. Songs, dances and sketches by variety performers were included in the program.

The annual message of Mrs. Mary Baker P. Eddy to her communicants was read Sunday at the Mother church in Boston. The message was in substance a reply to attaks on the church. She defended the belief strenuously and prophesied the continued growth of Christian Science. The church, she said, now had 21,631 communicants and that since last November 2266 had been added. Fully 10,000 people attended the service during the day.

The Growth of the Railroad.

The Russian ministry of public works keeps a complete record of the steam railway mileage of the world and its increase from year to year. It has recently made a report which covers the five years from the beginning of 1895 to the end of 1899 and gives the total railway mileage and the percentage of increase in all parts of the world. Though Europe has made more relative progress in railroad construction during the last five years than the United States, our country is still far in the lead in railroad mileage and the value of railroad property and there is no reason to believe that it will ever be surpassed in this department. The United States is credited with 216,200 miles of railway and an increase of about 5 per cent in railway mileage during the five years covered by this comparison. Europe had at the end of 1899 172,621 miles of railway, an increase of 10.5 per cent; South America 27,874 miles, an increase of 16.8 per cent. Africa shows the largest relative increase of railway mileage, 53 per cent and had a total mileage of 12,501. Asia is credited with 35,938 miles of railway, an increase in five years of 33.3 per cent. The great advance in railroad building in Africa and Asia indicates the rapid opening up of those continents to civilization and settlement. The dark corners of the earth are already few and in a few years will have disappeared altogether. The railroad is a great civilizer.

Eddie On Presidential Candidacies.

Representative Eddy, one of Minnesota's very talkative congressmen, is in Washington after a tour through some of the Western states on a fast train—and has unbosomed himself on the question of the Republican nomination for president in 1904. In a conversation with a representative of the Brooklyn Eagle, Mr. Eddy said: "There is a very strong sentiment favorable to Roosevelt for president throughout the West. The enthusiasm for him is greater in my state and in the middle Western states than for any other man and there can be no doubt that if the West were to have the privilege of naming the nominee, he would be Roosevelt. A most surprising thing to me was that on reaching New York I heard no talk of Roosevelt for president at all. Coming direct from the West where his name is on every one's tongue, this was striking. Odell is the man talked of there for presidential honors. The present governor of New York completely overshadows the vice president in the Empire State. I could not tell how much this current gossip amounts to, as recent happenings in the state have tended to bring Odell forward into a prominent public position. I feel no hesitancy in making the prediction that if Roosevelt should be able to get the support of New York in the nominating convention he would win out, as he would have the votes of the West. I also feel warranted in saying that should Odell be the choice of New York state, Foraker will beat him in the convention. Next to Roosevelt the West seems to favor Foraker. The latter is remarkably strong with the masses of the people in our section of the country, and has a tighter hold on them than any other Western candidate. So far as I can judge Roosevelt is about the only Eastern man who could go into the convention and draw Western votes from Foraker. Spooner is well thought of in Minnesota as well as in his native state, and he commands respect wherever his ability as a statesman and lawyer, and his integrity as a public man, are known. Fairbanks is taken at about his real worth, and there are not many who believe that he will get the nomination. As I said before, Roosevelt is the present favorite of the West, with Foraker as second choice." It would be interesting to learn where Mr. Eddy learned that in the West Roosevelt's name is on every one's tongue. The fact is there is hardly any talk on the subject now. That Foraker would be preferred to Odell is merely a reflection of Mr. Eddy's own sentiments.

HANNA'S FIRST BOW.

Mark Hanna has made his bow to the public as a presidential candidate. He gathered up an armful of bouquets, some of which he threw at "my distinguished colleague" Foraker, a few he dropped in the lap of "our friend and neighbor" McKinley, and the balance he pinned on his own coat.

Of all those concerned in the gathering, Hanna was the most pleased with the speech. Of all those of whom Hanna spoke, Mark was the best pleased with what he said. Mark is very desirous to have his distinguished colleague go back to the senate—sure! By that same token he would like to see Roosevelt and Odell and Cullom and Fairbanks and Allison and Shaw and everybody else who wants to go to the senate go thus. He is more liberal than that. He would be pleased to see some who do not want to go to the senate go there. The senate is a good place to shelve aspiring politicians. It has for years been the top pantry shelf where the political preserves have been kept. Sometimes they are taken down and thrown out of doors, but that is when there is something wrong with their political contents. They never get on the presidential shelf. How Mark Hanna expects to break the charm, none but Mark himself knows.

Mark Hanna, as a candidate—a truly candidate—for the presidency, will strike the average man as most funny. It is almost as funny as the serious announcement of the candidacy of Chauncey Depew for the same office would be. Depew and Hanna aspiring to be president of the United States would be much like the village joker and the village bully aspiring to be the village mayor, or the circuit judge. The idea strikes the mind as being out of perspective, incongruous and therefore ridiculous. Think of a president of the United States with the record of Mark Hanna! But this consummation is not impossible. It is a matter of machinery and the Republican machine may grind out anything.

That Mark Hanna is infected with the presidential itch there can be little doubt. He has had it for some time. He managed to have his name sprung on the public immediately after the election last fall. The shouts over McKinley's victory had scarcely ceased to assault that ear when Hanna was offered the succession. Like Imperial Caesar he refused it once, twice, thrice, but now—it is time to sacrifice himself upon the altar of his country.

Mark is modest withal in his coy announcement. He claims the prosperity of the last four years as his work. He does not even admit the influence of the Almighty as McKinley sometimes does. Such modesty should be rewarded and it will be rewarded. If this could be brought about he would be snowed under so deep that plutocracy would be a half century digging itself out of the debris.

TRADE WITH CANADA.

A petition has been addressed to President McKinley by the Boston chamber of commerce, asking that such steps as are necessary be taken, either by reconvening the Anglo-American joint high commission or such other method as may seem expedient, to prepare on the basis of equivalent concessions a reciprocal trade agreement between the United States and Canada, which may be brought before congress at its next session. A report to the chamber sets forth that since the last meeting of the joint commission trade relations have grown more strained between the two countries, "brought about by the unwillingness of the Canadians to buy largely of us and our unwillingness, through special tariff restrictions, to buy largely from them." Yet it is pointed out in the report that during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1900, we purchased from the Canadians goods for our own consumption to the value of $39,000,000, while in the same twelve months they purchased of us for their consumption goods to the value of $102,000,000. These figures apparently do not indicate an unwillingness on the part of the Canadians to buy American goods.

There have been reports recently from Canadian sources that the joint high commission is to be reconvened, but there is nothing known at Washington in regard to the matter. If the commission should be reconvened, it will, of course, be to consider all the questions pending between the United States and the Dominion. It is most improbable that our government would ask for another meeting of the commission for the sole purpose of preparing a reciprocal trade agreement. In view of the fact that Canada was in large measure, if not wholly, responsible for the failure of negotiations at the two meetings of the commission, it is doubtful if this government will now take the initiative for reconvening the commission. That should be done by Canada, and if the Canadian government should make the request, there is no doubt the United States would promptly and gladly comply. But the initiative will not be taken by this country.

The arranging of a reciprocal trade agreement is also a matter for initiatory action by Canada, who is responsible for the fact that reciprocal trade relations do not now exist. It is safe to say that the United States government will be found willing to resume negotiations whenever Canada is ready to propose terms for such an agreement on the basis of equivalent concessions. Canada has made several efforts in this direction since the termination of the reciprocity treaty of 1853, but they all failed because the Canadians did not propose equivalent concessions. The Canadian statesmen always proposed what James G. Blaine aptly described as "jug-handled reciprocity," and of course their overtures could not be favorably received. They were anxious to have reciprocal trade in raw materials, but refused to open their markets to our manufacturers, and in late years they have sought to "play even" with this country by arranging a preferential tariff in favor of Great Britain. Despite this action, trade between the United States and Canada has shown a steady increase. If the Canadians really want reciprocal trade relations on a fair basis, they can probably secure an agreement.

WEYLERISM.

Many people have doubted the assertions published from time to time that the English in South Africa were warring on women and children, but the recent admission by a member of the government in the house of commons as to the heavy mortality among the Boer men, women and children confined in camps, numbering about 40,000, has swept away all doubts on that point. Further confirmation is furnished by a letter published in the London Times from Sir Thomas Dyke Acland, chairman of the South African women and children distress fund, that amounts to a fearful arraignment of British methods of warfare, or else his words do not mean what they purport to mean. The chairman points out that "under the special circumstances under which the war has been carried on a very large proportion of the women and children of two colonies, covering an area far exceeding that of the British isles, have perforce been swept out of their homes and collected into large camps." The "special circumstances" are, of course, that the British have laid that area waste so that it might not, by chance or as the result of a plan of campaign, contribute to the support of the Boer hostiles still in the field.

These women and children were not combatants in a further sense than that of holding positions, their homes, farm house by farm house, for the succor of individual Boers who might return from time to time and recuperate for further fighting. This much the women were bound to do out of natural and, of course, commendatory sympathy with their husbands, fathers and sons. But the effect of the reconcentrado policy of Kitchener has, Chairman Acland says, been terrible. In the camps of detention the women, there herded like cattle, are lacking the necessaries of life, and their children are dying, apparently for lack of medical attention. So little fuel is furnished that "on many days the people cannot cook all their scanty rations of raw meat, meal and coffee." Both women and children are insufficiently clad for the coming winter; few have mattresses on which to lie down, "and are subject to any inclemency of the weather." "Privacy is out of the question" in these British detention camps, and the women and children "must spend months with very rare chances of washing either clothes or bodies."

Nor is this the worst that this Englishman tells his countrymen and women that the Boer war has brought about. Of the captive women, "some who have recently come into the camps are shortly expecting their confinement, and yet they have to sit all day upon the bare ground, drenched with storms, or try to rest within their tents, while the sun pours down through their single canvas and the temperature reaches 105 degrees, or even 110 degrees." This is almost beyond belief, but a new view is obtained of what the Boers have to be thankful for when Chairman Acland mentions, as a great concession by the military authorities, that "they consented to allow a railway boiler to be used to boil water for drinking purposes." Apparently special mention is made of this utmost exhibition of generosity because it is rare.

Is it not time that the civilized nations of the world intervened to prevent a continuance of this brutal treatment by the British Weylers of the Boer women and children?

Alderman Velton, of New York, recently introduced a resolution prohibiting any advertising signs upon the statons, cars, or engines of any street surface or elevated railroad in the city. It provides that any violation of the ordinance will be punishable by a fine of twenty-five dollars for each offense. The resolution was referred to committee. Alderman Velton explained that he considered the advertising privilege a franchise for which the city should have compensation.

The placing of one man in the control of groups of railroads numbering from two to four is only the beginning of a movement toward general consolidation of the transportation business, says the Topeka State Journal. The man who can successfully direct the affairs of four roads may soon be called upon to take charge of eight and then ten and twenty.

Senator Pettus, of Alabama, generally known as Grandpa Pettus, is 80 years old. He is a most "solemn proposition," never known to smile, and chews tobacco with his front teeth. In a game of poker his strength lies in the absolute absence of expression to his face. It makes no difference whether he has a bob-tail flush or a full house, he goes right on mastlentang a small piece of tobacco and gathers in the other fellows' chips.

While the English are condemning American locomotives probably from jealousy, the Swedes have an entirely different story. The American consul general at Stockholm announces that thirty American engines which have recently arrived there are warmly praised. This is testimony worth having as it is entirely unprejudiced.

Tornadoes seem to be making an effort to outrival each other this summer. No sooner was Dakota visited by a little one, which killed a family of five, than a wild wind swooped down on Nebraska and placed a death loss of seventeen to its credit, and another visited Ohio. The one great peculiarity about tornadoes is that no one knows where they will strike next.

THE SUNSET HOUR.

(Dedicated to two friends upon their golden wedding day.)

We linger on the Alpine summit gazing
Upon the dawning of a new bright day:
Pink, crimson, gold, until in glory blazing
The sun, full-risen, drives the clouds away.

The floating mists, the snowy peaks revealing,
In splendid glow of awful radiance clad:
Below, the lakes, and the soft rivers stealing
O'er the fair landscape, lo! the sunshine glad.

And we rejoice, for life is all before us;
We tread the smiling path way hand in hand;
We are together and God's sun shines o'er us,
We will go forward to possess the land.

'Tis noonday, and we rest within the shadow
Of the tall tree, that bends its stately head
At the wind's wooing; while the far-off meadow
Gleams bright and golden where the reapers tread.

Some of the glory of the dawn's bestowing
Has faded from the landscape's pleasant face;
In failing grain, in rougher breezes blowing,
We can discern the advancing autumn's trace.

But we are still together and united.
Each toil, each trial, together still we share;
And though we mourn for blossoms early blighted,
We give them gladly to our Father's care.

'Tis eventide; the journey almost ended.
We turn our eyes upon the mountain's crest—
The cold, gray mist which late on it descended,
Is tinged with glowing crimson from the west.

A paler glory than the morn would render,
Yet full of beauty is the day's parting dower;
With song of birds, melodious and tender,
What can surpass the claim of this sweet hour!

The sunset hour which finds us still unparted,
The golden glory of the waning ray
Crowning our lives with joy as grateful-hearted,
We wait the summons to eternal day.

Dietrich's Irrigation Plan.

Buffalo Express: The plan of Senator Dietrich, of Nebraska, to have state convicts turned over to the federal government and set to work at reclaiming arid lands might be expected to encounter the objection, that, if convicts are to be employed at such work, the states can use them themselves. At best it would establish chain gangs and convict camps on a national scale and these are not institutions to be cultivated.

Money Banishes Despair.

New York Tribune: All the accounts from abroad agree in saying that the keepers of hotels and shops in London would be almost in despair this month were it not for the army of Americans in the British metropolis and for the generous expenditures of the Yankee visitors. Brother Jonathan has made so much money that he is even more liberal than in former years while seeing the sights and enjoying himself in the Old World.

Americans In the Tropics.

Philadelphia Ledger: Before the outbreak in the Philippines we were freely told by those who assumed to know that Americans could not live in the islands, as their climate was fatal to unacclimated white men. The census just completed, however, shows no fewer than 8562 American civilians in Manilla, while, as we know, the American troops have been enduring the climate of the islands for years, under every form of vicissitude, without an abnormal fatality among them. Americans can live there, and quite a number of them seem to prefer to do so.

The People With Him.

Sherbrne County Star-News(Rep.): The trusts and ultra protectionists are overplaying the game in abusing Congressman Babcock for his sensible views regarding a revision of the tariff. The people are with the Babcock idea and "the people are a hard crowd to run up against when thoroughly aroused.

POINTED REMARKS.

Washington Star: "She says her face is her fortune," said Maud.

"Yes," said Mamie; "and I felt like telling her to cheer up; poverty is no disgrace."

Ohio State Journal: Mr. Bilkins—Poor Perkins is having his share of grief.

Mrs. Bilkins—Poor man; I understand his wife is very ill.

Mr. Bilkins—Yes, I know, but Perkins' best race horse fell and broke its leg.

Cleveland Plain Dealer: "A Boston man gave up $1000, which he sent to the city treasurer, with the statement that it was conscience money."

"Sacred codfish! I'll bet he wasn't a city official."

Brooklyn Life: "Confound Plotts, he's never happy unless he's playing a practical joke on some unfortunate."

"Yes. He's never comfortable unless everybody else is uncomfortable."

Detroit Free Press: "You miss your dear husband dreadfully, Mrs. Simpson?"

"Yes, of course; but our youngest daughter is exactly like him. She tries to regulate the grammar and manners of the whole family."

Chicago Tribune: "Oh, George, the doctor says the baby will be so deformed when he has grown to be a man that his legs will look as if they had been bent around a barrel!"

"That's all right, Bess. He'll be able to make a good living as a walking advertisement for some five-cent cigar."

Harlem Life: Mrs. Van Pelt—Quinn, I think you would better substitute lobster for the croquettes.

Quinn—Yis, ma'am; but I did not like to put lobster on, because daycint people should not encourage an animal that's born to wear green and changes his coat to red the minute he gets into hot water.

A Dream of Luxury.

If I had a million dollars I would surely take my ease,
I would go where'er I listed and I'd wear what'er I'd please.
I wouldn't wear stiff-bosomed shirts nor collars strong and high.
Intended greatly to impress the casual passerby;
I wouldn't wear my well-made coat or patent leather shoes,
I'd change the style of hat that I habitually use;
These stern decrees of custom which so hold me in their power—
If I had a million dollars I'd discard them in an hour.

I'd get myself a pair of shoes a long ways off from small,
And if I found some cool ploughed ground, why, I'd wear none at all.
I'd wear a great big hat of straw with overhanging brim,
And look just like the hired man, while a-swaping yarns with him.
I'd only have one gallus, and I'd wear a Gingham shirt,
And I'd keep away from town, so's no one's feelings would be hurt.
And I make for myself a home somewhere, underneath the rustling trees—
If I had a million dollars I would surely take my ease.

Lucky Subjects.

New York Journal: The United States government is running the telegraph system of Porto Rico. You can send a message there for 2 cents a word. It is also running the telegraphs of the Philippines. It has 5000 miles of line connecting all the principal ports on each island, and it is about to connect the various islands with each other by cable. Two cents a word will carry a message from any point to any other on the same island, the distance being in some cases greater than from New York to Buffalo. And 4 cents a word will take a cable dispatch from any island to any other. When the United States government can give its subjects in its remote dependencys those advantages why cannot it do something of the same sort for its suffering citizens at home?

Now the Vegetarian Smiles.

Philadelphia Telegraph: If the price of beef is to be advanced 2 cents per pound, including an average of all grades, it is fortunate that the change comes just at the time of the year when it will be least seriously felt. With the wide range of vegetable products coming into our markets during the season, a good table can be spread without including beef in the bill of fare more than once or twice a week. We are all very conservative about food supplies, and are not eartly satisfied with anything less than the best, to which we have been accustomed, but in such a case as the present, where necessity and not choice must be considered, it is gratifying to know that the garden and the farm will furnish food of such a comparatively low cost that no one need suffer because of the higher price of beef.

Reflections of a Bachelor.

New York Press: Love isn't near so much a burden to some men as it ought to be.

He is an innocent man with women who doesn't know enough to seem so.

The easiest way not to fall in love is to watch how easy other people do it.

A pessimist is a man who believes that men are worse than women; an optimist is a man who believes that women are better than men.

Leather Medals In Order.

St. Louis Globe Democrat: Again the Boers have "crept up within short range" of a British detachment and wiped it out. The situation calls for court-martials rather than a distribution of medals.

A Century's Expansion.

Chicago Record-Herald: George Washington was the richest man in the United States when he died, yet his wealth amounted to less than $500,000. As J. Pierpont Morgan would say, poor old George!

Nude In Art and Speech.

Detroit Journal: President Dodge, of the Young Men's Christian association repudiated the idea that the nude in the Boston Museum of Fine Arts made it an improper place for the young people of the association to meet. As this is the naked truth the same element may be expected to make further objection.

Why They're Found Everywhere.

St. Louis Post-Dispatch: "I meet Ohio people wherever I go," says Mr. McKinley. There are offices in every state and colony that must be filled. Why should not the Ohio man be everywhere?

Not Running a Race.

Washington Star: Mr. Rockefeller is disposed to be generous, but does not allow it to be understood that there is a giving match on between him and Mr. Carnegie.

Profitable Literary Work.

Washington Star: Mr. Chandler thinks that $100 for six words is pretty good pay even for so successful a literateur as Mr. Lodge.

And They're About to Succeed.

Minneapolis Times: The Chicago authorities are endeavoring to convince Dowie that his name is not Elijah, but Dennis.

Opening For Reciprocity.

Philadelphia Ledger: If McKinley has any intention of reciprocating by naming either Grosvenor or Depew for the presidency, he is succeeding very well in keeping it a secret.

A Cheap Lot.

Memphis Commercial-Appeal: Those chaps who spread their ears at the mention of a third term are now looking pretty cheap with their ears draping their shoulders.

The Weapon For the Hunt.

Washington Post: If Mr. Roosevelt is really gunning for southern delegates he will do well to lay aside his heroics and take up his rapid-fire check book.

DAILY STORY.

A COUPLE OF HOSTAGES

BY DAVID H. FARRINGTON.

(Copyright, 1901, William R. Miller).

For three years the American company, with its concessions from the South American state, had been developing its mines and improving its property, and matters had at last reached a point where stockholders could look for a dividend. There had been a big expenditure of money and muscle, and the state had been at peace, and its president had aided to push along the great enterprise. Now, however, just as the first returns were in sight there began to be whisperings and mitterings of revolution. Don Oreto, secretary of state, couldn't agree with the president's policy and tendered his resignation. He had been commander-in-chief of the army before taking a cabinet position, and there was reason to believe that he would appeal to that branch to support him in an effort to overthrow the government.

There were thirty of us from the states, and we had plenty of rifles and ammunition and a rapid-fire gun. The idea had been that we might want to protect ourselves against bands of lawless men. We had about six hundred persons working for us, but there was not an ounce of grit in the whole crowd. If they decided to go against us they would apply the torch to everything burnable, and then disappear; but as for helping us out, we knew better than to depend on them. When we saw that revolution must come we sent them adrift, secured the machinery as well as possible and entrenched ourselves to make a fight for it. A breastwork was thrown up in front of the mouth of the mine, a supply of food laid in, and as we waited we drilled and practiced at target shooting. We were hoping that both sides might leave us alone when we received a note from the president to the effect that the company had been assessed in the sum of $100,000 in lieu of a war. As we had just paid off the peons we had only about $5000 on hand, but it would have made no difference, however, if we had fifty times that amount. We simply did not intend to give up a dollar. The president said that if the money was paid we might protect ourselves as well as we could under the sanction of the government; if not—well, we must take our chances.

This demand had scarcely reached the mine when a courier from Don Oreto arrived with a note. It was a demand for $100,000 in gold. For that sum the revolutionists would agree to keep hands off the mine, even if they could not protect it. He did not say what would happen in case we refused to pay blackmail, for his demand was nothing else, as was also the other, but left it to our wits to figure out. In addition to the thirty of us from the states we had ten Peruvians as underbosses. These were quiet sedate fellows, who had given good satisfaction, and when I asked if they would stand by the mine or go they volunteered to take a hand in the defense. This gave us a defensive force of forty men, and it was decided in open council to defy both parties and look out for ourselves. I replied to the prisedent to that effect, but did not answer Don Oreto at all. Three day later, without having heard anything further, and with the outbreak still hanging fire, we received a great surprise. Just after dark the president rode up, attended only by an orderly, and at his heels came a wagon and four men to remove our gold. He could not imagine that we were in earnest in refusing to pay over the money. He figured that we were helpless and at his mercy and that it would be easy to rob us.

I bluntly refused to obey his order. I had only the twentieth part to turn over, but I would not give that up. He had threatened me with arrest when a scheme poped into my head. It was simply necessary to wink at the men around me, and the thing was done. The president was seized and hustled into our stronghold, and then at the muzzle of our guns, his escort was driven away. My idea was to make the president a hostage for the safety of the mine, and I argued that it would work well, so far as the government party was concerned. There was the other side to deal with, however. I had not defied Don Oreto, and he was not a man to forget it. No sooner was the president a captive than he showed the white feather. The boot was on the other foot now, and he offered me money and position to release him. He was weeping and wringing his hands when other visitors rode up. Don Oreto had come with a wagon and six soldiers to enforce his demand and remove the treasure. That he had intended to pay this visit had become known to the president, and hence the earlier arrival of that official. The Don had also brought his check along. He wanted the money right away quick, and he didn't want a dollar less than $100,000. The date for the revolution had been set, and gold was wanted to make the affair a success. The Don hadn't got through making threats when we chucked him into the room to keep company with the president and sent his soldiers about their business. With the government and the chief conspirator in our hands, we seemed to have the key to the situation.

There was fun when those men met and realized that they were prisoners. With the president at liberty the threatened revolution could be put down in a day; with the Don at liberty, and the president a captive, the government could be upset in two hours. With both in our hands things must remain in status quo. Each one begged and promised and sulked, but it was of no use. Next morning a detachment of 250 soldiers came marching down upon us to release Don, but the fight didn't last half an hour. They retired to fraternize with the government troops and make common cause, and by nightfall we had five hundred troops in front of us. We knew them to be fair fighters, but we had an impregnable position. After one charge, in which our rifles and machine-gun broke them all up, they withdrew and sat down to starve us out. I had hopes from the first that the president and his ex-secretary would make it up. They were in obstinate mood for a couple of days, but when they saw their troops beaten off and realized that we could hold out for weeks, they became more pliable. The Don wanted to be president, and the president objected to being bounced, but they finally came to an understanding. It was agreed that the president should resign after a year, and use all his influence to secure the election of the other. They wanted to be tu ned lose when they had come to an understanding, but I reminded them that the American company didn't propose to get left in the deal. Acting under orders, the Don issued a proclamation to the country that the revolution was off, and that the administration was one to be commenced for its integrity. Following this was a proclamation by the president pardoning everybody for what he had done or what he intended to do, and calling Don Oreto the greatest general on earth and the savior of his country. Then both gave me written pledges that our property should not be disturbed, and one morning they walked out of the mine arm in arm, and proceeded to the capital. The president was glad enough to cry quits, and at least profess friendship, but Don Oreto could not forgive me for having humiliated him. He returned to the cabinet as secretary of state, and one day, when I called on him on a matter of business, he said:

"You understand, I presume, that I am to be the next president of this country?"

"That was a bargain, I believe," I answered.

"Very well. Let me say that one of my first official acts as president will be to have you shot."

"If that's the way you feel about it, I'll have you assassinated before you are made president."

He looked at me for half a minute with wide-open eyes, and then worked up a sickly smile, and said:

"I was only joking, senor."

"Same here," I replied.

Had he lived to become president I think he would have tried to get me out of the way, but before the year was out he died of fever.

Terrific Storm In Pennsylvania Brings Death to Many.

Pittsburg, June 24.—The storm which broke over Allegheny county on Saturday afternoon carried with it deaths by drowning and deaths by electric shock, floods that have caused much damage and winds that created terror and havoc. Every part of the county suffered. The storm broke about 2:30 o'clock, after darkness had gradually been settling down for half an hour. The day, until then, had been a beautiful one.

Killed:

CHARLES BITTNER, farmer, Spring Garden borough, drowned.

MOSCO MARCOS, Italian laborer, drowned in a sewer.

JAMES P. DUNN, aged 12 years, of Braddock, drowned in two feet of water, at Rankin.

CONRAD HART, aged 12 years, of Duquesne, killed by a live wire on the viaduct of the Monongahela Traction company, near his home.

Injured: James Fleming, aged 81, badly scorched by a live wire. Andrew Cole, dairyman, shocked by lightning.

There was one fatality in addition to those reported last night, which was not generally known until this afternoon. Charles Bittner, a farmer of Spring Garden borough, was drowned in Spring Garden Run, and his body was not found until yesterday.

The body was found stuck fast in the running gear of a wagon, among a pile of debris at the mouth of a culvert, a mile below, near the city line.

From all over the county last night came reports of damage done by wind and water, but, with the exception of Bittner, no additional fatalities are recorded.

The railroad people say it will be at least five days before their lines are open for trains. They have been sending work trains to the storm-stricken district from all directions. The loss to the railroads will reach $500,000. A private message from Bramwell, W. Va., on Simmons creek, says there has been great damage done there, but no loss of life had been reported up to the time the telegram was sent.

The Turtle Creek district was again visited by a heavy rain storm Sunday and the conditions of yesterday were duplicated with even more destruction. The town and valley have suffered damage to the extent of thousands of dollars. At East Pittsburg, the Westinghouse plant, which extends for nearl ya mile parallel with the hill, was submerged again yesterday and six feet of water on the lower floor which left three feet of mud when it receded. More than 400 street car motors are apparently destroyed, and the loss to Westinghouse, it is believed, will reach $500,000.

FATAL DUEL.

County Judge And a Wealthy Farmer End an Old Feud.

Bradentown, Fla., June 24.—News reaches here of a bloody and fatal fight, near Miakka, in Manatee county. Judge S. E. Stevens, a county judge and wealthy farmer, and John A. Webb, a neighbor, also prominent in county affairs, met on the road, three miles from Miakka, and renewed an old feud that existed between them. Webb was riding when overtaken and asked by Stevens to stop and settle then and there the dispute between them. He did so, calling to his driver to go ahead. When the driver proceeded several hundred yards he looked back to see both men dropping in the road. He returned to find Stevens dead with a bloody knife in his hand and Webb seriously stabbed in several places. Webb may recover.

Circus Man Shot In the Nose By Drunken Man.

Cloquet, Minn., June 24.—(Special to The Herald.)—A drunken man and a gun loaded with a twenty-two bullet, was responsible for what might have been a fatal accident Sunday morning. He was trying to hit the target at the shooting gallery on Dunlap Island, and in bringing the gun round in careless fashion, pulled the trigger, the bullet striking one of the circus men standing in the rear of the gallery, in the nose. Fortunately the bullet entered the nose sideways, and although the injury is painful and will disfigure the man's face permanently, will not be serious.

A terrific thunder storm drove over this place about 7 o'clock today immediately accompanied by a deluge of rain. Lightning played havoc with the Cloquet Electric compan's plant, knocking two dynamos to pieces, and leaving them both behind only one machine to do the work of lighting the city. The thoroughfares were converted into miniature rivers, and some of the streets are badly washed out.

Lightning interfered with the lighting plant of the Johnson-Wentworth company's mill, and they had to shut down Friday night.

The Blood HEALTHY OR DISEASED

When there is a natural and healthy circulation of the blood, the entire quantity, estimated at one-eighth the weight of the body, passes through the heart every five minutes. This rapid flow of the blood through the system prevents the entrance of disease germs and impurities of every description. It filters out all that is not necessary or good for the growth and development of the body and nourishing and strengthening the muscles, tissues, nerves and bones. But, unfortunately, few persons can rightly claim an absolutely pure blood supply and perfect and unpolluted circulation, and in consequence are exposed to innumerable diseases. Contagious Blood Poison, the greatest enemy to mankind, enters the system through the blood, and Cancer, Scrofula, Rheumatism, Catarrh, Eczema, Salt Rheum, Psoriasis, Tetter—in fact the majority of human ailments—are caused by poisons or humors that are engendered and fostered in a sluggish and impoverished blood. Old sores, chronic ulcers and rheumatic pains are common, especially among old people, whose blood naturally grows thin and pale because of the lack of the red corpuscles that give color and strength to youthful blood. Sallow complexions and rough, oily skins evidence some constitutional or blood trouble, which salves, lotions, powders nor any external treatment can cure. Diseases that originate in the blood, whether they manifest themselves as ulcers, tumors, itching eruptions, muscular or bone pains, require a tonic and blood purifier such as S. S. S., which not only antidotes and neutralizes blood poisons and humors, but possesses health-giving tonic properties that no other blood medicine does. It goes down to the very foundation of the disease and eliminates from the system every thing of a poisonous character or that obstructs and clogs the circulation. It builds up and imparts new strength and vitality to the old innutritious blood, and when the arteries and veins are once more filled with new rich blood, the general health begins to improve, muscles grow stronger, and sores and eruptions of every kind disappear.

DEATH OF A. S. HAY

Son of Secretary of State Fell From Hotel Window.

Was at New Haven to Attend Yale Commencement.

Secretary Hay Completely Prostrated By the Fearful Shock.

New Haven, Conn., June 24.—Adelbert Stone Hay, the former consul of the United States at Pretoria, South Africa, and eldest son of Secretary of State John Hay, fell from a window in the third story of the New Haven house, in this city, shortly before 2:30 o'clock yesterday morning and was instantly killed.

The dead man was a graduate of Yale of the class of '98, and his death occurred on the eve of the university commencement, which brought him here yesterday, and in which, by virtue of his class office, the young man would have been one of the leaders.

The terrible tragedy has cast a gloom over the whole city and will undoubtedly be felt throughout the day, which heretofore has been so brilliant and full of happiness for Yale and her sons.

Young Hay was one of the vanguard of the academic class of Yale '98. He had come to his old college town as a member of his class triennial committee, and arrived early to assist his colleagues on the committee in preparing for the festivities of commencement week in general and for the class supper in particular.

He took dinner with some of his classmates and at 8 o'clock hurried to the Hyperion theater, where he witnessed the evening performance. He spent a quiet hour in the hotel corridor and smoking room after the theater and, shortly after midnight, retired to his room, remarking to the clerk that he was sleepy and leaving a call for 9 o'clock this morning. He was not seen again until his body came whirling through the air to its destruction two and one half hours later. The point where the unfortunate man was quartered faces Chapel street, the principal thoroughfare of the city, and is almost under the eaves of the university which he proudly claimed as his Alma Mater.

There was a solitary spectator to the terrible tragedy, a laborer on the city streets. At the hour mentioned the workman saw the form of a man falling through space. An instant later, there was a thud and the body lay directly in front of the main hotel entrance. Two horrified laborers rushed to the spot, and their shouts brought others, among them several belated Yale graduates. They bent over the body. One of them, Julian Mason, son of the late Edward G. Mason, of Chicago, and a classmate of young Hay, drew back and, horror stricken, cried: "My God, its Del Hay."

By this time the hotel clerk had reached the scene and made the identification complete.

The body was clad in pajamas. On the window sill of the room occupied by young Hay was found a partly consumed cigarette. On the floor near the window was found a pair of slippers. His clothing had been neatly arranged, and the bed clothes were drawn back. The bed, however, had not been occupied. Here the mystery becomes intangible. The popular theory seems to have it that the young man, having prepared for bed, thought to indulge in a "good night smoke," that he chose the cool of the window, possibly dozed, lost his balance and fell from the window.

The presence of the ring on the floor, however, gave rise to the fancy that possibly, while toying with the ring, it dropped, and that in an effort to recover it, the fall resulted. However it happened, the known fact seems to make it conclusive that it was all a frightful accident.

Young Hay, it was remarked, was in particularly good spirits and had planned, with unusual enthusiasm, to participate in many engagements this week. In the harbor lies a yacht in which, with a party of his friends, he had promised to join in a trip on Wednesday to New London for the Yale-Harvard boat races on Thursday. This morning a messenger carried to the yacht the news of the tragic end of the unfortunate man.

Sunrise of commencement week Sunday found the dead body in the rooms of an undertaker. An examination of the remains disclosed a discoloration on the right forehead, a contusion on the right arm and an abrasion of the right leg. A plain ring worn on the right hand was bent and cut. No bones were broken, and there was no external fracture of the skull. In the sixty feet flight downward the body escaped striking a balcony one story below and crashed upon the pavement with all the force of a momentum increased by the weight of a man of such large physique as young Hay.

Those members of the class of '98 in town, after the examination by the coroner's physician, escorted the body from the undertaking establishment to the private residence of Seth Moseley of the New Haven house. Here it awaited the arrival of relatives. In the college chapel at the morning service President Hadley, in addressing the members of the graduating class, referred to the death of young Hay.

The Hon. John Hay, secretary of state, arrived at New Haven from Washington at 4:45 p. m. in response to the dispatch announcing the sudden death of his son, Adelbert S. Hay. Mr. Hay was unaccompanied and gave signs of great grief.

He entered a carriage and was driven to the residence of Seth Moseley. Worn out with the long trip from the capital, and once within the walls of the house that sheltered the remains of his dead son, Mr. Hay collapsed. His prostration was so complete that medical aid was deemed necessary and Dr. Gilbert was summoned.

Late last night Dr. Gilbert, who is at the bedside of the secretary, announced that the indisposition of Col. Hay is not serious, adding that he is simply overwhelmed with grief, and that the prostration will disappear after a sufficient rest.

The triennial class of '98, of which Adelbert Hay was a member, has gone into mourning.

There is a disposition on the part of many of the class to abandon entirely the elaborate features of the triennial reunion and wait upon the pleasure of Secretary Hay and the members of the bereaved family.

Adelbert S. Hay was the eldest son of the secretary of state, and was born while the latter was living in Cleveland, Ohio, about twenty-five years ago. His second name is Stone, which he bears in memory of the late Amasa Stone, his maternal grandsire. He was educated in the private schools of Cleveland and prepared at St. Paul's academy in Concord, N. H., for Yale. At the university he was a popular scholar, for though outwardly reserved in manner he was capable of warm and steadfast friendships and was of charming manners. At Yale Adelbert gave much time to athletics, and thus splendidly developed his naturally robust frame, so that he stood at 21, full six feet high with chest and limbs of corresponding proportions.

The stalwart figure of young Hay, with the look of reserve power in his face, undoubtedly went far towards securing for him the respect and consideration which is not always exhibited to one of his years. With this physique went a degree of personal bravery that, though never recklessly or boastingly evidenced, was still manifested on more than one occasion.

WATER CABLE

Inventor Would Revolutionize Traffic On Canadian Canals.

Chicago, June 24.—Cable trains down the St. Lawrence river rapids; not exactly, but a Chicago inventor has adapted the endless wire rope which drags Chicago street cars to the task of whipping ocean steamers up and down the Lachine and Boulanges rapids, destroying the utility of $30,000,000 worth of Canadian canals in a day, reducing the time it takes a vessel to lock up anddown between Kingston and Montreal by half, and adding another link in Chicago's coming waterway to the sea.

Dr. E. Newell Case, 325 Dearborn street, is the man who solved the puzzle which has vexed vessel owners and doubled freight rates for more than two centuries.

The Canadian government issued a blanket patent to him last week, which covers every use of submerged wire ropes for the towing of vessels and practically amounts to a concession for the construction of fully seven miles of cables, which will be necessary to the working out of his system.

Formal permission to begin the work of installation has been asked, and the Chicago inventor and his backers are fighting the influence of Canadian railways and the interest of the government in the state canals in their effort to secure it.

Preliminary surveys of the entire route between Kingston and Montreal have been made, and engineers are now engaged on a second survey to determine where the first cable plant shall be installed.

S. M. Fischer, late of Kuhn, Nathan & Fischer, now of New York, and a number of local capitalists are interested in the enterprise.

Mr. Case contemplates seven cable systems, paralleling the seven ship canals which the Canadian government has constructed on the north bank of the river.

Eczema, salt rheum, tetter, chafing, ivy poisoning and all skin sorrows are quickly cured by DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve. The certain pile cure. Max Wirth.

AT CASS LAKE

George Lydick Retires From the Cass Lake Boat Club.

Cass Lake, Minn., June 24.—(Special to The Herald.)—James E. Nelson, James Cardie and George Lydick, as the Cass Lake Boat company, have dissolved partnership, Mr. Lydick retiring from the firm. The two former gentlemen will continue to transact the business of the firm, they having secured a lease from the Indians on whose allotment the company's property is located. The company will at once begin the erection of a new dock and a boat house and make other improvements at the boat landing, which will aggregate $3000. New sidewalks leading to the landing will be put in and the accommodations will be the best to be found at any of the summer resorts in the northern part of the state.

The Indian department has refused to sanction any leases, and will not allow any building on allotments, according to reports received here. Several parties had made application for leases, with the intention of erecting residences thereon.

The village council has ordered a special election, to be held on July 16, for the purpose of voting on a proposition to issue negotiatiable certificates of the village in the sum of $10,000 for the purpose of building and establishing a suitable sewer system in the village and paying out standing indebtedness of the village.

William Snyder, an employe at the Glenmont mill, narrowly escaped death Saturday. He fell on the carrier and was drawn between the cogs, which tore the flesh from his left thigh, making a wound about six inches long and two inches wide.

WADDELL WINNER

"Virginia" Bradley's Gelding Lands the Great American Derby.

Bullman, On the Winner, Rides a Waiting Race.

Makes His Run In the Stretch With Success.

Time, 2:39 4-5 for the mile and a half, and the stake record of 2:36 beaten handsomely.

To Mrs. R. Bradley, of old Virginia, the purse is worth $19,325 net, for she owns the game winner that beat every favorite Saturday afternoon before as superb a Derby day crowd as ever gathered at Washington Park.

Bonnibert was not in it, nor Richard Croker's Beau Gallant, nor Schorr's crack Silver Dale, nor the handsome bay colt of Clarence H. Mackay, His Eminence. Odom did his best, and so did Nash Turner, and Piggott drove The Parader like a madman until he died just where Lieut. Gibson did a year ago.

But Bullman was on Robert Waddell, and if it was Mrs. Bradley's day it was also his. Bullman, whom every owner had turned down for a mount; Bullman, who had been scorned in all the days of preparation for the race; Bullman, whom "Virginia" Bradley did not engage to ride Robert Waddell until Saturday morning, won. He did with his horse just what he ought to have done; he knew just where to let him out; he let The Parader make all the running, and then in the stretch he gave the game Virginia gelding, carrying 119 pounds, all the head he wanted and won with ease.

Unnoticed Terminus was second and The Parader third. Bonnibert was fourth and Six Shooter fifth. Bull man could well afford to smile as he pulled his horse in in front of the clubhouse, and beautiful women threw kisses lightly over and waved their handkerchiefs to him, while the men cheered.

It was genuine cheering, although Bonnibert and his horse were favorite and much money was lost on him. Waddell is a popular horse, and Bullman, if he did not seem to be popular with the owners for this race, is popular with the public. He had shown consummate skill in holding his big horse back until the right moment—just before the last half mile was to be run—and then giving him free rein and leaving The Parader to die in the ruck.

He had proved that he knew track conditions at Washington Park, and that, given a good horse, he could get the best out of him. Well he might smile and half nod his head to the gayly-gowned women and the red-faced men who gave him greeting. But he was a trifle embarrassed when they brought out the floral horseshoe and gave it to him and Robert Waddell.

People thronged over the track and gave him greeting while back in the saddling room "Virginia" Bradley, often known as the "old man," chuckled and hummed to himself:

Little old man, go riding by,
Little old man, your horse will die.
Sing clar de kitchen, kitchen, kitchen,
Ole Virginny never die.

That's a very old song in the Shenandoah valley, but "Virginia" Bradley and Mrs. Bradley know it well, and it was "Virginia's" way of expressing joy over the victory of the horse his wife owns. He said he was not surprised over the victory.

Five minutes before the horses were called to the track he was watching Waddell being walked for exercise. A stalwart darkey was leading about, while a good many people who claimed to be knowing remarked:

"He's too fat."

"He's all right."

"He's lazy and never will be in it."

A man walked up to "Virginia" Bradley and asked: "How's your horse?"

"He'll win when he's ready."

"I have a little money on him."

"All right; you'll win."

Then "Virginia" turned to watch the negro and his horse again. The negro is famous in his way. Years ago when he was a pickaninny he was employed in rubbing down that famous iron horse Blitzen. Mr. Bradley has kept him in his service for years. Saturday he was given charge of Waddell. He grinned from ear to ear.

"I'm sure touting on the Derby winner," he said.

Just before the horse left his hands he was asked how he felt about the race.

He answered back: "My name is Possum. Dat's de only name I've ever had, sah. Dis horse is goin' to win, and he's goin' to do it easy. You mark my words, sah, my name is Possum, and I've been leadin' 'bout de winner."

So the Bradley boys had full confidence in their favorite, and their judgment was not misplaced. Bullman himself was confident when he was weighing in. He said to a friend: "Robert Waddell is in splendid condition and it is not true that he has been overworked. He will do the distance easily, and I believe will win."

The Derby started with the usual picturesque procession of the horses and the gaily caparisoned riders. On the grounds and in the grand stand there were 20,000 persons, a much larger attendance than there has been at Washington park since world's fair Derby. The sward in front of the grand stand was packed, the clubhouse carried all the people it could, while in the paddock there were between 300 and 400 more fashionable equipages than a year ago. At that time there were over 800 on the grounds.

Color was absent in the gowning. A few women had the temerity to wear pink, some scarlet, some rose. Blue was conspicuously absent. But black and white was everywhere, and while it was rich and beautiful when near at hand, at a distance it did not shine with the resplendency that brighter colors have in years gone by.

Music was predominant. Many of the tallyhos carried orchestras of five and six pieces, while not one was without a horn blower. They made melody at all times, vying with each other in giving popular airs. When the grand stand liked a tune it clapped hands and cheered; when it did not, it laughed.

There were some men in the grand stand, but not many. It was a women's crowd, women everywhere; even down in the saddling quarters, trailing their gowns where the horses had trod, sniffing the stable odors, commenting on their favorites and wondering if their small bets would win. They came to make the Derby day, and they did. It was essentially a woman's affair, save for the glorious part Bullman played in it.

A woman owned the winning horse; women made the attendance; gowning was the feature of the afternoon, barring the little over two minutes that Robert Waddell was doing his handsome stunt. When the Derby horses reached the track and started for the tape it was women who gave them the most generous applause and hoped that Bonnibert would have a show and a victory.

Those horses were not long at the post. Perhaps it was ten minutes, maybe a little less. They showed no particular ugliness in getting ready; jut a little switching around, a little prancing, then the wild shout:

"They're off!"

And they were, bunched, save as to The Parader, who took the lead, with Piggott urging him to his topmost speed. He came down to the grand stand like a whirlwind.

His Eminence was the last of the string of ten horses.

"The Parader can never stand it," breathed the crowd.

"Bonnibert is pulling up!" shouted the more enthusiastic.

But Bonnibert was never in it in that race. The pace was to savage for him. He could not respond when even show that he was entitled to it. The crowd sighed. There was a good deal of money disappearing on Bonnibert, and there was a great deal of money that had not been placed on Robert Waddell.

The horses were now in the last turn before straightening out for home. That was where Lieut. Gibson had given up last year and carried into defeat with him nearly $500,000. Bonnibert was not so heavily backed this year, nor The Parader, but they both carried rich wagers. Robert Waddell began to creep up on The Parader, easily, lastingly. He was neck and neck with him, and then as the horses came into the finish he took the lead and held it straight to the wire.

So the history of the fourteenth American Derby has been written, and like many a one of the past, the favorite did not and could not win. The crowd breathed heavily for a few brief seconds, then took its medicine gracefully for after all it was "Old Virginia" that had won, and "Virginny never dies."

Wheat on Duluth Board Closes at Saturday's Price.

Higher Cables Were Mainly Responsible For Good Selling.

Increase In World's Shipments and Amount on Passage.

Duluth Board of Trade, June 24.—The wheat market started fairly firm this morning and ruled steady, but dull during the early part of the session. The main cause of the strength was an advance of 1/16@3d in futures at Liverpool, and sympathy with corn also aided to hold up prices. The world's shipments for the week were 9,481,000 bus, against 8,135,000 bus the previous week, and 8,886,000 bus last year. The amount on passage showed an increase of 6,000,000 bus. The visible supply showed a decrease of 2,227,000 bushels. Primary receipts were 631,000 bushels, last year 507,359 bushels. Shipments 606,000 bushels, last year 1,240,531 bushels. Clearances of wheat and flour were 511,572 bushels.

Receipts at Duluth and Minneapolis, 430 cars, against 366 last week and 454 last year. Chicago receipts, 54 cars, 1 of contract grade.

Trading in futures was dull on the Duluth board. The wheat opened unchanged at 66¾c and sold off to 66¼c at 10:07, rallied to 66⅝c at 1 and closed at that price, which was Saturday's closing price. September closed the same. Chicago September at Chicago closed ⅛c off and at Minneapolis ⅛-⅛ off.

Cash sales were 20,000 bushels at July price.

Flax futures were stronger, September closing at an advance of 1c and October 3c. Rye was off ⅛c.

Following are the closing prices:

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Steady Opening In Wheat With Trade Dull.

Chicago, June 24.—Higher cables were mainly responsible for a steady opening in wheat today. Trade was extremely dull. September opened a shade to ⅛c higher, at 66⅝@66¾c to 66⅞c and eased off to 66⅜c, when a steady feeling developed in sympathy with corn. Minneapolis and Duluth reported 430 cars, compared with 366 cars last week and 454 a year ago. Local receipts were 54 cars, 1 of contract grade.

In sympathy with corn Sept. weakened to 66⅜, but on reports of damage by excessive rains in the Northwest rallied to 66⅝, the close was ⅛@¼ lower at 66½@66⅝.

Reports of damage to the corn crop from excessive heat in the West caused a strong tone. September opened ¾@⅞c higher, at 45@45¼c, touched 45¾c and declined to 44⅞c. Oats were steady, September opened ¼@⅜ higher at 26¾@26⅝c and held steady. Receipts were 195 cars.

Provisions were stronger. September pork opened 50@75c higher at $14.87½@15.00, and advanced to $15.07½. September lard opened 2½c higher at $8.75½ and advanced to $8.80. September ribs opened 5c higher at $8.22½, but declined to $8.20.

MORRISON CASE.

Judge Makes His Charge to the Jury.

Eldorado, Kas., June 24.—Judge Aikman today delivered his instructions to the jury in the second trial of Jessie Morrison on the charge of killing Mrs. Clara Wiley Castle. They make it possible for Miss Morrison to be convicted of either first or second degree murder, second or third degree manslaughter.

Closing arguments were then taken up. It is probable the jury will retire tomorrow evening.

CHINESE MURDERER.

Kills One and Wounds Four Companions.

Ladmer, B. C., June 24.—Five Chinese market gardeners were attacked last night by a former Chinese companion who apparently had lost his mind. One Chinaman was killed and four were fatally hurt. The five victims lived in a shack near the river. Recently the murderer had been acting so peculiarly that he was told to keep away. Last night he attacked the party with an ax. He was captured.

SENATOR KYLE EASIER.

St. Paul, June 24.—An Aberdeen, S. D., special to the Dispatch says: Senator Kyle passed a fairly comfortable night and is resting easier today. While his condition is still serious, his physicians think he has a fair chance of recovery unless there is a change for the worse.

DECLINE IN STOCKS

Steady Pressure Caused Almost the Entire List To Sag.

Not Much Interest Shown and Business Very Small.

Prices Hardened at Noon But the Close Was Heavy.

New York, June 24.—As a rule the industrials and specialties showed gains and the railroads were inclined to sag. There were exceptions to both cases. Colorado Fuel and Sugar were off a point and Manhattan, Rubber goods, Iowa Central preferred and Illinois Central rose about a point each. Otherwise there were no changes exceeding half.

Trading was uneven for a while owing to wide fluctuations in a few stocks which were influenced by special considerations. For instance Norfolk & Western lost 1¼ on flood damage to the road. Colorado Fuel fell 1½ points on lack of confirmation of reports. Canadian Pacific lost 1⅜ and Amalgamated Copper a point. Manhattan on the other hand gained 3½ points on talk of its lease to the Manhattan elevated railway, and the other tractions were also higher. These comprised about the only movements of importance among the leading stocks. The tone generally improved during the day on the strength of U. S. Steel and a demand for minor stocks helping the market. International Silver, Des Moines & Fort Dodge and Minneapolis, St. Paul & Sault Ste Marie advanced 1 to 2 points. Iowa Central reacted over a point from the highest, while the preferred rose 3 points. Manhattan Elevated rose 5 points over the last sale and Sugar rallied 1½.

Steady pressure against St. Paul, Union Pacific and the tobaccos, supplemented by realizing in the reactionary issues, led the list to sag, the decline reaching 2 points in St. Paul. There was not much interest generally in the market and business was very small. Buying by covering shorts hardened prices at midday, but the markets undertone was heavy. Minneapolis and Sault Ste Marie preferred got up 5 points and Illinois Central 2⅜. Bonds dull and firm.

Prices sagged again. Sugar, St. Paul, Manhattan, Illinois Central reacting 1 to 1½. Colorado Fuel rallied strongly 2½ points over Saturday. The money market was semi-stagnant. The closing was dull and heavy.

New York, June 24.—Cotton opened firm, 4 to 8 points higher on Southern, foreign and general buying due to a rise of 4½ to 5 points at Liverpool. Commission houses were more liberal buyers of the new crop options, notably October, December, and January. Following the call July sold at 847, August 792, October 755 and January 758.

FOREIGN CROP REVIEW.

Rain Badly Needed In the United Kingdom.

London, June 4.—The Mark Lane Express today, in its weekly crop review, noting the necessity for rain in the United Kingdom, says:

"The wheat has come into ear in remarkably short stems and the ears will not fill without more moisture.

"In France the spring corn is less promising.

"Wheat cutting has begun in Southern Spain. The provinces of Andalusia and Murcia expect fine yields and the prospects in Central and Northern Spain is excellent. The wheat crop in Central Europe is very promising on the continent of the Adriatic and very bad indeed on the coasts of the Baltic, indicating that Croatia and Hungary will have a good crop, while Prussia and Prussian Poland will have a serious deficiency. Medium results may be expected in Bavaria and Austria."

Paris, June 24.—Secretary Green of the American chamber of commerce, while here, investigated the wheat outlook in France. He says the present conditions point to a yield not exceeding 304,000,000 bus, against 326,000,000 in 1900. Fine weather may increase the yield somewhat, but the stocks on hand are much less than in 1900. With a crop of 326,000,000 bushels, France needed to purchase nearly 40,000,000 bushels.

ITALIAN SINGERS.

Of the thousands who have attended grany opera during the past senson few, probably, have thought much about that standby of opera, the Italian chorus, says the New York Times. All know its formal appearance on the stage; a body of fresh-colored women, and men of noticeably stout physique, bearded fellows, with big, barrel chests and fine masisve heads well set between the shoulders. As gayly clad peasants and grim bandits they seem care-free and nonchalant. Behind the scenes, the noticeable trait of this chorus is an all-persuasive air of heartedness which breaks out, perhaps, in a friendly duel with no worse weapons than property rocks—wads of excelsior and canvas. The women walk back and forth across the stage, or sit in chattering groups on unusued scenery, sometimes watching the horse-play of the men, and adding pert comments of their own. All this unbilled comedy has a peculiarly attractive setting to one who finds the big stage of the Metropolitan Opera house something of a wonderland when seen in reverse, or the chorus, all the fascinating things it does a setting specially prepared, and to the onlooker their part in it appears much more like genuine play than what it really is—the second half of a twelve-hour day, whose first part is occupied with strenuous rehearsing.

Italians they remain, however, and outside the opera house this chorus keeps its own ways of life. Drudgery and hard work like theirs need to be well fed, and so it is. Restaurants and hotels the chorus will have nothing to do with. Instead it takes with it through all the joinings of its snug equipment of oil stoves, skillets, stewpans and wine glasses, and in little groups of two or three it provides for itself the fare of middle class Italy, to which it has always been accustomed. For its lodgings the chorus seeks large corner rooms on one of the West Side avenues not far from the opera house, ranging a few blocks north and south from about Fortieth street. In some instances both husband and wife belong to the chorus, and these pairs, of course, live together; but the unmarried members and the husbands who have not their wives with them gather in little groups of three or four and share the duties of housekeeping. Macaroni, as might be expected, is much used. "No Italian," declares Sig. Muzio, the leader of the chorus, "will be without his macaroni, and if we want it good we shall have to cook it ourselves. We cook it with plenty of butter, and we know how to make it good." And with the macaroni go soups and stews in endless variety—an orthodox diet in a land of unbelievers. California wines are in high favor, the allowance for each man being about three gallons a week. Curiously enough American wines are preferred to French. "The California wines are natural," says Sig. Muzio, again expounding the tastes of his fellows in the chorus. "The French bring in the wine from Italy, from America, but when it is sold it is not good. It is made up; it is fabricate. On tour the chorus relies perforce up

NOVELTIES FOR WEDDING GOWNS

Common-Place Must Be Avoided By Up-to-Date Bride---Introduction of Personal Note a Special Achievement.

New York, June 18.—Infinite variety is the dominant characteristic of the fashions of the season, and never in the recollection of the present generation has there been such variety or greater opportunity for individualism to display itself.

The special variety observable this month is in wedding gowns and bridal outfits. June is the brides' month, and revelations in the matter of style are certain, for the commonplace is above everything else to be avoided.

For the all-important ceremony itself every known material is allowed, and the costumes designed for young matrons to wear show marked ingenuity and unmistakably artistic effects. The commonplace is the one thing to be avoided, and the bride who succeeds in introducing a personal note into her wardrobe has achieved the greatest success. One pretty girl who is soon to become a bride favors a certain, somewhat difficult shade of tender blue, and every costume her trousseau contains shows a bit of the color somewhere in its makeup. It may not be more than a touch found in the soft bow of tulle worn at the collar, a thread introduced into the embroidery made for the bodice, or a glimpse caught as the lining of the skirt is revealed, but it is there and it means the personal touch. The wedding gown is the only one wherein no hint of the blue is found, as that must be all white; but, in carrying out the old tradition of something new, something blue, etc., its admirer has chosen a bit of that peculiar shade so that her favorite color will be worn, even though hidden from view.

Although in bridal costumes there is nothing new, everything possible is in use, and the law of traditional white is the only fixed one that exists. One of the loveliest gowns that has been seen is of white point d'esprit with touches of white satin and trimming of orange blossoms. The foundation is soft taffeta, over which the net falls in folds. On the skirt are two flounces edged with ruches and headed by the dainty flowers mingled with lillies of the valley. The bodice is made with bolero effect and a soft bertha outlining the yoke, the bertha being finished with flowers and the bolero edged with a fall of Cluny lace in the soft coloring that age alone can give. The sleeves are tight to the elbows, banded with folds of satin, but above that point are draped over the foundation. Beneath the bolero is a tiny vest of satin and lace, over which the points of the jacket meet, held by rosettes of satin, and the high collar is made of bands of satin over the net to match the deep cuffs.

Among street costumes the tailored taffetas are more distinctly novel than any others seen, and have the additional merit of making delightful warm weather gowns. The Eton is almost ubiquitous, but it takes a variety of forms, and is altogether charming and satisfactory. Tucks are much liked and have a certain value of their own, but there is an impression that they have been overdone, and some of the plain jackets with collars of handsome Russian lace and beautiful buttons possess a style and quality difficult to outdo. Beside the plain black, black with narrow stripes of white, brown, gray and tan are all used and are admirable. In addition the separate jackets remain as much in favor as ever, and seem destined for an indefinite life. Style is often a synonym for much that is capricious and absurd, but recent experiences show that once having established the value of a garment women do not readily let it go. The shirt waist has become a permanent possession. Tailored suits will surely never pass away, and these smart little Etons that provide just enough warmth for a cool summer day, that have no perceptible weight and are generally becoming likely to be added to the list. Again and again it is rumored that the Eton is doomed, but so far not the least sign of such fate can be found. Certain three-quarter coats, suggestive of Louis XV, are seen, and are exceedingly fashionable for driving, but are far from taking the place of the useful, jaunty little jacket. Collars of various shapes, with and without revers, are also in evidence but the favorite is quite collarless and can be worn plain or embellished with a collar of batiste or lace, as required. The coats are exceedingly handsome worn by the right women, and are seen in black, gray, tan, wood browns, soft terra cotta shades, and even in quiet blues and greens. A beautiful model in one of the new terra cotta shades has frills of soft cream lace down the front and over the hands, with exquisite jeweled buttons beyond the jabots, and is designed for wear with a gown of barege in the same shade, but the quieter tones that harmonize with many colors are generally preferred.

Older women wear plain black in peau de soie and taffeta and find them both dignified and becoming, but these are made on simple lines and are quite correct for the street. The complaint is often made, and with justice, that all styles are for the young and slender, but these exceedingly handsome coats go far to mitigate the charge. Their lines are specially designed with reference to that loss of slim proportions which is apt to come with maturity, and they possess a certain inherent dignity at the same time that they are essentially smart. Black or white lace, with or without jet, is the usual trimming and white or black satin are the chosen linings.

Following silk, etamine makes the favorite tailored gown, but the costumes designed for the carriage and for visiting include a whole host of materials, vailing, poplin, crepe de chine and all the similar soft clinging materials as well as the always serviceable foulards. As was noted a week ago, cloth strappings upon foulard gowns constitute the latest feature, and there is really nothing new to add except that when the cloth is not used, lace is seen in profusion. This is indeed a lace season. Every sort of both real and imitation is used, and the latter is often so clever and so charming as to leave little to be desired. A feature is the threading with black velvet and colored silk ribbons. A charming toilet included in a model trousseau is of silk warp vailing in a soft pastel tan. The skirt is made plain except for a deep shaped circular flounce that is headed by cream point de Venise in a waving applique, the upper edge of which is run with black velvet ribbon. The bodice is all of the lace over silk valled with chiffon, except for a tiny front which is of tucked chiffon alone, and the miniature jacket is of the material with an edge of the lace to match that on the skirt. Equally lovely and attractive gowns of the silk warp veiling are tucked in every possible way. A recent model is exceedingly graceful and by no means elaborate. The skirt is simply tucked in groups of two, with applique of irregular cream lace between, across the front and sides from the belt to flounce depth. Where the tucks cease the lace also ends, and the material falls plain in soft full folds to give a flounce effect. The bodice also is tucked in groups of yoke depth with applique between, and includes a bolero of lace with sleeves that are made with lace upper portion, tucked cuffs and a soft frill of chiffon between, the chiffon appearing again in the collar and big chou, with ends, that is placed where the fronts of the bolero meet.

Lace stitches are much used and always give an air of elegance and finish, at the same time that they provide a means of incorporating perpendicular lines in the skirt, which in itself is a distinct advantage whenever it is advisable to apparently increase height. A beautiful gown of a new, almost transparent crepe de chine in dove gray was worn by the mother of one of June's earliest brides. The skirt is cut in narrow gores, or panels, at front and sides, heavy silk or floss. At the lower edge it is cut in Van Dycks that are edged with an applique of cream guipure, and that fall over plisse flounces of chiffon edged with tiny ruches of the material. The stitching is exceedingly ornamental over the louisine foundation in cream, and besides forming an effective trimming, serves to give an effect of slenderness at the hips. Elaborate as the gown appears at first thought, the stitching is not really such a formidable undertaking and might easily be reproduced by any clever needlewoman. The several gores, or sections, must be basted upon some firm foundation cut to the desired size and shape and the stitching done over it, as is the case in lace making; but that is a simple matter and many a bit of amateur Russian renaissance or Honiton lace shows more elaborate and more difficult work. The gowns of today are distinguished for nicety of workmanship before all else, and it is this very element that is responsible for their cost. With such and similar work done at home, tasteful, up-to-date and dainty costumes could easily be brought within reach and without a greater expenditure of time, patience, or strength than is often given to the making of less desirable objects.

FASHION NOTES.

Watermelon pink is a fashionable color.

Picture hats of plaited straw and tulle, with trimming of a single large French feather, are among the newest conceits.

Burnt straw, with garniture of velvet ribbon and acacia blossoms, represents a strikingly pretty hat by a French designer.

The elastic ground belt, quite wide and shaped to the figure with a bone or two is the approved style for general wear. The belt is woven with the lower edge coming just below the waist line and the elastic is decorated with many devices.

The ostrich plume reigns triumphant this season and many hat brims are threaded and overcast with black velvet ribbon half an inch in width.

A French fancy is for mouse gray and white Louis XVI kid shoes and black and white open-work stockings.

Taffeta jackets in black and gray, both three-quarters length and short, with sack backs and loose fronts, are much favored. A short, jaunty model, cut round and finished with a frill of plaited chiffon edged with the tiniest of silk ruffling, showed pagoda sleeves, ornamented with a frill and a Louis XIII collar.

Quills are seen on nearly all the hats especially designed to wear with tailor-made suits, and the quills are utilized in novel ways.

Dressy hats for wear at seashore or mountain resorts are made of mull in all the delicate shades.

The approved shoe for feminine traveling use is calf skin with damp proof silk lining, which does away with the necessity for overshoes.

Like the dainty gown of summer the dressy sunshade is adorned with chiffon, applique lace, cretonne and embroideries of various kinds. Often the decoration is that of trails of flowers in gauze, sometimes falling from the top to the point and sometimes passing round the sunshade. Or it suggests one huge flower with layer upon layer of chiffon cut out in petal shapes, and posed one above another till the effect is that of one big rose in the pink or tea rose yellow chiffon, or of a poppy in the white or scarlet chinkled crepe that is similarly used. The newest sunshades are encrusted with lace, embroidered with ribbon work, overlaid with cretonne embroidery or painted with particolored blossoms. These decorations sometimes appear on the silk, but far more frequently on the chiffon that drapes the foundation.

On some of the batiste, muslin and zephyr linen gowns for morning wear, tiny caplets take the place of the popular ruffle over the shoulder.

Black grenadine ruffle, the edges all along tipped with white ostrich feathers, a white muslin one having black chenille spots, a black tulle with silk lace insertions, are among the pretty boas seen this season.

The Marquise bracelet is the accompaniment of the elbow sleeve gown for afternoon wear and the short sleeve evening gown

Belts showing fine filigree embroidery in gold, others nail heads in steel or decoration of tiny jet beads, are worn with white gowns. The foundation is black, white or blue elastic.

Butterflies of Chantilly lace studded with sapphires and brilliants are included among the costly and exquisite hair ornaments.

THE NEW TUXEDO.

The Summer Girl Will Prove Magnetic In This Attractive Waist.

This new model is designed for wear over the light and filmy waists of the season. It is built of resida green liberty satin, braided in white and black silk, the braid set close together and forming in effect one braid. The edges are straps of the satin stitched in white. From John Forsythe.

IN MICHIGAN.

Houghton Hotel With Forty Guests Has Been Quarantined.

Houghton.—A well developed case of smallpox was discovered at the Pfeiffer hotel on Sheldon street in the heart of the business district. The house was promptly quarantined and about forty guests are gazing disconsolantly from the windows. There are twenty to thirty cases of the disease in the copper district at present and the county isolation hospital is filled. Fortunately the disease is in exceptionally mild form.

Ishpeming.—The Dalton Packing company's plant, between Ishpeming and Negaunee, was destroyed by fire early this morning. Origin unknown. The loss is about $30,000; insurance, $8000.

Menominee.—"The spring fish catch in Green bay waters will not exceed 17,000 half barrels," saiys a pioneer fisherman, and he is very doubtful if it will reach that. Continuing, he says, "The catch has been the lightest in twenty years, and we cannot account for it. Most of the fishermen are discouraged, as they have purchased new twine to conform with the provisions of the law, and have made little or nothing." Wholesale dealers are offering $1.50 per package delivered at Menominee, but some of the fishermen are holding off for $2. Pentherthy, Cook & Co. are handling big quantities of fish, but most of it is shipped to Menominee from Door county. This firm employs a crew of men to repack the fish and they ship South and West.

The cities of Marinette and Menominee are in a wrangle over the lower iron bridge. The Menominee aldermen says the Marinette side of the draw is in a dangerous position, and liable to go down at any time, and they have importuned Marinette officers to make repairs. The latter, after an inspection, say there is no danger, but they have decided to construct a protection pier around the abutment. Several steamers have run into it.

PRESIDENT WILL MOVE

Seat of Government to Be Transferred to Canton.

Mrs. McKinley Will Be In Condition to Move July 1.

Secretary Gage to Stay at Capital During the Summer.

From The Herald Washington Bureau.

Washington, June 24.—(Special to The Herald.)—Indications at the present time are that the seat of government will soon be transferred to Canton, Ohio, if Mrs. McKinley continues to improve. It is the intention of the president, it is pretty well known, to take her to his Ohio home, and it will probably necessitate the president's remaining with her during the summer months at least. Mrs. McKinley's physicians seem now well satisfied that by July 1, or a little later, she will be in a condition to leave Washington for Canton without injury, and if so, President McKinley will be compelled to transact the government's business in his home city for some time to come. It will be recalled that he was there several weeks last summer, but, being in direct touch with Washington by telegraph and telephone, there was no hitch in any direction, and it is not doubted but that his duties can be performed there this summer as well as last. He will be accompanied by Dr. Rixey, the family physician, and George B. Cortelyou and a staff of stenographers, clerks, telegraph operators, etc., from the White House. From time to time he will probably receive visits at Canton from various members of the cabinet, so that the government's business will be transacted just as well, though the president will be absent from the capital city.

The understanding now is that every member of the cabinet will spend a good deal of time away from Washington between July 1 and Oct. 1. It is not probable, however, that all will be absent at the same time. Secretary Gage of the treasury department is perhaps the only one who will remain in the capital city during the president's absence. It is possible that he, too, will be able to take a short vacation, but the business of the treasury is in such a condition that it will require his personal attention a greater part of the summer. It will be easy enough for Secretary Hay to get out of the city, as will also be the case with the secretary of the navy, secretary of war, the attorney general, secretary of interior, postmaster general and the secretary of agriculture.

In view of the fact that the president will not find it necessary to call an extra session of congress, it is not at all unlikely that he will remain in Canton until at least Oct. 1. The heated season in Washington will then be over, and if Mrs. McKinley continues to improve, as it is thought she will while in her Ohio home, there is no reason why she should not come back to this city with her husband on that date.

Politicians of all parties in this city have been watching the contest between various candidates for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination in Virginia. Now that it is known that Attorney General Montague will easily defeat all competitors, the Republicans are giving considerable thought as to the possibilities of their party to carry Virginia this fall. Various reasons are set forth by some of the Republican leaders why it is possible for the Republican state ticket, if a strong one is named, to carry the state. Democratis, on the other hand, laugh at the idea that there is any possibility of their ticket being defeated. They seem to think that Mr. Montague will make a winning fight, as he has proved conclusively, in the recent contest with his opponents for the governorship and in his party, that as a campaigner he is equalled by few and excelled by none in that state. Republicans, however, so it is stated, propose to put a strong ticket in the field and make an energetic fight to carry the state.

* * *

Politicians who come to Washington these days are talking a good deal about the probable choice of the presidential candidate by the delegates to the next national Republican convention. As is pretty generally known, since the president announced that he would not accept a third term, a good many new candidates for the presidency are being discussed with considerable interest. This list, as it practically stands at this time, is Roosevelt, Odell, Fairbanks, Spooner, Cullom, Griggs, Foraker and Lodge. Frequently the name of Mr. Hanna is suggested, but the Ohio senator laughs to scorn the idea that he stnds any chances of nomination, and if he did, he often asserts that he would not make the race if nominated. There are people, however, who will have it that Senator Hanna is affected by the presidential bee. It is maintained by these people that there are conditions under which the so-called Ohio boss will accept the nomination. The only thing considered the real drawback to his making the race is, if he could be nominated, the state of his health at the time the convention meets. In the event that his health is as good then as it is now, he would undoubtedly permit the delegates to the next national Republican convention to place him at the head of the presidential ticket.

* * *

There is one man the political prophets have not considered in discussing candidates for the Republican nomination for the presidency in 1904. Secretary Root of the war department has not yet been seriously mentioned as a candidate, but the understanding among his personal friends is that he may enter the race against Roosevelt and Odell as New York's candidate. Should Secretary Root decide to become a candidate, he has every reason to believe that he would have the support of this administration. He is regarded today as the leading member of the cabinet, having, it is said, given the president more good advice in dealing with knotty problems pertaining to our new colonial possessions and in other directions than all the other members of the cabinet put together. The president appreciates Secretary Root's qualifications, and if, as before stated, Mr. Root really has an ambition to run for president in 1904, he would, without doubt, have the backing of President McKinley and Senator Hanna. Secretary Root, however, may decide that his past record as a corporation lawyer might injure his candidacy, and he, therefore, may not try conclusions with the other candidates for the honor of leading the Republican party to victory or defeat in the next national canvass. In the event that he decides not to become a presidential candidate, it is believed by many that he will endeavor to succeed T. C. Platt in the United States senate at the close of the latter's term.

The state department has received a note from the Russian embassy, Washington, saying that in view of the imposition of article 626 of the American tariff to Russian petroleum, the minister of finance of Russia has applied the advanced rates of duty to the following American products entering Russia: (1) White rosin or colophon, galipot, brewers' pitch (article 82); (2) bicycles (article 173, paragraph 3). This measure will go into effect two weeks after its promulgation.

Minister Sampson, of Quito, transmits the following facts concerning the trade between the United States and Ecuador for 1898 and 1900: The custom house records of 1899, in Guayaquil, were destroyed by fire. The importations in 1898 and 1900 amounted to $1,094,576 and $1,500,873 respectively. The exportations for the same years were to the value of $1,074,655 and $1,420,500.

The importations into Ecuador consisted of flour, provisions, kerosene, hardware, lumber, railroad ralls, machinery and textiles. The exportations to the United States consisted of cacao, coffee, rubber, hides, hats and ivory nuts. For a number of years, says the minister, the trade between Ecuador and the United States has been increasing; from present indications the year 1901 will not be an exception. The balance of trade is in favor of the United States, being $19,921 in 1898 and $80,373 in 1900.

THE DAKOTAS.

Sioux Students Want a Voice In Affairs and Organize.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Cannon Ball.—An organization called the Returned Students' association has been formed by the Indians on this reservation. Only progressive Indians, and those who have been to school can belong. The society intends to select competent members and endeavor to have them appointed when vacancies arise in positions of the agency. They will also endeavor to have the controlling voice in Indian councils, instead of allowing the Indian chiefs to dictate, as is the present custom.

Minot.—H. J. Haskamp, of Melrose, Minn., and F. Hedgerken of Dresden, N. D., are here making arrangements to start a national bank with a capital of $25,000. The Great Northern bank will become the Minot National July 1st; capital, $25,000.

Jamestown.—Chief L'Moore and Deputy Sheriff Severn rounded up three men suspected of having robbed a Dickinson, N. D., hardware store a few days ago. When arrested they were selling cutlery to Italians at work for the Northern Pacific. They will be held until the arrival of the Dickinson authorities.

An instance of how values of land have been affected is shown in the case of a property owner who offered a quarter section for $200 before June 1. The farmer adjoining feared to take the land, as it might not rain. The owner has advanced the price several times since the rains, and now has raised it to $1600, which the farmer agrees to pay.

Fargo.—The Great Northern will establish a town to be known as Souris at the end of its extension west from Bottineau.

Grand Forks.—A geological survey will be made during the coming summer of the entire North Dakota side of the Red river valley.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

Aberdeen.—Senator James M. Kyle, who has been ill for several days, is in a very serious condition and fears are entertained that he may not recover. Heart trouble is the cause of his illness and the attack is similar to the one that prostrated the senator at Cleveland two years ago.

Mrs. W. E. Kidd, who has just returned from a tour of inspection of the charitable and penal institutions of the state as a member of the board of women visitors, speaks highly of the manner in which they are managed.

An alumni association of eighth grade graduates of the county schools was formed here Friday and officers elected. This is the first organization of the kind in the state.

Rapid City—The National Mining and Smelting company completed the final arrangements for the erection of a 50-ton smelter east of this city. Dr. H. H. Mugley, of Boston, represented the company's interests.

Huron—John F. Millan sauntered into the government land office in this city, a day of two since, and inquired concerning a quarter section of land near the thriving town of Wessington, and was informed that a cancellation of the entry had been made only a few moments before. He at once put a homestead filing on the tract, and in less than an hour was offered $1000 for the relinquishment. It is Mr. Millan's intention to move upon the land and establish a home there for himself and family, and engage in stock raising.

Deadwood—A woman's congress is to be held in this city during the quarto-centennial then first week in July. In most of the towns in the Hills, preparations are already well along for a large attendance and regular programs will be carried out, the days of the carnival being divided up for the various visiting delegations. Rapid City ladies are making more than ordinary plans for the occasion. The city hall will be opened for the congress.

SMOKELESS POWDER.

Principal Factor In War Material Evolution.

The principal factors in the evolution of our latest artillery material have been the introduction of smokeless powders, which made high muzzle energies and great rate of fire possible; telescopic sights by which the increased range and flat trajectory could be utilized for obtaining great accuracy at long ranges; perfection of time fuses for shrapnel shells, carriages without recoil, automatic mechanisms, guns and carriage for curved fire, the Vickers' breach screw, and the use of electricity, hydraulics and hydro-pneumatic power in manipulating carriages, guns and ammunition lifts and hoists, says the New York Sun.

The modern smokeless powders have done most perhaps to develop artillery; first, because by their means the old energies of the days of black powder have been more than trebled, so that with the use of telescopic sights and range-finders long range fire has been made accurate, and is consequently the order of the day on land and sea; secondly, owing to the fact that the target is never obscured by smoke but is visible at all times, they have rendered possible a great rate of fire, which is further increased by the fact that, not leaving any residue in the gun, the tedious operations of sponging can be dispensed with.

The smokeless powders increase the muzzle energies thus:

They have a much slower rate of burning than the old, consequently guns can be made longer with advantage, and the powder gases thus acting a longer time on the projectile give it a higher velocity. Now, since the energy varies with the second power of its velocity, the remarkable effect of increasing the latter is at once explained.

The two great classes of smokeless powders are nitro-glycerine powders and nitro-cellulose powders. Of these the latter is preferred on the continent of Europe and in the United States. Germany, where a nitro-glycerine powder was used until recently, has finally adopted a nitro-cellulose powder; England is the only great nation still using a nitro-glycerine powder, cordite.

The great advantage of nitro-cellulose powder consists in producing the highest possible ballistics (velocity and energy) with the least possible amount of wear to the gun. The temperature due to the explosion of nitro-glycerine powders is nearly double that of nitro-cellulose powders, hence the great wear of the guns using cordite and similar powders. This erosion is greatest at the beginning of the rifling, and abnormally enlarges the seat of the projectile, so that, after a few rounds the shot is overrammed, increasing the size of the chamber, which, as there is more room for expansion of powder gases, reduces the pressure and consequently the velocity. Moreover, this enlargement prevents the proper centering of the projectile at starting, affecting thus the accuracy of fire, the projectile receiving a gyrating motion. The result is that nitro-cellulose powders give velocities exceeding 3000 foot seconds, while nitro-glycerine powders, after a few rounds, cannot be depended upon for more than 2500.

As an example of the small effects of erosion due to nitro-cellulose powders, a Krupp gun was fired 534 times, and then the dimensions came within the acceptance limits of a new gun.

The element of accuracy of fire, so important in these days of ships steaming twenty knots an hour, is also involved in the powder used, and the first consideration for real accuracy under service conditions is the obtaining of a powder which does not cause variations in ballistics, either through change of temperature or damage to the bore of the gun. Close upon this comes the other main consideration of a good sight. With a telescopic sight the waste of ammunition is lessened, and the accuracy of fire is increased at least 30 per cent. One of the difficulties of such sights has been to bring the cross wires of the telescope in focus with the object aimed at, but Sir Howard Grubb of Dublin has invented a sight recently in which an imaginary image, practically in focus with the object aimed at, can be brought into alignment, so that no parallax results.

Another important element for accuracy of fire is a carriage so constructed as to give as little "jump" as possible. Accuracy of fire at long ranges is the great point brought out by all recent wars, on land and at sea, for field, naval and coast artillery and the manufacturers of all forms of gun carriages are striving to attain this end. The latest form of non-recoil carriage is that designed by Messrs. Ehrhardt, of Dusseldorf, Germany, in which the gun recoils in a cradle. The characteristic feature, however, is a long telescopic trial, drawn out in firing, and by its great length preventing unsteadiness as well as jump.

The use of electricity, hydraulic and hydro-pneumatic power has also made the heavier guns practically quick firers. In one of the latest designs of Krupp mountings the latter is elevated and trained by electricity, but the rammer is operated by hydraulic power, conveyed by means of flexible hydraulic piping. The recoil is taken up by a hydraulic cylinder, a portion of the liquid of which is used for compressing air which stores up energy and after used for running the gun out to the firing position. The ammunition supply is obtained electrically. On the U. S. S. Alabama the mounting for the 12-inch guns uses no power except electric, with the exception of the recoil arrangements, which are hydraulic combined with heavy spiral springs. A recent Vickers mounting, now being supplied to the Turkish government, is worked entirely by hydraulic power.

These are the main features in the recent development of artillery. Ere long the traversing and elevation of our seacoast guns will probably be done by electric power, and the tedious operation of retracing heavy guns—bringing the gun back to the loading position without firing it, as is so often necessary at drill with guns on disappearing carriages—will soon be accomplished by an electric motor.

EVEN WITH THE PLUMBER.

A plumber was hired by a Cabanne man to make some minor repairs on the hot water apparatus in his kitchen. The plumber arrived, it so happened, while all the members of the family were away from home. It took him about 30 minutes to do the work, says the St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

But the plumber was a good-looking, garulous chap, and while working the hot water apparatus into proper shape he also worked his way into the good graces of the cook and the housemaid.

They asked him to stay to lunch, and as there was a little time to spare during the forenoon they asked him into the parlor, where they regaled him with vocal and instrumental music. In return he hammered out a few chords on the piano and sang a few Havlinesque ditties.

After lunch the plumber still lingered and there was more music and merry making. He used his employer's private telephone and summoned a friend to complete the festal party. Then about dusk, he and his friend departed.

Mr. Employer thought the work would cover about $2 and was somewhat astounded, even with his knowledge of plumbers, to receive a bill the following day for $15.

He examined the improvements and inquired how long it had taken the plumber to complete the work. The neighbors gave him some information on this point. Then Mr. Employer wrote the plumber somewhat like this:

My Dear Mr. Jumber: Permit me to acknowledge the receipt of your favor of present date informing me of my indebtedness to you in the sum of $15. It would be, indeed, a pleasure for me to inclose you a check for that amount, were you not indebted to me as follows:

To one dinner	$1.50
To lunch for yourself and friend during afternoon	2.00
To vaudeville entertainment, furnished by my cook and housemaid (cheap at any price)	10.00
To additional outlay for services of colored man to clean house after your visit	3.00
Total	$16.50

If you will kindly remit to me the sum of $1.50, the balance, which you will observe is in my favor, you will oblige, yours very truly, MR. EMPLOYER.

The plumber did not reply and has not asked for his $15 since.

My lover built a house for me and tried to warm it with his flaming heart. It did not work, as you will see, until he got me Rocky Mountain Tea, 35c. Ask your druggist.

EXILED FROMHOME

Henry Wessels, Paroled Transvaal Soldier, Working In Duluth.

Rich In His Own Country, and Heavy Land Owner.

Property All Confiscated and Separated From Family.

Twelve thousand miles from home and family, exiled from the country he loves, with all of his property confiscated, Henry Wessels, Transvaaler, soldier, and land owner, is working on the streets of Duluth for the wages of a common laborer. A rich man in his own country, this "pauvre exile du Transvaal" as a French nobleman has called him, is working day after day pounding paving blocks for Waterworth & Fee in front of the Northern Pacific freight depot, saving money here and there to bring his family, now prisoners in the Transvaal, to this country until a time comes when they can all go back to their loved land together and live in peace for the rest of their lives.

A paroled prisoner of war, he refuses to talk concerning the conflict more than to relate the story of his arrest and capture.

Wessels was born on the borderland and attended an English school, so that he speaks perfect English with but a slight accent. He chooses his words well, and expresses his points perfectly. Born about forty-five year ago of rich parents, he has increased his worldly possession until at the beginning of the war he could call himself a wealthy man. When the call to arms went forth he, with the rest of his friends, went into the field to repel the invaders, and was in most of the large battles. He came through the war without wounds and was successful in eluding capture until about four months ago, when the Boer army was at Bigersburg nek. The English held an advantageous position, and were strongly entrenched, when the Boer leader, General Hotha, called for volunteers. Four men stepped forward. Wessels among them. It was almost certain that they would be captured but that did not deter them. All was going well, when suddenly a sentry stood before them and recognized them. They were quickly surrounded and taken prisoners and were put on board a prison ship. After weary weeks of waiting they were released on parole, with the assurance that if ever they came back to the country, they would be treated to the sight of a file of soldiers and a shallow grave.

Wessels was forced to leave the country without seeing his wife or children and went to England after which he came to this country. He spent a month or so in Canada and made some powerful friends, among whom was a member of parliament. Coming to this city he was stranded and, too proud to beg was forced to pawn his father's watch. Unfortunately he went into one of the blood-sticking shops on the Bowery where he received $1.50 on it. He has been in the city just a month and Saturday night after drawing his week's pay, he went to the shop to secure his watch. The pawnbroker said that it had been ordered cleaned, and consequently there was $2.50 coming to the house before he could redeem it. This Wessels paid, although he said that he had not ordered anything of the kind. The matter has been put in the hands of the police and will be looked into.

Wessels is staying at the Bethel on Lake avenue where he has a room. He is an interesting talker and showed a Herald reporter a picture of his wife with his youngest child which was born while he was in the army and died while he was in captivity. There were tears in his eyes when he spoke of his loved ones.

He has a deck of cards on each of which is the name of some friend in the Transvaal, and which he cherishes among the most treasured of his possessions. Several letters to him were shown the reporter which on the top bore red slips of paper with the legend "Opened under marshal law, Y. R."

The life of this Transvaaler has been full of exciting incidents, and were he not bound by his parole, doubtless he could tell stories that would open some people's eyes.

Wessels is a tall, well made, man of powerful frame and it would not be difficult for any one to recognize his nationality from his appearance. He has the customary beard, and smokes his pipe a good deal. He is a very friendly man when one becomes acquainted with him, and is well liked by his co-laborers. Wessels is delighted with America and thinks that a country which gained its freedom with so much difficulty is nearer to his own fatherland than any other.

OCTOBER FIRST.

Prices of Underwear Will Be Boosted.

Albany, N. Y., June 24.—Representatives of thirty-seven of the largest knit-goods mills have decided to continue the temporary organization, formed a short time ago, until Oct. 1, 1901, and to name it "The American Knit-Goods association." The association has decided to maintain the prices and terms of schedule adopted May 7 in effect until Aug. 1, 1901, when another advance will probably be made.

Owing to the increased call for fleece-lined underwear, it will agree to allow manufacturers to run their plants as their orders demand. The association adjourned to meet in this city June 27.

OVER THE GOUT.

Chamberlain Celebrates His Recovery.

London, June 24.—Mr. Chamberlain, the colonial secretary, has signalized his recovery from an attack of gout and his resumption of his duties by telegraphing to the unionist candidate for Stratford:

"I hope the electors will remember that a seat lost to the government is still a seat gained by the Boers," thus repeating the dictum which earned him unlimited abuse at the time of the last election.

WILL FILL PLACES.

Central Strikers Given Last Chance to Return.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., June 20.—The Central railway of New Jersey today issued an ultimatum to the 900 strikers at the Ashley shops, stating that all the men who do not return to work tomorrow morning shall consider themselves discharged. Their places will be filled. This is interpreted to mean that the company will bring non-union men to the shops. The strikers have expected this move, for during the lest three days the company has had a number of special policemen sworn in. The strikers say there will be trouble if non-union men come here.

CANOE RACES.

International Event at Pan-American Exposition.

Buffalo, June 24.—One of the most interesting of the special events scheduled during the Pan-American exposition will be canoe races which will begin this afternoon and continue over tomorrow. They will be held on the park lake within the grounds of the exposition. There are twenty-two events on the two days' program. The affair is under the auspices of the American Canoe association and international in character, many canoeists having come from Toronto, Montreal and other points in Canada. American and Canadian crews will compete in the half and mile war canoe races.

ON TRIAL.

Marquis DeLursaluces Faces His Accusers.

Paris, June 24.—The senate assembled this afternoon in its capacity as a high court of justice to try the Marquis de Lursaluces, the well-known royalist and former member of the chamber of deputies, who returned unexpectedly to Paris about the middle of May, after having been condemned in January, 1900, in default of appearance, to ten years' banishment from France for treason. The president of the senate, M. Fallieres, presided. The marquis, escorted by two guards, appeared at the bar of the house to answer the charge of complicity in the offenses of high treason and attempts against the safety of the state, for which MM. Deroulede, Buffet, Marcel-Habert and Guerin were condemned. There was no excitement in the vicinity of the palace where the senate holds las sitting, as was the case in the earlier trial of the marquis and the others mentioned.

NASH NAMED

For Another Term as Governor of Ohio.

E. N. Nippert Selected For Lieut. Governor.

Columbus, O., June 25.—Governor Nash was today nominated for a second term by the Republican convention.

For lieutenant governor E. N. Nippert of Hamilton county, was nominated.

When the Republican state convention reconvened this morning, the auditorium was packed regardless of the extreme heat. After prayer the credentials committee presented its report, signed by twenty-one members. It favored the "Hanna delegation" from Fayette. The report was adopted, the only Daugherty man on the committee offering no minority report.

Permanent organization was then effected by the selection of Senator Hanna as chairman.

Senator Foraker introduced the permanent chairman as the man "who knows his business, and how to attend to it."

In assuming the gavel Senator Hanna stated that Senator Foraker had sounded the keynote and would continue to be in the campaign when all Republicans in Ohio would be with him to a man. After eulogizing his colleague in the senate, he insisted that the coming contest is national in its importance, discussed the financial question and insisted the country demands a continuance of confidence in the government in order to have continued prosperity. Senator Hanna was loudly applauded when he concluded.

The platform was then presented.

The reading was repeatedly cheered and the platform was immediately adopted. Governor Nash was then presented for renomination by Henry C. Taylor, who nominated Nash two years ago. The governor was renominated by acclamation.

Governor Nash accepted in a brief speech, confined to state affairs. He said the past ten years of Republican administration in Ohio had been such that not even the opposition party could find fault.

Nominations were then called for lieutenant governor. There were repeated calls for Caldwell. Former Representative Hoffheimer of Cincinnati presented the name of State Senator Carl N. Nippert of Hamilton county. There was no opposition and Nippert was nominated by acclamation.

For judge of supreme court, J. L. Price was nominated on the second ballot.

Attorney General, John M. Sheets was nominated for a second tedm without opposition.

For clerk of the supreme court—Lawson E. Emerson.

For state treasurer—Isaac B. Cameron (re-nominated).

Resolutions of sympathy with Secretary of State John Hay were adopted and the convention adjourned.

THE PLATFORM.

Ohio Republicans Adopt Unusually Gushing Effusion.

Columbus, O., June 25.—The report of the resolutions committee of the Republican state convention which was unanimously adopted by the convention at the platform of the party in Ohio, reaffirms the Philadelphia platform: Pledges undivided support to the Republican party, the magnificent achievements of which, it is declared, have added lustre to American history, and under the administration of which the United States has become a world power. Industry has been revived, it is set forth, plenty has succeeded want, and our export trade now leads the world. The gold standard is specifically endorsed. Further strengthening the navy, legislation looking to the restoration of the merchant marine, the speedy construction of an American ship canal across the isthmus, are declared to be imperative needs.

In regard to combinations of capital, the platform says: "We recognize the right of both labor and capital to combine when such combinations are wisely administered for the general good, but combinations which create monopolies to control prices or limit production are an evil which must be met by effective legislation, vigorously and enforced."

Congress is asked to renew humane and reasonable laws and treaties for the continued protection of American labor. This has particular reference to the expiration of the Geary act. A ringing tribute is paid the soldiers and sailors of Uncle Sam.

Attempts to deprive any citizen of his right to vote under the constitution is denounced and the demand is made that representatives in congress and in the electorial college shall be based on the actual voting population, proportionate reduction being made for any state in which the right of suffrage shall be denied, except for crime.

Lynching is denounced in unmeasured terms.

Victory for American arms in the war with Spain is declared to have brought the blessings of liberty to millions of human beings. The Republican principle that congress has power to govern the new possessions according to the needs of their people, and in the interests of the people of the United States is declared to have been upheld by the supreme court.

President McKinley is lauded for the "prudent and successful management of American interests in China."

It is declared that the nation's pledge to Cuba is being faithfully kept, insuring freedom and independence to this people, who, it is added, are today enjoying more prosperity than ever before.

The Cubans are congratulated on "wise and conservative action in favor of stable government."

Porto Rico is stated to be flourishing beyond all former experiences; Hawaii's entrance into the full territorial relations with the United States government has been marked by the most marvelous progress known in the history of those islands. In the Philippines a "wicked insurrection has been suppressed," and "civil government, contemplating the largest practicable degree of home rule, has succeeded military control. Personal freedom, with an equality of rights heretofore to them unknown, is secured to every inhabitant."

All these things are declared to be due to the "patriotic and brilliant administration of President McKinley," who, in "facing unforeseen and grave responsibilities, has met them prudently, bravely and successfully."

Governor Nash's administration is declared to have been "wise, able, prudent, honest and economical."

Revision of the state tax laws are favored in such a manner as shall require all classes of property to bear their just share.

Full and cordial approval is extended to Senators Foraker and Hanna. Senator Foraker is declared to have rendered "splendid and conspicuous service in our country and we earnestly endorse him for a second term."

PLUNGED INTO CANAL

Fatal Mistake of Engineer Wash Snow Cost Him His Life---The Train Fortunately Was Saved.

La Crose, Wis., June 25.—A special to the Republican and Leader from Portage, Wis., says that Wash Snow, the oldest engineer on the La Crosse division of the Milwaukee road, ran his engine into an open draw and was killed this morning. The drawbridge was open and he did not notice it for some reason. The train of three coaches, luckily, broke off and did not follow the engine into the canal. Snow's fireman was injured, but not fatally.

ARE TO BE REINFORCED

The Deputy Marshals Who Were Fired on In the Mining Regions Have Been Called Back to Charleston.

Thacker, W. Va., June 25.—Deputy marshals who were fired on here yesterday while endeavoring to serve notices of injunction on striking miners, left last midnight for Charleston, having received orders from United States Marshal Thompson to come there at once. The supposition here is that they will be largely reinforced and return, and that the state militia may be sent.

While the United States marshals wer in the city last night waiting for the train, probably fifty shots were fired into the depot from the Kentucky side of the river.

At Maratime today a small force of non-union men are at work. Aside from this every operation in the field is idle.

WILL NOT PROSECUTE.

Assailant of Emperor William Was Irresponsible.

Leipzig, June 25.—The first criminal section of the imperial court, sitting in camera today, decided not to prosecute Dietrich Wieland, the man who, at Bremen in March last, threw a piece of iron at Emperor William, wounding him in the cheek, and who has since been pronounced by physicians to be an epileptic who committed the assault upon his majesty while in an irresponsible condition.

BUT FEW RETURNED

Striking Shopmen of the Reading Decline to Obey.

Some New Accessions to the Strikers' Ranks Noted.

Situation Grave and a General Strike Is Predicted.

Reading, Pa., June 25.—Not a dozen of the 1000 striking shopmen of the Philadelphia & Reading company returned to work today, as they had been ordered to do by President Baer in his letter of Saturday. On the other hand there were some accessions to the ranks of the strikers.

The company's clerks worked until a late hour last night preparatory to paying off those who disregarded the president's order. The car shops are crippled and the boilermaking and blacksmith departments are idle. Moulders and machinists are waiting for orders to strike. The strikers are following the advice given by the leaders not to go near the company's property.

That the strike, though barely inaugurated, is being felt in the community, is shown by the caution with which many business men are laying in supplies. The merchants say that until the difficulty is settled they will not invest in any quantity of goods.

The situation is becoming grave and a general strike over the greater portion of the company's system is predicted. The impression is current that in order to win the strike, not only the shop employes still at work, but the trainmen also, must be called out.

Pottsville, Pa., June 25.—Thirty-four of the forty strikers at the Palo Alto shops of the Reading company did not return to work today, while the St. Clair shops of the same company are short but five men. There is no interruption at the Schuylkill Haven shops. Special police picketed the approaches to the Palo Alto shops this morning, but the strike leaders were absent and the police soon retired.

IN HARMONY.

Pennsylvania Steel Plants and Steel Trust Will Work.

New York, June 25.—The advices from Philadelphia that the Pennsylvania Railroad company, which recently purchased the Pennsylvania Steel company, has also acquired the Cambria Steel company, are confirmed by Judge Gary, chairman of the board of the United States Steel corporation, who said:

"President A. J. Cassatt, of the Pennsylvania railroad, voluntarily stated to me a few days ago that his people had purchased both the Cambria Steel company and the Pennsylvania Steel company and at the same time assured me that it would be the disposition of these companies to operate in entire harmony with the United States Steel corporation. Basing my statement on previous business transactions with Mr. Cassatt, I am pleased to say his assurances are received with perfect confidence and entire satisfaction. None of the interests of any of the steel companies will be prejudiced by reason of these purchases."

ILL FEELING

Over Refusal of Club to Allow Money to Shoot.

London, June 25.—Considerable ill feeling has been aroused by the refusal of the Hurlingham Gun club officials to allow the wel-known American pigeon shooter, Capt. Money, to compete in the pigeon shooting which commences tomorrow. Money was formerly a member of the Hurlingham club, but he allowed his membership to lapse. The alleged reason for the present refusal is that Money does not belong to any club of recognized position, but as Money has been a constant competitor in these contests it is generally thought that the point, if even true, might have been waived. Among the Americans competing will be Gates, of New York; E. L. Smith, of Saratoga; Robinson, of San Francisco, and R. Welch, of New York.

PUBLICLY SJAMBOKED.

Boers Punish Member of Cape Assembly.

Cape Town, June 25.—Jacobus Botha, the member of the Cape assembly for Aliwal North, has been captured by the Boers and publically sjamboked. In addition, his house was burned. The reason assigned for this treatment is that Botha voted in favor of the treason bill.

ENGAGED BY GRAU.

London, June 25.—In consequence of his success at Covent garden Saturday night, when he made his debut, the Italian tenor, De Marchi, has been engaged by Maurice Grau for the forthcoming opera season in the United States.

A patent for a wheel scraper has been issued to Peter G. Foglestrom, of Brainerd.

APPALLING

Eye Witness Tells of Keystone's Disaster.

A Raging Torrent Swept All Before It.

Richmond, Va., June 25.—A Dispatch correspondent who has returned from the scene of the Keystone flood disaster says there is no possible way yet to estimate the loss of life or property. Hundreds of people either are missing or are reported missing and a large number of dead bodies have been recovered. The scene of the flood's course baffles description. Everywhere is debris, composed of wrecked homes, demolished railroad cars, broken and splintered household furniture and now and then a corpse of a victim. Railroad iron was bent by the force of the flood, iron bridges, resting on their pier of solid masonry, withstood the strain but a moment and were swept away like empty casks. The eddying waters ate away the embankments and great railroad cars laden with half a hundred tons of black diamonds tumbled to destruction. The Elkhorn and North Forge valleys, but a few hours before teeming with busy thousands, were made a desolate scene of devastation and death in a few short hours. The financial loss is unobtainable, but is estimated that it will take millions to repair the damage. The Norfolk & Western tracks for miles are washed out and it is impossible to say when their trains can be operated. Although the damage begins at Coaldale, Keystone and Burke are the greatest sufferers. The two towns are practically one and form the largest place in the local coal fields. Many non-resident miners were in Keystone on Saturday morning and numbers of them whose names will never be learned, perished in the flood.

Bluefield, W. Va., June 25.—An eye witness of the flood which devastated Keystone, has arrived here. He was a guest of the National hotel—one of the few buildings which escaped destruction. In speaking of his experience he said the town was built along one narrow street, which followed the stream fully a mile. Because of limited space the houses on one side stood on piles or walls over the Elkhorn and, on the other, against the mountains. At daybreak Saturday, few people realized their danger. The narrow valley gradually filled with a raging torrent, sweeping away small buildings and causing a scramble to the mountain side. More than 100 persons remained to look after the women and children. When the railroad bridge was finally swept away, the flood poured down the narrow street, carrying many persons with it.

Eight lives are known to have been lost. From the hotel a life line was thrown to the building opposite, and thence to rescuers on the hillside. All in the hotel and those fortunate to reach it, were thus enabled to reach a place of safety at the imminent risk of their lives, however.

At Shawnee, several persons are said to have been drowned. The greater part of the town was destroyed.

New York, June 25.—The Norfolk & Western officials in this city have received the following telegram from the general passenger agent at Roanoke, Va.: "Latest information as to the storm at Pocahontas coal fields, damage to property $300,000. Loss of life about sixty. No loss of passengers or trains. We expect to resume running trains on Wednesday."

BRITISH AGAIN ANXIOUS

The Belief Prevails That the Censor Is Holding Back South African War News of an Unfavorable Tenor.

New York, June 25.—There is much discouragement in England over the military situation in South Africa, without definite news of any fresh disaster, says the Tribune's London correspondent. Gen. French has work to do in the French section, where his maneuvers were successful fifteen months ago.

The newspapers have so little war news that the suspicion is created that the censor is holding back much information of an unfavorable tenor.

Some of the military experts in the house of commons express the opinion that the reinforcements despatched to Lord Kitchener may have proved inadequate.

Cape Town, June 25.—Details of the engagement between Gen. Elliot's column and DeWet's force near Reitz, June 6, show that the British surprised the Boer convoy. The burghers fled, but, seeing that the captors were not in strong force, the Boers returned and charged with great determination, after desperate fighting, recaptured the convoy. Meanwhile Col. De Lisle arrived with reinforcements and the fighting was renewed. The Boers lay beneath their wagons and unflinchingly fired volleys between the wheels, while their comrades were engaged in spanning and driving off that portion of the convoy furthest from the British.

RUSSELL IS INDICTED

Grand Jury Finds a True Bill Against the Earl For Bigamy---Will Be Tried By House of Lords.

London, June 5.—In the Old Bailey court this morning, the grand jury returned a true bill against Earl Russell for bigamy, and the recorder announced that the trial would take place in the house of lords.

The action of the court yesterday in making absolute the decree nisi obtained in December, 1900, by George John Somerville on his divorce suit against his wife, in which Earl Russell was made co-respondent, was a purely legal formality.

In charging the grand jury, the recorder said that even if the earl's divorce was valid in the United States, it would not be binding in England. In the course of the day, the recorder notified the lord chancellor (Lord Halsbury) of the findings of the grand jury. A committee of the house of lords will be appointed in due time to arrange the procedure in the case.

LUNCH FOR HENDERSON

Ambassador Choate Entertains the Speaker of the House of Representatives, Who Meets Many Distinguished Englishmen.

London, June 5.—D. B. Henderson, speaker of the house of representatives, and Henry White, secretary of the United States embassy here, witnesed the inspection of the yeomen of the guard by King Edward in the garden of Marlborough house this afternoon.

Joseph H. Choate, the United States ambassador, entertained Speaker Henderson at luncheon later in the day. The following distinguished persons were present, in honor of the American speaker: Lord Roberts, Lord Pauncefote, Joseph Chamberlain, Sir Henry Fowler, M. P. Clement A. Griscom, president of the international navigation company; Sir Michael Hicks-Beach, Lord Strathcona and Mount Royal, Charles T. Ritchie, James Bryce, John Morley, Anthony E. Ashley, Capt. Lee, William St. John Brodrick, A. J. Balfour, William Court-Gully, speaker of the house of commons; Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman, Herbert H. Asquith, Judge Harrison, Henry White, George Wyndham, secretary for Ireland, J. P. Morgan, and Clinton Dawkins, a partner in the house of J. P. Morgan & Co.

ARE DOING WELL.

Miners on the Ranges Are Very Prosperous.

St. Paul, June 25.—Labor Commissioner O'Donnell has returned from a visit to the principal Mesaba and Vermilion mines. He found none of the miners earning less than $2 a day. Their homes are in good sanitary condition; except for the lack of underground sewers. The new miners' hospital was the finest he had seen in the state. It is supported by contributions from the men.

FIRE AT COSTA RICA.

New York, June 25.—A dispatch from Panama to the Herald says that advices just received by mail from Port Limon, Costa Rica, announce that the place has been swept by another large fire. More than thirty houses, some of them new buildings just erected, were destroyed. The fire started near the public square.

THE PAVING.

Effect of Storm Will Hurry Commencement of Work.

City Engineer Patton remarked this morning that the paving of Superior street was very likely to begin right away in view of the bad condition of the pavement in various locations after the hard storm of Monday. The city has been waiting a little for the street railway company to get its new rails and start the work, for the street railway company is to keep just ahead of the city force in the tearing up of the street about the tracks and the relaying of the new rails and bricks. Some of the new rails, which were ordered many weeks ago by the company have arrived and a preliminary understanding is being arrived at between the street railway company and the board of public works relative to just what is expected of the company, when the work will proceed. City Engineer Patton today notified the contractors of the water and gas service pipes that would have to be put in at the time of repavement.

City Engineer Patton feels justified in calling attention to the service of the stone gutters that were put in on the avenues some years ago. He says that while he was city engineer in 1883, '84 and '85, he advocated the stone instead of the wooden gutters and received roasts from many quarters because of his stand. Under the strain that gutters have been placed during past years, and practically during the big storm of yesterday, he sees reason to feel pretty well satisfied over his firmness in holding out for the stone gutters, which are still in excellent condition after the wooden gutters have, in many instances, disappeared.

EVERYTHING MOVING WELL

Fourth of July Celebration Matters Progressing.

The committees preparing for the Fourth of July celebration report all matters pertaining to their jurisdiction coming along in fine shape for a grand celebration and the old eagle will in all probability do some tall soaring as well as shake off a considerable quantity of feathers. The committee on street sports had planned to erect a platform at the corner of Fourth avenue west and First street, at the rear of the Palladio building, but the Lerch barn is now pretty certain to occupy that space before the Fourth, the committee will have to devise other plans. The matter is now under consideration, and the committee will have another headquarters equally as good.

FOR STEALING CLOTH.

Four Boys of West End Arrested.

Howard Murphy, Edward Murphy, Patrick Hughes, and Carl Edwards, all youngsters from the West End, were arrested yesterday and arraigned in municipal court on the charge of stealing several pieces of cloth from B. E. Wellberg's tailor shop on Twentieth avenue. Howard Murphy plead guilty, but sentence was deferred. The other boys appeared with their mothers this morning and their cases went over until Thursday morning. The boys are all young and their parents describe their action more of a boyish prank than that of a deed with serious intent.

In the matter of the state against Thomas Dunn, who had a disreputable charge against him in connection with Kate Mushall, the city attorney this morning asked that the case be dismissed, as the woman in the case was married and the charge will not stand. The Mushall woman did not appear and forfeited her bail of $15.

Is Found Insane.

Felix May, the young man who sought to remove the branch Bethel from the Bowery and started in by smashing the front windows, will be confined for some time in a place where he will have little opportunity to exercise his ambition to correct such evils as the improper location of the Bethel. He was examined in probate court yesterday afternoon by a jury composed of two physicians and the judge of probate, and the jury found beyond any question that he is insane and a fit subject for confinement in the asylum for the insane at Fergus Falls. He is 30 years of age, is a laborer, and says that he has a sister, Mrs. Charles Tiedke, in Jacksonport, Wis.

FORFEITED SALE.

Resumed Again After the Unavoidable Delay.

The forfeited tax sale was resumed this afternoon shortly after 2 o'clock, but it was not continued very long. Only enough sales were made to follow the law's requirements that the sale shall be held from day to day. In the meantime, Deputy Auditor Marvin and several clerks are busy clearing out of the way the work that the supreme court's decision created. The decision made necessary a complete overhauling of the list so that property that the court said should not be sold could be taken off the books. There was no time in which to complete the work, so the short sessions will have to be the rule until the list is changed and made to conform to the decisions.

County Auditor Halden is lamenting the fact that he is losing his reputation as an auctioneer. He made an excellent record on the first forfeited tax sale, selling a lot of property and getting good prices for it. This time, however, there is very little bidding, and what property is sold is going at the smallest price allowed by law, half of the taxes due. This is not due, however, to the fact that the auditor's voice has lost its persuasive qualities, but to the fact that the bargains offered this time are not so good as those offered on the first sale.

RECEIVES THE CALL.

Trans-Mississippi Congress July 16 to 20.

Mayor Hugo has received the call for the twelfth annual session of the Trans-Mississippi commercial congress, which will occur at Cripple Creek, Col., July 16 to 20 inclusive. The governor of each state within the district embraced by the congress appoints ten delegates, the mayor of each city a delegate, and an additional delegate for each 5000 inhabitants, provided no city shall have over ten delegates. Each county may have a delegate, through its executive officer, and every business organization one delegate, and an additional delegate for each fifty members. Duluth is, therefore, entitled to the whole ten delegates. Mayor Hugo said this morning that the matter would have his attention and the delegates would very likely be appointed soon. All the states and territories west of the Mississippi, and some of the states bordering on the river on the east, are included in the district. The object of the commercial congress is to encourage growth and a thorough development of each and every state represented; to work in harmony for such national legislation as is calculated to promote the interests of the people of the trans-Mississippi district; to encourage reciprocal trade between the states and discuss all the questions that effect the commercial relations between the states and the new possessions. The program for the next meeting will embrace some of the following topics for discussion: Governmental department of mines; rivers, waterways and harbors; Nicaragua canal, semi-arid regions, Pacific cable, merchant marine and a host of other subjects of general interest.

REGARDED WITH FAVOR.

Washington Man's Scheme to Connect Niagara Falls.

Buffalo, June 25.—Joseph L. Keefer, of Washington, D. C., has submitted to the Niagara falls commission a plan to cut away a portion of Goat island, build an abutment and connect the American and Canadian falls in one grand torrent of water.

The commissioners, it is said, seem much taken with the idea, and wonder why no one had ever thought of it before. They will have their engineer figure on it and make an estimate of the cost.

"My idea," said Mr. Keefer, "is to build a great giant wall or abutment with a stone top that cannot be washed away, and let the water from both sides of the island gracefully glide over the dam or stone esplanade, thus making one continuous stream of pure white water from the jut of one shore to the jut of the other."

Mr. Keefer is the man who raised the first American flag in Alaska.

WORK OF FIRE BUGS

Two Barns Burn at Practically the Same Hour.

Twenty-Seven Valuable Horses Perish In the Flames.

Moses Stewart and John Barrett Are the Losers.

Two incendiary fires took place simultaneously last night. Two stables within half a block of each other were burned at 11:30 o'clock, and it seems that the same persons must have set both buildings. Twenty-seven horses perished.

One fire was in the rear of Stewart's livery barn at 122 West Second street, where thirteen horses were burned and two suffocated. Among these was one of the magnificent team of horses which were driven in the hearse and which have attracted so much attention in the city. Mr. Stewart values these horses alone at $500. One was suffocated and the other was so badly burned that it will probably die in a day or so. Mr. Stewart had about ninety horses in the stable when the fire broke out, and 160 rigs, the latter being saved.

Charles Willis, the night watchman, was in the stable, when he thought that he smelled smoke, but on going to investigate could find no traces of any fire. He went through both barns, the lower as well as upper, and locked the back door. Coming up stairs he finished cleaning a wagon and sat down to eat his supper with a companion named Addison, when the cry of fire was sounded, and they, after calling Mr. Stewart, who lives across the street, ran down to the burning stables. The smoke was rolling out in great clouds and there was hardly any possibility of getting the horses out. The whole side of the barn was ablaze and the fire spread rapidly.

Addison succeeded in getting out two horses, one of them one of the hearse team, and went back for the other one, when he was overcome by the smoke and barely got away with his life. Willis, who is a rather husky man, went after it, and had it nearly to the door, when a heavy dray horse fell on him, injuring him internally, it is thought. He was forced to extricate himself as best he could and finally succeeded in [illegible] ing over the horses and out of the door, which on account of the smoke he could not see, but managed to find. Earle Stewart, a son of the iveryman, without stopping to put on his shoes, ran out several horses and escaped with slight scratches. Of the fifteen horses lost, Mr. Stewart owned eight and the rest were boarders. Mr. Stewart says that the horses which he lost were among the finest in his stables, and average about $200 apiece in value.

Those who lost horses, with the value given by Mr. Stewart, are as follows: Cudahy Packing company, one dead, valued at $200, and one that will probably die, valued at $250; Zenith Tea and Coffee company, one horse, valued at $125; W. H. Cole, one horse, valued at $300; Mrs. Sturgis, one horse, valued at $100; city, two horses, used for truck work, worth $200; George Rolph & Co., one horse, valued at $150, and W. C. Shupp, one horse valued at $200.

Mr. Stewart had his stock insured for $4000 and his building for $2000. He estimates the loss on his building at $1200 to $1500.

The sight at the stables this morning was a fearful one. The horses were roasted and were lying in all manner of positions, almost all of the animals being disemboweled.

Mr. Stewart still has about fifty of his own horses left and all of his rigs, so that he was able to see that all of the business houses that were losers, were able to fill orders as usual.

The other fire was the more disastrous to the owner, and was that of John Barret, on the east side of East Second street, just back of the Colson house. Barret carries on a scavenger's business, and had twelve horses in the stable, but no wagons. Of these twelve, Barret himself owned all but two, and absolutely no insurance was carried, though he tried to procure a policy about a week ago, but on account of his location it was refused. Only one horse in the barn was saved, and that was got out after the fire was over, rather badly cooked, but likely to live. The rescued one belonged to Barret. One of the horses burned belonged to James O. Rodney, of 411 East Fourth street, who is the proprietor of a lunch wagon. The horse was not boarded, but was kept in the barn during the night. The other was the property of Andrew J. Smith, of 118 West Seventh street, the teamster for the board of education. Barret, as a prospective buyer of it, was keeping this horse on trial for a month. Barret rents the barn from Ed Devine, the Lake avenue saloonkeeper, and there was no insurance on the building, although the loss was not very great.

The horses were Barret's sole means of livelihood and the loss was about $1700.

The fire started from the outside of the building, on the upper side, by the door, so that there was no escape for the imprisoned horses. There was no inflammable material at the place where the blaze started, which gives strength to the belief of incendiarism. The horse that was saved was in the last stall, at the back of the barn, where air was obtainable, so this was probably the only thing that kept it from suffocation.

FOREST PARK CHOSEN.

The Site For the St. Louis World's Fair.

St. Louis, June 25.—Forest Park was today selected as the site for the Louisiana purchase exposition, to be held in this city in 1903. The choice was made by the exposition directors.

The site selected is one proposed by the Forest Park World's Fair Free Site association, and contains 668 acres in the west, or unimproved portion of Forest park, and 450 acres adjoining on the west and southwest. This is one-third more space than was used at Chicago.

It takes up the western half of Forest park and considerable vacant land adjoining on the west and southwest. Forest park, which contains between 1300 and 1400 acres, and is the second largest park in the country, lies in the western part of the city, and is surrounded on three sides by magnificent residences and the buildings of Washington university. It is easily accessible from all parts of the city, by both steam and electric roads, and topographically is an ideal site for a world's fair.

THE LOST CHICORA.

Spiritualist Sees the Wreck In a Vision.

St. Joseph, Mich., June 25.—Mrs. Sarah E. Bromwell, president of the Chicago spiritualistic organization known as the Sunlight Center band, has arrived in this city from Chicago and is arranging for the national convention of spiritualists which will be held in St. Joseph the latter part of August. Mrs. Bromwell says this convention will have the largest attendance of any ever held in Michigan.

After praying for several hours, it is the intention of Mrs Bromwell, with the aid of several of her followers, to go out into Lake Michigan and locate the lost steamer Chicora. She says that a few weeks ago she had a vision of the lost steamer, and that the boat is lying at the bottom of the lake two miles from the mouth of St. Joseph harbor.

She declares that in her vision she could see the boat resting on the sand, with the bodies of the sailors all on board and well preserved. Mrs. Bromwell expects to locate the steamer, and thus secure the $20,000 reward offered by the owners of the boat.

AT WEST DULUTH

People of this end of the city find a great deal of interest in the estimates for a sewer in the alley between Fifty-fourth and Fifty-fifth avenues submitted by the city engineer at the council meeting last night. The only sanitary sewer in West Duluth at the present time is between Fifty-fourth and Fifty-fifth avenues, extending from the St. Paul & Duluth tracks to Polk street. Mr. Patton's estimate covers plans for its extension and an outlet into the bay. The extension of the present drain is greatly to be desired and would answer for a number of years, as the people desiring could build laterals to the main sewer. The first plan submitted by the city engineer calls for 3200 feet of sewer, to cost $10,655.10, and the second allows for 1385 feet to be constructed for $5336.53. The city engineer is in favor of the plan calling for 1385 feet.

The news that H. R. Patterson is to have the sprinkling contract causes general satisfaction among the merchants and others interested. The contract is to be signed immediately, and after nature ceases to annihilate the dust, Mr. Patterson will be ready to deal with it artificially.

FOUGHT HARD BATTLE.

A desperate encounter took place between James Kinnell and William Laughlin in a Raleigh street saloon Sunday. The battle was of the rough and tumble style and lasted one terrific round of forty-five minutes' duration. It is alleged that the men have not been on good terms for a long time, and when they met Sunday there was no time lost in arranging preliminaries. They leaped for each other at sight and the battle commenced. After a whirlwind encounter lasting nearly an hour, spectators separated the exhausted men. One principal had to be assisted to his room and the other was fearfully battered. It is said that neither man has since been able to be about.

FOUND NO TIMBER

Ten Very Mad Men Returned From Trip In Woods.

Were Sold Minutes to Pine Claims By J. L. Bartholomew.

All Proved to Be Swamp Lands Devoid of Pine.

A week ago Sunday a party of ten Duluthians left the city to visit claims in Itasca county that they had been induced to take up. Yesterday they returned after a long and arduous trip, and they were a mad lot of men. The claims that had been represented to them as bearing amounts of timber running from 300,000 to 500,000 feet they found to be mostly covered with water or tamarack swamp. Not one of them had pine enough to be worth anything as a gift.

All of these men were located by J. L. Bartholomew, who has an office in the McDonnell block. He hails from West Superior and was in the life insurance business there for some time. Mr. Bartholomew has been selling minutes to claims in townships 149-28, 149-27 and some other towns, and has represented them to be valuable for timber. He told the men whom he interested that he had two crews of men out estimating and had, or pretended to have, reports of estimates from his cruisers in the woods. He gave Dan Lindsay as one of the cruisers working for him. He also said that he had been up on the lands and had taken a claim himself. As near as can be learned about thirty persons have taken claims under minutes furnished by him.

The astonishing feature of Mr. Bartholomew's operations was the small amount he asked for his minutes. He wanted $15 and 10 per cent of the sum realized after sale of the claim.

The claims were entered as homesteads, and the parties taking them up tended to go up and look them over and then come back and relinquish their homestead and file a timber and stone application and buy the land.

Under this arrangement the party of ten mentioned left here being made up of J. B. Greenfield, A. A. Farrington, D. G. Penny, R. P. Coburn, Frank Carey, H. A. Dancer, Charles Paine, F. W. Edwards and others. Five got off at Bena to go in by water and the other five went on to Bemidji and went from there to Black Duck and on from there to their claims.

According to the story told by the men who came back, Bartholomew accompanied them as far as Bemidji, and was to have Ed Lindsay, a brother of Dan Lindsay, go in with them. There he told them that Lindsay was in the best house, and he hired two cruisers, named Moak and Sullivan, to go in with them. They in the meantime had gone on to Black Duck and the two cruisers caught them there. One of the cruisers told them that Ed Lindsay had been seen in Bemidji the day before and was not sick or in quarantine.

Then began the hard trip through the land. Bartholomew had told them it was twelve miles from Black Duck, but it proved to be twenty miles. When they reached Third river they had to build a raft to get across. It took them four days or more to get to the land, while the Bena trip took only a day and a half. They claim that Bartholomew told them the Black Duck route was the best and urged them to go that way.

When they arrived on their claims they found themselves in water, swamps, etc. Here and there, a half mile apart, could be seen a pine tree. If Mr. Bartholomew had been with the party he might have been hanging to one of them very soon, has been the expression of some of the men since they got back.

Charles Paine's claim did not have enough dry ground on it to pitch a tent. R. P. Coburn had a little knoll of about two acres and the rest was a tamarack swamp. J. B. Greenfield's was practically all swamp. D. G. Penny's had a little spruce on it, but very little. A. A. Farrington had the best, having some spruce and mostly dry ground.

This morning a Herald man called on Mr. Bartholomew and told him that he was accused of swindling these men. He said there was no doubt they had been swindled, but threw the whole thing on to Lindsay. He claims that he visited the land and took up a claim on the northeast quarter of section 9, 149-28. He says that he went on that piece of land and saw good pine timber there and then took his claim. One of the members of the party when told of this declared that there is no pine in 149 and that if Bartholomew was on the land he knew it.

Bartholomew, when questioned, claimed to have experience in the timber business and to know how to estimate timber and how to find his way in the woods. He asserted that he could not be put on the wrong piece of land. Inquiries as to his experience in the timber business met with the rather vague response that he had worked for Miller & Gould and that he had estimated a claim for his father and for some other people.

He asserted that he had been swindled, too, having made out a homestead entry and lost his right thereby.

The men who are taken in, however, are not content to blame Lindsay for their trouble. They say that Bartholomew claimed to be a timber man and to know that the claims were good, and they ask what business he had to be in the business of selling minutes if he knew nothing of the business. He told them that he had been over the country and that the timber was there.

The peculiar part of the whole affair is the small amount which Bartholomew must have made. If he had not cruisers out, as he claimed, his profits cannot have exceeded $400 or thereabouts, unless he has sold far more claims than anyone knows of. Some of the men are threatening criminal prosecution and are taking the steps to find out if anything can be done. There is doubt about this, however, for it may be that the position of those who went up is not very strong. They had filed homestead entries and were not supposed to be looking for timber. Of course, they only filed homesteads in order to hold the land so that some other person might not enter it in the meantime, but they may not want to go too deeply into the affair.

One of the men said this morning that it was not the $15 or the trip that made him sore, but the loss of his homestead right, for hebelieved that he had lost it.

You Can Cure It.

A New Cure for Catarrh in Tablet Form.

The old time treatment for catarrh was in the form of douches or sprays; later on, internal remedies were given with greater success, but being in liquid or powdered form were inconvenient and were open to the same objection to all liquid remedies, that is, that they lose whatever medical power they may have had on exposure to the air.

The tablet is the ideal form in which to administer medication, but until recently no successful catarrh tablet had ever been attempted.

At this writing, however, a most excellent and palatable remedy for catarrh has been placed before the public and sold by druggists, called Stuart's Catarrh Tablets, composed of the most recent discoveries in medicines for the cure of catarrh, and results from their use have been highly gratifying.

Stuart's Catarrh Tablets contain principally highly concentrated antiseptics, which kill the catarrh germs in the blood and mucous membranes, and in this respect are strictly scientific and modern, as it has been known for some years past by the ablest physicians that the most successful catarrh treatment was by inhaling or spraying antiseptics.

The use of inhalers, douches and sprays, however, is a nuisance and inconvenience, and moreover can in no wise compare with the same remedies given in tablet form, either in efficacy or convenience.

A clerk in a prominent insurance office in Pittsburg relates his experience with Stuart's Catarrh Tablets in a few words but to the point. He says: "Catarrh has been almost constantly with me for eight years; in this climate it seems impossible to get rid of it. I awoke every morning stuffed up and for the first half hour it was cough, gag, expectorate and sneeze before I could square myself for my day's work; no appetite, and a foul breath which annoyed me exceedingly.

"I used Stuart's Catarrh Tablets for two months and found them not only pleasant to take but they did the business, and I can sincerely recommend them to all catarrh sufferers."

Druggists sell Stuart's Catarrh Tablets at 50 cents for full sized package. They can be carried in the vest pocket and used at any time and as often as necessary. Guaranteed free from cocaine, mercury or any mineral poison; absolutely safe.

THE SHOTS.

More Explanations of Those Heard at the Fire.

Five mysterious shots were heard last night at the time of the fire and the rumor flew around the locality that the bold bad firebug had fired a revolver after firing the barns just to show that he was on the ground and not afraid of anybody. Then it was said that the horses had been shot, when all hope of saving them had fled, and now it has come out that some one fired from a window to attract the attention of some one to the building before the alarm had been rung in. As Mr. Stewart says that none of the horses were shot, and it is not likely that the firebug would run the chance of being detected, the latter conclusion seems the most reasonable one.

Further investigations show that in addition to the dead horses whose owners are named in another column, Lady, a $250 horse, owned by O. G. Brice, which had a record for speed and endurance, was among the burned.

Charlie Willis the night watchman, who came so near losing his life in a valiant endeavor to save the black hearse horse, is lying ill at his room over the Crescent bakery, on West Fourth street. Mr. Willis inhaled a great deal of smoke while making the attempt and as a consequence his lungs are in a rather bad condition. His back is hurt in some manner by the falling of the other horse upon him, and the full extent of his injuries will not be known for a day or two. Willis was the only man, with the exception of Mr. Stewart, that was allowed to drive the two magnificent black horses, and they were his especial pets, so that the minute that he realized that they were in danger all thoughts of his own peril fled, while he tried to save the animals.

Repairs were started on the Stewart stable this afternoon and will be completed in a couple of days.

New York Buyer Here.

William Davies, the resident New York buyer for I. Freimuth, is in the city for the first time, making the lake trip. Mr. Davies is a most companionable and efficient man, and thinks that Duluth has a great future before it. He spends practically all of his time in the great markets of New York and buys vast quantities of goods every year. Mr. Davies says that there seems to be a demand for the better quality of merchandise in Duluth and bases his prediction of coming metropolitanism on that fact.

MAY RESIGN.

Rumors That Secretary Hay May Leave the Cabinet.

Washington, June 25.—Official business at the cabinet meeting today gave way to expressions of sympathy with Secretary Hay in his bereavement.

The president has received a letter from Secretary Hay stating that after the funeral of his son Adelbert, he will return to New Hampshire with Mrs. Hay and remain there for a while. President McKinley has written a letter to Secretary Hay expressing his sympathy and urging him not to give way to his sorrow.

There was at the meeting an informal expression of the hope, that Col. Hay will not resign and, should he suggest such a step, both the president and the cabinet will advise against it.

MAY HAVE A CLASH

Chance For One Between Street Railway and City.

Company Objects to Paying Repairs on Bridge Roadways.

It Also Wishes to Put In Two More Switches.

Indications may be considered imminent for a clash between the board of public works and the Duluth-Superior Street Railway company over the matter of repairs for the wooden viaduct on Oneota street, at Forty-third and Forty-ninth avenues west, also for the replanking of the Lake avenue viaduct between the street railway tracks. On June 4 the board of public works notified the street railway company by letter that the board had, at considerable expense to the city, maintained a large force of men for the repairs of the wooden bridges on Oneota street, and that the board considered the maintenance of repair work impracticable unless the street railway company should repair the stringers and supports under their tracks on the bridges, that such stringers had rotted away and sagged under the weight of the cars until the whole structure has become weakened. The board further notified the street railway company that the city was about to replank the Lake avenue viaduct, and requested the company to replank between the tracks.

This communication received no immediate answer, and some days later the board sent out another letter, calling attention to the previous request and asking that the company indicate its intentions regarding the matter.

This morning General Manager Herbert Warren of the street railway company made a personal visit to the office of teh board of public works, and left the following letter, addressed to the board and signed by himself:

"In reply to your letter of the 24th inst. we will say that under the advice of our attorneys we must decline to make the repairs requested, as we believe it is not the duty of our company, but rather of the city, to maintain the bridges in its streets. These bridges are part of the public highway, and as such are used by us for passage of all kinds of cars in common with the general public for the passage of all kinds of vehicles. If your honorable body wishes to renew the roadway at these points under our rails, we will pay so much of the expense of the work as is made extra by reason of said rails."

"With reference to renewing the planking on Lake avenue viaduct, between our rails, I will say that we hold that as we do not now use animal power and do not cause any wear on the surface of the pavement or planking, we do not feel called upon to renew the worn out plank. We shall, however, in this case also pay so much of the expense of renewing the same as is made extra by reason of our track."

Before filing the letter this morning, Mr. Warren explained to two members of the board that the company did not wish to be understood by the tenor of their letter as outlining a plan of opposition to the desires of the board of public works, but that the company really felt that it should not be called upon to do the work that it believes belongs to the city, and that while the company has hitherto made some repairs of the nature mentioned, it was done under a protest.

Mr. Warren suggested that the matter be taken up at a meeting of the city attorney with the attorneys of the company to see if some amicable settlement could be arrived at, and if necessary, a friendly suit could be brought to determine by law which should do the work.

Manager Warren also filed with the board this morning copies of plans for proposed street railway improvement at Third and Eighth avenues west. The improvements contemplated are in the nature of "Ys" from Superior street to each of the avenues. The plans for the Third street "Y" were made about the first of the current month, while those for the Eighth avenue west "Y" were made about the twentieth of this month.

The company has a "Y" at the present time at Third avenue east in this city and at Tower and Belknap, West Superior, for the interstate cars, also at Twenty-second avenue east and Sixty-third avenue west for the West Duluth cars, and one other "Y" at the foot of Lake avenue for the car on that line. Since the inauguration of the double truck cars on the interstate line it has been found necessary to send every car clear through to the "Y" at the terminals of the line to turn around before making a return trip. Owing to the hindrance caused by the opening of the draw, fires and other causes, the interstate cars have been delayed at times so that a larger part of the whole ten in the service have been tied up together and as they could not be switched back at any point onto their running time, the public has been much annoyed by the service at times. The management of the company holds that these two "Ys" at Third and Eighth avenues west will, to a great extent, obviate this trouble and give better service.

There would be no change in the street lines entailed at Eighth avenue west, but the company asks permission to change its curve at Third avenue west, and it is at this point that the board may see fit to raise objections. At present the nearest rail runs within five and one-half feet of the Burrows' corner curb and the new curve would bring the rail within one foot of the corner curb. The company proposes to cut down the corner curb until the former distance is maintained, and it is doubtful from some of the expressions of members of the board of public works if the board will consent to have this done.

Range Is Interested.

Frank Burrows returned home last night from a trip over the range in the interests of Duluth's great Fourth of July celebration. Mr. Burrows says that every town up there will contribute to the thousands who will celebrate in Duluth on that day. If the weather is pleasant he expects to see the largest crowd ever assembled in Duluth. The railroads have made a round trip rate of $2.50 from Ely, $2.25 from Tower, and from Hibbing, Eveleth and Virginia the rate is $2.00.

Some idea of the magnitude of the case as prosecuted by the government, may be gathered from the fact that the estimated cost already of the prosecution is more than $100,000.

Eighty witnesses have been gathered here by the crown from all parts of the Yukon and from the states and Lower Canada.

Mt. Clemens, Mich., June 25.—Homer Bliss, who was arrested several days ago on suspicion of killing his father, whose badly decomposed body was found on his farm, confessed to the killing this afternoon maintaining, however, that it was accidental. According to Bliss' confession he found his father June 3 about to commit suicide. In the struggle over the gun he had, it was accidentally discharged, Homer says, instantly killing the father. The next day Homer buried the body, leaving it in the ground until June 14, when he exhumed it. Placing it on a wheelbarrow he moved it to the spot where it was found last Saturday. Here he propped it against a stump and tied the gun to a sapling to make it appear his father had committed suicide.

TO DIRECT.

Charles W. Weeks to Lead First Methodist Church Music.

Charles W. Weeks, one of the most prominent musical directors of the Central West, has been engaged by the First Methodist church to succeed Francis E. Woodward, who recently resigned to accept the directorship of the First Baptist church of Minneapolis.

Professor Weeks will have entire charge of the music at the First Methodist church, and his wife, Mrs. Helene Weeks, has been engaged as organist. Both are very highly recommended by musicians of prominence.

Professor Weeks is secretary and treasurer of the Illinois Music Teachers' association. For twelve years he has been an instructor in the Chicago Conservatory of Music, and has also taught music in the public schools of Ottawa, Ill., for the same period.

He is scarcely a stranger in Duluth, having visited here last fall, during which time he sang in the schools and once or twice in public. Besides having a remarkably delightful baritone voice, he has a very pleasing manner, and during his short stay here made many friends.

Mrs. Weeks, who will be associated with her husband, is a pianist and organist of considerable reputation. She succeeds Mrs. Henry K. Brearley, who has so very ably filled the position of organist at the First Methodist church for several years.

The church committee seriously regrets losing Mrs. Brearley, for she has been an exceptionally good organist, and her work has been more than satisfactory.

A FLOATER.

With face upturned to the skies, the body of a floater came into the canal from the lake this morning and was discovered when about a third of the distance in by one of the workmen employed on the pier work. The body was towed to the pier and Coroner Boyer was notified. The remains were taken to Durkan's morgue, where they have been viewed by hundreds of people today that have that morbid curiosity to see the remains of the dead.

The body is that of a man 5 feet 8½ inches tall. He had black hair and a mustache of the same color, though the latter as well as a greater part of the hair was worn off. The body was fairly well clothed in striped coat and pants, black cheviot vest, custom-made white shirt and striped underclothing. Lace shoes on the feet were covered with low overshoes. Coroner Boyer believes that the body has been in the water about two months, and is well preserved because of the cold water of the lake.

In the pockets were found a two-bladed metal-handled knife, a watch and a trunk key and a purse containing a heavy band gold ring engraved "From A. N. to B. L." The shirt was also marked with the initials "A. N."

Inquiry thus far today has failed to elicit any information as to the identity of the floater, but the authorities hope that the ring and the initials on the shirt may prove a clue. Four of the lower front teeth are gone. Coroner Boyer says that there is no doubt but that death was caused through drowning. The man's hands are small and indicate that he was not used to hard labor.

IS NOT A NEW IDEA

Charter Provision Prohibiting Offices From Taking City Business.

H. F. Greene Says Old Charter Had Same Provision.

The Commission Simply Copied It---Admits It Far Reaching.

The provision of the city charter which makes it wrong for any city officer to do business with the city has been brought into especial prominence lately by the difficulties that several members of honorary boards have got into. E. C. Little, of the civil service commission, found that he could not collect from the city for some insurance policies placed with him. H. R. Patterson, of West Duluth, found that he could not take a sprinkling contract at West Duluth on which he was the lowest bidder because he is a member of the board of health. The result of this has been a pretty general dissatisfaction with the provision and the creation of a feeling that it is too sweeping.

Henry F. Greene, chairman of the charter commission, was asked as to the provision and the idea of the charter commission in inserting it and said:

"The provision forbidding city officers to take business from the city, which is in the new charter, is not a new one. The same provision was contained in the old charter, the only difference being that the new charter states it a little plainer. The saying that a 'new broom sweeps clean' is emphasized by the fact that this provision is being lived up to, while under the old charter it was pretty generally ignored. The provisions of the new one have all been subjected to close scrutiny and the result has been an effort to live up to the letter strictly.

"When the provision was inserted in the new charter it was the unanimous opinion that as a general proposition it was excellent and that all that was done, as I have said, was to state the old charter provision a little clearer. I am frank to say that I think it might well be amended so as to eliminate the members of the board of health, the library board, the board of water and light commissioners, the civil service commission and the park commission. While the city is of this size it can do no harm, I think, although I think that in a large city the provision is none too sweeping. I would not eliminate the fire board from the provision, however.

"There is some question, too, as to whether the members of the charter commission are not city officers. Outside of them there are about twenty-five members of honorary boards and that is quite a number of business men to induce to serve if they are to be prevented from taking any business whatever from the city. It might resolve itself down to taking none but doctors and lawyers for those places."

IN MICHIGAN.

Smallpox Said to Be Spreading In Calumet and Laurium.

Calumet—Numerous cases of smallpox are being reported at Calumet and Laurium. The disease seems to be spreading, though the authorities are enforcing the quarantine law vigorously. The Laurium board of health has decided that vaccination is a necessity and has issued an edict making it compulsory.

The quarantine established over the Hotel Pfeiffer, Houghton, on the discovery of the smallpox case there last Friday, is still in effect. The authorities say it will not be raised for some days yet—not until after all the inmates have been vaccinated and the hotel has been thoroughly fumigated.

There are sixteen patients ill with the disease in the county pest house. The majority are from the vicinity of Calumet, Laurium and Redridge, with about five from the Portage Lake towns.

The old lady had been an invalid for some years as a result of a fractured thigh, caused by a fall. Much of the time since the accident she was quite helpless and latterly she sank rapidly.

Ironwood—Mayor Sutherland, of Ironwood, vetoed an act of the city salons appropriating $500 for uniforms for volunteer firemen of the city, on the grounds that it would be using public money for private purposes, and also that it would be equivalent to a raise in the firemen's salary.

Hancock—Andrew Tuntalias Jackson, alias Nelson, mate of the barge Peshtigo, was arrested by Sheriff Wills at Hancock. The charge is highway robbery, committed at Manitowoc, Wis., and the arrest was made at the request of the officers of the Wisconsin town. The sheriff nabbed his man on the barge at the Mineral Range docks, the barge having just arrived in tow of the steamer Mark Hopkins, both vessels being loaded with coal.

BRITISH FLEET

In the Mediterranean Is Causing Concern.

New York, June 25—The state of affairs in the British Mediterranean fleet is causing much concern, says the London correspondent of the Tribune. It is well known that several naval officers have addressed strong remonstrances to the admiralty in regard to the strength and war organization of the squadron, but Lord Beresford's action in making his communication public, is not approved of. The reply of the admiralty secretary in the house of commons last night with regard to Lord Charles' letter conveys an impression of censure on the popular rear admiral, and some of his friends fear that it may lead to his resignation. Whatever course Lord Charles may take, the attention of parliament will be called to the deficiencies which it is alleged exist in the Mediterranean squadron, especially in the matter of torpedo boats.

BRIGHT FUTURE

Predicted For the Philippines Under Civil Government.

Possibilities For All Kinds of Business Are Excellent.

Congress Must Act In the Matter of Granting Franchises.

Manila, May 22.—(Correspondence of the Associated Press.)—About the time this correspondence is published in the United States civil government will have succeeded military control throughout the Philippines. The islands still excepted from peaceful civil rule will be few and remote. The only large one, Mindora and Paragua, are in a quiescent rather than a rebellious condition. According to all calculations th surrender or capture of Lucban and the beginning at least of the pacification of Samar will have been accomplished within a few weeks, so that the organization of municipal and provincial governments in that stubbornly insurgent island will not be much longer delayed. The inauguration of the purely civil government is expected to give a considerable impetus to business. Although the amendments attached by congress to the Spooner act prohibit granting of public franchises or disposals of public land and mining rights, and although no authority has been conferred for the organization of corporations, still the individual American business man is naturally optimistic over the prospects of the era of commercial success predicted for the near future. The war, while it caused adversity in the provinces, has all along brought prosperity to Manila, and the English, German and American business men have been and are making money. Now, with the coming of peace, trade with the provinces is beginning to boom, and it is quite apparent that the trade of Manila, Iloilo and Cebu, with continental Asia, is likely to greatly surpass the expectations of Americans in general.

In a recent conversation with the Associated Press correspondent, Congressman Hull of Iowa said:

"The business development of the Philippines was set back a year by congress' refusal to permit granting of franchises. The new congress must, of course, at its coming session, legislate for the islands, and if we are going to insist that no franchises be granted for the promotion of business rights, we virtually say that we are opposed, or at least indifferent, to the development of the islands.

Mr. Hull, in common with all the more intelligent Americans who come to the Philippines in these days, believes the business future of the islands, and of Manila in particular, is bright with promise. Mr. Hull and his associates in lumbering enterprises have recently had practical demonstration of the fact that the Philippine lumber will sell in the American market. An agent of the Pullman company, who has just been negotiating here for Philippine woods, named a price at which his company would take all the Philippine mahogany, in the log, delivered at any Philippine seaport. This offer, which was declined, tended to increase the assurance generally felt here that the beautiful finishing woods of the Philippines are henceforth to be much in demand.

Several great agricultural enterprises are awaiting the chance to acquire titles to government lands before beginning operations, various companies and individuals are looking to the great fertile and largely savage island of Mindanao as the scene of operations in sugar culture on a tremendous scale, provided the coveted grants of public lands can be obtained.

In Occidental Negros lies the richest sugar country developed under Spanish rule, but it is now claimed that the soil of several other southern islands can be made to produce equally good results.

The great drawback to the Spanish mastezo owners of the Negros sugar plantations has been and is the exorbitant rates of interest charged for money. Up to the present the current rates of interest on loans charged by the British and German bankers of Iloilo is thirty per cent per annum, and thirty per cent is usually charged for a loan for shorter periods than a year. Besides this, mortgages are generally taken on the crops as well as on the land, and the planter often agrees to sell to the money lender. As a consequence, the man who produces the sugar is very apt to have a high grade product classed and paid for as only medium.

The people of Negros contend strongly for the establishment of banks whose special function shall be loaning money on agricultural lands at legally half regulated reasonably rates. The Filipino commission favors this idea and will encourage the establishment of such institutions.

Similar conditions apply to tobacco culture, but the tobacco industry is merging into the hands of big Manila corporations.

As to hemp, former conditions still largely prevail, both in the gathering and preparation of the products, and the financial handling thereof. Generally the crops are bought in advance by agents of the British syndicate who virtually control the product. It is a system of dealing in futures at short range instead of by telegraph.

The establishment of American national and savings banks is discussed as possible in the near future.

Of all the industries of the Philippines, the one which appeals most strongly to the average hurry-and-get-rich American is gold mining. For two years past experts and small scatterings of adventurers have been camping about the gold fields of Lepanto, Bontoc and Benguet provinces, Northern Luzon, getting a little of the precious metal in primitive ways and hoping for a time when they can acquire rights to mining claims. The surface indications in that region are very promising, but the miners are holding off from incurring any expense until they are assured that congress will permit the acquisition of claims. It is dawning forcibly on the rank and file of young Americans here that gold mining in the Philippines is a far more favorable proposition than in countries where the weather precludes labor a considerable portion of the year. And as the indications point to at least fairly rich yields, there is bound to be a rush as soon as claims can be secured. The signs of richness in minerals are not confined to the Benguet region. Greater or lesser indications or copper and gold abound in all the islands.

As to commercial business, it seems apparent, speaking conservatively, that nobody in business here is losing any money.

A young pioneer American general merchant in the city of Cebu told the correspondent that during his first half year in business, ending in April, he had sold 600 American bicycles, many of them high grade, for spot cash, at what in the United States would be considered high prices.

McFARLAND WILL RECOVER.

New York, June 25.—Floyd McFarland, the bicycle rider, who was injured in the bicycle races at Madison Square garden, and who was removed to the hospital, was pronounced better by the physicians early today. They assert that he will soon recover.

TOO MUCH

Exercise is as bad as too little for the growing girl. It is very easy for her to overdo, and this is especially dangerous at that critical period of a young girl's life when she crosses the line of womanhood. It is not an uncommon thing to lay the foundation for years of after misery by neglect of necessary precautions at the first "change of life."

The use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription not only establishes regularity, but it gives health to the entire womanly organism. It is the best medicine for diseases peculiar to women because it cures the causes of disease completely and permanently.

"Favorite Prescription" contains no alcohol, neither opium, cocaine nor any other narcotic. It cannot disagree with the most delicate constitution.

"For a number of months I suffered with female trouble," writes Miss Agnes McGovne, of 122 Bank Street, Washington, D. C. "I tried various remedies, but none seemed to do me any permanent good. The doctors said it was the worst case of internal trouble they ever had. I decided to write to you for help. I received a very encouraging reply and commenced treatment at once. I had not used your 'Favorite Prescription' a week before I began to feel better, and, as I continued, my health gradually improved, and is improving every day."

MRS. EDDY WRITES

Annual Exhortation By the Leader of Christian Science.

Contains Much Advice For Believers In the Faith.

Full of Answers to Popular Criticism of the Church.

Boston, Mass., June 5.—Christian Science, according to the words of the Rev. Mary Baker G. Eddy in her annual message to the "mother church," read at four services Sunday, is destined to be accepted widely by the whole world.

She quoted Professor Agassiz as saying that all great scientific truths, before prevailing and securing general acceptance, passed through three stages: First, it was urged that the new truth conflicted with the Bible; second, it was said that some one else had already discovered that particular truth; third, everybody said that they had always believed in it. The message then continued by saying that Christian Science had already passed through these first two stages and is now well entered upon the third stage.

At each service it took more than an hour and a half to read the message, which was estimated to contain 10,000 words. The audiences were attentive.

For the most part the message was deep in metaphysical reference and devout in its exhortation. It contained much advice for the believers of the faith and was full of answers to popular criticism of the church. The latter part of the message contained references to cures that Mrs. Eddy claims she has brought about. The writer also stoutly claimed that she was the first one to discover Christian Science.

The message stated that more than 1,000,000 people had been cured or healed by members of the faith. It also stated that the "mother church" had 21,631 members and that 2496 had been added to its membership since last November. There are over 500 organized churches.

The large congregations were made up almost wholly of strong adherents to the faith, and when Judge Hanna, the first reader of the church, called upon them to unite in prayer the immense congregation almost without exception fell on their knees in the aisles and pews. They were communion services, but there was no bread or wine passed, the communion being wholly spiritual. The audiences were made up largely of women. Excerpts from the message follow:

I extend my heart and hand to the faithful—you can never lose the love of God so long as you continue in this service.

The communion finds Christian Science more rapidly advanced and nearer the whole world's acceptance than ever before.

Christianity is what Christian Science teaches us; health, holiness, and immortality.

From Christian Science springs fervor and fidelity. May the benediction of our father-mother God rest on us today.

We hear it said that Christian Scientists have no God, but a loyal Christian Scientist adopts the definition of Webster that God is a supreme being. He also believes that God is spirit and God is love.

God is an infinite person, but not three in one. We are theists and monotheists.

God explains himself in Christian Science and Christian Science makes man Godlike.

God is infinite mind and infinite intelligence and understanding; he is allwise, to which we add the word "mother."

The God in whom all Christians believe cannot be apprehended by material senses.

The Bible and "Science and health with the key to the scriptures" is the pastor of each church.

The sermon on the mount read each Sunday and practiced through the week is a sufficient guide for every day.

Christ is not God, but is like God.

In Christian Science God is the only generating or regenerating power.

Christ is the son of God. He was the son of a man only as the word "man" stands for male or female.

Evil is not intelligence, nor a thing, and God never made it; sin is a lie and an illusion.

In Christian science love lays the ax at the root of sin and destroys it. To lose the sense of sin you must first destroy it.

Sin is a false entity; it is a lie, and is unreal and like a mirage.

Sin is thought in the first instance; it has no divine authority and therefore man is its master.

There is no other reason why you have not gone to hell while attending these services but that God's hand has held you up.

Shall it be said of this century that its greatest discoverer is a woman, and that the hope for our race today rests in one truth and 100 falsehoods told of it?

Christian Science commands the attention of our best thinkers. I have cured patients of pneumonia, paralysis, and those in the last stages of consumption in from one to three interviews.

From my medical practice I know that the highest dynamic is the mind. The medicine of the mind is today more honored than the old-time medicine of matter.

If God created drugs for medicinal use Jesus and his disciples would have used them and recommended them.

Christian Scientists are not hypnotists; they are not faith curists; they have faith, but also understanding. We are students of a demonstrable science, leading the ages.

We have no right to influence the thoughts and actions of others, but to do them good. Christian Science does not give the right to harm man or beast; the mental malpractitioner is not a Christian Scientist.

I have read little of metaphysics and what I have written of metaphysics is the result of my own study and experience.

Christian Science is a basis of healing and reforming mankind.

Christian Scientists have been persecuted; they are practically non-resident; they are not quacks, giving death to all, and they have no craft in danger. Christian Science kindles the inner life of a man. The sensualist and world worshiper is a reed shaking in the wind.

I counsel all Christian Scientists to remember what Pope said, "an honest, well-bred man will not insult me, and no other can," also that church robes are worn at the elbows by jostling with other denominations.

Christian Scientists are not to be judged by creed or diploma, but they ask the rights of conscience; they ask to be known by their works, and be judged by what they accomplish. They do not kill with drugs or poisonous liquors.

The same revilings that the truth received in the first century it is receiving in this century.

Wait patiently in God. Return blessing for cursing. Be steadfast in the faith delivered to you from the Bible and our text book, and follow your leader in only so far as she follows Christ.

Beside the message the exercises of the day included singing an dthe repetition of the Lord's prayer with the spiritual interpretation of it as found in Mrs. Eddy's book. There were delegates present from nearly every state in the Union.

The annual meeting will be held in the fall.

Prescriptions are filled correctly...

Every drop of medicine that goes into a prescription which is filled here is perfectly pure. We make it our business to see that everything is pure and of standard strength. There is no guess-work about it. Pure drugs and intelligent compounding are what make a prescription filled here so effective.

No doctor can obtain the desired results in the sick-room unless his prescriptions are filled with drugs of the highest quality. The sick-room is the one place above all others where quality counts more than anything else. If you want the patient to improve, to respond to the physician's labors, you should be particular about the medicine. You should have his prescriptions filled with nothing but pure fresh drugs and chemicals.

More and more physicians are depending on our prescripton department. We compound as we think your doctor would like to have them compounded, and as we know they should be.

Most of the reputable physicians of Duluth patronize our prescription department. This fact should be of interest to you. It means that if you bring your prescriptions here to be compounded, that the physician is satisfied—the patient gets the best medicine.

CONGRESSMAN ALDRICH ENDORSES THE TONIC, PERUNA.

Says: "It Will Build Up a Depleted System Rapidly."

Hon. W. F. Aldrich, Congressman from Alabama, writes from Washington, D.C.:

"This is to certify that Peruna, manufactured by the Peruna Medicine Co., of Columbus, O., has been used in my family with success. It is a fine tonic and will build up a depleted system rapidly. I can recommend it to those who need a safe vegetable remedy for debility."—W. F. Aldrich.

H. S. Emory, Vice Chancellor and Master of Arms, K. Ps., of Omaha, Neb., writes from 213 North Sixteenth street, the following words of praise for Peruna as a tonic. He says:

Catarrh of Stomach.

"It is with pleasure I recommend Peruna as a tonic of unusual merit. A large number of prominent members of the different orders with which I have been connected have been cured by the use of Peruna of cases of catarrh of the stomach and head; also in kidney complaint and weakness of pelvic organ.

"It tones up the system, aids digestion, induces sleep, and is well worthy the confidence of sufferers of the above complaints."—H. S. Emory.

Nervous Debility.

Everyone who is in the least degree subject to nervousness, sleeplessness, prostration, mental fatigue or nervous debility in any form, finds the hot weather of June, July and August very hard to bear, if not dangerous.

Hon. W. F. Aldrich.

The only safe course to take is to keep the blood pure, digestion good, and sleep regular. No remedy equals in all respects, Peruna for these purposes. If the system is run down and weakened by catarrh, Peruna renovates and rejuvenates the nerves and brain.

A book on the catarrhal diseases of summer will be mailed to any address upon requet, by The Peruna Medicine Co., Columbus, Ohio.

The above testimonials are only two of 50,000 letters received touching the merits of Peruna as a catarrhal tonic. No more useful remedy to tone up the system has ever been devised by the medical profession.

The company says that the premises, being a part of the foreign concession, were willingly lent for military necessities, but that they were not subject to looting as they would have been if they had been in the Chinese city.

Lerch Barn Must Be Moved By Friday Night.

Street Railway Wires to Be Raised Thursday Night.

Drinking Fountain Location Causes Discussion ---Action Postponed.

At the council last night a resolution was adopted that will dispose of the Lerch barn.

The board of public works requested to grant permission for the stable to remain in streets until Friday, and no longer.

Location of drinking fountain on Michigan street postponed.

Labor bureau requests an appropriation from city funds.

No business of great importance was transacted at the session of the council last night. Action was taken, however, that may result in the removal of the Lerch stable nuisance on First street. A resolution was unanimously adopted requiring the Duluth-Superior Traction company to furnish an unobstructed passage along First street and across Third avenue west on Thursday morning, next between the hours of 1:30 and 5 o'clock, provyed that one section of the stable shall have first been removed from the streets. The board of public works in the same resolution, was requested to grant a permit for the building to occupy the streets until Friday morning, and no longer.

Petitions were read from some property owners and citizens of Michigan street, protesting against the location of a drinking fountain on Michigan street at First avenue west. A division of opinion developed between the aldermen as to the final disposition of the fountain problem and the matter was referred to a committee, to report at the next meeting.

A communication was read from John A. Erwin, formerly employed on the steamer Samuel Marshall, in which he asked that the city reimburse him in the sum of $12, which he thought was legally his due, for time lost while detained in quarantine at the Bell hotel, a period of eight days. He was granted shore leave and while in the city he had occasion to visit the hotel, not knowing that it was quarantined on account of smallpox. He says that when he entered the place a policeman was sitting in the door who took no notice of his entry. When he attempted to leave he alleges that the officer very promptly prevented him, and he was an unwilling inmate of the place for eight days, during which time the Marshall sailed and he was left unemployed and without funds.

The Duluth-Superior Traction company presented a lengthy communication protesting against the opening of its wires every time that any person in the city wishes to move some structure across their line. The document commenced with the statement that recently the company was compelled to open its wires for the passage of a five-sisted structure which had been purchased by the mover for $10, and that the expense was several times what the building was worth. The company says this continual opening of wires is a cause of great monetary loss to it, and also a source of annoyance; that already the dilatory work in moving the Lerch stable has been the cause of several hundred workingmen reaching their destination late in the morning, and that the patrons of the "coal" cars had also suffered great inconvenience. Heretofore the wires have always been opened upon request, but in future the company will refuse to open wires unless an order is given by the council. The company suggests an amendment to the ordinance which reads that all streets must be open between the hours of midnight and 5 a. m. The company thinks that parties desiring to move buildings should be required to give a bond. The history of the Lerch barn case was reviewed and the company estimated their expense up to date at $275, while the telephone companies have been to an expense of at least $80.

Next came the only debate of the evening, caused by a resolution establishing a drinking fountain on Michigan street and First avenue west. Alderman Krumdieg was the first member of the council to express an opinion on location. He thought, in view of the protests from Michigan street people, that it would be the part of wisdom to install the fountain on First avenue west between Superior and First streets, that the fountain was not for the exclusive benefit of commission houses, but that the draymen of the city should be entitled to consideration.

Alderman Schaffer believed it should be located on a level place and not on a hillside. He thought that under the viaduct was not a proper place either, on account of the liability of horses to take fright from street cars passing overhead. He favored as a location First street at a point near First avenue west.

Alderman Neff thought he knew of a good place for the fountain, at First avenue east and Michigan street. Alderman Barnes raised his voice in favor of giving the present designated place a trial, as the work of installing the fountain was nearly completed and the city had been to considerable expense. If, after a trial, the citizens of the locality were dissatisfied, the fountain could be removed. Alderman Johnson was recognized by the president and moved the adoption of a motion to refer the entire matter to a committee to report at the next meeting. The resolution was passed, with Aldermen Tessman and Krumsieg voting nay.

Alderman Barnes introduced a resolution instructing the city engineer to examine the bridges and viaducts between East and West Duluth, and report if they were of sufficient strength to support heavy cars of the class which the street railway company now has in service on the Interstate line. The resolution passed.

The resignation of H. R. Patterson of West Duluth, from the boar of health, was accepted by the council, and on motion of Alderman Barnes the council reconsidered the West Duluth sprinkling contract, with the result that the action of the board of public works in awarding the contract to Mr. Patterson, the lowest bidder, was approved.

The wages of a certain class of the city's employes were increased. Hereafter street laborers will receive 22 cents per hour, sewer workmen 25 cents per hour, engineers on rock crushers to receive at the rate of 90 cents, and street foremen to receive a salary of $70 per month.

H. L. Sawyer sent in a communication in which he stated that he could move the Lerch stable from the streets in twenty-four hours and requested that the street railway company be ordered to offer unobstructed passage from wires. A resolution passed granting Sawyer the asked for time.

Thomas Brian, custodian of the city hall, reported that the floor of the basement of the building was on a level with the Michigan street sewer and that yesterday's storm left three feet of water around the boiler. He thought the boiler should be raised as it was liable to damage at all times.

A communication from Henry Dworschak, secretary of the board of labor commissioners, was read, asking for an appropriation of $1500 as salary for one year for a man to be in charge of the free city labor bureau in the mails department and for a stenographer. This would give Duluth a bureau modeled after the one at Seattle. The matter was referred to the finance committee.

City Engineer Patton submitted estimates of the cost of constructing a sanitary sewer in the alley between Fifty-fourth and Fifty-fifth avenues west. One form of sewer would cost $10,095.10 and other $5,396.53. Mr. Patton recommends the construction of a sewer at the lesser figure.

Sister M Ignatius died yesterday morning at the Sacred Heart Institute in this city. She was a daughter of Alexander Poirier, who died last year. Her mother died in 1897. She received the veil in 1898, it being conferred by Bishop McGolrick, and was at that time known as Josephine Poirier. She attended school in this city and was a member of several of the sodalities in the Cathedral parish. The funeral will take place tomorrow morning at 8:30 o'clock from the Cathedral and a solemn requiem was sung.

THE DAKOTAS.

Two Hundred Head of Sheep Are Killed By Hail.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

Spearfish.—The heavy hail storm two days ago killed 200 head of Angora sheep for C. A. Scott on the range north of this city. The loss will be something like $3000. The damage done to county roads and bridges in Lawrence county, Butte and Meade and in Crook county, over the line in Wyoming, will reach a large sum. There is scarcely a bridge left on the larger streams, several of the steel structures having either been carried away or made unsafe for crossing.

Huron—The old settlers of Custer, Clyde and Carlisle townships held their annual reunion and picnic in Miner's grove. The crowd was estimated at from 1500 to 1800 people. The program consisted of music, speeches, a ball game, etc., the oration of the day being delivered by Oscar Tell. Officers of the association for the ensuing year are Charles Miner, president; L. E. Bloodgood, vice president; Mahlon Parkhurst, secretary; T. S. Thompson, treasurer; Charles Johnson, T. S. Thompson, William Newcomer, James A. Thompson, John Little, Charles Young, and Asher F. Pay, trustees.

Vermillion—The case of Lewis Odland, insane, has been settled and the board of insanity has ordered him turned over to the Wisconsin authorities.

Milbank—Frank Mills, agent for the Milwaukee railway, accidentally fell from the third story balcony of the St. Hubert hotel. He has a slight chance of recovery.

Chamberlain—Rain has fallen seventeen days in this section of the state during June, the total precipitation, according to the government gauge, being a trifle over nine inches.

Redfield—Paul Schmidt gave himself up, saying he had killed John Kellar, a farmer living a mile west of town. Sheriff King went to the scene and found Kellar unconscious. Trouble arose over a line fence.

Yankton—J. M. Duns, an old citizen, who for many years has been under the care of physicians almost constantly for stomach troubles, will attempt to alleviate his ailment by abstaining from all nourishment for a period of three weeks.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Mayville—The worst electrical storm ever known in these parts visited Mayville Monday morning at 6 o'clock. Lightning struck D. M. Kenney's barn and with its contents it was completely destroyed by fire. No insurance; loss $800. Lightning also struck M. J. Borden's house and made a hole in the roof three feet in diameter, twisting the chimney completely out of shape. The inmates were all badly scared, but, fortunately, no one was injured. Many trees were uprooted and minor damage is reported. The rain fell in torrents.

Fargo—On account of his absence from the state in presiding at a term of the United States court for Judge Loehren of Minnesota, Judge Amidon has postponed the Devil's Lake term, which had been called for July 2, till a later date. Of the forty or more plaintiffs in the recent action against the drainage board, thirteen of them have decided to appeal to the supreme court from the decision of Judge Lovlock, who held with the board on all points.

Neche—William Dunn of Pembina was arrested at a picnic on the charge of "bootlegging."

Bismarck—There is a movement in counties west of the Missouri river for an extra session of the legislature to correct the chaotic conditions arising from the recent supreme court decision restoring the boundaries of the counties as they were before the law was passed adding the unorganized territory to Stark, Billings and Mercer counties.

TO MAKE THE LEVY

County Board at Next Meeting Will Do That.

Expected That Coming Year's Rate Will Be Larger.

County Levy Is Small Part of the Whole.

At the next meeting of the board of county commissioners the most important act of that body during the year will be made—the levying of next year's taxes for county purposes. Before the time for the meeting comes County Auditor Halden will prepare a statement of last year's expenses, this year's expenses for the first six months, and an estimate of what it will cost to complete the year's expenses. From this the board will figure, together with what it knows about the needs of the county, on what the levy shall be.

The July meeting, at which the levy is made, is one of the two meetings during each year that the law requires to be held. These are the January and July meetings, the other ten meetings that are always held by the board being held on their own motion.

No one is in a position to do any very close guessing as yet on what the levy will be, but one thing is certain, and that is that the levy will not be any smaller than it was last year, and it is very likely to be larger. The county rate is not what the taxpayers have to worry very much about, however, though many people believe to the contrary. The fact that people pay their taxes through the county leads many people to blame all of their high taxes upon the county, but as a matter of fact, the county taxes are a small share of the total amount paid. For instance, last year in Duluth the total tax rate was an even 30 mills, and out of that only 2.7 mills was for county purposes. The rate for city purposes was 17.7 mills. The rate for school purposes in Duluth was 6.7 mills.

The outlook is that taxes will be higher in Duluth next year. The county rate was pared to the lowest notch last year, and it cannot be lowered this year. The school board was enabled to make a low levy because its system of levying had accumulated a surplus which it was thought advisable to remove. The city will probably not be able to reduce its levy much, if any, and the school board will probably make a larger one than last year.

At one time last year it looked as though an extraordinarily large tax rate would result, but the popular outcry that went up resulted in postponing the evil day. There are some funds to be made even this year for last year's cuts, and it is a very serious question whether a much higher tax rate can be avoided next year. How much more than last year it will be it is yet too early to guess, but the prophecy that it will be larger is a safe one to make.

One reason the county will find it necessary to make a higher levy is that the $40.00 overdraft in the poor fund has yet to be made up. It may be that the entire amount of the shortage will not be levied this year, but something will have to be levied to make it up, and possibly all of it will have to be provided for. The regular poor levy will probably be smaller than it was last year, for the poor board is making a good record for economy, and it is expected that it will manage the county's poor business much cheaper than it has ever been managed before. The general fund is more or less a fixed quantity, and it cannot be cut very much, if any. The road fund will not be cut any, because there are more road districts since the number of commissioners was increased, and there are more commissioners interested in the expenditure of road money. Besides, there is now a farming population in the county of over 4000, and it is constantly growing, so there is an increasing demand for roads that cannot be altogether disregarded.

As to the city, the paving and other contracts, while they will be made up by assessments, will involve heavier city expenses. Altogether the outlook is for higher taxes next year.

CHANGES ITS NAME.

Clyde Iron Works Will Still Exist.

The Northwestern Manufacturing company, which has taken over the plant on Lake avenue formerly operated by the Clyde Iron works and later by the Northwestern Supply company, has changed its name so that the old and more familiar title of the Clyde Iron works will apply to the plant again. It has amended its articles of incorporation so as to acquire this name, dropping the name of the Northwestern Manufacturing company. The amended articles permit it to cover a wide field of manufacturing and fix its capital stock and limit of indebtedness at $100,000 each. The amended articles are signed by Carl A. Luster as president and George C. Stone as vice president.

SUB-TROPICAL RAMBLES.

The Author's Experiences.

V. S. Consul Pike, of Port Louis, Mauritius, has written a charming book upon this gem of the ocean, the home of Paul and Virginia.

Col. Pike, whose New York address is 43 Exchange place, had a curious experience with coffee and the beverage almost destroyed his eyesight.

He says: "Speaking of coffee, my first warning against its use was insomnia, followed by depression and despondency. The nervous system was in such a condition that I could not attend to business, and to my distress I discovered that my eyesight was becoming more and more imperfect every day. From my knowledge of the symptoms of coffee poisoning, I concluded to leave off the coffee and take up Postum Food Coffee in its place.

"The result was astonishing. Gradually my eyesight recovered, and the nervous condition and depressed feeling disappeared. I have now been using Postum in place of coffee for several years and am in perfect health.

My family of six persons discarded coffee some time ago and use Postum. I would not be without it. It is a most valuable addition to the breakfast table and should be in every household."

THE ARMY CANTEEN.

An Argument In Favor of Its Abolition.

To the Editor of The Herald:

I am greatly encouraged to notice the apparently increasing interest that is being aroused in the question of canteen or no canteen in the army. By calling things by their right names, the thing in dispute is a "beer saloon." No more, no less, and for drinking purposes only, (and the reading and recreation rooms, etc., so often referred to, are seldom a part of it, but usually of a very dishwriting nature in some dingy corner of the post.) The only difference being that Uncle Sam owns this saloon instead of a private citizen, and instead of restrictions being enforced it was the first intention. In most cases there were every inducements offered to encourage all the men to drink, for they were all to share in the profits by the providing of luxuries for the mess. As if Uncle Sam was too poor to feed his warriors! And so canteen chips were issued on their pay, and some comrades were almost paid in full in that way. And when any of them got turbulent they were run off (not to the guard house as is now the case) but to their quarters, and unless they committed some very serious offense there was nothing more heard of them. They were allowed to sober up and go in peace, and drunkenness, brawls and fights were of common occurrence, with an occasional murder, but most of these things never passed beyond the military circles to be paraded before the public as the "terrible results of the army canteen." I have in my possession a long list of such occurrences that are simply appalling. I regret that nearly all the daily papers, whether party or independent, show a strong bias in favor of the army saloon, and seem to catch at any straw of evidence (no matter how false) in its favor, while ignoring or belittling the results of the honest efforts of the most trustworthy, honorable Christian men, whose only object can be a disinterested desire for the betterment of the health and morals of the men, and greater efficience of our army.

There are many things that seem to be lost sight of in this controversy. First, the question is treated as if it were an experiment, and the war department has promised to prove by future records, that the experiment is a failure, turning at once into a prophet of evil, and insulting the wisdom of congress. While on the contrary the canteen was not a creation of any law, but a matter of army regulation and was simply allowed at the discretion of the commanding officer, and did not exist in every command. Perhaps you or some of your readers may have heard of a gallant Col. W. J. Bryan, considerable of a man, not much of a temperance crank, but he prohibited the canteen in his command (and was not alone.) And now I think of it, perhaps it cost him a good many liquor votes, perhaps those three influential every-day, life-long Democrats, who turned their coats to support "William the Good," remembered that. But why wait for history to be made and need to wait? Why not now examine the records, of the past four or five years, say, and see where there was the most sickness, insubordination, drunkenness, disorder, desertions and deaths, etc., from the commands with the canteen or those without, and where the greatest efficiency was obtained? We temperance fanatics will accept the results. Why, sir, I have heard one of our own boys, who was a volunteer, and spent a long dreary time in camp in the South, say that he has seen a whole company virtually drunk at the canteen. I cannot understand your position, Mr. Editor, as this was one of the most real issues in the last campaign, and one of the greatest levers in returning William McKinley to the White House was the liquor vote, unless you think to win them over by propagating the lies that are being coined and sent our broadcast by the war department of the Republican administration. You never miss seeing anything that favors the canteen, it seems to me, but why not once in a while find something on the other side? For instance, the St. Paul Dispatch of June 7: "It is an insult to every officer in the United States army to say that the army canteen assists in the management of his men. If I had an officer under me who had made this statement, I would certainly relieve him as soon as possible."

These words were spoken by Col. P. H. Ray, present commandant at Fort Snelling. Col. Ray is disgusted with the talk that is going on about the necessity of the army canteen. He spoke very freely to a Dispatch reporter yesterday, when asked as to the truth of a rumor that twelve soldiers were arrested in a saloon in town yesterday. Said he:

"Who told you that story? It is not true. There are people and newspapers hereabouts that tell lies about myself and my post, and the lies are all in favor of the army canteen. I do not see what attuates [illegible] sentiment in favor of the canteen. I have searched long to find out what motive the wholesale liquor dealers could have in favoring the re-establishment of the canteen. Their reason must be that, in connection with the liquor they sell to the United States, they have no license to pay, no saloonkepers to hire and are always sure of their money.

"What was said at the medical convention in regard to the canteen was disgusting. I can run my post as well, if not better, without a canteen as I can with one.

"Here is a fact that has been overlooked in this argument: The regular canteen is not allowed to sell liquor to soldiers when they are drunk. Therefore the men who want to get drunk will go uptown anyway. A canteen that keeps the men at the post will have to be 'as low and vile a hole' as any saloon in town. If the canteen is what it was first intended to be, it does not keep these 'drink-soldiers, about whom so much has recently been said, at the post. They want to go somewhere where they can get drunk.

"There is no need of liquor at any army post in the country. Do they have a bar at your newspaper office in order to regulate the drinking of reporters and editors? In your department stores, is a bar maintained simply because a clerk here and there is liable to leave his work, go outside of the store and get drunk? The statements that are being made about the army and its drinking propensities are libels."

From this, Mr. Editor, the public will be better able to judge, than from the libelous statements that are published one day, and their falacy proven the next, which, however, the newspapers rarely publish unless called upon to do so by some of their readers.

Regretting the necessity of occupying so much of your valuable space, and at the same time leaving out, of necessity, a large amount of valuable matter, I am yours for the truth.

Hammocks.

Guaranteed to hold two (or more).

In tropical countries people are luxuriously lazy, passionately fond of ease, and naturally seek the best agencies for its promotion — the hammock is of tropical origin — Columbus is the first white man who ever saw one—having discovered it at the same time as America. Since then hammocks have gone to every quarter of the globe.

Although not so lazy as Cubans, and more energetic than Mexicans, Duluthians enjoy rest and repose as well as all the rest of humanity, and there is nothing that will give as much comfort for as little cost as a hammock. To sleep in—rest in—smoke in—dose in—read in—recuperate in—you will best enjoy your spare summer moments reclining in a hammock. It can be used at home and at the seaside—indoors or out—it will ornament your front porch or you can hang it in the back yard; if you wish to be relieved of all anxiety or break-downs, buy your hammock of The Glass Block. Here are the best, strongest, handsomest, cheapest hammocks exploited in this country since Columbus bartered for the crude ones of the West Indian natives.

Palmer's celebrated hammocks, open weave, linen finish, 35 inches wide and 78-inches long, full quarter color. Strong and durable—thoroughly tested for two heavy people ---------- 75c

Others at $1.10 and $1.48.

Palmer's canvas weave hammock--- jacquard design—luxurious wide valance—full five-eighth color—an exceptionally good hammock—the price is only ---------- $2.79

Others at $1.79 and $1.95.

Very excellent open weave hammocks made by Palmer—extra wide valance—divided extension and adjustment for single or double ropes. It is exceptionally large, 96 inches long and 61 inches wide—full color. It is a hammock that will last for years. You will be pleased with it-- $6.75

Others at $2.25, $2.95, $3.98 and $4.50.

For the Fourth.

Japanese lanterns innumerable.

You will feel as though you were in a Tokio shop when you step into our basement. It is strung with myriads of Japanese lanterns of every hue and color combination—in shapes most grotesque and fantastic, yet artistic. Some of them are clever reproductions of famous Japanese pagodas—others represent nothing in particular, but are charming, nevertheless. They are spherical, square, balloon, triangular, hexagonal shaped—every shaped, from the wee little ones no bigger than an ostrich egg to those as big as a man.

It will do you good to see them even if you have no intention of buying—but permit us to suggest that it will be a good idea to secure a goodly supply for the Fourth. You will want to have your front yard and porch lit up on the event of Duluth's greatest Fourth of July celebration.

When you once have them they are good for countless other events—lawn parties, camping, outing trips, etc. You can buy a lot of them for a very small outlay—they range from 5c each up to $2.48. A big assortment of colors at 90c a dozen or 8c each.

WISCONSIN COPPER LANDS.

Ashland, Wis., June 25.—The news says: The big mining interests that have gobbled up a considerable portion of the copper lands in Ashland, Bayfield and Douglas counties, are ominously quiet, for the reason that the homestead rights of scores of those who filed during the copper boom last winter, will expire on July 1 if no improvements are made by that time. Then these lands will be quietly captured by the syndicate. Representatives of the syndicate have been copying the names of filers at the land office and are thoroughly informed as to who have, and who have not, made improvements. Meanwhile, plenty of copper is being found, but the real boom will be when the rights of last winter's filers expires.

MAKE-MAN TABLETS

TRADE MARK

WORTH $1000. PER BOX

A prominent merchant of Minneapolis, writes: "Knowing what I do about Make-man Tablets and what they have accomplished for me I would not hesitate to pay a thousand dollars a box for them. I was a total wreck, all my nerve force was gone. I could not think clearly, and my life was being dragged out of me by degrees, my family had already arranged to send me to a private sanitarium when I was urged to try Make-man Tablets—I had not used a half box until I could feel a decided benefit, and in some way I felt more hopeful, altho' I had tried all forms of medicine and the best physicians I could find. I used in all 10 boxes of Make-man Tablets in 9 weeks—and I feel all the snap and ambition, as when I was a boy. Make-man Tablets certainly have done wonders for me, and I recommend them to all my friends.

I gained 42 lbs. in weight, for I was a mere skeleton when I began their use."

Free A trial treatment of Make-man Tablets will be sent free to any reader of this paper who send their name and address. The Great Fair at St. Louis.

Although some of the members of the St. Louis exposition commission are quite sanguine that the big fair will be ready by 1903, as originally planned, others who are well posted on the matter declare it to be impossible. Had the money been appropriated when it was first asked for, during the winter of 1899-1900, there would be no talk of this sort, but congress did not act until last spring. This had the effect of carrying everything forward a full year, and it is hard to see how the exposition can be prepared in the time that remains. The local management has not yet selected a site or prepared a general exposition scheme. Until this is done the commissioners cannot take hold. The great trouble in getting ready by 1903 comes with the state exhibits. Thus far, only six states have acted, and the legislatures in many cases will not again be in session in time to appropriate for preliminary work. The amounts appropriated by states are as follows: Missouri, $1,000,000; Illinois, $250,000; Kansas, $75,000 (with a probability of $75,000 more); Colorado, $50,000; Arkansas, $40,000, and Wisconsin, $25,000. Taking these figures as a basis, enthusiastic Missourians point out that the aggregate appropriations would reach six or seven million dollars, making over twenty million in all. In addition, must be reckoned the foreign exhibits, the midway features, and the concessions, bringing the total of direct expenditures before the fair opens up to at least twenty-five million dollars. The incidental private expenditures in building and betterment, and the money to be spent in city improvements under proposed charter amendments, are not included, but will certainly amount to several million more. It, therefore, appears that a great deal of work must be done in St. Louis before the great fair opens. According to all accounts it will eclipse the Chicago fair, which seems almost beyond the reach of possibility.

Views of a Democratic Senator.

But little attention was paid by Democrats of standing to the so-called "reform movement" that held a convention at Kansas City recently. They look upon the proposed new party as a new kind of Populism and will have nothing to do with it. Senator Clay of Georgia, openly condemns the movement. He says: "It would appear this is a contemplated organization of dissatisfied Democrats, who want a party more on the lines of the Populist party. I have no patience with such a movement. Speaking as a Democrat, I say that, instead of going in the direction of Populism, if we expect our party to win a victory we must shape our policy so as to meet the interests of the entire country. In order to elect a Democratic ticket we must, in my opinion, carry New York, Indiana, New Jersey and Connecticut. They are really Democratic states. I would not sacrifice any Democratic principles to carry the states, but as new issues develop we must meet them in a broad and liberal spirit, so as to have the support of every interest. The Democratic party has no fight to make on capital. The Democratic party recognizes the fact that when the business interests of the country are successful it results in great good to the laborer and the farmer. The Democratic party, properly speaking, does not antagonize capital or any business interest. And I trust that we may be able to meet the various issues that may arise in a broad and liberal way. For instance, I think we ought to be tolerant of differences of opinion that exist in the party, so that we can get together and agree upon a platform and a candidate that will commend themselves to the country. I must confess that I do not see in sight at this time a person whose name I would suggest as the Democratic presidential nominee. Some great man will arise equal to the occasion like Tilden did in 1876. We want a man whom the intelligent Democrats throughout the country will indorse and who will unite the separated elements of the party. We want a reformer in the true sense of the word, not a reformer who follows after impracticable 'reforms,' but who will be a reformer of the Tilden type. The Republicans themselves admit that there ought to be some reform in the tariff system, and the whole country demands that something be done toward the regulation of the trusts. Then, too, there is an issue in attacking the extravagant administration of government. There are enough weak spots in the Republican armor without going into the theories upon which this third party movement seems to be organized." The Georgia senator's sensible views will be very generally approved by Democrats.

THE MANEUVER JUSTIFIED.

Again the controversy over the battle of Santiago comes to the front, this time by reason of a statement made by a trustworthy Spanish official in which he justifies the famous maneuvers of the cruiser Brooklyn by order of Admiral Schley. It will be remembered that the Brooklyn, upon the appearance of the Spanish squadron, swung outward in a wide detour. Admiral Schley said he ordered this apparent flight to avoid being rammed by the Infanta Maria Teresa. He believed this desperate movement was the plan of the Spaniards who would have reason to think that the Brooklyn was the fastest of the United States ships. It is inferred that they regarded its disablement as necessary for the escape of the Viscaya, Oquendo and Colon.

Capt. Victor M. Concas y Palau, commander of the Teresa, has written a description of the events leading up to and ending in the annihilation of Cervera's squadron. He thus speaks of the plan of battle decided upon by the Spanish officers at daybreak, on July 2, when Cervera was ordered by Capt. Gen. Blanco to go out of Santiago harbor immediately: "Supposing that the Brooklyn was at her usual station when we came out, the Maria Teresa was to engage her in battle, endeavoring to ram her, and, while the rest of the enemy's squadron were grappling with our flagship, the other ships, headed by the Viscaya, without delaying to succor the Teresa, were to pass in column between her and the coast and endeavor to escape."

Describing the battle, he says: "In compliance with the order received, I put our bow toward the Brooklyn, which, putting to starboard, presented her stern to us and fired her two after turret guns, moving to southward. * * * The position of the Brooklyn and the fact of her being close to the other United States ships, which advanced as she receded, caused the Texas and the Iowa to come in between the Teresa and the Brooklyn; for this reason, as to keep on this course would have been to run the danger of being rammed by these two ships, Admiral Cervera consulted me and agreed that it was impossible to continue (that is, continuing toward the Brooklyn to ram that vessel), so we put our prow toward the coast."

The maneuver of Admiral Schley thus seems, according to this reliable Spanish eye-witness, to have been the right movement.

CHINESE EXCLUSION.

On May 5, 1902, less than a year hence, the Geary exclusion act will expire by limitation, and after that date there will be no barrier to Chinese immigration, unless congress shall re-enact the Geary law or pass another measure of that character. There are strong influences at work, however, to prevent the enactment of another Chinese exclusion law. Minister Wu Ting Fang, who is equal in ability and influence to any diplomat in Washington, has been working long, persistently, arduously and shrewdly against the maintenance of an exclusion law. But his influence is insignificant as compared with that of large "business interests" that desire to give the Chinese free access to our shores. It is thought, and no doubt correctly, that with unrestricted Chinese imigration, the element in our industrial life commonly called "labor" could be better managed. Trades unions could not then dictate terms. If thousands of men struck for higher wages or shorter hours, Chinamen could be secured, in most instances, to take their places. Then a good many people think that as we are expecting to do a very large and profitable trade with China, it would be bad policy to keep up the manifestation of the certain degree of unfriendliness involved in an exclusion law. And, finally, steamship and railroad companies, with an eye to a very large increase of business that would ensue upon the removal of the barriers, are opposed to strict exclusion.

It is interesting to note public sentiment on the Pacific coast on this question, because that section is most directly affected. While not in sympathy with some of the extreme opponents of not only Chinese, but all Japanese and other foreign labor in this country, the Portland Telegram says it believes it would be disastrous to allow the exclusion law to lapse, and Chinese laborers to come in freely. The country, apparently, needs a considerable number of Chinese and Japanese to perform menial labor that Americans are loth to do, but it would be going entirely too far to open the gates to all Orientals who might choose to come. The Chinese are the one nation to guard against in this particular, because of their vast number. With no restriction they might actually and easily outnumber our own people within a decade. Even if they became several times our American population, there is no danger of their securing political power; of this they are not capable, and neither do they desire it, but the Telegram believes they certainly would fill our labor market to a deplorable and dangerous degree.

The Telegram adds: "The Pacific coast is especially interested in this subject, and can figure out benefits in either policy. We have a business eye upon building up a great volume of Oriental commerce, which an exclusion law, to some extent, retards; but, on the other hand, the influx of hundreds of thousands of Chinese would first glut certain avenues of our labor market, and precipitate labor troubles here that would be exceedingly injurious. It is presumed that Pacific coast members of congress will be in favor of the reenactment of the exclusion law, and it is probable that the country as a whole will not be in favor of free Chinese immigration. Quite enough of them sneak in under the present law." In view of this sentiment in the Pacific coast states, the probability is that some sort of an exclusion law will be enacted when the Geary law expires, but there will be a strong and well paid lobby at Washington working the other way—and sometimes the lobby legislates.

OUR FOREIGN TRADE.

The immensity of the foreign trade of the United States is shown by the figures given out by the treasury department for the fiscal year now drawing to a close. It is expected that when the year ends at the close of the present month, the country's exports of merchandise will be in the neighborhood of $1,500,000,000. Indeed, the chances are, judging by the average amount per month during the fiscal year, that the $1,500,000,000 mark will be passed. In 1890, when the merchandise exports passed the $800,000,000 mark there was great jubilation over the showing, but ten years later we find that record nearly doubled. There has been a constant increase in exports for several years, except that in 1899 there was a falling off of a few thousand dollars from 1898. The total, in round figures, of 1899, was $1,227,000,000. It was $1,394,000,000 in 1900, and will be $1,500,000,000 in 1901. As usual, agricultural products form by far the larger share of the exports. There has been a decline, absolute as well as relative, in the shipments of manufactures in the present year, although in actual amount it is small. In 1900 manufactures formed about 30 per cent of the aggregate exports, while in 1901 they will comprise about 27 per cent.

The great gain in exports in recent years is rendered particularly marked by the fact that some of the countries, as Hawaii, Porto Rico and the Philippines, which were foreign a short time ago are part of the territory of the United States now, and the goods shipped to them these days do not figure in the list of foreign exports. Moreover, the war in China curtailed our exports to that country seriously in the past twelve months.

It is by making comparisons with previous decades that a correct idea of the great gains made in recent years can be obtained. Our exports in 1901 will be double those of a dozen years ago, in 1889. They will be much more than triple the exports of 1870, which were $393,000,000. They will be more than five times the shipments of 1869, which were $286,000,000. They will be nine times as great as those of 1865, at the end of the war, when they amounted to $166,000,000. Here is an expansion in exportation of merchandise such as the records of no other country in the world can show. And it is encouraging to note that the outlook favors a still further increase in the coming years. American trade is reaching points that were never touched before.

As a result of the recent orders of the commissioner of immigration concerning contagious diseases, a vigorous warfare is going on. Several immigrants are now awaiting deportation at Ellis Island because they have diseases of the eye and scalp which are considered contagious. The complaints in question are trachoma, a disease of the eye, and favus, or scald head, as it is sometimes termed. It has been found that immigrants afflicted with trachoma have been admitted in the past and that they communicated the disease to others with great rapidity. The disease shows an inflammation of the eye lids, and as it progresses it eats away the lashes, attacks the iris and then follows the course of the optic nerve. It is very readily communicated to children. The same is true in regard to favus. Commissioner General Powderly has therefore issued strict directions to exclude all immigrants suffering from either of these diseases.

Mr. Monett, ex-attorney general of Ohio, whom the Republicans of that state refused in 1898 to nominate because of his attempted prosecution of the Standard Oil company, is out with a statement that the said company, and some other monopolistic corporations, habitually and audaciously violate the laws of the state, and are liable to both civil and criminal actions. Very likely, but Mr. Monett should have learned long ago that the laws of a state that sends such a man as Mr. Hanna to the senate are not made for the Standard Oil company and similar corporations to obey or respect.

In one of his recent speeches Emperor William expressed the opinion that the peace of Europe is assured for a long time to come, basing his belief upon the "mutual esteem and comradeship" exhibited between the powers as allied in China since the Boxer uprising. If many accounts be true, there was much "comradeship" in hooting the helpless Chinese, and the "esteem" which one person engaged in a bad business has for another pursuing the same occupation, but it is not clear that this portends a long European peace. Thieves often fall out among themselves.

The interview with Minister DeWitte of Russia very ignominiously turns the tables on Secretary Gage. When American tariff doctors get into a dispute with the Russians, they need to get up early and stay up late, and keep all their wits about them. Russian diplomats and international lawyers are not to be excelled, and scarcely to be equaled, in wisdom and cunning, in any country. They make no mistakes, or if they do, it is very seldom that their mistake is discovered.

The Topeka State Journal says that when the amount of vacant and unused land in the world is considered it seems pitiful that there should be so desperate an effort made by thousands to obtain a location in the new Indian country.

Michigan is prepared to honor the memory of ex-Governor Pingree by receiving his remains with almost regal pomp. It is a fitting tribute to a man of vast usefulness to the city and state that he served.

The prediction repeated by Jean de Bloch, that China will become a mighty world power, has been heard before. It may happen, but the twentieth century will be far advanced.

The Mormons are irrepressible. They have invaded the very strongholds of the Christian Endeavor society in Brooklyn and captured some prominent women converts.

The newly found African plant, woandser, which is said to furnish practically ideal food, should be popular in Boston. It is in the nature of a bean.

All European reports chronicle the return of semi-winter weather, which has a serious effect on crops. Duluth is not alone with summer cold.

There is another plea going the rounds for the adoption of the metric system. It would be a good thing for the next generation.

Weylerism should not be permitted in South Africa. It was stopped in Cuba. It should be ended in the same way in South Africa.

It is said that the German voters in New York city outnumber the Irish, but you could never tell that by the composition of the police force.

With four daughters as a starter, the czar of Russia has splendid opportunities as a royal matrimonial agent.

The war in South Africa is not over. Now the Boers are invading Cape Colony in large numbers.

Even the Philadelphia mayor and council have their defenders. Satan also has apologists.

The Same Old Thing.

And Cupid's putting up a sign: "My busy day!"
For, bless you, the wedding bells will be a-ringing pretty soon,
And fond young hearts be throbbing in the sweet old way.
The same old guests, all "prominent in swell society,"
Will flutter into church, like human butterflies,
And crane their necks all out of shape, and twist around to see

Reflections of a Bachelor.

New York Press: The world owes every man a living and every woman a loving. Any man can get the best of a woman if he only knows how to make her too mad to cry.

A man's love can be beckoned, but not commanded; a woman's love can be commanded, but not beckoned.

Some woman has written a book entitled "How to Enjoy Matrimony." I wish the publisher would ask me to write a preface to it.

It's a great advantage to be a pretty woman, because the wind never blows her skirts around near as much as it does a homely woman's.

I read of a woman the other day who had her husband arrested for shooting the nose off her china tea pot. If he had shot her own nose off she would probably have forgiven him.

Congressmen and Cadets.

Washington Star: Two members of congress, one a senator, have, it is reported, agreed to try to secure the restoration to the military academy of one of the cadets recently dismissed for insubordination. They have determined to reappoint him to the vacancy thus created and to press the case to an issue. It is to be hoped that no such attempt will be made, for unless the government lamentably weakens in its attitude of resistence to cadet disorder, certain defeat confronts the two congressmen and their protege. A reappointment under the circumstances would be a challenge to the officials at the academy, who would have ample warrant in refusing to consider such a candidate.

Drawing to a Full.

Louisville Courier-Journal: Every American battleship completed now is the "queen of the navy"—until another new one makes her trial trip. If this keeps up we shall yet hold in our navy an invincible queen-full.

Heyday of School Life.

New York Tribune: The alma maters of both hemispheres are now bidding farewells to the boys and girls who have been spending happy years in halls of learning under the most gracious of influences and in the safest of shelters from the troubles and sorrows of the rude world outside.

ENTITLED TO PROTECTION.

Omaha World Herald: Two events have just happened in connection with the war of England against the Boers, both of which must attract the attention of the world and one of which must astonish and move all Christendom.

The first is the capture by the Boers of a detachment of 250 Victorian Mounted Rifles and two field guns near Middleburg, after a short and desperate fight in which many of the British were killed or wounded. The second is the announcement in the British house of commons by Mr. Brodrick, secretary for war, showing how the English reconcentrado system is working in the Transvaal and the Orange River colony.

The capture of so considerable a number of mounted troops, regarded as the best in the service, being Australians, and therefore accustomed to hard riding and frontier fighting, makes it plain that the Boers still have resources to indefinitely prolong what has for more than a year seemed an unequal and hopeless struggle.

The announcement of Mr. Brodrick ought to dumfound the civilized nations of the earth. When Lord Kitchener many months ago ordered that the noncombatant Boers and their families should be grouped together in certain prescribed limits it was not seriously in the thought of anyone that the real system, with all its horror, that Weyler put into force a few years ago in Cuba was to be established. It was not seriously in anyone's thought because of England's standing as a civilized country, of her much prating about advancing the cause of civilization, liberty and humanity, and because England had joined the rest of the world in condemning the cruel system of Weyler in Cuba.

But nevertheless it is a fact that England is following Spain and that her commander-in-chief in South Africa has become a disciple of "the butcher," deliberately bent on the extermination of a people he cannot conquer.

Mr. Brodrick owns up to it that in the reconcentrado camps—which the English call "concentration camps," there died in May 40,259 persons. And that in these camps during that month 416 persons died. Of these 98 were men and women and 318 were children. This is at the rate of 5,000 a year, and more than three times as many children as adults. It is estimated that the British have more than 200,000 soldiers in South Africa, and that the number of Boers in the field is about 17,000, yet to this pass has the British campaign come, that the British are herding together all the Boers who are not under arms, women and children, and subjecting them to epidemic and starvation to prevent them from cultivating fields and raising stock which might furnish food to the small and scattered armies that refuse to quit fighting. Behind them these people left burned homes and devastated fields.

This is the same condition that existed in Cuba when for the sake of humanity, with the burning urgence of all the people in America, and the disrespect of human rights throughout the world, the United States interfered.

England left to the compassion of the world four million people starving in India in order to equip the men and furnish the means of subduing 400,000 people in South Africa. She has not been able to subdue them and sets the torch and the trochs is creating a famine in South Africa to break and coerce the spirit of a whole brave race which dared to meet her and hold her at bay in battle. This is the way England is spreading civilization. This is the way she is carrying enlightenment, law, order and justice toward the ends of the earth.

Even England is doing it. She is doing what Spain did. She is using the terrible tools—though indeed not unskilled in their use before—that Spain was compelled to drop. She is doing it because she is at Spain's old business, seeking to oppress a weaker but a brave and resolute people.

There was pity in the world in 1898. It is here yet and may express itself again.

If the Boers, on their standing as a state, on the facts of their national life, on the grounds of international right, have hitherto had no claim to the intervention of the nations of the world, they have now that right, based on the fact that they are a part of the human race and entitled to protection from what would be cruelty to beasts.

JUNE.

Earth gets its price for what earth gives us;
The beggar is taxed for a corner to die in;
The priest has his fee who comes and shrives us;
We bargain for the graves we lie in;
At the Devil's booth are all things sold,
Each ounce of dross costs its ounce of gold;
For a cap and bells our lives we pay,
Bubbles we buy with the whole soul's tasking;
'Tis heaven alone that is given away,
'Tis only God may be had for the asking;
No price is set on the lavish summer,
June may be had by the poorest comer.

And what is so rare as a day in June?
Then, if ever, comes perfect days;
Then heaven tried the earth if it be in tune,
And over it softly her warm ear lays.
Whether we look or whether we listen,
We hear life murmur, or see it glisten;
Every clod feels a stir of might,
An instinct within it that reaches and towers,
And, groping blindly above it for light,
Climbs to a soul in grass and flowers;
The flush of life may well be seen
Thrilling back over hills and valleys;
The cowslip startles in meadows green,
The buttercup catches the sun in its chalice,

And there's never a leaf or a blade too mean
To be some happy creature's palace;
The little bird sits at his door in the sun,
A-lilt like a blossom among the leaves,
And lets his illumined being o'errun
With the deluge of summer it receives;
His mate feels the egg beneath her wings,
And the heart in her dumb breast flutters and sings,
He sings to the wide world, and she to her nest—
In the nice ear of nature, which song is the best?

Now is the high-tide of the year,
And whatever of life hath ebbed away
Comes flooding back, with a ripply cheer,
Into every bare inlet and creek and bay;
Now the heart is so full that a drop overfills it,
We are happy now because God wills it;
No matter how barren the past may have been,
'Tis enough for us now that the leaves are green;
We sit in the warm shade and feel right well
How the sap creeps up and the blossoms swell;
We may shut our eyes, but we cannot help knowing
That skies are clear and grass is growing;
The breezes come whispering in our ears
That dandelions are blossoming near,
That maize has sprouted, that streams are flowing,
That the river is bluer than the sky,
That the robin is plastering his house hard by;
And if the breeze kept the good news back,
For other couriers we should not lack;
We could guess it all by yon heifer's lowing,—
And hark! how clear bold chanticleer,
Warmed with the new wine of the year,
Tells all in his lusty crowing!
Joy comes, grief goes, we know not how;
Everything is happy now
Everything is upward striving;
'Tis as easy now for the heart to be true
As for grass to be green or skies to be blue,
'Tis the natural way of living;
Who knows whither the clouds have fled?
In the unscarred heaven they leave no wake,
And the eyes forget the tears they have shed,
The heart forgets its sorrow and ache;
The soul partakes the season's youth,
And the sulphurous rifts of passion and woe
Lie deep 'neath a silence pure and smooth,
Like burnt-out craters healed with snow.

DAILY STORY.

The Straithcomb Gang.

BY POWELL THURSTON MANNING.

(Copyright, 1901, William R. Miller).

Dear John: No doubt you will think it strange that I open my letter by again thanking you for the cigar which you insisted that I should accept when we parted. Your dinner was admirable—good wine, good cooking, good company—but the cigar I took away with me deserves praise far beyond that which is usually accorded to the weed. It has made of me a convert, and hereafter I shall puff like an engine; become an habitual smoker, such as you—a slave. In one breath, I retract all the derogatory things I have said against the excessive use of tobacco.

I know that this will sound strange as coming from me, and that you will crow over your victory, for to be able to say that your cigars have made a devotee of me—a man who has always looked askance at tobacco—will increase your conceit about them to a maddening degree. It is not, however, their excellence that has wrought the change in me. It is not that your chosen brand is the sweetest, the most soothing, the most seductive. It is simply that they are the safest. And what I am about to relate will prove it.

As soon as I arrived at the station I looked the train over for an empty compartment; and finally locating one that seemed without an incumbent, I settled myself therein and fell to musing over the thousand and one things that we had talked over during dinner. But imagine my surprise—the discovery quite disconcerted me—when, as my eyes became accustomed to the semi-light, I distinguished the outlines of a figure huddled up on the opposite seat. Of course, I resented the presence of the stranger, for, as you know, I like a compartment to myself; but as my immediate comfort was not jeopardized, I worked off my resentment with a few inword curses at the rest of the traveling British public. The train presently moved out of the station, and onward we went, bowling through the night.

My journey promised to be tedious; the uncertain rays from the half-trimmed lamp overhead would not permit of reading. My companion seemed completely unaware of my presence. This piqued me, for, if I must have someone in the compartment with me, I prefer that they would be sociable. Furthermore, I felt oppressed, lonely, in need of companionship. For some reason that I could not explain I was conscious of a feeling of uneasiness, not exactly fear, but as though all were not right. I did not, however, succumb to such morbidness, but consoled myself with the thought that the journey would not last forever, and that I would soon be out of the gloomy coach and once more breathing wholesome fresh air. The anticipation of this raised my spirits, and sitting up, I involuntarily put my hand to my waistcoat pocket and brought forth some cigars. A smile escaped me as I recalled how enthusiastically you had praised its flavor and other virtues, as you persuaded me to take it, saying that it would relieve the tedium of my solitary evening in the train. If it can mitigate the stupidity of this place, I thought, it is certainly a blessing. I try it, anyhow, and I lighted up. As the flare of the match died away, I raised my eyes to find those of my companion bent upon me. For a moment his glance met mine steadily, then he leaned forward and looked intently out of the window, as if he were trying to locate the vicinity of the train. Seemingly satisfied, he resumed his former position, and, to my almost unspeakable surprise, deliberately ripped his coat sleeve half way to the shoulder. Then followed this strange action by tearing the collar from about his neck.

To say that I was astonished is putting it mildly. I was dumbfounded. I concluded, of course, that he was demented, but the knowledge that I was locked in a railway train with a crazy man was anything but reassuring to my nerves. I first thought of pulling the bell rope to summon the guard, but as the fellow had shown me no violence, I feared that I would have to pay the penalty for stopping the train. Furthermore, I felt powerless to move; the fellow's oddities influenced me strangely. It was a relief to know that I was practically at the end of my journey; but as we sped on his movements became more strange, more weird. He paid no further heed to me, but seemed simply intent upon pulling his clothes to pieces. He now ripped off one of his cuffs, disregardful of the button holes, mussed up his shirt and pressed his fingers about his throat until he choked.

I am not an excitable man, but I must admit that I was becoming decided uncomfortable. If the fellow had made some noise it would not have been so uncanny, but hang it, he never uttered a sound. I, too, remained quiet, for I dreaded attracting his attention to my presence. And you will laugh, I know, John, when I mention that through it all I had never ceased smoking. The cigar with its thin spiral of smoke curling up from the long white ash that still clung on (never knock the ash from a cigar, John) was pressed firmly between my lips.

The train had now slowed down and we were entering the depot. As the switch lights flashed past, my companion's nervousness increased. He clutched his throat repeatedly, and moved restlessly in his seat. A more dishevelled individual I have never seen. His hair was tousled, his throat red with finger marks, his face bleeding from the scratches he had inflicted upon himself, his clothes were awry. "Great God!" I murmured to myself, "what does it all mean?"

With a sigh of relief I now felt the train come to a stop and heard the voice of the guard without. As his key scraped in the lock of the coach door my companion rose from his seat and beat upon the window, shrieking wildly: "Murder! murder!" he cried. "Quick! I am being killed." And when the door was opened he staggered out upon the platform, and, pointing to me, said hoarsely: "Arrest him; he tried to rob me; he nearly killed me."

The other passengers gathered quickly about us, and a heavy grasp was laid upon my shoulder. I turned to find myself confronted by a bobby.

"Hold him tight, officer," continued my late traveling companion excitedly. "He's a thief."

I was completely stunned. Here was evidence enough to almost hang me. I now realized that I was the victim of a clever rascal, but just what his scheme was I did not know. He certainly showed every sign of having been assaulted; he and I had been the only occupants of the coach. My eyes roamed over the crowd in search of a friendly face. I saw none. How should I extricate myself?

"See how roughly he has handled me," whined the man, appealing to the bystanders.

As the fellow spoke I raised my hand to my brow, as if to clear my mind of the confusion of thoughts that surged therein. Immediately I perceived a loophole of escape. Why had I not thought of it before? Would it succeed? It was worth trying, anyhow. And I smiled as the idea shaped itself, remembering the coincident that made it possible. Just then the bobby's grip tightened, and he endeavored to push me through the crowd.

"Hold on a moment," I said, slowly; "surely you don't believe the fellow's story. I never laid hands on him."

"You did," he shrieked; "look at the marks you left."

The bystanders nodded affirmatively and the officer tried once more to draw me onward.

"Let go of me," I said to the bobby, sternly. "This is an outrage." Then, turning to the gaping crowd, I gave full vent to my increasing anger. "Why, you're all as crazy as the rascal himself to believe such a cock-and-bull story. I never assaulted the man; I never touched him; I can prove it. Look," I cried, raising my arm so that all might see; "if I had assaulted him, would we not in the struggle have knocked the ashes from this cigar?"

I saw at once that I had cleared myself. With one accord the eyes of the crowd scrutinized the long, perfect ash that clung to the end of your cigar; then turned questionably in the direction of my accuser, who now looked wildly about, seeking an opening in the human wall through which to make his escape.

The policeman released me as a quiet-looking man forced his way through the onlookers, and, turning to me, said: "Sir, I am a detective. You have done the law a service. That man"—meaning my accuser—"is a member of the famous Straithcomb gang of blackmailers. His ruse was to accuse you of robbery and assault, then have you bribe him not to prosecute you. The game's an old one, and often successful. But he won't play it any more. I'll take charge of him now. Just give me your name." And as I moved away I saw the handcuffs locked on the wrists of my late fellow-traveler. This is why, John, your cigars are the safest.

Potential Influence of Money.

Chicago Chronicle: One of the worst evils arising from too much money in the hands of one family is seen in the immoral methods sometimes introduced into the courts. The poor man who tries by appeal to influence the course of justice is liable to go to a penitentiary. The aristocracy of the East play fast and loose with the ten commandments and the statutes with equal ease, and money accomplishes immunity for all of the guilty and the accessories before and after the fact. Now a rich pair in Sandusky have grown weary of each other and a legal separation is to be effected 'without an airing in court.' Thus wealth invents new ways to make poverty odious.

Business Life in America.

Frederic Harrison's Observations: Telegrams are no longer up to date in the United States and few busy men ever use a pen except to sign their names. They do not even dictate their letters. They speak into a phonograph and have their message typewritten from the instrument. Life in the states is one perpetual whirl of telephones, telescems, phonographs, electric bells, motors, lifts and automatic instruments. To me such a life would not be worth living, and the mere sight of it is incompatible with continuous thought. But business seems to be done in that way. And I did not learn that the percentage of suicide or insanity was very seriously increased by these truly maddening inventions.

Absent, But Not Forgotten.

Washington Post: It was in the nature of a low-down trick to pull off the excitement over the third term, while the Hon. A. J. Beveridge was out of the country.

Limbs In Pickle.

Brooklyn Eagle: The New Hampshire award of $2000 to a druggist who preserved an amputated leg in alcohol will be a warning to all persons who have been accustomed to playing about railroad trains either to keep or pickle their own legs.

Joint Control Impossible.

Kansas City Journal: The United States cannot enter into a joint guarantee for the payment of the Chinese indemnity. This attitude is not only enforced by the restrictions of the constitution, but is dictated by public sentiment and sound diplomacy. It is to be hoped, however, that it may not lessen the influence of this country in its endeavor to have the whole subject of the indemnity reviewed by the arbitration court of The Hague.

A Triumph of Civilization.

New York Tribune: How many cycles of Cathay would have passed before the Chinese would have cleaned the streets of Pekin. In a few months of occupation of the chief city of the yellow kingdom the "foreign devils," as the followers of Confucius delight to call them, have cleared away so much disease-laden offal that the death rate of that capital has been reduced to a striking extent. And since the Americans disinfected and purged Havana the yellow fever in that town, which was constantly shocked with recurse in the years of Spanish dominion, has almost disappeared. Give civilization half a chance and it will purify even the worst of the Augean stables of China and Cuba.

The Whole Band.

Minneapolis Journal: Col. Joseph G. Miller, the railroad commissioner, was standing in the Lehigh Valley depot just after the arrival in Buffalo. Some Buffalo girls were taking in the sights, and one spied Miller's uniform. "Oh, there's the band!" one squealed. "Come and see the band."

MILLIONS STARVING

Black Shadow of Hunger Hangs Over Two Chinese Provinces.

Deaths By the Thousand ---Children Sold For Bread.

Li Hung Chang Makes Appeal to Americans For Relief.

New York, June 25.—Twenty millions of men, women and children starving; a universal hunger that causes thousands of deaths daily; parched fields and a drought of three years' duration; whole villages abandoned to the dead, and the population subsisting on roots and herbs; mothers selling their children for bread and the horrors of cannibalism.

Such is the awful picture that has recently been brought to the attention of the world from beyond the mountains which enclose the provinces of Shansi and Shensi, in China.

The first break in the silence of despair, the first signal of distress from the millions of starving in their isolation came in the form of a cablegram to America from Li Hung Chang, China's "Grand Old Man"—the Bismarck of Asia.

The cablegram in itself was a strange thing. For the first time in that long history which began in the dawn of time, China was appealing for aid to the never world beyond the Great Wall and the great sea. Never before had the like occurred. Calamities and wars and pestilences there have been in China during the long, monotonous dynasties, but none that she considered impossible of relief from resources within her own borders. All the traditions of her past, all precedent and religion were opposed to a plea for aid from a foreign power. Sad, indeed, must be the plight of the 20,000,000 when Li Hung Chang says to Christian America: "Help, or we perish!"

"Very serious famine," Earl Li cabled; "spreads over whole province Shansi. Over 14,000,000 population affected. Urgent relief necessary. Condition warrant immediate appeal."

Wu Tung Fang, Chinese minister to the United States, supplemented the viceroy's words with an urgent message of his own, and forwarded a translation of the following touching appeal from the governor and native relief committee of Shansi:

"To Our Own People and Foreigners: This time the famine is more serious than ever, because in the north are the allied troops, and in the south we have several places in rebellion. China is very poor now, and the people are in such a straitened position that no very big assistance can be expected from them. Since more than several months now, this famine has been beginning in places in this province. In some villages they are eating human flesh. All our brothers in the world should be very sorry for us, and should know how unfortunate we are. We wish all our people to share some of your money which you spend amusing yourselves, and for traveling, and for dressing and for all kinds of comforts, to rescue these poor people. It is much better to save the starving and dying men, women and children here, than to build a pagoda or temple, or even a church—because from 10,000,000 to 12,000,000 people are suffering to death."

The two provinces of Shansi and Shensi are side by side in the northern part of the Chinese empire, 600 miles from the sea coast, their combined area of 157,000 square miles, about that of the New England states with New York and Pennsylvania; yet, crowded into this small territory are 20,000,000 human beings, more than one-quarter the entire population of the United States.

Shansi and Shensi were once beautiful and fruitful. They are mountainous and furrowed by picturesque valleys. In fact, a literal translation of Shansi would mean "Mountains of the East." For centuries before Western history began, the dense population cultivated rice on the terraces on the hillsides. Shansi is old even for China. Its principal city, Tai-yuen, was the capital of the empire when Pekin was new. Its people were simple, contented and peaceable.

During the last decade, European and American civilization has driven an engering wedge into the prejudices and superstitions of the mountain provinces. Especially was this true of Shansi, the nearer of the two to the sea coast. Until recently it was the scene of the labors of more than 180 missionaries. Agents of foreign firms in Hong Kong and Shanghai have crossed the mountain passes and have made a beginning in what will some day be undoubtedly a large import trade with the farmers of the terraced valleys.

There are comparatively few streams in the two provinces, and water for the rice fields is supplied by irrigating ditches and wells. These dry up when rain fails, and the result is a failure of crops and famine. Such is the condition now. For two years scarcely any rain has fallen in Shansi and Shensi.

Before the last of the missionaries left Shansi, the black shadow of hunger hung so low over the land as to make even the famine horrors of India small by comparison. And the shadow has continued to depen. Io one will probably ever know the exact number of victims, but recent accounts give some idea of the death harvest that is being gleaned in the parched fields. Rice, the one important staple of food, is worth its weight in gold. As a substitute the people, in sheer despair, eat grass and the leaves of the trees.

Deaths are too numerous to make funerals any longer possible. Outside of every village a deep pit is dug, and every morning are laid the bodies of those who have died during the night, covered only by a thin layer of earth. Later in the day another ghastly layer is placed upon them, and the processs continued until the pit is filled, which seldom takes longer than a few days. Large towns are depopulated. The inhabitants wander like wild beasts through the fields searching vainly for food.

Leather straps and sacks are boiled and eaten to satisfy the cravings of hunger. Some idea of the horror of it all can be gathered from the following letter received in this city from a Chinaman in Shansi:

"A man just came from a village outside this city, and described the condition of the starving people, which made me feel as though I was among them. Thirty dollars was the price of a bag of rice. The poor have no rice; they killed everything in sight, if eatable, and cooked even leather boxes or bags, and stewed tree-bark and grass. Some of them were so famished that they were even eating earth.

"On the first day he saw a number of poor people selling their children for rice. On the second, he saw the same party lying starving on the road, and on the third day about half of them were dead, and their miserable bodies were lying at the mercy of the hungry dogs and wolves.

"Nearly every city, town or village he passed through was deserted or the houses occupied by the dead. It is said that in one town the people have opened a human flesh market.

"Another friend told me of a family of nine. The mother could not bear to hear the cry of the famished children, so she hung herself. The father became insane and killed all seven children and finally committed suicide."

The Christian Herald caught up Li Hung Chang's appeal and spread it broadcast throughout the United States. The response has been more quick and generous than to any previous calls on the generosity of Americans. One of the first contributions was from President McKinley, who, from his special car on his journey across the continent, telegraphed his contribution along with that of John Hay, secretary of state.

Already $20,000 have been cabled to the relief committee of five missionaries in Teintsin. The obstacles which led some persons in this country to fear that the distribution of famine relief in China would be a difficult task have melted away.

Shansi's new governor is a very progressive Chinaman. He is a friend of the foreigners, and he recently sent an official escort to Peking to conduct the missionaries back to Tai-yuen-Fu. Shensi, too, has been found to be quite as accessible for relief operations as any other part of the Empire.

These are days when electricity and steam are knitting the world together. $20,000 can now be sent from New York to China almost as easily as to Philadelphia.

While you are reading this, a flotilla of small junks and river boats is probably well on its way up the Yang-tse river. The flotilla is laden with tons of rice. It will follow its windings toward the southern borders of the two provinces, and then continue up the river Han to a point where its cargo will be loaded on wagon trains and carried far into the interior. Thousands of lives will be saved, and, as Wu Ting Fang recently put it, "The relief will go a long way toward helping the Chinese to realize the foreigners are not their enemies."

Yes, $20,000 will go a long way in Shansi and Shensi, but after all, it is only a beginning. A great deal more is needed before the shadow can be lifted from over the desert valleys. A fund is now being raised which it is hopel may rival the hundreds of thousands contributed for India.

Crushed, heartbroken China today looks to America as her best friend. There is something pathetic in Li Hung Chang's selection of this country for his appeal.

Li Hung Chang was the friend of General Grant. By his instructions, the Chinese minister every Memorial day lays a wreath on the tomb on Riverside drive. Li Hung Chang made to us the first admission of his country's suffering.

Shall his appeal be in vain? Will the countrymen of U. S. Grant give no heed? No, as Dr. Louis Klopsch says, in a little phamphlet just issued by the relief fund:

"'Let the deed past bury its dead.' These people, though their skin be yellow, though their customs be strange, though they live in a different cline, though they have erred, and grievously erred, yet are they our brethren, and we will not desert them in this hour of terrible affliction and distress.

"They shall not die if we can prevent it. Their children shall not be sold for food, for to them they are as dear as our own prattling babes are to us; they shall not starve, seeing that God has given us strength enough and to spare. Out of our abundance will we assist them, and, God helping us, we will do to them as we would, under similar conditions, have them do to us, and thus reducing the golden rule to practice, we will give them bread to the full extent of our individual ability."

Saving lives in North China is not an expensive process. Ten American cents will pay the expenses of a small family for a day, and twenty-five cents will save a life for a week. A dollar is all that is needed to maintain a family of five for a week, and one hundred dollars will keep alive a good sized village. All contributions toward this deserving cause should be addressed to the China Famine Relief Fund, care the Christian Herald, Bible House, New York.

WENT DEEPER.

Futile Attempt Made to Float the Ingalls.

New York, June 25.—An attempt to float the transport Ingalls, which sank in a dry dock in the Erie basin, June 14, into a stronger drydock, has resulted in the vessel's dropping an additional four feet and now being deeper in the water than ever. Nobody was injured in this second accident. Another effort will be made today to raise the ship.

GUILTY OFFICIAL

Grand Jury Severely Condemns Auditor of Ramsey County.

Gross Carelessness Resulting In the Loss of Revenue.

Jury Recommends That Johnson Be Impeached or Removed.

St. Paul, June 25.—The Ramsey county grand jury yesterday turned in its report to Judge Lewis.

The report merely mentions the fact that the county institutions are in excellent condition, and then pays its attentions to the office of the county auditor, and in that office can, apparently see no good thing.

The report is terribly severe. It rehearses the entire certificate refundment story, and lays the blame for the reckless occurrences, treated of by General Pope, squarely on the shoulders of County Auditor Johnson. Harry Griswold is not so much as mentioned. There is, in fact, no scapegoat.

The grand jury waxes as it goes on and mentions misfeasance and impeachment.

As to Ed Bourne the jury thinks it unfortunate the statute of limitations prevents levelling an indictment at him, which will be lenien consolation for that gentleman with a grievance.

The report states: "It appears that there is gross carelessness in the management of the office of county auditor, or, resulting in the loss of revenue and great danger of further loss both to the county and to individual taxpayers, and the placing of some taxpayers in danger of losing their property.

"We recommend that the legal department proceed to recover the sum of $17,-23 and interest, the amount of which the county was deprived through the failure of the proper parties to comply with the law.

"We also recommend that the proper authorities investigate the foregoing charges, and, if sustained, impeach or remove from office W. R. Johnson and E. B. Lott for malfeasance of both.

"The grand jury condemns the practice of paying ten per cent interest on tax certificate redemptions and commends the county attorney for his order recently given to pay the legal rate only.

"It appears that the management and methods in the offices of city comptroller and city treasurer are exceptionally good. We recommend that the same general methods be adopted in the offices of county auditor and county treasurer."

Later it says: "We desire to express as our profound conviction: The most effective agency that can be employed to prevent continued looseness in the administration of our city and county affairs is consolidation of the dual governments now existing."

Absolutely Clean

In the Schlitz brewery cleanliness is carried to extremes. We do more than is necessary to be certain of doing enough.

The caldrons in which the beer is brewed are kept scrupulously clean and covered. The air in which the beer is cooled is filtered.

The barrels in which it is stored are cleaned with steam and soda, then glazed with rosin on the inside, then cleaned again. The bottles are cleaned with utmost precaution.

Still we filter the beer, then sterilize every bottle, for the slightest uncleanliness taints the whole product. It is in these ways that Schlitz beer has gained its reputation for purity, and made Milwaukee famous.

Extra Work In Internal Revenue Office.

St. Paul, June 25.—The internal revenue office has several new clerks to assist during the next two weeks. They are F. H. Martin, of Duluth; W. L. Humanson, of Monkato, E. D. French, of Redwood Falls, and Jacob Geish, of Le Sueur. All special taxes are due on July 1.

The reduction of the taxes on the first of the month will necessitate a great deal of extra work on the part of the department. Already the office is flooded with the applications of tobacco and cigar dealers entitled to a rebate or refundment for the stock they will have on hand July 1. The inventory will have to be taken on that day by the dealer in the presence of two disinterested witnesses.

CASS LAKE WON.

St. Cloud's Ball Team Beaten at Bemidji.

Cass Lake, Minn., June 25.—(Special to The Herald.)—A large crowd of Cass Lake people went to Bemidji on the excursion train to that place Sunday to see the base ball game between the Cass Lake and St. Cloud teams for a purse of $100, donated by the citizens of Bemidji. The Cass Lake team had been greatly strengthened for the game, the local management having secured Ball and McNeil, of Grand Forks; Loeken and Erickson, of Crookston, and Allen and McCarty, of Akely. The St. Cloud team was also very strong, they having Hammerill, one of the University of Minnesota pitchers. Ball and McNeil were the battery for Cass Lake and their work was the best ever seen in the northern part of the state. Ball would have had a shut-out to his credit, had it not been for an error in the first inning which allowed two St. Cloud players to score. After the first inning not a St. Cloud player reached third base. McNeil's throwing to bases was a feature of the game, he catching no less than five runners on second. Ludwig, captain of the Cass Lake team, did some heavy batting, as also did Meisner and Roy, of Cass Lake. Considerable money changed hands on the result of the game. The citizens of Bemidji realized $50 from a collection taken among the crowd, which was given to the St. Cloud team. The score of the game was: Cass Lake, 8; St. Cloud, 2. The St. Cloud battery was Hammerill and Lemm.

IN GOOD SHAPE

So Says Manager Tuttle of the American Mining Company.

Minneapolis, June 25.—"It will be shown that information embodied in the attorney general's complaint was with one exception furnished by men who left the American Mining Investment company because they were not permitted to rob it any longer."

C. H. Tuttle, general manager of the American Mining and Investment company has returned from Chicago, and thus expressed himself when seen by a reporter in regard to the recent action taken by the courts. Mr. Tuttle denies that his absence from the city was occasioned by the legal steps taken. In fact, Mr. Tuttle says he is quite incensed over the fact that this impression prevails in certain circles.

"I'm my return from Curlew about four weeks ago I was taken sick," said Mr. Tuttle. "The finding of the attorney general proved such a strain upon me that everybody at the office knew that I was unfit for business. I then went to an expert in Chicago for treatment. I have now partially recovered and come home to resume business and to assist in a full and thorough investigation, which seems to be desired by the state. I regret more than anything else that I should be charged with trying to avoid any responsibility of the company. No one who knows me will say that of me. Had I heard the court's condemnation of us at the time I am afraid it would have killed me. All I ask now is a fair, full and dispassionate investigation. I am willing to take my full share of responsibility if any wrong has been done, and I expect others to do the same. I will be in my office in the Northwestern building after tomorrow morning."

In further discussing the condition of the company, Mr. Tuttle said that its affairs would be found to be in an excellent condition, and that the statement that it had no mining properties would be proven to be false. Mr. Tuttle said that in due time this would all be shown to the satisfaction of the court.

OPEN SWITCH

Caused Death of Three and Fatal Injury to Several.

Pittsburg, June 25.—By the wrecking of train No. 23 north bound on the Pittsburg & Lake Erie railroad at Monaca, twenty-six miles from this city last evening, two persons are dead, three fatally injured and forty others more or less hurt.

The dead:

WM. J. CUNNINGHAM, fireman, McKees Rocks, Pa.

LOWRY BLAKE, baggagemaster, Pittsburg. Both bodies crushed almost to a pulp.

Fatally injured:

Mrs. Lola B. Perkins, Euclid avenue, Cleveland, Ohio, abdomen punctured by splinter.

Mrs. James Lee, Washington, Pa., arm broken and hurt internally.

Mrs. Jefferson Carse, Beaver Pa., badly cut and bruised.

From passengers it is learned that the train while going at very fast speed ran into an open switch at Monaca, and the entire train went over an embankment some twenty-five feet high. Every car was turned over, two of them going over twice.

The train had its coaches well filled with passengers, and the wonder is that there were not more fatalities.

Fireman Cunningham when taken from the wreck, was found to be horribly crushed. His death must have been instantaneous.

As soon as the news of the wreck reached the city, Superintendent Yoho summoned a corps of physicians and took them to the scene on a special relief train. The train returned here with the dead and a number of injured, when another train was at once dispatched to Monaca, which gives currency to the report that many more are hurt than as yet made known.

The wrecked train was known as Number 23, not the Cleveland Flyer as at first reported. It left Pittsburg for Cleveland at 3:30 p. m., and was composed of two baggage cars, two day coaches and one parlor car.

DECLINE IN WHEAT

Wheat Started Lower and Ruled Weak During Morning.

Lower Cables and Good Harvesting Weather the Factors.

July Liquidation at Chicago on a Liberal Scale.

Duluth Board of Trade, June 25.—The wheat market was weak again today and while it closed at practically the top price for the session it was at a decline. The cables were lower, Liverpool declining 1s@1d. The weather in the winter wheat belt was reported excellent for harvesting while in the spring wheat section there were liberal rains. There was some effort to stir up uneasiness over the heavy fall of rain in the Northwest and there is talk of rust and damage from an excess of rain. There was heavy liquidation in July at Chicago and this increased the bearish feeling. Bradstreet reported a decrease of 4,500,000 bushels in the world's visible. Primary receipts of wheat were 456,000 bushels, last year 359,000. Shipments, 540,000 bushels, last year 229,000. Clearances of wheat and flour were 657,000 bushels.

Receipts at Duluth and Minneapolis 352 cars, against 313 last week and 198 last year. Chicago receipts, 77 cars, 1 of contract grade.

Trading in futures was active on the Duluth board. July wheat opened 2c off at 65¾c, declined to 65¼c at 9:40, reacted to 65⅞c at 9:50, sold at 65¾c at 10:18, rose to 65⅞c at 11:30, dropped 65¼c at 12:16 declined further to 65⅜c at 12:35, rallied to 65¾c at 1 and closed at 65⅞c, a decline of ½c. Chicago declined ⅝-¾c and Minneapolis ⅝c.

Cash sales were 15,000 bushels, at July price.

There was active trading in flax and September advanced 5c, October only advanced 1c which indicates a short interest in the former option. Rye was off ¾c.

Following are the closing prices:

Wheat—No. 1 hard, cash, 68¾; to arrive, 68⅞; Sept., 66⅞. No. 1 northern, cash, cash, 65¾; to arrive, 65⅝; July, 65⅞ Sept., 65⅞. No. 2 northern, 66¾. No. 3 spring, 56⅝. Oats, 28-27¾; rye, 42½; flax, cash, $1.86; Sept., $1.40; Sept. N. W., $1.41; Oct., $1.33¼.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Lower Cables Weakening Factor In Wheat.

Chicago, June 25.—Lower cables was the weakening factor in the wheat market today, although good harvesting weather was somewhat of an influence. July liquidation continued on a liberal scale. Sept. opened 1¼@⅛c to ¼ c lower at 66c to 66¼c. Minneapolis and Duluth reported 352 cars against 313 last week and 198 a year ago. Local receipts were 77 cars, one of contract grade.

Trade continued quiet; September touched 66c, but closed steady, ⅛@¼c higher, at 66⅜@⅝c.

There were free offerings of corn at the opening which was weak and lower on cables and in sympathy with wheat. Sept. opened unchanged to ¼ lower at 44¾ to 44⅞ and rallied to 44⅝. Receipts were 281 cars, five of contract.

On reports of damage by excessive heat, September held steady and closed at a gain of ¼@⅜c at 44⅝@⅝c.

Oats sympathized with other grains. Sept. opened unchanged to ⅛c lower at 26¾ to 26⅜c but rallied to 26½c on covering. Receipts were 192 cars.

Provisions were firmer. Sept. pork opened 2½c to 7½c higher at $15.05 to $15.10 and reacted to $14.97½ on profit taking. Sept. lard opened 5c higher at $8.90 but dropped back to $8.85 while ribs opened a shade higher at $8.22½@8.25 and reacted to $8.10.

MARKET GOSSIP.

Received over private wire of B. E. Baker, grain and stock broker, 307 Board of Trade, Duluth, Minn.:

Chicago, June 25.—The wheat market opened at about previous prices and was steady throughout the day. There has not been much selling pressure, and local scalpers have been playing for a rally. The weather continues all that could be desired for harvest and for making the crop. Cash wheat in some markets weak and lower. A sharp decline in Liverpool is attributable to offerings to wheat from that quarter. We see no change in general situation, and think the tendency of prices is still downward. Bradstreets makes the world's visible decrease 4,500,000 against an increase of 1,500,000 last year. Very little cash demand reported so far.

Corn—There has been some liquidation of July and replacing of September, which has widened the difference, but on the whole the selling pressure is light. The general feeling is that the corn crop had a start, and that only perfect conditions from now on can make a perfect crop. This is modified to some extent by the fact that conditions are favorable and have been so for the past two or three weeks. Receipts continue small and demand poor. Influences both ways seem to have about neutralized each other, and the market shows no decided tendency.

Oats—The trading has been marked by further liquidation of July holdings. September holds fairly steady. The general feeling is that while the crop prospect has improved very much during the last thirty days, it is not yet up to last year. Receipts are liberal and the demand not satisfactory.

The provision market opened higher, but the advance was quickly lost on local selling, and the general market has turned decidedly better. Packers are not disposed to help hog products toward higher prices. Cash demand continues good. Hogs receipts at primary markets, $4,000, against 88,000.

DECLINE IN STOCKS

Followed Rumors About the Embarrassment of a Bank.

Sharp Rallies When the Stories Were Declared Unfounded.

But the Market Closed Rather Feverish and Irregular.

New York, June 25.—Interest in the opening trading in stocks was very languid, and there were no changes exceeding a fraction. Losses predominated but there gains of fractions in Manhattan, Sugar and Illinois Central. St. Paul declined early a point.

Shorts were uneasy over the apparent price agreement in the sugar trade and bought sugar heavily, lifting it above 146. Other stocks moved irregularly, Amalgamated Copper fell 2⅝. Talk of new opposition to American Cotton Oil lowered it 1⅝ and Minneapolis, St. Paul & Sault Ste. Marie preferred lost 3 points on its large gain yesterday. Some important gains were made in miner properties, Iowa Central preferred figuring for 3½, the common 1¼ and General Electric 3 points. Smelting sold up 1½. Amalgamated Copper recovered 1¼ and New York Central rose 1⅛.

Speculation was very unsettled in the forenoon and trading quiet. Reports of a heavy bank failure in Leipzig caused depression. Some stocks which had been conspicuously strong earlier, fell back about a point, including sugar, Illinois Central and New York Central. Sharp losses were also scored by St. Louis & San Francisco, Chicago, Indianapolis & Louisville, Manhattan and Union Pacific. Meanwhile there was strong uplift to the Iowa Central issues, the common bringing 42½ and the preferred 82. Minneapolis, St. Paul & Sault Ste. Marie preferred recovered some of its early loss. National Salt common advanced a point on rumored formulation of an international combination, but the preferred showed heaviness. Twin City Rapid Transit improved 1¼ and New Jersey Central 2½ and there was considerable demand for Southern Pacific. Prominent railroad stocks received but little attention and declined. Bonds were steady.

Rumors gained currency of embarrassment of a bank which led to heavy speculative liquidation, affecting the list quite generally. The maximum declines were 5¾ for Colorado Fuel and 5 for St. Paul. A number of other stocks which had risen sharply in face of the early depression reacted between 2 and 5 points and losses of 2 to 2¾ were numerous among the principal active stocks. Upon the announcement that the Clearing House association would not find it necessary to take action in the affairs of any bank, there was a scramble to shorts to cover and some sharp rallies ensued, the advances extending to 2¾ points in some cases. The market did not hold all of the recoveries, and closed rather feverish and irregular.

BRITISH CONSOLS.

London, June 25.—Consols for money, 93 7-16; consols for account, 93 7-16.

THE COTTON MARKET.

New York, June 25.—Cotton opened today 2 points higher to 3 points lower, and after the call was irregular owing to excited buying of July contracts, of which there was a great scarcity. The later months were naturally inclined toward a lower level under rain in the South. Within the first hour July rose perpendicularly to 8.81, or 23 points on last night's close. Shorts were demoralized by reports that the clique was prepared to accept all cotton tendered by "notices" tomorrow, meanwhile refusing to help oversold traders out of their difficulty by selling July cotton. The new crop months advanced reluctantly. July repeatedly broke only to again bob up on a fresh scare of the shorts. August shorts also were apprehensive.

Cotton spot closed dull, ¼ higher; middling uplands, 8 13-16; middling gulf, 9 3-16. Sales none. Cotton futures closed steady: June 8.72; July, 8.72; Aug., 8.02; Sept., 7.71; Oct., 7.64; Nov., 7.60; Dec., 7.62; Jan., 7.66; Feb., 7.66; March., 7.69.

TROUBLE ADJUSTED.

Rumors In Wall Street About a Bank.

New York, June 25—Wall Street was full of rumors this morning concerning the condition of a New York city bank. It was reported that a meeting of the clearing house association was held to take action concerning the reported failure of one institution, a national bank, to make good a debit balance at the clearing house. None of the rumors could be confirmed officially. The cashier of the bank mentioned gave out the following statement: "There is no truth whatever in any statement that this bank is in financial difficulties. There was some little trouble, but it has all been adjusted. The bank is sound as a dollar."

Just before 3 o'clock Manager Sherer of the clearing house made the following statement: "Everything is all right with every bank in the association. No single institution has a debit balance."

RESIGNED.

C. A. Morey No Longer Member of Board of Control.

Winona, Minn., June 25.—Governor Van Sant came down from St. Paul last evening, and while here accepted the resignation of Charles A. Morey, of Winona, as a member of the board of control, and appointed Judge O. B. Gould, of this city, as Mr. Morey's successor, Judge Gould immediately signifying his acceptance. Judge Gould is a well known Winona lawyer and a life-long Republican. During '95 and '96 he occupied the district bench by appointment, and was defeated for re-election by Judge A. H. Snow.

Mr. Morey's fall in the state capitol building injured the optic nerves so that his eyesight is seriously impaired. Since then he has been obliged to remain in a dark room, and his recovery, though not despaired of, will be a matter of a long time. Governor Van Sant has been loth to accept the resignation, which was tenedered nearly a month ago, but, after a personal interview, decided on this action and made the appointment above noted. It will take effect July 1.

Mr. Morey's letter of resignation to Governor Van Sant is as follows:

"It is uncertain when I can again assume active duty as a member of the board of control. The work of the board will never be more pressing and important than at the present time, and to remain a passive member longer would be unfair to my associates and to the state. I, therefore, tender you my resignation. As you know, I did not seek this or any other position, and when able I shall gladly return to my own walk in life. I became, however, much interested in the problem of non-partisan, concentrated management of state institutions along the lines of modern business development, and I am convinced that such management, under the law passed upon your recommendation, can be carried out in good faith upon broad and high ground, will give to the heads of those institutions greater opportunity and wider latitude for the educational, curative and reformatory work which has been committed to them. With earnest good wishes for the success of the movement, and with assurances of my full appreciation of your kindly consideration, I am, yours very sincerely,

"C. A. MOREY."

EXPLOSION

Followed By Fire Destroyed Hydraulic Plant at Quinnesec.

Iron Mountain, Mich., June 5.—The hydraulic works at Quinnesec Falls, five miles distant, were destroyed by an explosion, followed by fire early today. The cause is a mystery. Loss in damaged machinery will exceed $200,000. Power for operating the Chapin, Ludington and Hamilton mines was furnished almost entirely by the works, and their destruction will necessitate the closing of these mines for some time, throwing $1000 men out of employment.

NEWS OF THE LAKES

Steel Trust Is Moving an Immense Amount of Ore.

Fear a Boom In Freight Rates In the Fall.

Five Vessels Are Reported Aground at the Soo.

Cleveland, June 25.—(Special to The Herald.)—The United States Steel corporation keeps on taking single-trip tonnage to such an extent that the iron ore docks at Lake Erie ports are kept continually jammed up. The capacity of the iron ore docks seems to be the only limit to the amount of iron ore now being sent forward. It looks as if the steel trust managers are frightened over the prospect of an old-fashioned boom in lake freights next fall when wheat and corn begins to come down from the Northwest and West and they are now putting out every ton than can be handled over their docks. There is no change of any kind in rates.

FIVE VESSELS AGROUND.

Sault Ste. Marie, June 25.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Volunteer and Magnetic, bound down, are aground in Hay Lake. The Bartlett, bound up, is aground at Dark hole. JAPANESE MAIDEN

Tastes Fresh Cherries at Baltimore For First Time.

Has Invented a New Press For Her Countrywomen.

New Contrivance For the Fourth of July Celebrations.

From The Herald Washington Bureau.

Washington, June 25.—(Special to The Herald.)—Miss Tami Mitami, the young Japanese woman who has been spending the past month with friends in Baltimore, had the unique experience a few days ago of tasting for the first time fresh cherries. "It seems strange, doesn't it?" she said, speaking of the experience, "to come from the land of the cherry blossom and yet never to have tasted a real live cherry. Our cherry blossoms are beautiful, but our cherries are not edible."

Miss Mitami had on the conventional Japanese dress when she talked with a reporter. "This dress, you see, is very inconvenient," she said, "for walking or bicycling or anything of that sort—and the dress that I invented can be used more comfortably for those things."

"Do the Japanese girls ride on bicycles?"

"Why, yes, of course they do. I don't know very well how to do it myself, but I am going to learn when I go back."

"What is the reformed dress like?"

"It is this way: It is a short kimona—one that comes just below the hips, you know, instead of all the way to the ground, like this one I have on. Then over that short kimona is worn a skirt, plaited in the front and back and fastened on the sides. With it we wear just a folded belt, not a long sash like the one I have on.

"Yes," touching the wide black satin sash that was folded around and around her waist and was tied into a big square bow in the back, over a queer little cushion, that made her look as though she were carrying a knapsack, she said, "my sash is very long, four yards and a half long."

Underneath the black sash was a girdle, which looped up the long kimona, and over the black sash, keeping the whole combination in place, was tied tightly a purple silk cord. And was no wonder that the inventor thought the simpler dress was the more comfortable.

While on the subject of dress, Miss Mitami said that the Japanese women usually buy the materials of their gowns by the whole piece, instead of by the yard, as American women do. The materials are bought from the weaver and are uncolored. When they are to be used the dyes are sent for and the latest tint is selected or the tint that most pleases my lady's fancy. Buying by the piece gives the wearer the opportunity, too, of having stamped upon her sleeve the coat of arms of her family—a design which always appears on her best gowns.

Former Governor Frank Brown, of Maryland, who goes to Europe every summer, is quite an authority upon methods of foreign travel, and has at times given valuable advice to the inexperienced. "Only the greenies," he said lately, engage their return passage at the time of their departure from America. There are always plenty of opportunities to get a stateroom upon one of the first class Atlantic liners, owing to so many persons changing their dates of sailing.

"Generally the difficulties of traveling in Europe are few. Even in countries in which the language is unfamiliar to the traveler he can find some one about who can speak English, so that he need not go astray. Sometimes it happens that he discovers the expected English-speaking native to be abused, and then he is in trouble. Under such circumstances, if he wants to know which train to take, for instance, the best thing he can do is to follow his trunk. They register baggage over there, putting a numbered paster on your trunk, and giving you another piece of paper with the same number. Watch your baggage and get on the same train and you will reach your destination all right. I am going to sail for Europe this summer on July 11, but will leave several days before that time, as my steamer starts from New York. I shall probably be back early in September. No, I have not secured my return passage. I shall do that when I get ready to come home."

The "Three Admirals" will have an important place in the Fourth of July celebrations this year. These "admirals are not on the national payroll, but will probably make a considerable hole in the American pocket, nevertheless. Combined, they form a contrivance invented by a northern genius who has been busying himself all the winter and spring devising nerve-racking and picturesque novelties in the line of summer fireworks. The "admirals" make up a kind of a tri-part rocket, which soars aloft, bursts into three parts and does some new "stunts" in the way of colored aerial displays. As one is said to make the most noise and another do most of the work, the inventor wisely refrained from naming the "admirals."

"Electrical" fireworks are something new this summer. They are not so called because electricity is employed in any way ,but because they give out a brilliant white light similar to that made by electric flashes. There are "electrical" fountains, rockets, candles and batteries all with the dazzling white light that is something new in aerial fireworks. An "electric" balloon soars away into the sky and an "electric" parachute drops gracefully from it, all in a halo of flashing brilliancy.

Fire sticks for small children are being made this year and promise to be quite popular. They burn slowly, in different colors, and throw out showers of pretty little stars. These stars, the dealers say, may fall on the flimsiest dress material without igniting it. Most of the novelties of the year are in these novelties for small children. Among them are "Klondike fountains" and "Japanese bouquets," which industriously spray colored fire; wheels and other devices designed upon familiar plans but with some novel features to make them attractive.

Something new is a waxed torch, about three feet long, which will burn with a steady brilliant white light two hours. This is used for lighting grounds at night and costs 75 cents. A smaller torch to burn one hour costs 50 cents. Over grounds so lighted fiery little "jack rabbits" may be made to hop about with picturesque effect. These little "rabbits," upon being touched off with a match, skip excitedly about, uttering shrill squeals and showering fire in their tracks.

The old favorites are still in demand, especially those that make a great racket. Some of this year's devices are more diabolical than ever. Dealers in pyrotechnics say that aerial displays will be more popular than ever this summer, especially in the suburban and rural sections.

A proposed new type of submarine boat, capable of cruising on the water, under waves and crawling around on the bottom of the ocean, is now before the export board of the navy department for consideration. If it is found to present any promising features for submarine warfare there is a probability that congress may be asked to authorize one or two boast for experimental purposes.

There is some opposition among certain members of the board to the submarine boat as a type, and those authorized in the past two years were all ordered against the earnest protest of the navy experts and Secretary Long. The boat which is now under consideration was invented by Mr. Lake, who designed the Argonaut. The latter was constructed at Baltimore for a cruise along the Jersey coast in search of the treasure ships that are reputed to lie buried in the sands.

The Argonaut is a remarkable craft. It not only has the qualities of diving, like other submarine boats, but it is fitted with two great wheels with which it moves around on the bottom under its own power like a gigantic crab. Experiments with this boat have proved that it has some value, but to what extent it would prove efficient for naval purposes remains to be developed.

The inventor of the Argonaut last week presented a proposition to the navy department for the construction of a boat with such modifications as the board might suggest merely for trial purposes. The board has the suggestion under consideration, and will take it up again at the next meeting. If not too weighty some officers believe such a craft would be valuable for cable-cutting expeditions and the removal of submarine mines. It is believed it might be practical to carry a boat of that type on the deck of some of the larger ships in time of war, to be placed in the water when needed.

Loud wails of distress reach Washington from debtors in Cuba. Governor General Wood has announced that all classes of creditors are at liberty to take action and force the collection of mortgage credits on all kinds of property. The mortgage on property in Cuba amounts to $208,000,000, of which $100,000,000 is on city real estate and the remainder on rural property. It is estimated that 79 per cent of the value of the city real estate is indebtedness, and 58 per cent of the value of rural property is indebtedness.

The constitutional convention endeavored to prevent Gen. Wood from authorizing the collection of debts. It cabled to Secretary Root asking him to permit the further suspension of payment of indebtedness until the Cuban government had assumed the reins of government, when it would take action. Secretary Root declined, however, to interfere. The United States has twice before prevented foreclosures.

Orders have been given by the navy department for the conversion of the collier Southery, at the Norfolk navy yard, into a prison ship, where enlisted men and marines now detained in the small "lockups" at navy yards may be imprisoned pending the completion of new quarters at the Boston yard.

This is the first instance in the history of the navy where the two government naval prisons—at Boston and Mare Island—have become so overcrowded with prisoners as to render the use of a special ship necessary to accommodate them. This action is due, also, to protests received from League Island and other stations alleging that as many as six men are cooped up in small cells not large enough for two.

Attention has been called to conditions at League Island, where six prisoners are in the brig of the receiving ship Richmond suffering, it has been claimed, "inhuman confinement." These men have all been convicted by general court-martial and should have been sent to Boston to serve out their terms.

Secretary Long has decided that the conditions at navy yards are such that it is impossible to wait longer for the completion of additions to the Boston prison. He has, therefore, directed that the Southery be made ready to receive all men now in the brigs and navy yards. The collier is a large ship and will serve the purposes well. Should the weather make close confinement unbearable it is possible that the Southery may be sent to Portsmouth, N. H., for the summer.

The lack of proper accommodations for naval prisoners, it is said at the navy department, is not due to any special outbreak of bad behavior in the service, but rather to the growth of the enlisted force in late years, with the development of the service, which tends to increase the number of trials for offenses against regulations.

With a fleet of fifty-two war vessels on the Asiatic station and temptations at Manila for hilarious conduct after a long cruise around the islands, the tackle finds it difficult to keep out of trouble and frequently is convicted of offenses calling for varied degrees of punishment.

Consul John H. Grout, at Malta, sends the following to the state department: Statistics as to coal imports at this port for the month of April just ended tend to show that if the present condition of the coal trade in England continues, Malta will use more American coal than ever before. Several large dealers here have received word from their head offices at London to add 1 shilling to contract prices and leave complaints to be fought out by owners there. It must be understood that the above applies to bunker coal. Very little else is used here. For the past few weeks the contract price for this port has averaged $6.31 and $6.55 per ton. The increase of importations of American coal will depend largely on freight rates. Some months ago cargoes for the British admiralty were brought here from the United States at a cost of $4.86 per ton freight. One boat brought for the Peninsular and Oriental Steamship company 3445 tons of New River coal, which paid a freight of $4.13 per ton; another vessel brought 4970 tons of similar coal at a freight of $3.18 per ton. The Peninsular and Oriental company, on an average, maintains a store of coal at this port of about 20,000 tons. The local manager of the Peninsular and Oriental company informs me that reports from two of the vessels of his line that have been using the American coal are to the effect that it is excellent steaming coal.

INVASION BY BOERS

Many Detached Bodies of Burghers Occupy Cape Colony.

Operating In Harmony and Seriously Annoying the British.

Statement Calculated to Dispirit Most Optimistic Englishman.

London, June 25.—Whatever may have been the extent of the gradual attrition of the Boer forces and resources and the consequent improvement of the British position in South Africa during the past month, the general situation has been so little altered since the end of May that reports mailed by English correspondents which are printed today may probably be taken to represent the condition of affairs now as accurately as when they left Cape Town. The correspondent of the Daily Mail at Cape Town sends a statement that is calculated to dispirit the most optomistic Englishman if it can be regarded as well founded. The letter was written about three weeks ago. The correspondent of the Mail says:

"The Boer invasion of Cape Colony is developing in a rather serious manner. The Boer bands are getting recruits, and, what is more, they are getting horses. They picked up no fewer than 500 at the remount camp near Colsegurg less than a week ago. The invaders are swarming all over the eastern and midlands districts. They number anywhere from 7000 to 10000, and are having a merry time. They wreck trains, kill colonists and play havoc generally."

Recording the capture and saving of Jamestown by the invaders, the correspondent says the amazing feature of the incident is that Jamestown is comparatively close to Aliwal North, where there were 8000 British troops and an abundance of guns and transports. He continues:

A glance at the map will show that a large portion of the colony is virtually in the hands of the enemy. From Dordrecht to Willowmore and across to Kenhart and on to Namaqualand the Boer is the man in possession. The slow progress of the campaign, from the British point of view, causes deep dissatisfaction. The authorities allow next to no news to be published, and it is only by interviewing recent arrivals from the front that one can get any real conception of what is taking place."

The correspondent of the Standard, writing from Pretoria under date of May 30, speaks in almost as gloomy a vein in regard to the operations of Gen. Sir Bindon Blood, in the Northeast Transvaal. He says:

"Gen. Blood's movement cannot fairly be regarded as having proved in the main that the intention was altogether abortive."

This is faint praise bestowed on the operations, while the correspondent admits further on that if the primary object was to enclose Commandant Gen. Botha it was frustrated at the very outset.

After describing the scheme which alone seemed to offer hope of success, the correspondent writes:

"Unfortunately we don't appear to have troops available for so huge a movement. Quite 60,000 men, half of them mounted infantry and cavalry, would be required to cover the vast area described. Where the 240,000 ordered men men now in South Africa are distributed is a mystery to all except those at readquarters. But the enormous extent of contry now held by us, the large number of posts and the pery extensive lines of communication which it is necessary to maintain, and the military operations from one end of the country to the other, doubtless explain the paucity of men available for action on a large scale. Lord Kitchener might have 100,000 additional men at his disposal and yet have none too many to spare for mobile work."

BOARD OF REVIEW

Complaints Received Thus Far Not Very Serious.

Assessment Being Proved Where Over Valuation Is Claimed.

Some Objections to the Assessment Made on Dogs.

The board of review, composed of Mayor Hugo, Comptroller McCormick and Assessor Olafson, is again in session today to hear the complaints of taxpayers relative to their personal property assessments. Mayor Hugo says that the number of objections made during the session of yesterday and today are comparatively few and in no case does the objection amount to very much. One of the principal objections raised has been due to a misapprehension on the part of the taxpayer and as soon as this is explained he has gone away satisfied. This objection was that the taxpayer was assessed the full valuation of property, in the notices sent out by the assessor, no subtraction having been made of the exemption of $100 to which all are entitled. The members of the board of review are explaining that the $100 is taken off by the county auditor.

Complaints have been made that the personal property assessment in some cases has been put at too high a figure, and in each case the board has taken the testimony, made notes and will send a man to review the property in question and report back to the board, when it will act, but not before the reviewing is accomplished.

Several instances are noted where people in various parts of the city have an assessment against them of $5 for a dog. This has been objected to before the board, but according to the opinion of the members, the board can do nothing with an objection of this nature, as the state demands that the dogs shall be taxed at $5.

There seems, however, to be a difference between the board's opinion of the law relative to the dogs and the state law itself, for the last legislature passed an act to provide a tax on dogs and provide a fund for the liquidation of damages caused by dogs. The act passed says that assessors at the time of making the annual property assessment, shall list all persons who own or keep dogs of either sex, except those under the age of four months. The law provides for a tax of $1 on all male dogs and $3 on female dogs. The tax is levied annually by the county commissioners, without any exemption, and is collected the same as any other personal property tax.

Some of the members of the board of trade thought that they were taxed too high for the amount of money on hand to transact business. This objection is met by the board of review with the opinion of the state auditor, that there should be a certain amount available to transact business, whether it is available or not; that in the eyes of the law there should always be a determinate amount on hand to do business with.

Mayor Hugo said this morning that the business of the board of review was very likely to be finished up by tonight at the present rate, though the board will continue in session until Friday evening should the exigencies demand it.

BAD STORM AT ASHLAND.

Serious Damage Done to Many Buildings.

Ashland, Wis., June 25.—A violent electric and wind storm struck Ashland yesterday morning, the worst that this city has seen for several years. The storm began about 4 o'clock and increased in violence until 8:30 a. m., when it did its worst. Many residences were struck by lightning and the occupants badly scared. The worst damage was to the building occupied by the Ashland Cigar and Tobacco company.

The building and stock were damaged to the extent of $9000, fully covered by insurance. Thirty employes, all at work at the time, were thrown from their seats and several were injured. Lightning also struck the Ashland Iron and Steel company's plant and numerous dwelling houses. In each instance of places being struck by lightning the damage will be great, and in total may exceed $8000. Rain poured in torrents. Mrs. A. Johnson and child were injured by lightning during the action of the storm and the mother may die.
